The Petitioner HAS shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment is excessive. Thus, the assessed value DOES exceed 100% of the fair market value of the property.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence. See Rule 12D-9.025(1), Florida Administrative Code (FAC). Generally, “relevant evidence” is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. This description means the evidence meets or exceeds the minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. See Rule 12D-9.025(2)(b) FAC.

The Special Magistrate reviewed all evidence presented by all parties. In accordance with DOR guidelines, the Special Magistrate determined that the evidence and testimony was relevant and credible to the valuation at hand. Thus, the evidence as presented was admitted for consideration in relation to the appropriateness of the subject assessment.

The Special Magistrate has determined that the testimonial and documentary evidence (combined) meet the test of “relevancy and credibility” and WAS sufficient to reach the “preponderance of the evidence” standard of proof required by Rule 12D-9.027(6) FAC.

The Special Magistrate also determined that there IS competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with the criteria of FS 193.011 and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish the assessment.

The Special Magistrate finds that the Petitioner HAS satisfied the "preponderance of the evidence" standard under the facts as testified to, that the appraiser's assessment is in excess of just value. After weighing all the documentary and testimonial evidence it is concluded that the assessment IS NOT reasonable and within market parameters.

RECOMMENDATION

It is recommended by the Special Magistrate that the relief applied for in this petition be GRANTED in part with a reduction in just value to $311,406.

Special Magistrate

Colleen E Millett

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

Hernando County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-174	Parcel ID R10-223-17-3253-0000-3420
Petitioner name Melissa Quigg (SFR JV-2 2024-2 Borrower The petitioner is: ☑ taxpayer of record ☐ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	Property address 7405 Cool Breeze Ct Spring Hill, FL 34607

Decision Summary ☐ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☑ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	310,373.00	310,373.00	292,219.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	310,373.00	310,373.00	292,219.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0.00	0.00	0.00
4. Taxable value,* required	310,373.00	310,373.00	292,219.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact
See attached.

Conclusions of Law
See attached.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	Colleen E Millett Print name	01/27/2026 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

PETITION NO. 25-174

RECOMMENDATION OF SPECIAL MAGISTRATE

VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD

HERNANDO COUNTY, FLORIDA

IN RE: THE PETITION OF: Melissa Quigg (SFR JV-2 2024-2 Borrower LLC)

PARCEL KEY NO: 01286441

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

The Petitioner, Edwin Rivera of Ownwell, Inc for Melissa Quigg (SFR JV-2 2024-2 Borrower LLC), appeared telephonically before the Special Magistrate to give testimony. The Property Appraiser was represented by BRANDON JIMENEZ and DOUG MACK. All present parties were put under sworn oath.

The Property Appraiser verified the values accordingly; a just value of $310,373, an assessed or capped value of $310,373, and a taxable value of $310,373. There was no change in value after the process.

The Petitioner estimated just value at $308,000 and amended to $280,000.

Subject Property Type: The subject is a 2,088 SF (heated) single family dwelling with 2,441 adjusted SF that was built in 1997. The subject is located at 7405 Cool Breeze Ct, Spring Hill, FL.

The PAO evidence consists of an evidence packet with a case synopsis, PRC with photo and an aerial map of the subject property, a sales analysis report with (3) sales, location map of sales, summary of cost of sale adjustment, PRCs for each sale, and verbal testimony.

The Petitioner's evidence consists of a petition, summary of evidence submission, property photos, evaluation summary, market value analysis grid with (6) sales, location map of sales, photos of comparable sales, and verbal testimony.

Per testimony by the PAO, there was a timely evidence exchange. There were no objections, and all the evidence noted above is considered admissible (unless specifically noted as inadmissible).

Overall, the evidence presented meets specific evidence rules (See Rule 12D-9,025(1) and Rule 12D-9.025(2)b, F.A.C) and is considered sufficient, relevant, and credible information available, from which a reliable estimate of just, assessed, and taxable value can be estimated.

BASIC AND UNDERLYING FINDINGS OF FACT

The PAO relied upon the sales comparison approach to value and considered CAMA analysis at TRIM. The approach utilized is considered an appropriate methodology by the Special Magistrate.

The PAO presented their evidence packet with a sales analysis report utilizing (3) improved sales from the subject market area. The PAO performed their analysis utilizing adjusted SF which is generally considered less reliable than utilizing heated SF however, is often used in mass appraisal. The PAO focused on age and location of the subject, and as such, all comparable sales are within 0.31 miles.

The Petitioner provided (6) improved sales (including the subject transfer if applicable). Of these sales, (2) were used by the PAO. The Petitioner adjusted for differences in age, heated SF, land size, features, time, and COS. The Petitioner focused on location and as such, all (6) comparable sales were within a 0.31 mile radius of the subject.

The PAO had a rebuttal to the Petitioner's evidence and stated that Sales 4, 5, and 6 would not be considered due to their 2025 sale dates. Petitioner amended the opinion of just value from $308,000 to $280,000.

Of the sales provided, (3) Petitioner and (0) PAO sales are not considered reliable (dissimilar in age, dissimilar design and/or size, lack of or excessive adjustment due to size discrepancies, sale date out of range). The median of the most reliable Petitioner sales indicates a just value for the subject of $289,487. The median of the most reliable PAO sales indicates a just value for the subject of $294,950. The median of all the most reliable sales from both parties is $292,219, which is a credible and reliable just value for the subject based on the available data. The PAO just value conclusion is $310,373. This data reliably supports that the subject is over assessed.

The PAO reported that their internal analysis supports a 15% increase in sale prices from 1/1/2024 to the lien date of 1/1/2025. They also reported that the DOR performed a study across this same period, utilizing qualified sales of like property, and concluded a 15% increase over the same period. The Special Magistrate assumes that the PAO utilized a process of sampling paired sales or some other subset of the available data. The Special

Magistrate will equally weigh the DOR study results (15%) utilizing all qualified property sales, and the PAO conclusion (15%) and utilize 15% herein.

The Special Magistrate has applied a qualitative analysis of the data submitted by all parties and has also considered the recent sale of the subject property, if applicable. A COS factor of 15%, market conditions adjustment based on 12% annually, age/condition adjustment, land size/value, a factor for adjusted SF or non-heated area as a % of overall space, extra features differences, a SF adjustment, quality and view adjustments were considered.

The PAO considered the cost of sales in their reconciliation process. Proper consideration of the 1st and 8th criteria for the subject property would be approximately 7-12% (cost of sales adjustment; estimated to be brokerage cost of 5-7%, personal property 1-2%, and financing costs of 1-3%, properly considered for the subject). The Special Magistrate will consider this when weighing the appropriateness of each parties' conclusions and the assessment level.

The DOR utilizes 15% cost of sales in their oversight function for all property in aggregate. The Magistrate has considered the specific subject property in relation to cost of sales factors as follows (certain scale and property types will vary significantly if cost of sales is to be performed according to statute).

Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., requires proper consideration of the "net proceeds of sale," regardless of whether an actual sale of the property has occurred. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001). However, the statute does not require the property appraiser to select the value generated by the application of Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., and apply it in a blanket fashion to all assessments. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001).

All property is to be assessed at 100% of just value Walter v. Schuler 176 So.2d 81 (Fla 1965). The terms "just value" "fair market value' and "full cash value" are legally synonymous. Id.

The 1st and 8th criteria were introduced by the legislature after this ruling, suggesting that the legislature wishes real estate to be taxed net of typical sales costs, implying that "just value" is in fact equal to "market value net of typical sales costs". Based on current training material for Special Magistrates, this consistently and strongly advises a deduction for the 1st and 8th criteria.

The PAO testified to documentation that pertains to the DOR treatment of the eight criteria required under FS 193.011. The PAO testified to and has documented how each of the criteria was considered in their development of the assessment in regard to the property at hand. The PAO addressed the requirements of FS 193.011 as follows:

"Factors to consider in deriving just valuation. – In arriving at just valuation as required under s. 4, Art. VII of the State Constitution, the property appraiser shall take into consideration the following factors:

(1) The present cash value of the property, which is the amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arm's length;

The PAO, within the CAMA system, makes an adjustment for cost of sale within their direct application of the sales comparison analysis. An adjustment is made for cost of sale as noted under Criteria 8 in their CAMA analysis and in the reconciliation process.

(2) The highest and best use...,(shortened) Land use and building codes were considered along with the character of any existing site improvements, the subject is noted to be residential use and was not disputed by either party. Comparable data was selected based on this information.

(3) The location of the property; The subject property is assigned a location or neighborhood code within the PAO database related to its specific location. Comparable data is selected with as similar a location as is possible, while also considering other relevant factors.

(4) The quantity or size of the property; The size of the building, the site size and site improvements are based on data contained within the PRC and all comparable sales are selected with attention to similarity of size, while also considering and weighing the other relevant factors.

(5) The cost of said property and the present replacement value of any improvements thereon; Within the CAMA system, the PAO uses cost data and when applicable, considers a pure replacement cost new and depreciation factors within a cost approach to value.

(6) The condition of said property; The condition of the property, through periodic site inspections, actual age, and information submitted to them by property owners is considered by the PAO. The information is given a % good or % depreciation factor and is noted in their subject documentation and/or PRC card and utilized in the CAMA analysis.

(7) The income from said property; and; When applicable, the PAO prepares an income capitalization analysis based on market data contained in their files, general market statistics, and when available, actual subject performance is considered.

(8) "The net proceeds of the sale of the property, as received by the seller, after deduction of all the usual and reasonable fees and costs of the sale, including the costs and expenses of financing, and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms or financing arrangements. When the net proceeds of the sale of any property are utilized, directly or indirectly, in the determination of just valuation of realty of the sold parcel or any other parcel under the provisions of this section, the property appraiser, for the purposes of such determination, shall exclude any portion of such net proceeds attributable to payments for household furnishings or other items of personal property."

The cost of sales is considered by the PAO within their CAMA analysis and in reconciliation when performing discrete sales, income or cost analysis. Sales prices of comparable properties are adjusted downward (reportedly) within CAMA, typically at near 15%.

ULTIMATE FINDINGS OF FACT

Florida Statute section 194.301 elaborates the standards of review that the Special Magistrate must apply to any petition to the Value Adjustment Board. The statute states as follows:

Pursuant to Section 194.301, the Property Appraiser's assessment shall be entitled to a Presumption of Correctness if the Property Appraiser shows, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the Property Appraiser considered each of the eight criteria set forth in Section 193.011, the Property Appraiser applied the correct appraisal methodology based upon the characteristics of the property, and the Property Appraiser did not use appraisal practices which are different than the appraisal practices generally applied by the Property Appraiser to comparable property in the same county.

In accordance with Rule 12D-10.003(5)(a), it is concluded that the PAO DID establish a presumption of correctness by properly considering the eight criteria described in FS 193.011. Further, it is concluded that the methodology used by the PAO IS appropriate and DOES comply with professionally accepted appraisal practices for the subject property type. The Petitioner DID overcome the presumption of correctness.

The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment was based on an arbitrary appraisal practice different from like property in the same county.

The Petitioner HAS shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment is excessive. Thus, the assessed value DOES exceed 100% of the fair market value of the property.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence. See Rule 12D-9.025(1), Florida Administrative Code (FAC). Generally, “relevant evidence” is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. This description means the evidence meets or exceeds the minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. See Rule 12D-9.025(2)(b) FAC.

The Special Magistrate reviewed all evidence presented by all parties. In accordance with DOR guidelines, the Special Magistrate determined that the evidence and testimony was relevant and credible to the valuation at hand. Thus, the evidence as presented was admitted for consideration in relation to the appropriateness of the subject assessment.

The Special Magistrate has determined that the testimonial and documentary evidence (combined) meet the test of “relevancy and credibility” and WAS sufficient to reach the “preponderance of the evidence” standard of proof required by Rule 12D-9.027(6) FAC.

The Special Magistrate also determined that there IS competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with the criteria of FS 193.011 and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish the assessment.

The Special Magistrate finds that the Petitioner HAS satisfied the "preponderance of the evidence" standard under the facts as testified to, that the appraiser's assessment is in excess of just value. After weighing all the documentary and testimonial evidence it is concluded that the assessment IS NOT reasonable and within market parameters.

RECOMMENDATION

It is recommended by the Special Magistrate that the relief applied for in this petition be GRANTED in part with a reduction in just value to $292,219.

Special Magistrate

Colleen E Millett

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

Hernando County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-175	Parcel ID R32-323-17-5260-1769-0210
Petitioner name Melissa Quigg (SFR JV-2 2023-1 Borrower The petitioner is: ☑ taxpayer of record ☐ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	Property address 8353 Belmont Rd Spring Hill, FL 34606

Decision Summary ☐ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☑ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	292,528.00	286,324.00	282,421.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	292,528.00	286,324.00	282,421.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0.00	0.00	0.00
4. Taxable value,* required	292,528.00	286,324.00	282,421.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact
See attached.

Conclusions of Law
See attached.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	Print name	Date
Colleen E Millett	Colleen E Millett	01/27/2026
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

PETITION NO. 25-175

RECOMMENDATION OF SPECIAL MAGISTRATE

VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD

HERNANDO COUNTY, FLORIDA

IN RE: THE PETITION OF: Melissa Quigg (SFR JV-2 2023-1 Borrower LLC)

PARCEL KEY NO: 00735191

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

The Petitioner, Edwin Rivera of Ownwell, Inc for Melissa Quigg (SFR JV-2 2023-1 Borrower LLC), appeared telephonically before the Special Magistrate to give testimony. The Property Appraiser was represented by BRANDON JIMENEZ and DOUG MACK. All present parties were put under sworn oath.

The Property Appraiser verified the values accordingly; a just value of $286,324, an assessed or capped value of $286,324, and a taxable value of $286,324. There was a change in value after the process. The values at TRIM were $292,528 for just, assessed, and taxable value.

The Petitioner estimated just value at $279,000.

Subject Property Type: The subject is a 1,986 SF (heated) single family dwelling with 2,231 adjusted SF that was built in 2006. The subject is located at 8353 Belmont Rd, Spring Hill, FL.

The PAO evidence consists of an evidence packet with a case synopsis, PRC with photo and an aerial map of the subject property, a sales analysis report with (3) sales, location map of sales, summary of cost of sale adjustment, PRCs for each sale, and verbal testimony.

The Petitioner's evidence consists of a petition, summary of evidence submission, property photos, evaluation summary, market value analysis grid with (5) sales, location map of sales, photos of comparable sales, and verbal testimony.

Per testimony by the PAO, there was a timely evidence exchange. There were no objections, and all the evidence noted above is considered admissible (unless specifically noted as inadmissible).

Overall, the evidence presented meets specific evidence rules (See Rule 12D-9,025(1) and Rule 12D-9.025(2)b, F.A.C) and is considered sufficient, relevant, and credible information available, from which a reliable estimate of just, assessed, and taxable value can be estimated.

BASIC AND UNDERLYING FINDINGS OF FACT

The PAO relied upon the sales comparison approach to value and considered CAMA analysis at TRIM. The approach utilized is considered an appropriate methodology by the Special Magistrate.

The PAO presented their evidence packet with a sales analysis report utilizing (3) improved sales from the subject market area. The PAO performed their analysis utilizing adjusted SF which is generally considered less reliable than utilizing heated SF however, is often used in mass appraisal. The PAO focused on age and thus had to extend search parameters, as such, all comparable sales are within 2.79 miles. PAO also noted corrections on page 7 of their packet for the just value of $874,047 to be corrected to $892,181, the weighted mean from 85% to 87% and the COS from 15% to 13%.

The Petitioner provided (5) improved sales (including the subject transfer if applicable). Of these sales, (0) were used by the PAO. The Petitioner adjusted for differences in age, heated SF, land size, features, time, and COS. The Petitioner focused on location and as such, all (6) comparable sales were within a 0.61 mile radius of the subject.

The PAO had no rebuttal to the Petitioner's evidence.

Of the sales provided, (3) Petitioner and (1) PAO sales are not considered reliable (dissimilar in age, dissimilar design and/or size, lack of or excessive adjustment due to size discrepancies, sale date out of range). The median of the most reliable Petitioner sales indicates a just value for the subject of $280,135. The median of the most reliable PAO sales indicates a just value for the subject of $284,708. The median of all the most reliable sales from both parties is $282,421, which is a credible and reliable just value for the subject based on the available data. The PAO just value conclusion is $286,324. This data reliably supports that the subject is over assessed.

The PAO reported that their internal analysis supports a 15% increase in sale prices from 1/1/2024 to the lien date of 1/1/2025. They also reported that the DOR performed a study across this same period, utilizing qualified sales of like property, and concluded a 15% increase over the same period. The Special Magistrate assumes that the PAO utilized a process of sampling paired sales or some other subset of the available data. The Special

Magistrate will equally weigh the DOR study results (15%) utilizing all qualified property sales, and the PAO conclusion (15%) and utilize 15% herein.

The Special Magistrate has applied a qualitative analysis of the data submitted by all parties and has also considered the recent sale of the subject property, if applicable. A COS factor of 15%, market conditions adjustment based on 12% annually, age/condition adjustment, land size/value, a factor for adjusted SF or non-heated area as a % of overall space, extra features differences, a SF adjustment, quality and view adjustments were considered.

The PAO considered the cost of sales in their reconciliation process. Proper consideration of the 1st and 8th criteria for the subject property would be approximately 7-12% (cost of sales adjustment; estimated to be brokerage cost of 5-7%, personal property 1-2%, and financing costs of 1-3%, properly considered for the subject). The Special Magistrate will consider this when weighing the appropriateness of each parties' conclusions and the assessment level.

The DOR utilizes 15% cost of sales in their oversight function for all property in aggregate. The Magistrate has considered the specific subject property in relation to cost of sales factors as follows (certain scale and property types will vary significantly if cost of sales is to be performed according to statute).

Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., requires proper consideration of the "net proceeds of sale," regardless of whether an actual sale of the property has occurred. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001). However, the statute does not require the property appraiser to select the value generated by the application of Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., and apply it in a blanket fashion to all assessments. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001).

All property is to be assessed at 100% of just value Walter v. Schuler 176 So.2d 81 (Fla 1965). The terms "just value" "fair market value' and "full cash value" are legally synonymous. Id.

The 1st and 8th criteria were introduced by the legislature after this ruling, suggesting that the legislature wishes real estate to be taxed net of typical sales costs, implying that "just value" is in fact equal to "market value net of typical sales costs". Based on current training material for Special Magistrates, this consistently and strongly advises a deduction for the 1st and 8th criteria.

The PAO testified to documentation that pertains to the DOR treatment of the eight criteria required under FS 193.011. The PAO testified to and has documented how each of the criteria was considered in their development of the assessment in regard to the property at hand. The PAO addressed the requirements of FS 193.011 as follows:

"Factors to consider in deriving just valuation. – In arriving at just valuation as required under s. 4, Art. VII of the State Constitution, the property appraiser shall take into consideration the following factors:

(1) The present cash value of the property, which is the amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arm's length;

The PAO, within the CAMA system, makes an adjustment for cost of sale within their direct application of the sales comparison analysis. An adjustment is made for cost of sale as noted under Criteria 8 in their CAMA analysis and in the reconciliation process.

(2) The highest and best use...,(shortened) Land use and building codes were considered along with the character of any existing site improvements, the subject is noted to be residential use and was not disputed by either party. Comparable data was selected based on this information.

(3) The location of the property; The subject property is assigned a location or neighborhood code within the PAO database related to its specific location. Comparable data is selected with as similar a location as is possible, while also considering other relevant factors.

(4) The quantity or size of the property; The size of the building, the site size and site improvements are based on data contained within the PRC and all comparable sales are selected with attention to similarity of size, while also considering and weighing the other relevant factors.

(5) The cost of said property and the present replacement value of any improvements thereon; Within the CAMA system, the PAO uses cost data and when applicable, considers a pure replacement cost new and depreciation factors within a cost approach to value.

(6) The condition of said property; The condition of the property, through periodic site inspections, actual age, and information submitted to them by property owners is considered by the PAO. The information is given a % good or % depreciation factor and is noted in their subject documentation and/or PRC card and utilized in the CAMA analysis.

(7) The income from said property; and; When applicable, the PAO prepares an income capitalization analysis based on market data contained in their files, general market statistics, and when available, actual subject performance is considered.

(8) "The net proceeds of the sale of the property, as received by the seller, after deduction of all the usual and reasonable fees and costs of the sale, including the costs and expenses of financing, and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms or financing arrangements. When the net proceeds of the sale of any property are utilized, directly or indirectly, in the determination of just valuation of realty of the sold parcel or any other parcel under the provisions of this section, the property appraiser, for the purposes of such determination, shall exclude any portion of such net proceeds attributable to payments for household furnishings or other items of personal property."

The cost of sales is considered by the PAO within their CAMA analysis and in reconciliation when performing discrete sales, income or cost analysis. Sales prices of comparable properties are adjusted downward (reportedly) within CAMA, typically at near 15%.

ULTIMATE FINDINGS OF FACT

Florida Statute section 194.301 elaborates the standards of review that the Special Magistrate must apply to any petition to the Value Adjustment Board. The statute states as follows:

Pursuant to Section 194.301, the Property Appraiser's assessment shall be entitled to a Presumption of Correctness if the Property Appraiser shows, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the Property Appraiser considered each of the eight criteria set forth in Section 193.011, the Property Appraiser applied the correct appraisal methodology based upon the characteristics of the property, and the Property Appraiser did not use appraisal practices which are different than the appraisal practices generally applied by the Property Appraiser to comparable property in the same county.

In accordance with Rule 12D-10.003(5)(a), it is concluded that the PAO DID establish a presumption of correctness by properly considering the eight criteria described in FS 193.011. Further, it is concluded that the methodology used by the PAO IS appropriate and DOES comply with professionally accepted appraisal practices for the subject property type. The Petitioner DID overcome the presumption of correctness.

The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment was based on an arbitrary appraisal practice different from like property in the same county.

The Petitioner HAS shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment is excessive. Thus, the assessed value DOES exceed 100% of the fair market value of the property.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence. See Rule 12D-9.025(1), Florida Administrative Code (FAC). Generally, “relevant evidence” is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. This description means the evidence meets or exceeds the minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. See Rule 12D-9.025(2)(b) FAC.

The Special Magistrate reviewed all evidence presented by all parties. In accordance with DOR guidelines, the Special Magistrate determined that the evidence and testimony was relevant and credible to the valuation at hand. Thus, the evidence as presented was admitted for consideration in relation to the appropriateness of the subject assessment.

The Special Magistrate has determined that the testimonial and documentary evidence (combined) meet the test of “relevancy and credibility” and WAS sufficient to reach the “preponderance of the evidence” standard of proof required by Rule 12D-9.027(6) FAC.

The Special Magistrate also determined that there IS competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with the criteria of FS 193.011 and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish the assessment.

The Special Magistrate finds that the Petitioner HAS satisfied the "preponderance of the evidence" standard under the facts as testified to, that the appraiser's assessment is in excess of just value. After weighing all the documentary and testimonial evidence it is concluded that the assessment IS NOT reasonable and within market parameters.

RECOMMENDATION

It is recommended by the Special Magistrate that the relief applied for in this petition be GRANTED in part with a reduction in just value to $282,421.

Special Magistrate

Colleen E Millett

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

Hernando County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-176	Parcel ID R32-323-17-5040-0182-0210
Petitioner name Melissa Quigg (SFR JV-2 2024-2 Borrower The petitioner is: ☑ taxpayer of record ☐ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	Property address 7253 Lamplighter St Spring Hill, FL 34606

Decision Summary ☐ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☑ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	350,707.00	350,707.00	313,433.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	350,707.00	350,707.00	313,433.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0.00	0.00	0.00
4. Taxable value,* required	350,707.00	350,707.00	313,433.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact
See attached.

Conclusions of Law
See attached.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	Print name	Date
Colleen E Millett	Colleen E Millett	01/27/2026
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

PETITION NO. 25-176

RECOMMENDATION OF SPECIAL MAGISTRATE

VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD

HERNANDO COUNTY, FLORIDA

IN RE: THE PETITION OF: Melissa Quigg (SFR JV-2 2024-2 Borrower LLC)

PARCEL KEY NO: 00239619

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

The Petitioner, Edwin Rivera of Ownwell, Inc for Melissa Quigg (SFR JV-2 2024-2 Borrower LLC), appeared telephonically before the Special Magistrate to give testimony. The Property Appraiser was represented by BRANDON JIMENEZ and DOUG MACK. All present parties were put under sworn oath.

The Property Appraiser verified the values accordingly; a just value of $350,707, an assessed or capped value of $350,707, and a taxable value of $350,707. There was no change in value after the process.

The Petitioner estimated just value at $318,000 and was amended to $319,000.

Subject Property Type: The subject is a 2,247 SF (heated) single family dwelling with 2,581 adjusted SF that was built in 2006. The subject is located at 7253 Lamplighter St, Spring Hill, FL.

The PAO evidence consists of an evidence packet with a case synopsis, PRC with photo and an aerial map of the subject property, a sales analysis report with (3) sales, location map of sales, summary of cost of sale adjustment, PRCs for each sale, and verbal testimony.

The Petitioner's evidence consists of a petition, summary of evidence submission, property photos, evaluation summary, market value analysis grid with (5) sales, location map of sales, photos of comparable sales, and verbal testimony.

Per testimony by the PAO, there was a timely evidence exchange. There were no objections, and all the evidence noted above is considered admissible (unless specifically noted as inadmissible).

Overall, the evidence presented meets specific evidence rules (See Rule 12D-9,025(1) and Rule 12D-9.025(2)b, F.A.C) and is considered sufficient, relevant, and credible information available, from which a reliable estimate of just, assessed, and taxable value can be estimated.

BASIC AND UNDERLYING FINDINGS OF FACT

The PAO relied upon the sales comparison approach to value and considered CAMA analysis at TRIM. The approach utilized is considered an appropriate methodology by the Special Magistrate.

The PAO presented their evidence packet with a sales analysis report utilizing (3) improved sales from the subject market area. The PAO performed their analysis utilizing adjusted SF which is generally considered less reliable than utilizing heated SF however, is often used in mass appraisal. The PAO focused on age and thus had to extend search parameters, as such, all comparable sales are within 2.00 miles. PAO noted a correction in date of review for the subject parcel on page 2 of their packet from 4/11/2023 to 4/11/2024.

The Petitioner provided (5) improved sales (including the subject transfer if applicable). Of these sales, (1) was used by the PAO. The Petitioner adjusted for differences in age, heated SF, land size, features, time, and COS. The Petitioner focused on location and as such, all (5) comparable sales were within a 0.67 mile radius of the subject.

The PAO had no rebuttal to the Petitioner's evidence.

Of the sales provided, (0) Petitioner and (0) PAO sales are not considered reliable (dissimilar in age, dissimilar design and/or size, lack of or excessive adjustment due to size discrepancies, sale date out of range). The median of the most reliable Petitioner sales indicates a just value for the subject of $314,390. The median of the most reliable PAO sales indicates a just value for the subject of $312,375. The median of all the most reliable sales from both parties is $313,433, which is a credible and reliable just value for the subject based on the available data. The PAO just value conclusion is $350,707. This data reliably supports that the subject is over assessed.

The PAO reported that their internal analysis supports a 15% increase in sale prices from 1/1/2024 to the lien date of 1/1/2025. They also reported that the DOR performed a study across this same period, utilizing qualified sales of like property, and concluded a 15% increase over the same period. The Special Magistrate assumes that the PAO utilized a process of sampling paired sales or some other subset of the available data. The Special Magistrate will equally weigh the DOR study results (15%) utilizing all qualified property sales, and the PAO conclusion (15%) and utilize 15% herein.

The Special Magistrate has applied a qualitative analysis of the data submitted by all parties and has also considered the recent sale of the subject property, if applicable. A COS factor of 15%, market conditions adjustment based on 12% annually, age/condition adjustment, land size/value, a factor for adjusted SF or non-heated area as a % of overall space, extra features differences, a SF adjustment, quality and view adjustments were considered.

The PAO considered the cost of sales in their reconciliation process. Proper consideration of the 1st and 8th criteria for the subject property would be approximately 7-12% (cost of sales adjustment; estimated to be brokerage cost of 5-7%, personal property 1-2%, and financing costs of 1-3%, properly considered for the subject). The Special Magistrate will consider this when weighing the appropriateness of each parties' conclusions and the assessment level.

The DOR utilizes 15% cost of sales in their oversight function for all property in aggregate. The Magistrate has considered the specific subject property in relation to cost of sales factors as follows (certain scale and property types will vary significantly if cost of sales is to be performed according to statute).

Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., requires proper consideration of the "net proceeds of sale," regardless of whether an actual sale of the property has occurred. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001). However, the statute does not require the property appraiser to select the value generated by the application of Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., and apply it in a blanket fashion to all assessments. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001).

All property is to be assessed at 100% of just value Walter v. Schuler 176 So.2d 81 (Fla 1965). The terms "just value" "fair market value' and "full cash value" are legally synonymous. Id.

The 1st and 8th criteria were introduced by the legislature after this ruling, suggesting that the legislature wishes real estate to be taxed net of typical sales costs, implying that "just value" is in fact equal to "market value net of typical sales costs". Based on current training material for Special Magistrates, this consistently and strongly advises a deduction for the 1st and 8th criteria.

The PAO testified to documentation that pertains to the DOR treatment of the eight criteria required under FS 193.011. The PAO testified to and has documented how each of the criteria was considered in their development of the assessment in regard to the property at hand. The PAO addressed the requirements of FS 193.011 as follows:

“Factors to consider in deriving just valuation. – In arriving at just valuation as required under s. 4, Art. VII of the State Constitution, the property appraiser shall take into consideration the following factors:

(1) The present cash value of the property, which is the amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arm's length;

The PAO, within the CAMA system, makes an adjustment for cost of sale within their direct application of the sales comparison analysis. An adjustment is made for cost of sale as noted under Criteria 8 in their CAMA analysis and in the reconciliation process.

(2) The highest and best use...,(shortened) Land use and building codes were considered along with the character of any existing site improvements, the subject is noted to be residential use and was not disputed by either party. Comparable data was selected based on this information.

(3) The location of the property; The subject property is assigned a location or neighborhood code within the PAO database related to its specific location. Comparable data is selected with as similar a location as is possible, while also considering other relevant factors.

(4) The quantity or size of the property; The size of the building, the site size and site improvements are based on data contained within the PRC and all comparable sales are selected with attention to similarity of size, while also considering and weighing the other relevant factors.

(5) The cost of said property and the present replacement value of any improvements thereon; Within the CAMA system, the PAO uses cost data and when applicable, considers a pure replacement cost new and depreciation factors within a cost approach to value.

(6) The condition of said property; The condition of the property, through periodic site inspections, actual age, and information submitted to them by property owners is considered by the PAO. The information is given a % good or % depreciation factor and is noted in their subject documentation and/or PRC card and utilized in the CAMA analysis.

(7) The income from said property; and; When applicable, the PAO prepares an income capitalization analysis based on market data contained in their files, general market statistics, and when available, actual subject performance is considered.

(8) "The net proceeds of the sale of the property, as received by the seller, after deduction of all the usual and reasonable fees and costs of the sale, including the costs and expenses of financing, and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms or financing arrangements. When the net proceeds of the sale of any property are utilized, directly or indirectly, in the determination of just valuation of realty of the sold parcel or any other parcel under the provisions of this section, the property appraiser, for the purposes of such determination, shall exclude any portion of such net proceeds attributable to payments for household furnishings or other items of personal property."

The cost of sales is considered by the PAO within their CAMA analysis and in reconciliation when performing discrete sales, income or cost analysis. Sales prices of comparable properties are adjusted downward (reportedly) within CAMA, typically at near 15%.

ULTIMATE FINDINGS OF FACT

Florida Statute section 194.301 elaborates the standards of review that the Special Magistrate must apply to any petition to the Value Adjustment Board. The statute states as follows:

Pursuant to Section 194.301, the Property Appraiser's assessment shall be entitled to a Presumption of Correctness if the Property Appraiser shows, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the Property Appraiser considered each of the eight criteria set forth in Section 193.011, the Property Appraiser applied the correct appraisal methodology based upon the characteristics of the property, and the Property Appraiser did not use appraisal practices which are different than the appraisal practices generally applied by the Property Appraiser to comparable property in the same county.

In accordance with Rule 12D-10.003(5)(a), it is concluded that the PAO DID establish a presumption of correctness by properly considering the eight criteria described in FS 193.011. Further, it is concluded that the methodology used by the PAO IS appropriate and DOES comply with professionally accepted appraisal practices for the subject property type. The Petitioner DID overcome the presumption of correctness.

The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment was based on an arbitrary appraisal practice different from like property in the same county.

The Petitioner HAS shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment is excessive. Thus, the assessed value DOES exceed 100% of the fair market value of the property.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence. See Rule 12D-9.025(1), Florida Administrative Code (FAC). Generally, “relevant evidence” is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. This description means the evidence meets or exceeds the minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. See Rule 12D-9.025(2)(b) FAC.

The Special Magistrate reviewed all evidence presented by all parties. In accordance with DOR guidelines, the Special Magistrate determined that the evidence and testimony was relevant and credible to the valuation at hand. Thus, the evidence as presented was admitted for consideration in relation to the appropriateness of the subject assessment.

The Special Magistrate has determined that the testimonial and documentary evidence (combined) meet the test of “relevancy and credibility” and WAS sufficient to reach the “preponderance of the evidence” standard of proof required by Rule 12D-9.027(6) FAC.

The Special Magistrate also determined that there IS competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with the criteria of FS 193.011 and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish the assessment.

The Special Magistrate finds that the Petitioner HAS satisfied the "preponderance of the evidence" standard under the facts as testified to, that the appraiser's assessment is in excess of just value. After weighing all the documentary and testimonial evidence it is concluded that the assessment IS NOT reasonable and within market parameters.

RECOMMENDATION

It is recommended by the Special Magistrate that the relief applied for in this petition be GRANTED in part with a reduction in just value to $313,433.

Special Magistrate

Colleen E Millett

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

Hernando County

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-177	Parcel ID R32-323-17-5230-1572-0030
Petitioner name Melissa Quigg (SFR JV-1 2021-1 Borrower The petitioner is: ☑ taxpayer of record ☐ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	Property address 5287 Florentine Ct Spring Hill, FL 34608

Decision Summary ☐ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☑ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	285,245.00	285,245.00	277,284.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	285,245.00	285,245.00	277,284.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0.00	0.00	0.00
4. Taxable value,* required	285,245.00	285,245.00	277,284.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact
See attached.

Conclusions of Law
See attached.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	Print name	Date
Colleen E Millett	Colleen E Millett	01/27/2026
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

PETITION NO. 25-177

RECOMMENDATION OF SPECIAL MAGISTRATE

VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD

HERNANDO COUNTY, FLORIDA

IN RE: THE PETITION OF: Melissa Quigg (SFR JV-1 2021-1 Borrower LLC)

PARCEL KEY NO: 00632854

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

The Petitioner, Edwin Rivera of Ownwell, Inc for Melissa Quigg (SFR JV-1 2021-1 Borrower LLC), appeared telephonically before the Special Magistrate to give testimony. The Property Appraiser was represented by BRANDON JIMENEZ and DOUG MACK. All present parties were put under sworn oath.

The Property Appraiser verified the values accordingly; a just value of $285,245, an assessed or capped value of $285,245, and a taxable value of $285,245. There was no change in value after the process.

The Petitioner estimated just value at $242,000.

Subject Property Type: The subject is a 1,847 SF (heated) single family dwelling with 2,382 adjusted SF that was built in 1985. The subject is located at 5287 Florentine Ct, Spring Hill, FL.

The PAO evidence consists of an evidence packet with a case synopsis, PRC with photo and an aerial map of the subject property, a sales analysis report with (3) sales, location map of sales, summary of cost of sale adjustment, PRCs for each sale, and verbal testimony.

The Petitioner's evidence consists of a petition, summary of evidence submission, property photos, evaluation summary, market value analysis grid with (5) sales, location map of sales, photos of comparable sales, and verbal testimony.

Per testimony by the PAO, there was a timely evidence exchange. There were no objections, and all the evidence noted above is considered admissible (unless specifically noted as inadmissible).

Overall, the evidence presented meets specific evidence rules (See Rule 12D-9,025(1) and Rule 12D-9.025(2)b, F.A.C) and is considered sufficient, relevant, and credible information available, from which a reliable estimate of just, assessed, and taxable value can be estimated.

BASIC AND UNDERLYING FINDINGS OF FACT

The PAO relied upon the sales comparison approach to value and considered CAMA analysis at TRIM. The approach utilized is considered an appropriate methodology by the Special Magistrate.

The PAO presented their evidence packet with a sales analysis report utilizing (3) improved sales from the subject market area. The PAO performed their analysis utilizing adjusted SF which is generally considered less reliable than utilizing heated SF however, is often used in mass appraisal. The PAO focused on age and location, as such, all comparable sales are within 0.68 miles.

The Petitioner provided (5) improved sales (including the subject transfer if applicable). Of these sales, (0) were used by the PAO. The Petitioner adjusted for differences in age, heated SF, land size, features, time, and COS. The Petitioner focused on location and as such, all (5) comparable sales were within a 0.52 mile radius of the subject.

The PAO had no rebuttal to the Petitioner's evidence.

Of the sales provided, (2) Petitioner and (1) PAO sales are not considered reliable (dissimilar in age, dissimilar design and/or size, lack of or excessive adjustment due to size discrepancies, sale date out of range). The median of the most reliable Petitioner sales indicates a just value for the subject of $228,593. The median of the most reliable PAO sales indicates a just value for the subject of $325,975. The median of all the most reliable sales from both parties is $277,284, which is a credible and reliable just value for the subject based on the available data. The PAO just value conclusion is $285,245. This data reliably supports that the subject is over assessed.

The PAO reported that their internal analysis supports a 15% increase in sale prices from 1/1/2024 to the lien date of 1/1/2025. They also reported that the DOR performed a study across this same period, utilizing qualified sales of like property, and concluded a 15% increase over the same period. The Special Magistrate assumes that the PAO utilized a process of sampling paired sales or some other subset of the available data. The Special Magistrate will equally weigh the DOR study results (15%) utilizing all qualified property sales, and the PAO conclusion (15%) and utilize 15% herein.

The Special Magistrate has applied a qualitative analysis of the data submitted by all parties and has also considered the recent sale of the subject property, if applicable. A COS factor of 15%, market conditions adjustment based on 12% annually, age/condition adjustment, land size/value, a factor for adjusted SF or non-heated area as a % of overall space, extra features differences, a SF adjustment, quality and view adjustments were considered.

The PAO considered the cost of sales in their reconciliation process. Proper consideration of the 1st and 8th criteria for the subject property would be approximately 7-12% (cost of sales adjustment; estimated to be brokerage cost of 5-7%, personal property 1-2%, and financing costs of 1-3%, properly considered for the subject). The Special Magistrate will consider this when weighing the appropriateness of each parties' conclusions and the assessment level.

The DOR utilizes 15% cost of sales in their oversight function for all property in aggregate. The Magistrate has considered the specific subject property in relation to cost of sales factors as follows (certain scale and property types will vary significantly if cost of sales is to be performed according to statute).

Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., requires proper consideration of the "net proceeds of sale," regardless of whether an actual sale of the property has occurred. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001). However, the statute does not require the property appraiser to select the value generated by the application of Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., and apply it in a blanket fashion to all assessments. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001).

All property is to be assessed at 100% of just value Walter v. Schuler 176 So.2d 81 (Fla 1965). The terms "just value" "fair market value' and "full cash value" are legally synonymous. Id.

The 1st and 8th criteria were introduced by the legislature after this ruling, suggesting that the legislature wishes real estate to be taxed net of typical sales costs, implying that "just value" is in fact equal to "market value net of typical sales costs". Based on current training material for Special Magistrates, this consistently and strongly advises a deduction for the 1st and 8th criteria.

The PAO testified to documentation that pertains to the DOR treatment of the eight criteria required under FS 193.011. The PAO testified to and has documented how each of the criteria was considered in their development of the assessment in regard to the property at hand. The PAO addressed the requirements of FS 193.011 as follows:

"Factors to consider in deriving just valuation. – In arriving at just valuation as required under s. 4, Art. VII of the State Constitution, the property appraiser shall take into consideration the following factors:

(1) The present cash value of the property, which is the amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arm's length;

The PAO, within the CAMA system, makes an adjustment for cost of sale within their direct application of the sales comparison analysis. An adjustment is made for cost of sale as noted under Criteria 8 in their CAMA analysis and in the reconciliation process.

(2) The highest and best use...,(shortened) Land use and building codes were considered along with the character of any existing site improvements, the subject is noted to be residential use and was not disputed by either party. Comparable data was selected based on this information.

(3) The location of the property; The subject property is assigned a location or neighborhood code within the PAO database related to its specific location. Comparable data is selected with as similar a location as is possible, while also considering other relevant factors.

(4) The quantity or size of the property; The size of the building, the site size and site improvements are based on data contained within the PRC and all comparable sales are selected with attention to similarity of size, while also considering and weighing the other relevant factors.

(5) The cost of said property and the present replacement value of any improvements thereon; Within the CAMA system, the PAO uses cost data and when applicable, considers a pure replacement cost new and depreciation factors within a cost approach to value.

(6) The condition of said property; The condition of the property, through periodic site inspections, actual age, and information submitted to them by property owners is considered by the PAO. The information is given a % good or % depreciation factor and is noted in their subject documentation and/or PRC card and utilized in the CAMA analysis.

(7) The income from said property; and; When applicable, the PAO prepares an income capitalization analysis based on market data contained in their files, general market statistics, and when available, actual subject performance is considered.

(8) "The net proceeds of the sale of the property, as received by the seller, after deduction of all the usual and reasonable fees and costs of the sale, including the costs and expenses of financing, and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms or financing arrangements. When the net proceeds of the sale of any property are utilized, directly or indirectly, in the determination of just valuation of realty of the sold parcel or any other parcel under the provisions of this section, the property appraiser, for the purposes of such determination, shall exclude any portion of such net proceeds attributable to payments for household furnishings or other items of personal property."

The cost of sales is considered by the PAO within their CAMA analysis and in reconciliation when performing discrete sales, income or cost analysis. Sales prices of comparable properties are adjusted downward (reportedly) within CAMA, typically at near 15%.

ULTIMATE FINDINGS OF FACT

Florida Statute section 194.301 elaborates the standards of review that the Special Magistrate must apply to any petition to the Value Adjustment Board. The statute states as follows:

Pursuant to Section 194.301, the Property Appraiser's assessment shall be entitled to a Presumption of Correctness if the Property Appraiser shows, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the Property Appraiser considered each of the eight criteria set forth in Section 193.011, the Property Appraiser applied the correct appraisal methodology based upon the characteristics of the property, and the Property Appraiser did not use appraisal practices which are different than the appraisal practices generally applied by the Property Appraiser to comparable property in the same county.

In accordance with Rule 12D-10.003(5)(a), it is concluded that the PAO DID establish a presumption of correctness by properly considering the eight criteria described in FS 193.011. Further, it is concluded that the methodology used by the PAO IS appropriate and DOES comply with professionally accepted appraisal practices for the subject property type. The Petitioner DID overcome the presumption of correctness.

The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment was based on an arbitrary appraisal practice different from like property in the same county.

The Petitioner HAS shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment is excessive. Thus, the assessed value DOES exceed 100% of the fair market value of the property.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence. See Rule 12D-9.025(1), Florida Administrative Code (FAC). Generally, “relevant evidence” is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. This description means the evidence meets or exceeds the minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. See Rule 12D-9.025(2)(b) FAC.

The Special Magistrate reviewed all evidence presented by all parties. In accordance with DOR guidelines, the Special Magistrate determined that the evidence and testimony was relevant and credible to the valuation at hand. Thus, the evidence as presented was admitted for consideration in relation to the appropriateness of the subject assessment.

The Special Magistrate has determined that the testimonial and documentary evidence (combined) meet the test of “relevancy and credibility” and WAS sufficient to reach the “preponderance of the evidence” standard of proof required by Rule 12D-9.027(6) FAC.

The Special Magistrate also determined that there IS competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with the criteria of FS 193.011 and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish the assessment.

The Special Magistrate finds that the Petitioner HAS satisfied the "preponderance of the evidence" standard under the facts as testified to, that the appraiser's assessment is in excess of just value. After weighing all the documentary and testimonial evidence it is concluded that the assessment IS NOT reasonable and within market parameters.

RECOMMENDATION

It is recommended by the Special Magistrate that the relief applied for in this petition be GRANTED in part with a reduction in just value to $277,284.

Special Magistrate

Colleen E Millett

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

Hernando County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-178	Parcel ID R32-323-17-5220-1556-0250
Petitioner name Melissa Quigg (HP FLORIDA I LLC The petitioner is: ☑ taxpayer of record ☐ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	Property address 6572 Freeport Dr Spring Hill, FL 34608

Decision Summary ☐ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☑ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	241,339.00	241,339.00	228,801.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	241,339.00	241,339.00	228,801.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0.00	0.00	0.00
4. Taxable value,* required	241,339.00	241,339.00	228,801.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact
See attached.

Conclusions of Law
See attached.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	Print name	Date
Colleen E Millett	Colleen E Millett	01/29/2026
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

PETITION NO. 25-178

RECOMMENDATION OF SPECIAL MAGISTRATE

VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD

HERNANDO COUNTY, FLORIDA

IN RE: THE PETITION OF: Melissa Quigg (HP FLORIDA I LLC)

PARCEL KEY NO: 00731293

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

The Petitioner, Edwin Rivera of Ownwell, Inc for Melissa Quigg (HP FLORIDA I LLC), appeared telephonically before the Special Magistrate to give testimony. The Property Appraiser was represented by BRANDON JIMENEZ and DOUG MACK. All present parties were put under sworn oath.

The Property Appraiser verified the values accordingly; a just value of $241,339, an assessed or capped value of $241,339, and a taxable value of $241,339. There was no change in value after the process.

The Petitioner estimated just value at $197,000.

Subject Property Type: The subject is a 1,507 SF (heated) single family dwelling with 1,843 adjusted SF that was built in 1987. The subject is located at 6572 Freeport Dr, Spring Hill, FL.

The PAO evidence consists of an evidence packet with a case synopsis, PRC with photo and an aerial map of the subject property, a sales analysis report with (3) sales, location map of sales, summary of cost of sale adjustment, PRCs for each sale, and verbal testimony.

The Petitioner's evidence consists of a petition, summary of evidence submission, property photos, evaluation summary, market value analysis grid with (5) sales, location map of sales, photos of comparable sales, and verbal testimony.

Per testimony by the PAO, there was a timely evidence exchange. There were no objections, and all the evidence noted above is considered admissible (unless specifically noted as inadmissible).

Overall, the evidence presented meets specific evidence rules (See Rule 12D-9,025(1) and Rule 12D-9.025(2)b, F.A.C) and is considered sufficient, relevant, and credible information available, from which a reliable estimate of just, assessed, and taxable value can be estimated.

BASIC AND UNDERLYING FINDINGS OF FACT

The PAO relied upon the sales comparison approach to value and considered CAMA analysis at TRIM. The approach utilized is considered an appropriate methodology by the Special Magistrate.

The PAO presented their evidence packet with a sales analysis report utilizing (3) improved sales from the subject market area. The PAO performed their analysis utilizing adjusted SF which is generally considered less reliable than utilizing heated SF however, is often used in mass appraisal. The PAO focused on age and location, as such, all comparable sales are within 1.15 miles.

The Petitioner provided (5) improved sales (including the subject transfer if applicable). Of these sales, (0) were used by the PAO. The Petitioner adjusted for differences in age, heated SF, land size, features, time, and COS. The Petitioner focused on location and as such, all (5) comparable sales were within a 0.75 mile radius of the subject.

The PAO had a rebuttal to the Petitioner's evidence and noted that Sale 5, at $125,000, is an unrepaired sinkhole that resold for $285,000.

Of the sales provided, (2) Petitioner and (0) PAO sales are not considered reliable (dissimilar in age, dissimilar design and/or size, lack of or excessive adjustment due to size discrepancies, sale date out of range). The median of the most reliable Petitioner sales indicates a just value for the subject of $189,879. The median of the most reliable PAO sales indicates a just value for the subject of $267,722. The median of all the most reliable sales from both parties is $228,801, which is a credible and reliable just value for the subject based on the available data. The PAO just value conclusion is $241,339. This data reliably supports that the subject is over assessed.

The PAO reported that their internal analysis supports a 15% increase in sale prices from 1/1/2024 to the lien date of 1/1/2025. They also reported that the DOR performed a study across this same period, utilizing qualified sales of like property, and concluded a 15% increase over the same period. The Special Magistrate assumes that the PAO utilized a process of sampling paired sales or some other subset of the available data. The Special Magistrate will equally weigh the DOR study results (15%) utilizing all qualified property sales, and the PAO conclusion (15%) and utilize 15% herein.

The Special Magistrate has applied a qualitative analysis of the data submitted by all parties and has also considered the recent sale of the subject property, if applicable. A COS factor of 15%, market conditions adjustment based on 12% annually, age/condition adjustment, land size/value, a factor for adjusted SF or non-heated area as a % of overall space, extra features differences, a SF adjustment, quality and view adjustments were considered.

The PAO considered the cost of sales in their reconciliation process. Proper consideration of the 1st and 8th criteria for the subject property would be approximately 7-12% (cost of sales adjustment; estimated to be brokerage cost of 5-7%, personal property 1-2%, and financing costs of 1-3%, properly considered for the subject). The Special Magistrate will consider this when weighing the appropriateness of each parties' conclusions and the assessment level.

The DOR utilizes 15% cost of sales in their oversight function for all property in aggregate. The Magistrate has considered the specific subject property in relation to cost of sales factors as follows (certain scale and property types will vary significantly if cost of sales is to be performed according to statute).

Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., requires proper consideration of the "net proceeds of sale," regardless of whether an actual sale of the property has occurred. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001). However, the statute does not require the property appraiser to select the value generated by the application of Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., and apply it in a blanket fashion to all assessments. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001).

All property is to be assessed at 100% of just value Walter v. Schuler 176 So.2d 81 (Fla 1965). The terms "just value" "fair market value' and "full cash value" are legally synonymous. Id.

The 1st and 8th criteria were introduced by the legislature after this ruling, suggesting that the legislature wishes real estate to be taxed net of typical sales costs, implying that "just value" is in fact equal to "market value net of typical sales costs". Based on current training material for Special Magistrates, this consistently and strongly advises a deduction for the 1st and 8th criteria.

The PAO testified to documentation that pertains to the DOR treatment of the eight criteria required under FS 193.011. The PAO testified to and has documented how each of the criteria was considered in their development of the assessment in regard to the property at hand. The PAO addressed the requirements of FS 193.011 as follows:

“Factors to consider in deriving just valuation. – In arriving at just valuation as required under s. 4, Art. VII of the State Constitution, the property appraiser shall take into consideration the following factors:

(1) The present cash value of the property, which is the amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arm's length;

The PAO, within the CAMA system, makes an adjustment for cost of sale within their direct application of the sales comparison analysis. An adjustment is made for cost of sale as noted under Criteria 8 in their CAMA analysis and in the reconciliation process.

(2) The highest and best use...,(shortened) Land use and building codes were considered along with the character of any existing site improvements, the subject is noted to be residential use and was not disputed by either party. Comparable data was selected based on this information.

(3) The location of the property; The subject property is assigned a location or neighborhood code within the PAO database related to its specific location. Comparable data is selected with as similar a location as is possible, while also considering other relevant factors.

(4) The quantity or size of the property; The size of the building, the site size and site improvements are based on data contained within the PRC and all comparable sales are selected with attention to similarity of size, while also considering and weighing the other relevant factors.

(5) The cost of said property and the present replacement value of any improvements thereon; Within the CAMA system, the PAO uses cost data and when applicable, considers a pure replacement cost new and depreciation factors within a cost approach to value.

(6) The condition of said property; The condition of the property, through periodic site inspections, actual age, and information submitted to them by property owners is considered by the PAO. The information is given a % good or % depreciation factor and is noted in their subject documentation and/or PRC card and utilized in the CAMA analysis.

(7) The income from said property; and; When applicable, the PAO prepares an income capitalization analysis based on market data contained in their files, general market statistics, and when available, actual subject performance is considered.

(8) "The net proceeds of the sale of the property, as received by the seller, after deduction of all the usual and reasonable fees and costs of the sale, including the costs and expenses of financing, and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms or financing arrangements. When the net proceeds of the sale of any property are utilized, directly or indirectly, in the determination of just valuation of realty of the sold parcel or any other parcel under the provisions of this section, the property appraiser, for the purposes of such determination, shall exclude any portion of such net proceeds attributable to payments for household furnishings or other items of personal property."

The cost of sales is considered by the PAO within their CAMA analysis and in reconciliation when performing discrete sales, income or cost analysis. Sales prices of comparable properties are adjusted downward (reportedly) within CAMA, typically at near 15%.

ULTIMATE FINDINGS OF FACT

Florida Statute section 194.301 elaborates the standards of review that the Special Magistrate must apply to any petition to the Value Adjustment Board. The statute states as follows:

Pursuant to Section 194.301, the Property Appraiser's assessment shall be entitled to a Presumption of Correctness if the Property Appraiser shows, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the Property Appraiser considered each of the eight criteria set forth in Section 193.011, the Property Appraiser applied the correct appraisal methodology based upon the characteristics of the property, and the Property Appraiser did not use appraisal practices which are different than the appraisal practices generally applied by the Property Appraiser to comparable property in the same county.

In accordance with Rule 12D-10.003(5)(a), it is concluded that the PAO DID establish a presumption of correctness by properly considering the eight criteria described in FS 193.011. Further, it is concluded that the methodology used by the PAO IS appropriate and DOES comply with professionally accepted appraisal practices for the subject property type. The Petitioner DID overcome the presumption of correctness.

The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment was based on an arbitrary appraisal practice different from like property in the same county.

The Petitioner HAS shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment is excessive. Thus, the assessed value DOES exceed 100% of the fair market value of the property.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence. See Rule 12D-9.025(1), Florida Administrative Code (FAC). Generally, “relevant evidence” is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. This description means the evidence meets or exceeds the minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. See Rule 12D-9.025(2)(b) FAC.

The Special Magistrate reviewed all evidence presented by all parties. In accordance with DOR guidelines, the Special Magistrate determined that the evidence and testimony was relevant and credible to the valuation at hand. Thus, the evidence as presented was admitted for consideration in relation to the appropriateness of the subject assessment.

The Special Magistrate has determined that the testimonial and documentary evidence (combined) meet the test of “relevancy and credibility” and WAS sufficient to reach the “preponderance of the evidence” standard of proof required by Rule 12D-9.027(6) FAC.

The Special Magistrate also determined that there IS competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with the criteria of FS 193.011 and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish the assessment.

The Special Magistrate finds that the Petitioner HAS satisfied the "preponderance of the evidence" standard under the facts as testified to, that the appraiser's assessment is in excess of just value. After weighing all the documentary and testimonial evidence it is concluded that the assessment IS NOT reasonable and within market parameters.

RECOMMENDATION

It is recommended by the Special Magistrate that the relief applied for in this petition be GRANTED in part with a reduction in just value to $228,801.

Special Magistrate

Colleen E Millett

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

Hernando County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-179	Parcel ID R32-323-17-5160-1038-0190
Petitioner name Melissa Quigg (HP FLORIDA 1 LLC The petitioner is: ☑ taxpayer of record ☐ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	Property address 4429 Goldcoast Ave Spring Hill, FL 34609

Decision Summary ☑ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	238,911.00	238,911.00	238,911.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	238,911.00	238,911.00	238,911.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0.00	0.00	0.00
4. Taxable value,* required	238,911.00	238,911.00	238,911.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact
See attached.

Conclusions of Law
See attached.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	Print name	Date
Colleen E Millett	Colleen E Millett	01/29/2026
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

PETITION NO. 25-179

RECOMMENDATION OF SPECIAL MAGISTRATE

VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD

HERNANDO COUNTY, FLORIDA

IN RE: THE PETITION OF: Melissa Quigg (HP FLORIDA 1 LLC)

PARCEL KEY NO: 00576521

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

The Petitioner, Edwin Rivera of Ownwell, Inc for Melissa Quigg (HP FLORIDA 1 LLC), appeared telephonically before the Special Magistrate to give testimony. The Property Appraiser was represented by BRANDON JIMENEZ and DOUG MACK. All present parties were put under sworn oath.

The Property Appraiser verified the values accordingly; a just value of $238,911, an assessed or capped value of $238,911, and a taxable value of $238,911. There was no change in value after the process.

The Petitioner estimated just value at $210,000.

Subject Property Type: The subject is a 1,540 SF (heated) single family dwelling with 1,866 adjusted SF that was built in 1989. The subject is located at 4429 Goldcoast Ave, Spring Hill, FL.

The PAO evidence consists of an evidence packet with a case synopsis, PRC with photo and an aerial map of the subject property, a sales analysis report with (3) sales, location map of sales, summary of cost of sale adjustment, PRCs for each sale, and verbal testimony.

The Petitioner's evidence consists of a petition, summary of evidence submission, property photos, evaluation summary, market value analysis grid with (5) sales, location map of sales, photos of comparable sales, and verbal testimony.

Per testimony by the PAO, there was a timely evidence exchange. There were no objections, and all the evidence noted above is considered admissible (unless specifically noted as inadmissible).

Overall, the evidence presented meets specific evidence rules (See Rule 12D-9,025(1) and Rule 12D-9.025(2)b, F.A.C) and is considered sufficient, relevant, and credible information available, from which a reliable estimate of just, assessed, and taxable value can be estimated.

BASIC AND UNDERLYING FINDINGS OF FACT

The PAO relied upon the sales comparison approach to value and considered CAMA analysis at TRIM. The approach utilized is considered an appropriate methodology by the Special Magistrate.

The PAO presented their evidence packet with a sales analysis report utilizing (3) improved sales from the subject market area. The PAO performed their analysis utilizing adjusted SF which is generally considered less reliable than utilizing heated SF however, is often used in mass appraisal. The PAO focused on age and location, as such, all comparable sales are within 0.76 miles.

The Petitioner provided (5) improved sales (including the subject transfer if applicable). Of these sales, (0) were used by the PAO. The Petitioner adjusted for differences in age, heated SF, land size, features, time, and COS. The Petitioner focused on location and as such, all (5) comparable sales were within a 0.72 mile radius of the subject. Petitioner had (3) sales that occurred in 2025.

The PAO had a rebuttal to the Petitioner's evidence and noted that condition on Sale 2 may be a factor as it sold in March of 2025 with a sale price noted at $162,000 and again in August of 2025 for $293,000. PAO noted that Petitioner's Sale 5 is a fire damaged home that was offered as cash only and again was a 2025 sale.

Of the sales provided, (3) Petitioner and (0) PAO sales are not considered reliable (dissimilar in age, dissimilar design and/or size, lack of or excessive adjustment due to size discrepancies, sale date out of range). The median of the most reliable Petitioner sales indicates a just value for the subject of $223,182. The median of the most reliable PAO sales indicates a just value for the subject of $262,083. The median of all the most reliable sales from both parties is $242,633, which is a credible and reliable just value for the subject based on the available data. The PAO just value conclusion is $238,911. This data reliably supports that the subject is not over assessed.

The PAO reported that their internal analysis supports a 15% increase in sale prices from 1/1/2024 to the lien date of 1/1/2025. They also reported that the DOR performed a study across this same period, utilizing qualified sales of like property, and concluded a 15% increase over the same period. The Special Magistrate assumes that the PAO utilized a process of sampling paired sales or some other subset of the available data. The Special Magistrate will equally weigh the DOR study results (15%) utilizing all qualified property sales, and the PAO conclusion (15%) and utilize 15% herein.

The Special Magistrate has applied a qualitative analysis of the data submitted by all parties and has also considered the recent sale of the subject property, if applicable. A COS factor of 15%, market conditions adjustment based on 12% annually, age/condition adjustment, land size/value, a factor for adjusted SF or non-heated area as a % of overall space, extra features differences, a SF adjustment, quality and view adjustments were considered.

The PAO considered the cost of sales in their reconciliation process. Proper consideration of the 1st and 8th criteria for the subject property would be approximately 7-12% (cost of sales adjustment; estimated to be brokerage cost of 5-7%, personal property 1-2%, and financing costs of 1-3%, properly considered for the subject). The Special Magistrate will consider this when weighing the appropriateness of each parties' conclusions and the assessment level.

The DOR utilizes 15% cost of sales in their oversight function for all property in aggregate. The Magistrate has considered the specific subject property in relation to cost of sales factors as follows (certain scale and property types will vary significantly if cost of sales is to be performed according to statute).

Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., requires proper consideration of the "net proceeds of sale," regardless of whether an actual sale of the property has occurred. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001). However, the statute does not require the property appraiser to select the value generated by the application of Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., and apply it in a blanket fashion to all assessments. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001).

All property is to be assessed at 100% of just value Walter v. Schuler 176 So.2d 81 (Fla 1965). The terms "just value" "fair market value' and "full cash value" are legally synonymous. Id.

The 1st and 8th criteria were introduced by the legislature after this ruling, suggesting that the legislature wishes real estate to be taxed net of typical sales costs, implying that "just value" is in fact equal to "market value net of typical sales costs". Based on current training material for Special Magistrates, this consistently and strongly advises a deduction for the 1st and 8th criteria.

The PAO testified to documentation that pertains to the DOR treatment of the eight criteria required under FS 193.011. The PAO testified to and has documented how each of the criteria was considered in their development of the assessment in regard to the property at hand. The PAO addressed the requirements of FS 193.011 as follows:

"Factors to consider in deriving just valuation. – In arriving at just valuation as required under s. 4, Art. VII of the State Constitution, the property appraiser shall take into consideration the following factors:

(1) The present cash value of the property, which is the amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arm's length;

The PAO, within the CAMA system, makes an adjustment for cost of sale within their direct application of the sales comparison analysis. An adjustment is made for cost of sale as noted under Criteria 8 in their CAMA analysis and in the reconciliation process.

(2) The highest and best use...,(shortened) Land use and building codes were considered along with the character of any existing site improvements, the subject is noted to be residential use and was not disputed by either party. Comparable data was selected based on this information.

(3) The location of the property; The subject property is assigned a location or neighborhood code within the PAO database related to its specific location. Comparable data is selected with as similar a location as is possible, while also considering other relevant factors.

(4) The quantity or size of the property; The size of the building, the site size and site improvements are based on data contained within the PRC and all comparable sales are selected with attention to similarity of size, while also considering and weighing the other relevant factors.

(5) The cost of said property and the present replacement value of any improvements thereon; Within the CAMA system, the PAO uses cost data and when applicable, considers a pure replacement cost new and depreciation factors within a cost approach to value.

(6) The condition of said property; The condition of the property, through periodic site inspections, actual age, and information submitted to them by property owners is considered by the PAO. The information is given a % good or % depreciation factor and is noted in their subject documentation and/or PRC card and utilized in the CAMA analysis.

(7) The income from said property; and; When applicable, the PAO prepares an income capitalization analysis based on market data contained in their files, general market statistics, and when available, actual subject performance is considered.

(8) "The net proceeds of the sale of the property, as received by the seller, after deduction of all the usual and reasonable fees and costs of the sale, including the costs and expenses of financing, and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms or financing arrangements. When the net proceeds of the sale of any property are utilized, directly or indirectly, in the determination of just valuation of realty of the sold parcel or any other parcel under the provisions of this section, the property appraiser, for the purposes of such determination, shall exclude any portion of such net proceeds attributable to payments for household furnishings or other items of personal property."

The cost of sales is considered by the PAO within their CAMA analysis and in reconciliation when performing discrete sales, income or cost analysis. Sales prices of comparable properties are adjusted downward (reportedly) within CAMA, typically at near 15%.

ULTIMATE FINDINGS OF FACT

Florida Statute section 194.301 elaborates the standards of review that the Special Magistrate must apply to any petition to the Value Adjustment Board. The statute states as follows:

Pursuant to Section 194.301, the Property Appraiser's assessment shall be entitled to a Presumption of Correctness if the Property Appraiser shows, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the Property Appraiser considered each of the eight criteria set forth in Section 193.011, the Property Appraiser applied the correct appraisal methodology based upon the characteristics of the property, and the Property Appraiser did not use appraisal practices which are different than the appraisal practices generally applied by the Property Appraiser to comparable property in the same county.

In accordance with Rule 12D-10.003(5)(a), it is concluded that the PAO DID establish a presumption of correctness by properly considering the eight criteria described in FS 193.011. Further, it is concluded that the methodology used by the PAO IS appropriate and DOES comply with professionally accepted appraisal practices for the subject property type. The Petitioner DID NOT overcome the presumption of correctness.

The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment was based on an arbitrary appraisal practice different from like property in the same county.

The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment is excessive. Thus, the assessed value DOES NOT exceed 100% of the fair market value of the property.

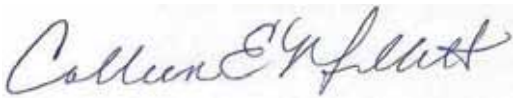
CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence. See Rule 12D-9.025(1), Florida Administrative Code (FAC). Generally, "relevant evidence" is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. This description means the evidence meets or exceeds the minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. See Rule 12D-9.025(2)(b) FAC.

The Special Magistrate reviewed all evidence presented by all parties. In accordance with DOR guidelines, the Special Magistrate determined that the evidence and testimony was relevant and credible to the valuation at hand. Thus, the evidence as presented was admitted for consideration in relation to the appropriateness of the subject assessment.



The Special Magistrate has determined that the testimonial and documentary evidence (combined) meet the test of "relevancy and credibility" and WAS sufficient to reach the "preponderance of the evidence" standard of proof required by Rule 12D-9.027(6) FAC.

The Special Magistrate also determined that there IS competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with the criteria of FS 193.011 and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish the assessment.

The Special Magistrate finds that the Petitioner HAS NOT satisfied the "preponderance of the evidence" standard under the facts as testified to, that the appraiser's assessment is in excess of just value. After weighing all the documentary and testimonial evidence it is concluded that the assessment IS reasonable and within market parameters.

RECOMMENDATION

It is recommended by the Special Magistrate that the relief applied for in this petition be DENIED.

Special Magistrate

Colleen E Millett

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

Hernando County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-180	Parcel ID R22-222-18-3599-0000-3840
Petitioner name Melissa Quigg (SFR JV-1 2021-1 Borrower The petitioner is: ☑ taxpayer of record ☐ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	Property address 8531 Pinetop Ridge Ln Brooksville, FL 34613

Decision Summary ☐ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☑ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	270,462.00	261,350.00	239,866.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	270,462.00	261,350.00	239,866.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0.00	0.00	0.00
4. Taxable value,* required	270,462.00	261,350.00	239,866.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact
See attached.

Conclusions of Law
See attached.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	Colleen E Millett Print name	01/29/2026 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

PETITION NO. 25-180

RECOMMENDATION OF SPECIAL MAGISTRATE

VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD

HERNANDO COUNTY, FLORIDA

IN RE: THE PETITION OF: Melissa Quigg (SFR JV-1 2021-1 Borrower LLC)

PARCEL KEY NO: 01576789

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

The Petitioner, Edwin Rivera of Ownwell, Inc for Melissa Quigg (SFR JV-1 2021-1 Borrower LLC), appeared telephonically before the Special Magistrate to give testimony. The Property Appraiser was represented by BRANDON JIMENEZ and DOUG MACK. All present parties were put under sworn oath.

The Property Appraiser verified the values accordingly; a just value of $261,350, an assessed or capped value of $261,350, and a taxable value of $261,350. There was a change in value after the process, and the TRIM notice indicated values of $270,462 for just, assessed and taxable value.

The Petitioner estimated just value at $238,000.

Subject Property Type: The subject is a 1,952 SF (heated) single family dwelling with 2,261 adjusted SF that was built in 2006. The subject is located at 8531 Pinetop Ridge Ln, Spring Hill, FL.

The PAO evidence consists of an evidence packet with a case synopsis, PRC with photo and an aerial map of the subject property, a sales analysis report with (3) sales, location map of sales, summary of cost of sale adjustment, PRCs for each sale, and verbal testimony.

The Petitioner's evidence consists of a petition, summary of evidence submission, property photos, evaluation summary, market value analysis grid with (5) sales, location map of sales, photos of comparable sales, and verbal testimony.

Per testimony by the PAO, there was a timely evidence exchange. There were no objections, and all the evidence noted above is considered admissible (unless specifically noted as inadmissible).

Overall, the evidence presented meets specific evidence rules (See Rule 12D-9,025(1) and Rule 12D-9.025(2)b, F.A.C) and is considered sufficient, relevant, and credible information available, from which a reliable estimate of just, assessed, and taxable value can be estimated.

BASIC AND UNDERLYING FINDINGS OF FACT

The PAO relied upon the sales comparison approach to value and considered CAMA analysis at TRIM. The approach utilized is considered an appropriate methodology by the Special Magistrate.

The PAO presented their evidence packet with a sales analysis report utilizing (3) improved sales from the subject market area; 2 of which are attached villas in comparison to the subject which is a freestanding single-family dwelling. The PAO performed their analysis utilizing adjusted SF which is generally considered less reliable than utilizing heated SF however, is often used in mass appraisal. The PAO focused on age and location, and as such; all comparable sales are within 0.26 miles.

The Petitioner provided (5) improved sales (including the subject transfer if applicable). Of these sales, (0) were used by the PAO. The Petitioner adjusted for differences in age, heated SF, land size, features, time, and COS. The Petitioner focused on location and as such, all (5) comparable sales were within a 0.59 mile radius of the subject. Petitioner had (2) sales that occurred in 2025.

The PAO had a rebuttal to the Petitioner's evidence and noted that (2) of the (5) sales occurred in 2025 and would not be considered by the PAO.

Of the sales provided, (2) Petitioner and (2) PAO sales are not considered reliable (dissimilar in age, dissimilar design and/or size, lack of or excessive adjustment due to size discrepancies, sale date out of range). The median of the most reliable Petitioner sales indicates a just value for the subject of $236,349. The median of the most reliable PAO sales indicates a just value for the subject of $243,383. The median of all the most reliable sales from both parties is $239,866, which is a credible and reliable just value for the subject based on the available data. The PAO just value conclusion is $261,350. This data reliably supports that the subject is over assessed.

The PAO reported that their internal analysis supports a 15% increase in sale prices from 1/1/2024 to the lien date of 1/1/2025. They also reported that the DOR performed a study across this same period, utilizing qualified sales of like property, and concluded a 15% increase over the same period. The Special Magistrate assumes that the PAO utilized a process of sampling paired sales or some other subset of the available data. The Special Magistrate will equally weigh the DOR study results (15%) utilizing all qualified property sales, and the PAO conclusion (15%) and utilize 15% herein.

The Special Magistrate has applied a qualitative analysis of the data submitted by all parties and has also considered the recent sale of the subject property, if applicable. A COS factor of 15%, market conditions adjustment based on 12% annually, age/condition adjustment, land size/value, a factor for adjusted SF or non-heated area as a % of overall space, extra features differences, a SF adjustment, quality and view adjustments were considered.

The PAO considered the cost of sales in their reconciliation process. Proper consideration of the 1st and 8th criteria for the subject property would be approximately 7-12% (cost of sales adjustment; estimated to be brokerage cost of 5-7%, personal property 1-2%, and financing costs of 1-3%, properly considered for the subject). The Special Magistrate will consider this when weighing the appropriateness of each parties' conclusions and the assessment level.

The DOR utilizes 15% cost of sales in their oversight function for all property in aggregate. The Magistrate has considered the specific subject property in relation to cost of sales factors as follows (certain scale and property types will vary significantly if cost of sales is to be performed according to statute).

Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., requires proper consideration of the "net proceeds of sale," regardless of whether an actual sale of the property has occurred. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001). However, the statute does not require the property appraiser to select the value generated by the application of Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., and apply it in a blanket fashion to all assessments. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001).

All property is to be assessed at 100% of just value Walter v. Schuler 176 So.2d 81 (Fla 1965). The terms "just value" "fair market value' and "full cash value" are legally synonymous. Id.

The 1st and 8th criteria were introduced by the legislature after this ruling, suggesting that the legislature wishes real estate to be taxed net of typical sales costs, implying that "just value" is in fact equal to "market value net of typical sales costs". Based on current training material for Special Magistrates, this consistently and strongly advises a deduction for the 1st and 8th criteria.

The PAO testified to documentation that pertains to the DOR treatment of the eight criteria required under FS 193.011. The PAO testified to and has documented how each of the criteria was considered in their development of the assessment in regard to the property at hand. The PAO addressed the requirements of FS 193.011 as follows:

"Factors to consider in deriving just valuation. – In arriving at just valuation as required under s. 4, Art. VII of the State Constitution, the property appraiser shall take into consideration the following factors:

(1) The present cash value of the property, which is the amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arm's length;

The PAO, within the CAMA system, makes an adjustment for cost of sale within their direct application of the sales comparison analysis. An adjustment is made for cost of sale as noted under Criteria 8 in their CAMA analysis and in the reconciliation process.

(2) The highest and best use...,(shortened) Land use and building codes were considered along with the character of any existing site improvements, the subject is noted to be residential use and was not disputed by either party. Comparable data was selected based on this information.

(3) The location of the property; The subject property is assigned a location or neighborhood code within the PAO database related to its specific location. Comparable data is selected with as similar a location as is possible, while also considering other relevant factors.

(4) The quantity or size of the property; The size of the building, the site size and site improvements are based on data contained within the PRC and all comparable sales are selected with attention to similarity of size, while also considering and weighing the other relevant factors.

(5) The cost of said property and the present replacement value of any improvements thereon; Within the CAMA system, the PAO uses cost data and when applicable, considers a pure replacement cost new and depreciation factors within a cost approach to value.

(6) The condition of said property; The condition of the property, through periodic site inspections, actual age, and information submitted to them by property owners is considered by the PAO. The information is given a % good or % depreciation factor and is noted in their subject documentation and/or PRC card and utilized in the CAMA analysis.

(7) The income from said property; and; When applicable, the PAO prepares an income capitalization analysis based on market data contained in their files, general market statistics, and when available, actual subject performance is considered.

(8) "The net proceeds of the sale of the property, as received by the seller, after deduction of all the usual and reasonable fees and costs of the sale, including the costs and expenses of financing, and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms or financing arrangements. When the net proceeds of the sale of any property are utilized, directly or indirectly, in the determination of just valuation of realty of the sold parcel or any other parcel under the provisions of this section, the property appraiser, for the purposes of such determination, shall exclude any portion of such net proceeds attributable to payments for household furnishings or other items of personal property."

The cost of sales is considered by the PAO within their CAMA analysis and in reconciliation when performing discrete sales, income or cost analysis. Sales prices of comparable properties are adjusted downward (reportedly) within CAMA, typically at near 15%.

ULTIMATE FINDINGS OF FACT

Florida Statute section 194.301 elaborates the standards of review that the Special Magistrate must apply to any petition to the Value Adjustment Board. The statute states as follows:

Pursuant to Section 194.301, the Property Appraiser's assessment shall be entitled to a Presumption of Correctness if the Property Appraiser shows, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the Property Appraiser considered each of the eight criteria set forth in Section 193.011, the Property Appraiser applied the correct appraisal methodology based upon the characteristics of the property, and the Property Appraiser did not use appraisal practices which are different than the appraisal practices generally applied by the Property Appraiser to comparable property in the same county.

In accordance with Rule 12D-10.003(5)(a), it is concluded that the PAO DID establish a presumption of correctness by properly considering the eight criteria described in FS 193.011. Further, it is concluded that the methodology used by the PAO IS appropriate and DOES comply with professionally accepted appraisal practices for the subject property type. The Petitioner DID overcome the presumption of correctness.

The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment was based on an arbitrary appraisal practice different from like property in the same county.

The Petitioner HAS shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment is excessive. Thus, the assessed value DOES exceed 100% of the fair market value of the property.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence. See Rule 12D-9.025(1), Florida Administrative Code (FAC). Generally, “relevant evidence” is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. This description means the evidence meets or exceeds the minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. See Rule 12D-9.025(2)(b) FAC.

The Special Magistrate reviewed all evidence presented by all parties. In accordance with DOR guidelines, the Special Magistrate determined that the evidence and testimony was relevant and credible to the valuation at hand. Thus, the evidence as presented was admitted for consideration in relation to the appropriateness of the subject assessment.

The Special Magistrate has determined that the testimonial and documentary evidence (combined) meet the test of “relevancy and credibility” and WAS sufficient to reach the “preponderance of the evidence” standard of proof required by Rule 12D-9.027(6) FAC.

The Special Magistrate also determined that there IS competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with the criteria of FS 193.011 and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish the assessment.

The Special Magistrate finds that the Petitioner HAS satisfied the "preponderance of the evidence" standard under the facts as testified to, that the appraiser's assessment is in excess of just value. After weighing all the documentary and testimonial evidence it is concluded that the assessment IS NOT reasonable and within market parameters.

RECOMMENDATION

It is recommended by the Special Magistrate that the relief applied for in this petition be GRANTED in part with a reduction in just value to $239,866.

Special Magistrate

Colleen E Millett

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

Hernando County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-181	Parcel ID R16-223-18-3607-0000-1230
Petitioner name Melissa Quigg (SFR JV-2 2023-1 Borrower The petitioner is: ☑ taxpayer of record ☐ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	Property address 3718 Windance Ave Spring Hill, FL 34609

Decision Summary ☑ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	345,977.00	345,977.00	345,977.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	345,977.00	345,977.00	345,977.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0.00	0.00	0.00
4. Taxable value,* required	345,977.00	345,977.00	345,977.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact
See attached.

Conclusions of Law
See attached.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	Colleen E Millett Print name	01/29/2026 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

PETITION NO. 25-181

RECOMMENDATION OF SPECIAL MAGISTRATE

VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD

HERNANDO COUNTY, FLORIDA

IN RE: THE PETITION OF: Melissa Quigg (SFR JV-2 2023-1 Borrower LLC)

PARCEL KEY NO: 01673219

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

The Petitioner, Edwin Rivera of Ownwell, Inc for Melissa Quigg (SFR JV-2 2023-1 Borrower LLC), appeared telephonically before the Special Magistrate to give testimony. The Property Appraiser was represented by BRANDON JIMENEZ and DOUG MACK. All present parties were put under sworn oath.

The Property Appraiser verified the values accordingly; a just value of $345,977, an assessed or capped value of $345,977, and a taxable value of $345,977. There was no change in value after the process.

The Petitioner estimated just value at $293,000.

Subject Property Type: The subject is a 2,892 SF (heated) single family dwelling with 3,123 adjusted SF that was built in 2015. The subject is located at 3718 Windance Ave, Spring Hill, FL.

The PAO evidence consists of an evidence packet with a case synopsis, PRC with photo and an aerial map of the subject property, a sales analysis report with (3) sales, location map of sales, summary of cost of sale adjustment, PRCs for each sale, and verbal testimony.

The Petitioner's evidence consists of a petition, summary of evidence submission, property photos, evaluation summary, market value analysis grid with (2) sales, location map of sales, photos of comparable sales, and verbal testimony.

Per testimony by the PAO, there was a timely evidence exchange. There were no objections, and all the evidence noted above is considered admissible (unless specifically noted as inadmissible).

Overall, the evidence presented meets specific evidence rules (See Rule 12D-9,025(1) and Rule 12D-9.025(2)b, F.A.C) and is considered sufficient, relevant, and credible information available, from which a reliable estimate of just, assessed, and taxable value can be estimated.

BASIC AND UNDERLYING FINDINGS OF FACT

The PAO relied upon the sales comparison approach to value and considered CAMA analysis at TRIM. The approach utilized is considered an appropriate methodology by the Special Magistrate.

The PAO presented their evidence packet with a sales analysis report utilizing (3) improved sales from the subject market area. The PAO performed their analysis utilizing adjusted SF which is generally considered less reliable than utilizing heated SF however, is often used in mass appraisal. The PAO focused on age and location, and as such; all comparable sales are within 0.52 miles.

The Petitioner provided (2) improved sales (including the subject transfer if applicable). Of these sales, (0) were used by the PAO. The Petitioner adjusted for differences in age, heated SF, land size, features, time, and COS. The Petitioner focused on location and as such, all (2) comparable sales were within a 0.72 mile radius of the subject.

The PAO had a rebuttal to the Petitioner's evidence and noted that Sale 2 is a one-story dwelling with 1,538 SF while the subject is a 2-story dwelling with 2,892 heated SF and 3,123 adjusted SF. Sale 1 has 2,521 heated SF and 2,800 adjusted SF and was reported with 1,052 SF living area in comparison to first floor only SF of subject at 1,371.

Of the sales provided, (1) Petitioner and (2) PAO sales are not considered reliable (dissimilar in age, dissimilar design and/or size, lack of or excessive adjustment due to size discrepancies, sale date out of range). The median of the most reliable Petitioner sales indicates a just value for the subject of $347,649. The median of the most reliable PAO sales indicates a just value for the subject of $385,758. The median of all the most reliable sales from both parties is $366,704, which is a credible and reliable just value for the subject based on the available data. The PAO just value conclusion is $345,977. This data reliably supports that the subject is not over assessed.

The PAO reported that their internal analysis supports a 15% increase in sale prices from 1/1/2024 to the lien date of 1/1/2025. They also reported that the DOR performed a study across this same period, utilizing qualified sales of like property, and concluded a 15% increase over the same period. The Special Magistrate assumes that the PAO utilized a process of sampling paired sales or some other subset of the available data. The Special Magistrate will equally weigh the DOR study results (15%) utilizing all qualified property sales, and the PAO conclusion (15%) and utilize 15% herein.

The Special Magistrate has applied a qualitative analysis of the data submitted by all parties and has also considered the recent sale of the subject property, if applicable. A COS factor of 15%, market conditions adjustment based on 12% annually, age/condition adjustment, land size/value, a factor for adjusted SF or non-heated area as a % of overall space, extra features differences, a SF adjustment, quality and view adjustments were considered.

The PAO considered the cost of sales in their reconciliation process. Proper consideration of the 1st and 8th criteria for the subject property would be approximately 7-12% (cost of sales adjustment; estimated to be brokerage cost of 5-7%, personal property 1-2%, and financing costs of 1-3%, properly considered for the subject). The Special Magistrate will consider this when weighing the appropriateness of each parties' conclusions and the assessment level.

The DOR utilizes 15% cost of sales in their oversight function for all property in aggregate. The Magistrate has considered the specific subject property in relation to cost of sales factors as follows (certain scale and property types will vary significantly if cost of sales is to be performed according to statute).

Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., requires proper consideration of the "net proceeds of sale," regardless of whether an actual sale of the property has occurred. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001). However, the statute does not require the property appraiser to select the value generated by the application of Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., and apply it in a blanket fashion to all assessments. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001).

All property is to be assessed at 100% of just value Walter v. Schuler 176 So.2d 81 (Fla 1965). The terms "just value" "fair market value' and "full cash value" are legally synonymous. Id.

The 1st and 8th criteria were introduced by the legislature after this ruling, suggesting that the legislature wishes real estate to be taxed net of typical sales costs, implying that "just value" is in fact equal to "market value net of typical sales costs". Based on current training material for Special Magistrates, this consistently and strongly advises a deduction for the 1st and 8th criteria.

The PAO testified to documentation that pertains to the DOR treatment of the eight criteria

required under FS 193.011. The PAO testified to and has documented how each of the criteria was considered in their development of the assessment in regard to the property at hand. The PAO addressed the requirements of FS 193.011 as follows:

"Factors to consider in deriving just valuation. – In arriving at just valuation as required under s. 4, Art. VII of the State Constitution, the property appraiser shall take into consideration the following factors:

(1) The present cash value of the property, which is the amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arm's length;

The PAO, within the CAMA system, makes an adjustment for cost of sale within their direct application of the sales comparison analysis. An adjustment is made for cost of sale as noted under Criteria 8 in their CAMA analysis and in the reconciliation process.

(2) The highest and best use...,(shortened) Land use and building codes were considered along with the character of any existing site improvements, the subject is noted to be residential use and was not disputed by either party. Comparable data was selected based on this information.

(3) The location of the property; The subject property is assigned a location or neighborhood code within the PAO database related to its specific location. Comparable data is selected with as similar a location as is possible, while also considering other relevant factors.

(4) The quantity or size of the property; The size of the building, the site size and site improvements are based on data contained within the PRC and all comparable sales are selected with attention to similarity of size, while also considering and weighing the other relevant factors.

(5) The cost of said property and the present replacement value of any improvements thereon; Within the CAMA system, the PAO uses cost data and when applicable, considers a pure replacement cost new and depreciation factors within a cost approach to value.

(6) The condition of said property; The condition of the property, through periodic site inspections, actual age, and information submitted to them by property owners is considered by the PAO. The information is given a % good or % depreciation factor and is noted in their subject documentation and/or PRC card and utilized in the CAMA analysis.

(7) The income from said property; and; When applicable, the PAO prepares an income capitalization analysis based on market data contained in their files, general market statistics, and when available, actual subject performance is considered.

(8) "The net proceeds of the sale of the property, as received by the seller, after deduction of all the usual and reasonable fees and costs of the sale, including the costs and expenses of financing, and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms or financing arrangements. When the net proceeds of the sale of any property are utilized, directly or indirectly, in the determination of just valuation of realty of the sold parcel or any other parcel under the provisions of this section, the property appraiser, for the purposes of such determination, shall exclude any portion of such net proceeds attributable to payments for household furnishings or other items of personal property."

The cost of sales is considered by the PAO within their CAMA analysis and in reconciliation when performing discrete sales, income or cost analysis. Sales prices of comparable properties are adjusted downward (reportedly) within CAMA, typically at near 15%.

ULTIMATE FINDINGS OF FACT

Florida Statute section 194.301 elaborates the standards of review that the Special Magistrate must apply to any petition to the Value Adjustment Board. The statute states as follows:

Pursuant to Section 194.301, the Property Appraiser's assessment shall be entitled to a Presumption of Correctness if the Property Appraiser shows, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the Property Appraiser considered each of the eight criteria set forth in Section 193.011, the Property Appraiser applied the correct appraisal methodology based upon the characteristics of the property, and the Property Appraiser did not use appraisal practices which are different than the appraisal practices generally applied by the Property Appraiser to comparable property in the same county.

In accordance with Rule 12D-10.003(5)(a), it is concluded that the PAO DID establish a presumption of correctness by properly considering the eight criteria described in FS 193.011. Further, it is concluded that the methodology used by the PAO IS appropriate and DOES comply with professionally accepted appraisal practices for the subject property type. The Petitioner DID NOT overcome the presumption of correctness.

The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment was based on an arbitrary appraisal practice different from like property in the same county.

The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment is excessive. Thus, the assessed value DOES NOT exceed 100% of the fair market value of the property.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence. See Rule 12D-9.025(1), Florida Administrative Code (FAC). Generally, “relevant evidence” is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. This description means the evidence meets or exceeds the minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. See Rule 12D-9.025(2)(b) FAC.

The Special Magistrate reviewed all evidence presented by all parties. In accordance with DOR guidelines, the Special Magistrate determined that the evidence and testimony was relevant and credible to the valuation at hand. Thus, the evidence as presented was admitted for consideration in relation to the appropriateness of the subject assessment.

The Special Magistrate has determined that the testimonial and documentary evidence (combined) meet the test of “relevancy and credibility” and WAS sufficient to reach the “preponderance of the evidence” standard of proof required by Rule 12D-9.027(6) FAC.

The Special Magistrate also determined that there IS competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with the criteria of FS 193.011 and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish the assessment.

The Special Magistrate finds that the Petitioner HAS NOT satisfied the "preponderance of the evidence" standard under the facts as testified to, that the appraiser's assessment is in excess of just value. After weighing all the documentary and testimonial evidence it is concluded that the assessment IS reasonable and within market parameters.

RECOMMENDATION

It is recommended by the Special Magistrate that the relief applied for in this petition be DENIED.

Special Magistrate

Colleen E Millett

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

Hernando County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-182	Parcel ID R32-323-17-5180-1237-0140
Petitioner name Melissa Quigg (SFR JV-2 2022-1 Borrower The petitioner is: ☑ taxpayer of record ☐ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	Property address 5185 Colchester Ave Spring Hill, FL 34608

Decision Summary ☐ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☑ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	351,977.00	351,977.00	311,383.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	351,977.00	351,977.00	311,383.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0.00	0.00	0.00
4. Taxable value,* required	351,977.00	351,977.00	311,383.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact
See attached.

Conclusions of Law
See attached.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	Colleen E Millett Print name	01/29/2026 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

PETITION NO. 25-182

RECOMMENDATION OF SPECIAL MAGISTRATE

VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD

HERNANDO COUNTY, FLORIDA

IN RE: THE PETITION OF: Melissa Quigg (SFR JV-2 2022-1 Borrower LLC)

PARCEL KEY NO: 00662697

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

The Petitioner, Edwin Rivera of Ownwell, Inc for Melissa Quigg (SFR JV-2 2022-1 Borrower LLC), appeared telephonically before the Special Magistrate to give testimony. The Property Appraiser was represented by BRANDON JIMENEZ and DOUG MACK. All present parties were put under sworn oath.

The Property Appraiser verified the values accordingly; a just value of $351,977, an assessed or capped value of $351,977, and a taxable value of $351,977. There was no change in value after the process.

The Petitioner estimated just value at $242,000.

Subject Property Type: The subject is a 2,811 SF (heated) single family dwelling with 3,028 adjusted SF that was built in 2005. The subject is located at 5185 Colchester Ave, Spring Hill, FL.

The PAO evidence consists of an evidence packet with a case synopsis, PRC with photo and an aerial map of the subject property, a sales analysis report with (3) sales, location map of sales, summary of cost of sale adjustment, PRCs for each sale, and verbal testimony.

The Petitioner's evidence consists of a petition, summary of evidence submission, property photos, evaluation summary, market value analysis grid with (5) sales, location map of sales, photos of comparable sales, and verbal testimony.

Per testimony by the PAO, there was a timely evidence exchange. There were no objections, and all the evidence noted above is considered admissible (unless specifically noted as inadmissible).

Overall, the evidence presented meets specific evidence rules (See Rule 12D-9,025(1) and Rule 12D-9.025(2)b, F.A.C) and is considered sufficient, relevant, and credible information available, from which a reliable estimate of just, assessed, and taxable value can be estimated.

BASIC AND UNDERLYING FINDINGS OF FACT

The PAO relied upon the sales comparison approach to value and considered CAMA analysis at TRIM. The approach utilized is considered an appropriate methodology by the Special Magistrate.

The PAO presented their evidence packet with a sales analysis report utilizing (3) improved sales from the subject market area. The PAO performed their analysis utilizing adjusted SF which is generally considered less reliable than utilizing heated SF however, is often used in mass appraisal. The PAO focused on age and location, and as such; all comparable sales are within 2.57 miles.

The Petitioner provided (5) improved sales (including the subject transfer if applicable). Of these sales, (0) were used by the PAO. The Petitioner adjusted for differences in age, heated SF, land size, features, time, and COS. The Petitioner focused on location and as such, all (5) comparable sales were within a 1.17 mile radius of the subject. Two of the Petitioner's sales are 2-story and (3) are one-story dwellings.

The PAO had a rebuttal to the Petitioner's evidence and noted that Sales 1 & 3 both sold in 2025 and would not be considered by PAO. Sale 3 was noted to be in poor condition at time of sale for $235,500 and resold for $325,000.

Of the sales provided, (4) Petitioner and (0) PAO sales are not considered reliable (dissimilar in age, dissimilar design and/or size, lack of or excessive adjustment due to size discrepancies, sale date out of range). The median of the most reliable Petitioner sales indicates a just value for the subject of $305,616. The median of the most reliable PAO sales indicates a just value for the subject of $311,383. The median of all the most reliable sales from both parties is $311,383, which is a credible and reliable just value for the subject based on the available data. The PAO just value conclusion is $351,977. This data reliably supports that the subject is over assessed.

The PAO reported that their internal analysis supports a 15% increase in sale prices from 1/1/2024 to the lien date of 1/1/2025. They also reported that the DOR performed a study across this same period, utilizing qualified sales of like property, and concluded a 15% increase over the same period. The Special Magistrate assumes that the PAO utilized a process of sampling paired sales or some other subset of the available data. The Special Magistrate will equally weigh the DOR study results (15%) utilizing all qualified property sales, and the PAO conclusion (15%) and utilize 15% herein.

The Special Magistrate has applied a qualitative analysis of the data submitted by all parties and has also considered the recent sale of the subject property, if applicable. A COS factor of 15%, market conditions adjustment based on 12% annually, age/condition adjustment, land size/value, a factor for adjusted SF or non-heated area as a % of overall space, extra features differences, a SF adjustment, quality and view adjustments were considered.

The PAO considered the cost of sales in their reconciliation process. Proper consideration of the 1st and 8th criteria for the subject property would be approximately 7-12% (cost of sales adjustment; estimated to be brokerage cost of 5-7%, personal property 1-2%, and financing costs of 1-3%, properly considered for the subject). The Special Magistrate will consider this when weighing the appropriateness of each parties' conclusions and the assessment level.

The DOR utilizes 15% cost of sales in their oversight function for all property in aggregate. The Magistrate has considered the specific subject property in relation to cost of sales factors as follows (certain scale and property types will vary significantly if cost of sales is to be performed according to statute).

Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., requires proper consideration of the "net proceeds of sale," regardless of whether an actual sale of the property has occurred. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001). However, the statute does not require the property appraiser to select the value generated by the application of Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., and apply it in a blanket fashion to all assessments. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001).

All property is to be assessed at 100% of just value Walter v. Schuler 176 So.2d 81 (Fla 1965). The terms "just value" "fair market value' and "full cash value" are legally synonymous. Id.

The 1st and 8th criteria were introduced by the legislature after this ruling, suggesting that the legislature wishes real estate to be taxed net of typical sales costs, implying that "just value" is in fact equal to "market value net of typical sales costs". Based on current training material for Special Magistrates, this consistently and strongly advises a deduction for the 1st and 8th criteria.

The PAO testified to documentation that pertains to the DOR treatment of the eight criteria

required under FS 193.011. The PAO testified to and has documented how each of the criteria was considered in their development of the assessment in regard to the property at hand. The PAO addressed the requirements of FS 193.011 as follows:

"Factors to consider in deriving just valuation. – In arriving at just valuation as required under s. 4, Art. VII of the State Constitution, the property appraiser shall take into consideration the following factors:

(1) The present cash value of the property, which is the amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arm's length;

The PAO, within the CAMA system, makes an adjustment for cost of sale within their direct application of the sales comparison analysis. An adjustment is made for cost of sale as noted under Criteria 8 in their CAMA analysis and in the reconciliation process.

(2) The highest and best use...,(shortened) Land use and building codes were considered along with the character of any existing site improvements, the subject is noted to be residential use and was not disputed by either party. Comparable data was selected based on this information.

(3) The location of the property; The subject property is assigned a location or neighborhood code within the PAO database related to its specific location. Comparable data is selected with as similar a location as is possible, while also considering other relevant factors.

(4) The quantity or size of the property; The size of the building, the site size and site improvements are based on data contained within the PRC and all comparable sales are selected with attention to similarity of size, while also considering and weighing the other relevant factors.

(5) The cost of said property and the present replacement value of any improvements thereon; Within the CAMA system, the PAO uses cost data and when applicable, considers a pure replacement cost new and depreciation factors within a cost approach to value.

(6) The condition of said property; The condition of the property, through periodic site inspections, actual age, and information submitted to them by property owners is considered by the PAO. The information is given a % good or % depreciation factor and is noted in their subject documentation and/or PRC card and utilized in the CAMA analysis.

(7) The income from said property; and; When applicable, the PAO prepares an income capitalization analysis based on market data contained in their files, general market statistics, and when available, actual subject performance is considered.

(8) "The net proceeds of the sale of the property, as received by the seller, after deduction of all the usual and reasonable fees and costs of the sale, including the costs and expenses of financing, and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms or financing arrangements. When the net proceeds of the sale of any property are utilized, directly or indirectly, in the determination of just valuation of realty of the sold parcel or any other parcel under the provisions of this section, the property appraiser, for the purposes of such determination, shall exclude any portion of such net proceeds attributable to payments for household furnishings or other items of personal property."

The cost of sales is considered by the PAO within their CAMA analysis and in reconciliation when performing discrete sales, income or cost analysis. Sales prices of comparable properties are adjusted downward (reportedly) within CAMA, typically at near 15%.

ULTIMATE FINDINGS OF FACT

Florida Statute section 194.301 elaborates the standards of review that the Special Magistrate must apply to any petition to the Value Adjustment Board. The statute states as follows:

Pursuant to Section 194.301, the Property Appraiser's assessment shall be entitled to a Presumption of Correctness if the Property Appraiser shows, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the Property Appraiser considered each of the eight criteria set forth in Section 193.011, the Property Appraiser applied the correct appraisal methodology based upon the characteristics of the property, and the Property Appraiser did not use appraisal practices which are different than the appraisal practices generally applied by the Property Appraiser to comparable property in the same county.

In accordance with Rule 12D-10.003(5)(a), it is concluded that the PAO DID establish a presumption of correctness by properly considering the eight criteria described in FS 193.011. Further, it is concluded that the methodology used by the PAO IS appropriate and DOES comply with professionally accepted appraisal practices for the subject property type. The Petitioner DID overcome the presumption of correctness.

The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment was based on an arbitrary appraisal practice different from like property in the same county.

The Petitioner HAS shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment is excessive. Thus, the assessed value DOES exceed 100% of the fair market value of the property.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence. See Rule 12D-9.025(1), Florida Administrative Code (FAC). Generally, “relevant evidence” is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. This description means the evidence meets or exceeds the minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. See Rule 12D-9.025(2)(b) FAC.

The Special Magistrate reviewed all evidence presented by all parties. In accordance with DOR guidelines, the Special Magistrate determined that the evidence and testimony was relevant and credible to the valuation at hand. Thus, the evidence as presented was admitted for consideration in relation to the appropriateness of the subject assessment.

The Special Magistrate has determined that the testimonial and documentary evidence (combined) meet the test of “relevancy and credibility” and WAS sufficient to reach the “preponderance of the evidence” standard of proof required by Rule 12D-9.027(6) FAC.

The Special Magistrate also determined that there IS competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with the criteria of FS 193.011 and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish the assessment.

The Special Magistrate finds that the Petitioner HAS satisfied the "preponderance of the evidence" standard under the facts as testified to, that the appraiser's assessment is in excess of just value. After weighing all the documentary and testimonial evidence it is concluded that the assessment IS NOT reasonable and within market parameters.

RECOMMENDATION

It is recommended by the Special Magistrate that the relief applied for in this petition be GRANTED in part with a reduction in just value to $311,383.

Special Magistrate

Colleen E Millett

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

Hernando County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-183	Parcel ID R32-223-18-3743-0000-0490
Petitioner name Chris Cash (Invitation Homes 7 Florida LP) The petitioner is: ☑ taxpayer of record ☐ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	Property address 387 Rain Lily Ave Spring Hill, FL 34609

Decision Summary ☐ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☑ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	376,020.00	376,020.00	312,979.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	376,020.00	376,020.00	312,979.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0.00	0.00	0.00
4. Taxable value,* required	376,020.00	376,020.00	312,979.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact
See attached.

Conclusions of Law
See attached.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	Print name	Date
Colleen E Millett	Colleen E Millett	01/29/2026
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

PETITION NO. 25-183

RECOMMENDATION OF SPECIAL MAGISTRATE

VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD

HERNANDO COUNTY, FLORIDA

IN RE: THE PETITION OF: Chris Cash (Invitation Homes 7 Florida LP)

PARCEL KEY NO: 01818652

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

The Petitioner, Edwin Rivera of Ownwell, Inc for Chris Cash (Invitation Homes 7 Florida LP), appeared telephonically before the Special Magistrate to give testimony. The Property Appraiser was represented by BRANDON JIMENEZ and DOUG MACK. All present parties were put under sworn oath.

The Property Appraiser verified the values accordingly; a just value of $376,020, an assessed or capped value of $376,020, and a taxable value of $376,020. There was no change in value after the process.

The Petitioner estimated just value at $293,000.

Subject Property Type: The subject is a 2,890 SF (heated) single family dwelling with 3,140 adjusted SF that was built in 2024. The subject is located at 387 Rain Lily Ave, Spring Hill, FL.

The PAO evidence consists of an evidence packet with a case synopsis, PRC with photo and an aerial map of the subject property, a sales analysis report with (3) sales, location map of sales, summary of cost of sale adjustment, PRCs for each sale, and verbal testimony.

The Petitioner's evidence consists of a petition, summary of evidence submission, property photos, evaluation summary, market value analysis grid with (3) sales, location map of sales, no photos of comparable sales, and verbal testimony.

Per testimony by the PAO, there was a timely evidence exchange. There were no objections, and all the evidence noted above is considered admissible (unless specifically noted as inadmissible).

Overall, the evidence presented meets specific evidence rules (See Rule 12D-9,025(1) and Rule 12D-9.025(2)b, F.A.C) and is considered sufficient, relevant, and credible information available, from which a reliable estimate of just, assessed, and taxable value can be estimated.

BASIC AND UNDERLYING FINDINGS OF FACT

The PAO relied upon the sales comparison approach to value and considered CAMA analysis at TRIM. The approach utilized is considered an appropriate methodology by the Special Magistrate.

The PAO presented their evidence packet with a sales analysis report utilizing (3) improved sales from the subject market area. The PAO performed their analysis utilizing adjusted SF which is generally considered less reliable than utilizing heated SF however, is often used in mass appraisal. The PAO focused on age and location, and as such; all comparable sales are within 0.21 miles.

The Petitioner provided (3) improved sales (including the subject transfer if applicable). Of these sales, (0) were used by the PAO. The Petitioner adjusted for differences in age, heated SF, land size, features, time, and COS. The Petitioner focused on location and as such, all (3) comparable sales were within the subject subdivision.

The PAO had no rebuttal to the Petitioner's evidence.

Of the sales provided, (0) Petitioner and (0) PAO sales are not considered reliable (dissimilar in age, dissimilar design and/or size, lack of or excessive adjustment due to size discrepancies, sale date out of range). The median of the most reliable Petitioner sales indicates a just value for the subject of $291,228. The median of the most reliable PAO sales indicates a just value for the subject of $334,730. The median of all the most reliable sales from both parties is $312,979, which is a credible and reliable just value for the subject based on the available data. The PAO just value conclusion is $376,020. This data reliably supports that the subject is over assessed.

The PAO reported that their internal analysis supports a 15% increase in sale prices from 1/1/2024 to the lien date of 1/1/2025. They also reported that the DOR performed a study across this same period, utilizing qualified sales of like property, and concluded a 15% increase over the same period. The Special Magistrate assumes that the PAO utilized a process of sampling paired sales or some other subset of the available data. The Special Magistrate will equally weigh the DOR study results (15%) utilizing all qualified property sales, and the PAO conclusion (15%) and utilize 15% herein.

The Special Magistrate has applied a qualitative analysis of the data submitted by all parties and has also considered the recent sale of the subject property, if applicable. A COS factor of 15%, market conditions adjustment based on 12% annually, age/condition adjustment, land size/value, a factor for adjusted SF or non-heated area as a % of overall space, extra features differences, a SF adjustment, quality and view adjustments were considered.

The PAO considered the cost of sales in their reconciliation process. Proper consideration of the 1st and 8th criteria for the subject property would be approximately 7-12% (cost of sales adjustment; estimated to be brokerage cost of 5-7%, personal property 1-2%, and financing costs of 1-3%, properly considered for the subject). The Special Magistrate will consider this when weighing the appropriateness of each parties' conclusions and the assessment level.

The DOR utilizes 15% cost of sales in their oversight function for all property in aggregate. The Magistrate has considered the specific subject property in relation to cost of sales factors as follows (certain scale and property types will vary significantly if cost of sales is to be performed according to statute).

Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., requires proper consideration of the "net proceeds of sale," regardless of whether an actual sale of the property has occurred. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001). However, the statute does not require the property appraiser to select the value generated by the application of Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., and apply it in a blanket fashion to all assessments. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001).

All property is to be assessed at 100% of just value Walter v. Schuler 176 So.2d 81 (Fla 1965). The terms "just value" "fair market value' and "full cash value" are legally synonymous. Id.

The 1st and 8th criteria were introduced by the legislature after this ruling, suggesting that the legislature wishes real estate to be taxed net of typical sales costs, implying that "just value" is in fact equal to "market value net of typical sales costs". Based on current training material for Special Magistrates, this consistently and strongly advises a deduction for the 1st and 8th criteria.

The PAO testified to documentation that pertains to the DOR treatment of the eight criteria required under FS 193.011. The PAO testified to and has documented how each of the criteria was considered in their development of the assessment in regard to the property at hand. The PAO addressed the requirements of FS 193.011 as follows:

"Factors to consider in deriving just valuation. – In arriving at just valuation as required under s. 4, Art. VII of the State Constitution, the property appraiser shall take into consideration the following factors:

(1) The present cash value of the property, which is the amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arm's length;

The PAO, within the CAMA system, makes an adjustment for cost of sale within their direct application of the sales comparison analysis. An adjustment is made for cost of sale as noted under Criteria 8 in their CAMA analysis and in the reconciliation process.

(2) The highest and best use...,(shortened) Land use and building codes were considered along with the character of any existing site improvements, the subject is noted to be residential use and was not disputed by either party. Comparable data was selected based on this information.

(3) The location of the property; The subject property is assigned a location or neighborhood code within the PAO database related to its specific location. Comparable data is selected with as similar a location as is possible, while also considering other relevant factors.

(4) The quantity or size of the property; The size of the building, the site size and site improvements are based on data contained within the PRC and all comparable sales are selected with attention to similarity of size, while also considering and weighing the other relevant factors.

(5) The cost of said property and the present replacement value of any improvements thereon; Within the CAMA system, the PAO uses cost data and when applicable, considers a pure replacement cost new and depreciation factors within a cost approach to value.

(6) The condition of said property; The condition of the property, through periodic site inspections, actual age, and information submitted to them by property owners is considered by the PAO. The information is given a % good or % depreciation factor and is noted in their subject documentation and/or PRC card and utilized in the CAMA analysis.

(7) The income from said property; and; When applicable, the PAO prepares an income capitalization analysis based on market data contained in their files, general market statistics, and when available, actual subject performance is considered.

(8) "The net proceeds of the sale of the property, as received by the seller, after deduction of all the usual and reasonable fees and costs of the sale, including the costs and expenses of financing, and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms or financing arrangements. When the net proceeds of the sale of any property are utilized, directly or indirectly, in the determination of just valuation of realty of the sold parcel or any other parcel under the provisions of this section, the property appraiser, for the purposes of such determination, shall exclude any portion of such net proceeds attributable to payments for household furnishings or other items of personal property."

The cost of sales is considered by the PAO within their CAMA analysis and in reconciliation when performing discrete sales, income or cost analysis. Sales prices of comparable properties are adjusted downward (reportedly) within CAMA, typically at near 15%.

ULTIMATE FINDINGS OF FACT

Florida Statute section 194.301 elaborates the standards of review that the Special Magistrate must apply to any petition to the Value Adjustment Board. The statute states as follows:

Pursuant to Section 194.301, the Property Appraiser's assessment shall be entitled to a Presumption of Correctness if the Property Appraiser shows, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the Property Appraiser considered each of the eight criteria set forth in Section 193.011, the Property Appraiser applied the correct appraisal methodology based upon the characteristics of the property, and the Property Appraiser did not use appraisal practices which are different than the appraisal practices generally applied by the Property Appraiser to comparable property in the same county.

In accordance with Rule 12D-10.003(5)(a), it is concluded that the PAO DID establish a presumption of correctness by properly considering the eight criteria described in FS 193.011. Further, it is concluded that the methodology used by the PAO IS appropriate and DOES comply with professionally accepted appraisal practices for the subject property type. The Petitioner DID overcome the presumption of correctness.

The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment was based on an arbitrary appraisal practice different from like property in the same county.

The Petitioner HAS shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment is excessive. Thus, the assessed value DOES exceed 100% of the fair market value of the property.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence. See Rule 12D-9.025(1), Florida Administrative Code (FAC). Generally, “relevant evidence” is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. This description means the evidence meets or exceeds the minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. See Rule 12D-9.025(2)(b) FAC.

The Special Magistrate reviewed all evidence presented by all parties. In accordance with DOR guidelines, the Special Magistrate determined that the evidence and testimony was relevant and credible to the valuation at hand. Thus, the evidence as presented was admitted for consideration in relation to the appropriateness of the subject assessment.

The Special Magistrate has determined that the testimonial and documentary evidence (combined) meet the test of “relevancy and credibility” and WAS sufficient to reach the “preponderance of the evidence” standard of proof required by Rule 12D-9.027(6) FAC.

The Special Magistrate also determined that there IS competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with the criteria of FS 193.011 and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish the assessment.

The Special Magistrate finds that the Petitioner HAS satisfied the "preponderance of the evidence" standard under the facts as testified to, that the appraiser's assessment is in excess of just value. After weighing all the documentary and testimonial evidence it is concluded that the assessment IS NOT reasonable and within market parameters.

RECOMMENDATION

It is recommended by the Special Magistrate that the relief applied for in this petition be GRANTED in part with a reduction in just value to $312,979.

Special Magistrate

Colleen E Millett

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

HERNANDO ☑ County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-185	Parcel ID R32 223 18 3742 0000 1750
Petitioner name Patrick Rodriguez c/o Invitation Homes 7 Flc The petitioner is: ☐ taxpayer of record ☑ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	Property address 49 Rain Lily Ave Spring Hill, FL 34609

Decision Summary ☑ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	343,201.00	343,201.00	343,201.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	343,201.00	343,201.00	343,201.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0.00	0.00	0.00
4. Taxable value,* required	343,201.00	343,201.00	343,201.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact
See attached.

Conclusions of Law
See attached.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	Shelley Kennedy, MNAA Print name	02/11/2026 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

Petition No. 25-185

RECOMMENDATION OF SPECIAL MAGISTRATE
VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
HERNANDO COUNTY, FLORIDA

IN RE: THE PETITION OF: INVITATION HOMES 7 FLORIDA LP
PARCEL KEY NO: 01803588

Petitioner Patrick Rodriguez of Ownwell, Inc. appeared telephonically at a hearing on behalf of Invitation Homes 7 Florida LP on January 23, 2026 to provide evidence pertaining to the 2025 property assessment for real property located in Hernando County, Florida. The Hernando County Property Appraiser's Office (PAO) was represented at the hearing by Doug Mack, Residential Supervisor and Kevin Kinney.

The Special Magistrate confirmed that all parties agree to hold the hearing telephonically. An opening statement regarding the role of the special magistrate was read and the parties were placed under oath. This petition was one of 6 scheduled by the petitioner on this hearing date. Any relevant testimony from these individual hearings will be incorporated by reference to avoid redundancy and expedite the hearing process.

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

The Property Appraiser confirmed the 2025 just value at $343,201. The assessed value is $343,201 and the taxable value is $343,201. No change in values after the TRIM process was noted.

The Petitioner estimated just value at $312,367.

The subject of this petition is identified on the Hernando County tax rolls as parcel number R32-223-18-3742-0000-1750. The subject property is located at 49 Rain Lily Avenue in Spring Hill, Hernando County, Florida. The subject is described as a single-family residence which was originally constructed in 2024. The evidence indicates that the property consists of 2,669 square feet of adjusted building area on a 5,100 square foot residential lot. The PAO conducted a field review of the subject parcel on 03/26/25 to add the home and features to the tax roll.

The packet provided by the Property Appraiser was admitted into evidence as PAO-A and consisted of 15 pages including a cover page, case synopsis, subject property record card, comparable sales tester and analysis, location maps, cost of sale adjustment clarification and computations, property record cards for provided sales and a structure area adjustment factors sheet.

The packet provided by the Petitioner was admitted into evidence as PET-1 and consisted of 13 pages including a cover page, property summary, subject aerial photo, evaluation summary, sales comparables, adjusted sales comparables, sale breakout table and a copy of the deed of the prior sale with the subject and multiple other properties.

Both parties acknowledged that they received the opposing party's evidence in compliance with the statutory procedures for evidence exchange. Overall, the evidence presented meets specific evidence rules as outlined in Florida Administrative Code 12D-9.025(1) and 12D-9.025(2)(b) and is considered sufficient, relevant and credible, from which a reliable estimate of just, assessed and taxable value can be estimated.

BASIC AND UNDERLYING FINDINGS OF FACT

The Property Appraiser asserts in the Case Synopsis that "The Property Appraiser's Office used the Sales Comparison Approach and has considered all of the Eight Criteria required in Florida Statute 193.011 and we believe we have demonstrated that we have the preponderance of evidence that the subject's value represents Just Value".

The Florida Legislature has enacted eight criteria that the property appraiser must consider when determining just value. In any administrative or judicial action where a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment, the property appraiser's estimate of just value is presumed correct if it is proven that the assessment was made in compliance with the eight criteria outlined in F.S. Section 193.011 and in accordance with professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The only standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence, meaning the greater weight of the evidence or "more likely true than not" as per F.S 194.301.

Florida Courts have consistently held that the property appraiser is required to consider all eight factors, that each factor does not have be given equal weight but that failure to consider any single factor can invalidate an assessment. The extent to which the property appraiser has considered each of these eight criteria for this property is summarized in the following paragraphs.

1. Present Cash Value of the Property- the amount a willing buyer would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arm's length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through comparable sales analysis similar to that found in fee appraisal. The property appraiser has presented into evidence comparable sales in support of the present cash value. The PAO relied primarily upon the sales comparison approach, considered Computer-Assisted Mass Appraisal (CAMA) analysis and placed no weight on the cost or income approaches to value. This is considered an appropriate methodology by the Special Magistrate.

The PAO supplied 3 improved sales in the subject's market area:
PAO Sale #1 was built in 2024 and has 2,816 adjusted square feet on a 4,400 square foot lot. This property sold in April 2024 for $358,800 and the adjusted sales price for comparison purposes is $357,245.
PAO Sale #2 was built in 2024 and has 2,816 adjusted square feet on a 4,888 square foot lot. This property sold in August 2024 for $369,900 and the adjusted sales price for comparison purposes is $368,402.
PAO Sale #3 was built in 2024 and has 2,816 adjusted square feet on a 4,600 square foot lot. This property sold in July 2024 for $370,100 and the adjusted sales price for comparison purposes is $368,545.

The PAO performed their analysis utilizing adjusted square foot (SF). While adjusted square footage is generally considered less precise than heated square footage in fee appraisal, it is commonly utilized in mass appraisal. Adjusted sales prices range from $357,245 to $368,545 with a median of $368,402 and a mean of $365,249. After adjusting downward 7% for COS, these 3 sales indicate a mean of $339,681 or approximately $129.75 per square foot.

The PAO sales reflect a value for the subject of $129.75/SF x 2,669 (ASQFT) or $346,303. The subject's Just Value assessment reflects a value of $128.59/SF or $343,201, which is supported.

The PAO and Petitioner have 1 sale in common.

The Petitioner performed their analysis utilizing heated SF. The living area reported by the Petitioner (1,110) is not consistent with the living area as reported in the subject's Property Record Card (2,578). The Petitioner supplied 6 improved sales in the subject's market area:
PET Sale #1 was built in 2024 and has 2,390 square feet of living area on a 4,800 square foot lot. The property sold in February 2024 for $359,900.
PET Sale #2 was built in 2024 and has 2,390 square feet of living area on a 5,100 square foot lot. The property sold in January 2024 for $360,100.

PET Sale #3 was built in 2024 and has 2,390 square feet of living area on a 5,668 square foot lot. The property sold in April 2024 for $363,400.
PET Sale #4 was built in 2024 and has 2,578 square feet of living area on a 4,400 square foot lot. The property sold in April 2024 for $358,800.
PET Sale #5 was built in 2024 and has 2,390 square feet of living area on a 4,400 square foot lot. The property sold in May 2024 for $358,600.
PET Sale #6 was built in 2024 and has 2,578 square feet of living area on a 5,750 square foot lot. The property sold in February 2024 for $361,400.

The Petitioner adjusted the sales provided at a COS rate of 15%. The DR-493 form for Hernando County filed with the Florida Department of Revenue reflects a COS deduction of 15%. After correction for the inconsistent living area, the adjusted sales prices range from $364,796 to $381,959 with a median of $380,144 and a mean of $381,464. After adjusting downward 15% for COS, these sales indicate a mean of $324,244 or approximately $135.67/SF.
The Petitioner sales reflect a value for the subject of $135.67 x 2,578 or $349,757.

Both parties presented market-relevant sales; however, the discrepancy regarding the square feet of living area materially reduces the reliability of the sales analysis provided by the Petitioner. The PAO noted in their rebuttal that the incorrect square footage reported resulted in incorrect living area adjustments in the Petitioner's sales grid.

2. Highest & Best Use- the use that is legally permissible, physically possible, financially feasible, and maximally productive. The highest and best use of the subject is for residential use. The highest and best use was not disputed by the Petitioner.
3. Location of the Property- how the property's surroundings influence its value. Site specific location adjustments can be made to reflect either an enhanced location or an inferior location. All of the comparables presented in support of value are located in the same overall market area as the subject (same subdivision). Each has similar frontage and/or views. The location of this property was not disputed by the Petitioner.
4. Quantity or Size of the Property-square footage, acreage, front footage, unit count. The PAO must consider the quantity or size of the property by determining and recording the correct land size, building size and extras features and quantities. Land size is based on legal description from recorded plats or metes and bounds. Building sizes and extra features are determined by inspection and measured by deputy property appraisers. The size of the property was not disputed by the Petitioner.
5. Cost of the Property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon – An analysis of cost/depreciated cost is made in the CAMA system and found on the property record card. PAO considers replacement costs through the use of Marshall & Swift Valuation Service data and through annual surveys with different contractors to come up with feature rates (these are adjusted manually). Rates are adjusted annually to reflect the costs relevant to January 1 of the given tax year. No separate analysis of cost has been presented during the hearing. It is the opinion of the Special Magistrate that this cost analysis complies with 193.011(5) F.S. and generally accepted appraisal practices.

6. Condition of the Property-physical state and functional adequacy of improvements. The PAO considers the condition of the property through periodic property inspections, no less than once every five years as required by Statute. Other events can trigger more frequent site inspections, including the sale of a property, issuance of a building permit, assessment appeal or at the taxpayer's request. Condition is considered as a factor applied to the CAMA system value calculation for value losses from all sources based upon an age/life depreciation method. It appears that the condition of the property has been considered by the PAO and as the subject was new construction, no depreciation was calculated for the subject.
7. Income from the Property- income producing ability of the property. No analysis of income has been presented during the hearing and buyers in this sector of the real estate market typically do not consider income generating ability when valuing this type of property. It is the opinion of the Special Magistrate that this income analysis complies with 193.011(7) F.S. and generally accepted appraisal practices.
8. Net Proceeds of the Sale- the net proceeds of the sale of the property, as received by the seller, after deduction of the usual and reasonable fees and costs of the sale, including the costs and expenses of financing, and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms of financing arrangements. Applicable law provides for uniform cost of sale deductions in just valuations without regard to whether the property was sold, whether mass appraisal or single property appraisal is used, the appraisal approach used to value the property or whether the petitioner is seeking an increase or decrease in just value.

The PAO considered cost of sales in their reconciliation process of 7%. The Petitioner adjusted the sales provided at a COS rate of 15%.

Ultimate Findings of Fact

Pursuant to Section 194.301 F.S, the Property Appraiser's assessment shall be entitled to a Presumption of Correctness if the Property Appraiser shows, by the preponderance of the evidence, that the Property Appraiser considered each of the eight criteria set forth in Section 193.011 F.S., the Property Appraiser applied the correct appraisal methodology based upon the characteristics of the property, and the Property Appraiser did not use appraisal practices which are different than the appraisal practices generally applied by the Property Appraiser to comparable properties in the same county.

1. In accordance with Section 194.301 F.S., it is concluded that the PAO DID establish a presumption of correctness by properly considering the eight criteria and further, it is concluded that the methodology used by PAO IS appropriate and DOES comply with professionally accepted practices for the subject property type. The Petitioner DID NOT overcome the presumption of correctness.

2. The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment was based on arbitrary appraisal practice different from like properties in the same county.
3. The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment is excessive. Thus the assessed value DOES NOT exceed 100% of the fair market value of the property.

Property Appraiser	(Indicated Value from Sales Analysis)	$346,303
Petitioner	(Indicated Value from Sales Analysis)	$349,757
Assessment (Just Value)		$343,201

Conclusions of Law

Florida Administrative Code section 12D-9.027 lays out a sequence of general procedural steps that the Special Magistrate has followed in preparation of this recommendation to the Value Adjustment Board:

Determine whether the Property Appraiser has established a presumption of correctness for the assessment and determine whether the Property Appraiser's just valuation methodology is appropriate. The presumption of correctness is not established unless the Property Appraiser proves by a preponderance of the evidence that the methodology used to support the just value for the subject property complies with 193.011 F.S. and professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate.

The Special Magistrate reviewed all evidence presented by all parties and determined that the evidence and testimony was relevant and credible to the valuation at hand. Thus, the evidence as presented was admitted for consideration in relation to the appropriateness of the subject assessment.

The Special Magistrate determined that the testimonial and documentary evidence meet the test of relevancy and credibility and WAS sufficient to reach the preponderance of evidence standard of proof required by Rule 12D-9.027(5)(6). The Special Magistrate also determined that there IS competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with 193.011 F.S. and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish the assessment.

The Special Magistrate determined that the hearing record contains competent, substantial evidence supporting the just value assessment. After weighing all of the documentary and testimonial evidence it is concluded that the assessment IS reasonable and within market parameters.

Recommendation

In view of the findings of fact and conclusions of law as they relate to this petition before the Value Adjustment Board, the Special Magistrate recommends that the petition be Denied.

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

HERNANDO ☑ County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-188	Parcel ID R32 323 17 5070 0390 0210
Petitioner name Patrick Rodriguez c/o SFR JV 2 2022 2 Borr The petitioner is: ☐ taxpayer of record ☑ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain: _____	Property address 1189 Desmond Ave Spring Hill, FL 34608

Decision Summary ☑ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	290,692.00	290,692.00	290,692.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	290,692.00	290,692.00	290,692.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0.00	0.00	0.00
4. Taxable value,* required	290,692.00	290,692.00	290,692.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact
See attached.

Conclusions of Law
See attached.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	Print name	Date
Shelley Kennedy	Shelley Kennedy, MNAA	02/05/206
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

Petition No. 25-188

RECOMMENDATION OF SPECIAL MAGISTRATE
VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
HERNANDO COUNTY, FLORIDA

IN RE: THE PETITION OF: SFR JV-2 2022-2 Borrower LLC
PARCEL KEY NO: 00478450

Petitioner Patrick Rodriguez of Ownwell, Inc. appeared telephonically at a hearing on behalf of SFR JV-2 2022-2 Borrower LLC on January 23, 2026 to provide evidence pertaining to the 2025 property assessment for real property located in Hernando County, Florida. The Hernando County Property Appraiser's Office (PAO) was represented at the hearing by Doug Mack, Residential Supervisor and Kevin Kinney.

The Special Magistrate confirmed that all parties agree to hold the hearing telephonically. An opening statement regarding the role of the special magistrate was read and the parties were placed under oath. This petition was one of 6 scheduled by the petitioner on this hearing date. Any relevant testimony from these individual hearings will be incorporated by reference to avoid redundancy and expedite the hearing process.

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

The Property Appraiser confirmed the 2025 just value at $290,692. The assessed value is $290,692 and the taxable value is $290,692. No change in values after the TRIM process was noted.

The Petitioner estimated just value at $265,000.

The subject of this petition is identified on the Hernando County tax rolls as parcel number R32-323-17-5070-0390-0210. The subject property is located at 1189 Desmond Avenue in Spring Hill, Hernando County, Florida. The subject is described as a single-family residence which was originally constructed in 2003. The evidence indicates that the property consists of 2,457 square feet of adjusted building area on a 10,000 square foot residential lot. The PAO last conducted a field review of the subject parcel on 03/13/23 to complete a sales review of the property.

The packet provided by the Property Appraiser was admitted into evidence as PAO-A and consisted of 17 pages including a cover page, case synopsis, subject property record card, comparable sales tester and analysis, location maps, cost of sale adjustment clarification and computations, property record cards for provided sales and a structure area adjustment factors sheet.

The packet provided by the Petitioner was admitted into evidence as PET-1 and consisted of 9 pages including a cover page, property summary, subject aerial photo, evaluation summary, sales comparables, adjusted sales comparables, comparables map and photos of the comparables.

Both parties acknowledged that they received the opposing party's evidence in compliance with the statutory procedures for evidence exchange. Overall, the evidence presented meets specific evidence rules as outlined in Florida Administrative Code 12D-9.025(1) and 12D-9.025(2)(b) and is considered sufficient, relevant and credible, from which a reliable estimate of just, assessed and taxable value can be estimated.

BASIC AND UNDERLYING FINDINGS OF FACT

The Property Appraiser asserts in the Case Synopsis that "The Property Appraiser's Office used the Sales Comparison Approach and has considered all of the Eight Criteria required in Florida Statute 193.011 and we believe we have demonstrated that we have the preponderance of evidence that the subject's value represents Just Value".

The Florida Legislature has enacted eight criteria that the property appraiser must consider when determining just value. In any administrative or judicial action where a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment, the property appraiser's estimate of just value is presumed correct if it is proven that the assessment was made in compliance with the eight criteria outlined in F.S. Section 193.011 and in accordance with professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The only standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence, meaning the greater weight of the evidence or "more likely true than not" as per F.S 194.301.

Florida Courts have consistently held that the property appraiser is required to consider all eight factors, that each factor does not have to be given equal weight but that failure to consider any single factor can invalidate an assessment. The extent to which the property appraiser has considered each of these eight criteria for this property is summarized in the following paragraphs.

1. Present Cash Value of the Property- the amount a willing buyer would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arm's length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through comparable sales analysis similar to that found in fee appraisal. The property appraiser has presented into evidence comparable sales in support of the present cash value. The PAO relied primarily upon the sales comparison approach, considered Computer-Assisted Mass Appraisal (CAMA) analysis and placed no weight on the cost or income approaches to value. This is considered an appropriate methodology by the Special Magistrate.

The PAO supplied 3 improved sales in the subject's market area:
PAO Sale #1 was built in 2005 and has 2,913 adjusted square feet on a 10,000 square foot lot. This property sold in December 2024 for $395,000 and the adjusted sales price for comparison purposes is $392,017.
PAO Sale #2 was built in 2002 and has 2,211 adjusted square feet on a 10,542 square foot lot. This property sold in August 2024 for $362,500 and the adjusted sales price for comparison purposes is $336,559. The property record card for Sale #2 indicates that it has an inground pool (2020).
PAO Sale #3 was built in 2000 and has 2,113 adjusted square feet on an 18,202 square foot lot. This property sold in May 2024 for $352,000 and the adjusted sales price for comparison purposes is $335,903. The property record card for Sale #3 indicates that it has an inground pool.

The PAO performed their analysis utilizing adjusted square foot (SF). While adjusted square footage is generally considered less precise than heated square footage in fee appraisal, it is commonly utilized in mass appraisal. Adjusted sales prices range from $335,903 to $392,017 with a median of $336,559 and a mean of $354,826. After adjusting downward 15% for COS, these 3 sales indicate a mean of $301,602 or approximately $126.30 per square foot.

The PAO sales reflect a value for the subject of $126.30/SF x 2,457 (ASQFT) or $310,319. The subject's Just Value assessment reflects a value of $118.31/SF or $290,692, which is supported.

The PAO and Petitioner have no sales in common.

The Petitioner performed their analysis utilizing heated SF. The Petitioner supplied 5 improved sales in the subject's market area:
PET Sale #1 was built in 2004 and has 1,857 square feet of living area on a 10,394 square foot lot. The property sold in July 2024 for $305,000. Evidence indicates that this property has a pool.
PET Sale #2 was built in 1983 and has 1,949 square feet of living area on a 10,264 square foot lot. The property sold in March 2025 for $285,000. As this property was sold after

January 1, 2025 it will not be analyzed by the Special Magistrate in relation to the subject property.
PET Sale #3 was built in 1988 and has 2,041 square feet of living area on a 11,833 square foot lot. The property sold in August 2024 for $325,000.
PET Sale #4 was built in 1983 and has 2,132 square feet of living area on a 10,000 square foot lot. The property sold in January 2024 for $285,000.
PET Sale #5 was built in 1989 and has 2,062 square feet of living area on a 10,000 square foot lot. The property sold in March 2024 for $300,000. Evidence indicates that this property has a pool.

The Petitioner adjusted the sales provided at a COS rate of 15%. The DR-493 form for Hernando County filed with the Florida Department of Revenue reflects a COS deduction of 15%. Adjusted sales prices range from $308,491 to $331,267 with a median of $311,162 and a mean of $317,854. After adjusting downward 15% for COS, these sales indicate a mean of $270,184 or approximately $134.77/SF.

The Petitioner sales reflect a value for the subject of $134.77 x 2,256 or $304,041.

Only the PAO provided a rebuttal argument which noted that the subject is a repaired sinkhole property and only PET Sales #1, #3 and #5 are repaired sinkhole properties.

Both parties presented market-relevant sales although both had 2 sales which have a pool amenity (whereas the subject has no pool) and, additionally, the PET provided 2 sales of properties that were 20 years older than the subject.

2. Highest & Best Use- the use that is legally permissible, physically possible, financially feasible, and maximally productive. The highest and best use of the subject is for residential use. The highest and best use was not disputed by the Petitioner.
3. Location of the Property- how the property's surroundings influence its value. Site specific location adjustments can be made to reflect either an enhanced location or an inferior location. All of the comparables presented in support of value are located in the same overall market area as the subject (same subdivision). Each has similar frontage and/or views. The location of this property was not disputed by the Petitioner.
4. Quantity or Size of the Property-square footage, acreage, front footage, unit count. The PAO must consider the quantity or size of the property by determining and recording the correct land size, building size and extras features and quantities. Land size is based on legal description from recorded plats or metes and bounds. Building sizes and extra features are determined by inspection and measured by deputy property appraisers. The size of the property was not disputed by the Petitioner.

5. Cost of the Property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon – An analysis of cost/depreciated cost is made in the CAMA system and found on the property record card. PAO considers replacement costs through the use of Marshall & Swift Valuation Service data and through annual surveys with different contractors to come up with feature rates (these are adjusted manually). Rates are adjusted annually to reflect the costs relevant to January 1 of the given tax year. No separate analysis of cost has been presented during the hearing. It is the opinion of the Special Magistrate that this cost analysis complies with 193.011(5) F.S. and generally accepted appraisal practices.
6. Condition of the Property-physical state and functional adequacy of improvements. The PAO considers the condition of the property through periodic property inspections, no less than once every five years as required by Statute. Other events can trigger more frequent site inspections, including the sale of a property, issuance of a building permit, assessment appeal or at the taxpayer's request. Condition is considered as a factor applied to the CAMA system value calculation for value losses from all sources based upon an age/life depreciation method. It appears that the condition of the property has been considered by the PAO and depreciation was calculated at 21%.
7. Income from the Property- income producing ability of the property. No analysis of income has been presented during the hearing and buyers in this sector of the real estate market typically do not consider income generating ability when valuing this type of property. It is the opinion of the Special Magistrate that this income analysis complies with 193.011(7) F.S. and generally accepted appraisal practices.
8. Net Proceeds of the Sale- the net proceeds of the sale of the property, as received by the seller, after deduction of the usual and reasonable fees and costs of the sale, including the costs and expenses of financing, and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms of financing arrangements. Applicable law provides for uniform cost of sale deductions in just valuations without regard to whether the property was sold, whether mass appraisal or single property appraisal is used, the appraisal approach used to value the property or whether the petitioner is seeking an increase or decrease in just value.

   The PAO considered cost of sales in their reconciliation process of 15%. The Petitioner adjusted the sales provided at a COS rate of 15%.

Ultimate Findings of Fact

Pursuant to Section 194.301 F.S, the Property Appraiser's assessment shall be entitled to a Presumption of Correctness if the Property Appraiser shows, by the preponderance of the evidence, that the Property Appraiser considered each of the eight criteria set forth in Section 193.011 F.S., the Property Appraiser applied the correct appraisal methodology based upon the characteristics of the property, and the Property Appraiser did not use appraisal practices which are different than the appraisal practices generally applied by the Property Appraiser to comparable properties in the same county.

1. In accordance with Section 194.301 F.S., it is concluded that the PAO DID establish a presumption of correctness by properly considering the eight criteria and further, it is concluded that the methodology used by PAO IS appropriate and DOES comply with professionally accepted practices for the subject property type. The Petitioner DID NOT overcome the presumption of correctness.
2. The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment was based on arbitrary appraisal practice different from like properties in the same county.
3. The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment is excessive. Thus the assessed value DOES NOT exceed 100% of the fair market value of the property.

Property Appraiser	(Indicated Value from Sales Analysis)	$310,319
Petitioner	(Indicated Value from Sales Analysis)	$304,041
Assessment (Just Value)		$290,692

Conclusions of Law

Florida Administrative Code section 12D-9.027 lays out a sequence of general procedural steps that the Special Magistrate has followed in preparation of this recommendation to the Value Adjustment Board:

Determine whether the Property Appraiser has established a presumption of correctness for the assessment and determine whether the Property Appraiser's just valuation methodology is appropriate. The presumption of correctness is not established unless the Property Appraiser proves by a preponderance of the evidence that the methodology used to support the just value for the subject property complies with 193.011 F.S. and professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate.

The Special Magistrate reviewed all evidence presented by all parties and determined that the evidence and testimony was relevant and credible to the valuation at hand. Thus, the evidence as presented was admitted for consideration in relation to the appropriateness of the subject assessment.

The Special Magistrate determined that the testimonial and documentary evidence meet the test of relevancy and credibility and WAS sufficient to reach the preponderance of evidence standard of proof required by Rule 12D-9.027(5)(6). The Special Magistrate also determined that there IS competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with 193.011 F.S. and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish the assessment.

The Special Magistrate determined that the hearing record contains competent, substantial evidence supporting the just value assessment. After weighing all of the documentary and testimonial evidence it is concluded that the assessment IS reasonable and within market parameters.

Recommendation

In view of the findings of fact and conclusions of law as they relate to this petition before the Value Adjustment Board, the Special Magistrate recommends that the petition be Denied.

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

HERNANDO ☑ County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-190	Parcel ID R32 323 17 5170 1154 0180
Petitioner name Patrick Rodriguez c/o SFR JV 1 Property LL The petitioner is: ☐ taxpayer of record ☑ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain: _____	Property address 4552 Azora Rd Spring Hill, FL 34608

Decision Summary ☑ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	332,113.00	332,113.00	332,113.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	332,113.00	332,113.00	332,113.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0.00	0.00	0.00
4. Taxable value,* required	332,113.00	332,113.00	332,113.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact
See attached.

Conclusions of Law
See attached.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Shelley Kennedy Signature, special magistrate	Shelley Kennedy, MNAA Print name	02/05/206 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

Petition No. 25-190

RECOMMENDATION OF SPECIAL MAGISTRATE
VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
HERNANDO COUNTY, FLORIDA

IN RE: THE PETITION OF: SFR JV-1 Property LLC
PARCEL KEY NO: 00626415

Petitioner Patrick Rodriguez of Ownwell, Inc. appeared telephonically at a hearing on behalf of SFR JV-1 Property LLC on January 23, 2026 to provide evidence pertaining to the 2025 property assessment for real property located in Hernando County, Florida. The Hernando County Property Appraiser's Office (PAO) was represented at the hearing by Doug Mack, Residential Supervisor and Kevin Kinney.

The Special Magistrate confirmed that all parties agree to hold the hearing telephonically. An opening statement regarding the role of the special magistrate was read and the parties were placed under oath. This petition was one of 6 scheduled by the petitioner on this hearing date. Any relevant testimony from these individual hearings will be incorporated by reference to avoid redundancy and expedite the hearing process.

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

The Property Appraiser confirmed the 2025 just value at $332,113. The assessed value is $332,113 and the taxable value is $332,113. No change in values after the TRIM process was noted.

The Petitioner estimated just value at $304,000.

The subject of this petition is identified on the Hernando County tax rolls as parcel number R32-323-17-5170-1154-0180. The subject property is located at 4552 Azora Rd in Spring Hill, Hernando County, Florida. The subject is described as a single-family residence which was originally constructed in 2005. The evidence indicates that the property consists of 2,608 square feet of adjusted building area on a 12,366 square foot residential lot. The PAO last conducted a field review of the subject parcel on 09/23/25 to complete a value adjustment review.

The packet provided by the Property Appraiser was admitted into evidence as PAO-A and consisted of 18 pages including a cover page, case synopsis, subject property record card, comparable sales tester and analysis, location maps, cost of sale adjustment clarification and computations, property record cards for provided sales and a structure area adjustment factors sheet.

The packet provided by the Petitioner was admitted into evidence as PET-1 and consisted of 8 pages including a cover page, property summary, subject aerial and front photos, evaluation summary, sales comparables, adjusted sales comparables, comparables map and photos of the comparables.

Both parties acknowledged that they received the opposing party's evidence in compliance with the statutory procedures for evidence exchange. Overall, the evidence presented meets specific evidence rules as outlined in Florida Administrative Code 12D-9.025(1) and 12D-9.025(2)(b) and is considered sufficient, relevant and credible, from which a reliable estimate of just, assessed and taxable value can be estimated.

BASIC AND UNDERLYING FINDINGS OF FACT

The Property Appraiser asserts in the Case Synopsis that "The Property Appraiser's Office used the Sales Comparison Approach and has considered all of the Eight Criteria required in Florida Statute 193.011 and we believe we have demonstrated that we have the preponderance of evidence that the subject's value represents Just Value".

The Florida Legislature has enacted eight criteria that the property appraiser must consider when determining just value. In any administrative or judicial action where a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment, the property appraiser's estimate of just value is presumed correct if it is proven that the assessment was made in compliance with the eight criteria outlined in F.S. Section 193.011 and in accordance with professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The only standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence, meaning the greater weight of the evidence or "more likely true than not" as per F.S. 194.301.

Florida Courts have consistently held that the property appraiser is required to consider all eight factors, that each factor does not have to be given equal weight but that failure to consider any single factor can invalidate an assessment. The extent to which the property appraiser has considered each of these eight criteria for this property is summarized in the following paragraphs.

1. Present Cash Value of the Property- the amount a willing buyer would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arm's length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through comparable sales analysis similar to that found in fee appraisal. The property appraiser has presented into evidence comparable sales in support of the present cash value. The PAO relied primarily upon the sales comparison approach, considered Computer-Assisted Mass Appraisal (CAMA) analysis and placed no weight on the cost or income approaches to value. This is considered an appropriate methodology by the Special Magistrate.

The PAO supplied 3 improved sales in the subject's market area:
PAO Sale #1 was built in 1994 and has 2,478 adjusted square feet on a 12,114 square foot lot. This property sold in March 2024 for $450,000 and the adjusted sales price for comparison purposes is $430,266. This sale has a screen enclosed inground pool.
PAO Sale #2 was built in 2002 and has 2,684 adjusted square feet on a 10,000 square foot lot. This property sold in September 2024 for $407,500 and the adjusted sales price for comparison purposes is $382,848. This sale has a screen enclosed inground pool.
PAO Sale #3 was built in 2004 and has 2,574 adjusted square feet on a 15,825 square foot lot. This property sold in August 2024 for $384,900 and the adjusted sales price for comparison purposes is $373,738. The property record card for Sale #3 indicates that it has a vinyl lined inground pool.

The PAO performed their analysis utilizing adjusted square foot (SF). While adjusted square footage is generally considered less precise than heated square footage in fee appraisal, it is commonly utilized in mass appraisal. Adjusted sales prices range from $373,738 to $430,266 with a median of $382,848 and a mean of $395,617. After adjusting downward 16% for COS, these 3 sales indicate a mean of $332,319 or approximately $129.21 per square foot.

The PAO sales reflect a value for the subject of $129.21/SF x 2,608 (ASQFT) or $336,980. The subject's Just Value assessment reflects a value of $127.34/SF or $332,113, which is supported.

The PAO and Petitioner have no sales in common.

The Petitioner performed their analysis utilizing heated SF. The Petitioner supplied 4 improved sales in the subject's market area:
PET Sale #1 was built in 2010 and has 1,965 square feet of living area on a 10,000 square foot lot. The property sold in June 2024 for $290,000.
PET Sale #2 was built in 2009 and has 2,117 square feet of living area on a 12,702 square foot lot. The property sold in December 2024 for $365,000.

PET Sale #3 was built in 2004 and has 2,250 square feet of living area on a 12,365 square foot lot. The property sold in October 2024 for $370,000. This sale has a screen enclosed inground pool.
PET Sale #4 was built in 2003 and has 1,903 square feet of living area on a 11,904 square foot lot. The property sold in June 2024 for $332,000. This sale has a screen enclosed inground pool.

The Petitioner adjusted the sales provided at a COS rate of 15%. The DR-493 form for Hernando County filed with the Florida Department of Revenue reflects a COS deduction of 15%. Adjusted sales prices range from $318,491 to $370,606 with a median of $357,718 and a mean of $351,239. After adjusting downward 15% for COS, these sales indicate a mean of $298,553 or approximately $141.44/SF.

The Petitioner's sales reflect a value for the subject of $141.44 x 2,353 or $332,808.

Only the PAO provided a rebuttal argument that noted that the subject is a repaired sinkhole property and only PET Sale #3 is a repaired sinkhole property.

Both parties presented market-relevant sales although all of the PAO's sales and 2 of the PET's sales have a pool amenity (whereas the subject has no pool).

2. Highest & Best Use- the use that is legally permissible, physically possible, financially feasible, and maximally productive. The highest and best use of the subject is for residential use. The highest and best use was not disputed by the Petitioner.
3. Location of the Property- how the property's surroundings influence its value. Site specific location adjustments can be made to reflect either an enhanced location or an inferior location. All of the comparables presented in support of value are located in the same overall market area as the subject (same subdivision). Each has similar frontage and/or views. The location of this property was not disputed by the Petitioner.
4. Quantity or Size of the Property-square footage, acreage, front footage, unit count. The PAO must consider the quantity or size of the property by determining and recording the correct land size, building size and extras features and quantities. Land size is based on legal description from recorded plats or metes and bounds. Building sizes and extra features are determined by inspection and measured by deputy property appraisers. The size of the property was not disputed by the Petitioner.
5. Cost of the Property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon-an analysis of cost/depreciated cost is made in the CAMA system and found on the property record card. PAO considers replacement costs through the use of Marshall & Swift Valuation Service data and through annual surveys with different contractors to come up with feature rates (these are adjusted manually). Rates are adjusted annually to reflect the costs relevant to January 1 of the given tax year. No separate analysis of cost has been presented during the hearing. It is the opinion of the Special Magistrate that this cost analysis complies with 193.011(5) F.S. and generally accepted appraisal practices.

6. Condition of the Property-physical state and functional adequacy of improvements. The PAO considers the condition of the property through periodic property inspections, no less than once every five years as required by Statute. Other events can trigger more frequent site inspections, including the sale of a property, issuance of a building permit, assessment appeal or at the taxpayer's request. Condition is considered as a factor applied to the CAMA system value calculation for value losses from all sources based upon an age/life depreciation method. It appears that the condition of the property has been considered by the PAO and depreciation was calculated at 19%.
7. Income from the Property- income producing ability of the property. No analysis of income has been presented during the hearing and buyers in this sector of the real estate market typically do not consider income generating ability when valuing this type of property. It is the opinion of the Special Magistrate that this income analysis complies with 193.011(7) F.S. and generally accepted appraisal practices.
8. Net Proceeds of the Sale- the net proceeds of the sale of the property, as received by the seller, after deduction of the usual and reasonable fees and costs of the sale, including the costs and expenses of financing, and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms of financing arrangements. Applicable law provides for uniform cost of sale deductions in just valuations without regard to whether the property was sold, whether mass appraisal or single property appraisal is used, the appraisal approach used to value the property or whether the petitioner is seeking an increase or decrease in just value.

   The PAO considered cost of sales in their reconciliation process of 16%. The Petitioner adjusted the sales provided at a COS rate of 15%.

Ultimate Findings of Fact

Pursuant to Section 194.301 F.S, the Property Appraiser's assessment shall be entitled to a Presumption of Correctness if the Property Appraiser shows, by the preponderance of the evidence, that the Property Appraiser considered each of the eight criteria set forth in Section 193.011 F.S., the Property Appraiser applied the correct appraisal methodology based upon the characteristics of the property, and the Property Appraiser did not use appraisal practices which are different than the appraisal practices generally applied by the Property Appraiser to comparable properties in the same county.

1. In accordance with Section 194.301 F.S., it is concluded that the PAO DID establish a presumption of correctness by properly considering the eight criteria and further, it is concluded that the methodology used by PAO IS appropriate and DOES comply with professionally accepted practices for the subject property type. The Petitioner DID NOT overcome the presumption of correctness.

2. The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment was based on arbitrary appraisal practice different from like properties in the same county.
3. The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment is excessive. Thus the assessed value DOES NOT exceed 100% of the fair market value of the property.

Property Appraiser	(Indicated Value from Sales Analysis)	$336,980
Petitioner	(Indicated Value from Sales Analysis)	$332,808
Assessment	(Just Value)	$332,113

Conclusions of Law

Florida Administrative Code section 12D-9.027 lays out a sequence of general procedural steps that the Special Magistrate has followed in preparation of this recommendation to the Value Adjustment Board:

Determine whether the Property Appraiser has established a presumption of correctness for the assessment and determine whether the Property Appraiser's just valuation methodology is appropriate. The presumption of correctness is not established unless the Property Appraiser proves by a preponderance of the evidence that the methodology used to support the just value for the subject property complies with 193.011 F.S. and professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate.

The Special Magistrate reviewed all evidence presented by all parties and determined that the evidence and testimony was relevant and credible to the valuation at hand. Thus, the evidence as presented was admitted for consideration in relation to the appropriateness of the subject assessment.

The Special Magistrate determined that the testimonial and documentary evidence meet the test of relevancy and credibility and WAS sufficient to reach the preponderance of evidence standard of proof required by Rule 12D-9.027(5)(6). The Special Magistrate also determined that there IS competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with 193.011 F.S. and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish the assessment.

The Special Magistrate determined that the hearing record contains competent, substantial evidence supporting the just value assessment. After weighing all of the documentary and testimonial evidence it is concluded that the assessment IS reasonable and within market parameters.

Recommendation

In view of the findings of fact and conclusions of law as they relate to this petition before the Value Adjustment Board, the Special Magistrate recommends that the petition be Denied.

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

HERNANDO ☑ County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-193	Parcel ID R32 323 17 5200 1258 0110
Petitioner name Patrick Rodriguez c/o SFR JV 1 2021 1 Bor The petitioner is: ☐ taxpayer of record ☑ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	Property address 13029 Centennial St Spring Hill, FL 34609

Decision Summary ☐ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☑ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	291,625.00	291,625.00	279,215.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	291,625.00	291,625.00	279,215.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0.00	0.00	0.00
4. Taxable value,* required	291,625.00	291,625.00	279,215.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact
See attached.

Conclusions of Law
See attached.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	Print name	Date
Shelley Kennedy	Shelley Kennedy, MNAA	02/05/206
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

Petition No. 25-193

RECOMMENDATION OF SPECIAL MAGISTRATE
VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
HERNANDO COUNTY, FLORIDA

IN RE: THE PETITION OF: SFR JV-1 2021-1 Borrower LLC
PARCEL KEY NO: 00686172

Petitioner Patrick Rodriguez of Ownwell, Inc. appeared telephonically at a hearing on behalf of SFR JV-1 2021-1 Borrower LLC on January 23, 2026 to provide evidence pertaining to the 2025 property assessment for real property located in Hernando County, Florida. The Hernando County Property Appraiser's Office (PAO) was represented at the hearing by Doug Mack, Residential Supervisor and Kevin Kinney.

The Special Magistrate confirmed that all parties agree to hold the hearing telephonically. An opening statement regarding the role of the special magistrate was read and the parties were placed under oath. This petition was one of 6 scheduled by the petitioner on this hearing date. Any relevant testimony from these individual hearings will be incorporated by reference to avoid redundancy and expedite the hearing process.

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

The Property Appraiser confirmed the 2025 just value at $291,625. The assessed value is $291,625 and the taxable value is $291,625. No change in values after the TRIM process was noted.

The Petitioner estimated just value at $270,000.

The subject of this petition is identified on the Hernando County tax rolls as parcel number R32-323-17-5200-1258-0110. The subject property is located at 13029 Centennial Street in Spring Hill, Hernando County, Florida. The subject is described as a single-family residence which was originally constructed in 2005. The evidence indicates that the property consists of 2,279 square feet of adjusted building area on a 12,843 square foot residential lot. The PAO last conducted a field review of the subject parcel on 09/24/25 to complete a value adjustment review.

The packet provided by the Property Appraiser was admitted into evidence as PAO-A and consisted of 17 pages including a cover page, case synopsis, subject property record card, comparable sales tester and analysis, location maps, cost of sale adjustment clarification and computations, property record cards for provided sales and a structure area adjustment factors sheet.

The packet provided by the Petitioner was admitted into evidence as PET-1 and consisted of 8 pages including a cover page, property summary, subject aerial and front photos, evaluation summary, sales comparables, adjusted sales comparables, comparables map and photos of the comparables.

Both parties acknowledged that they received the opposing party's evidence in compliance with the statutory procedures for evidence exchange. Overall, the evidence presented meets specific evidence rules as outlined in Florida Administrative Code 12D-9.025(1) and 12D-9.025(2)(b) and is considered sufficient, relevant and credible, from which a reliable estimate of just, assessed and taxable value can be estimated.

BASIC AND UNDERLYING FINDINGS OF FACT

The Property Appraiser asserts in the Case Synopsis that "The Property Appraiser's Office used the Sales Comparison Approach and has considered all of the Eight Criteria required in Florida Statute 193.011 and we believe we have demonstrated that we have the preponderance of evidence that the subject's value represents Just Value".

The Florida Legislature has enacted eight criteria that the property appraiser must consider when determining just value. In any administrative or judicial action where a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment, the property appraiser's estimate of just value is presumed correct if it is proven that the assessment was made in compliance with the eight criteria outlined in F.S. Section 193.011 and in accordance with professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The only standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence, meaning the greater weight of the evidence or "more likely true than not" as per F.S. 194.301.

Florida Courts have consistently held that the property appraiser is required to consider all eight factors, that each factor does not have to be given equal weight but that failure to consider any single factor can invalidate an assessment. The extent to which the property appraiser has considered each of these eight criteria for this property is summarized in the following paragraphs.

1. Present Cash Value of the Property- the amount a willing buyer would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arm's length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through comparable sales analysis similar to that found in fee appraisal. The property appraiser has presented into evidence comparable sales in support of the present cash value. The PAO relied primarily upon the sales comparison approach, considered Computer-Assisted Mass Appraisal (CAMA) analysis and placed no weight on the cost or income approaches to value. This is considered an appropriate methodology by the Special Magistrate.

The PAO supplied 3 improved sales in the subject's market area:
PAO Sale #1 was built in 2004 and has 2,574 adjusted square feet on a 15,825 square foot lot. This property sold in August 2024 for $384,900 and the adjusted sales price for comparison purposes is $373,738. The property record card for Sale #1 indicates that it has a vinyl lined inground pool.
PAO Sale #2 was built in 2002 and has 1,950 adjusted square feet on a 10,000 square foot lot. This property sold in July 2024 for $324,000 and the adjusted sales price for comparison purposes is $321,850.
PAO Sale #3 was built in 1987 and has 2,373 adjusted square feet on a 11,335 square foot lot. This property sold in October 2024 for $346,500 and the adjusted sales price for comparison purposes is $343,880.

The PAO performed their analysis utilizing adjusted square foot (SF). While adjusted square footage is generally considered less precise than heated square footage in fee appraisal, it is commonly utilized in mass appraisal.

Adjusted sales prices range from $321,850 to $373,738 with a median of $343,880 and a mean of $346,489. After adjusting downward 21% for COS, these 3 sales indicate a mean of $273,727 or approximately $119.86 per square foot.

The PAO sales reflect a value for the subject of $119.86/SF x 2,279 (ASQFT) or $273,160.

The subject's Just Value assessment reflects a value of $127.96/SF or $291,625, which is not supported by the sales provided once adjusted.

The PAO and Petitioner have no sales in common.

The Petitioner performed their analysis utilizing heated SF. The Petitioner supplied 3 improved sales in the subject's market area:
PET Sale #1 was built in 2002 and has 2,027 square feet of living area on a 11,131 square foot lot. The property sold in September 2024 for $330,000.

PET Sale #2 was built in 2005 and has 1,655 square feet of living area on a 13,922 square foot lot. The property sold in September 2024 for $300,000.
PET Sale #3 was built in 2004 and has 1,944 square feet of living area on a 11,741 square foot lot. The property sold in December 2024 for $289,500.

The Petitioner adjusted the sales provided at a COS rate of 15%. The DR-493 form for Hernando County filed with the Florida Department of Revenue reflects a COS deduction of 15%.

Adjusted sales prices range from $296,428 to $328,135 with a median of $318,479 and a mean of $314,437. After adjusting downward 15% for COS, these sales indicate a mean of $267,272 or approximately $143.64/SF.

The Petitioner's sales reflect a value for the subject of $143.64 x 1,986 or $285,269.

Only the PAO provided a rebuttal argument that noted that the subject is a repaired sinkhole property and only PET Sale #2 is a repaired sinkhole property. Additionally, the PAO disputed the effective ages for Sales #2 and #3. The Petitioner has 2005 for the effective age for Sale #2 while the PAO has the effective age as 2010 and the Petitioner has 2006 for the effective age for Sale #3 while the PAO has the effective age as 2011.

Both sets of sales were considered credible.

2. Highest & Best Use- the use that is legally permissible, physically possible, financially feasible, and maximally productive. The highest and best use of the subject is for residential use. The highest and best use was not disputed by the Petitioner.
3. Location of the Property- how the property's surroundings influence its value. Site specific location adjustments can be made to reflect either an enhanced location or an inferior location. All of the comparables presented in support of value are located in the same overall market area as the subject (same subdivision). Each has similar frontage and/or views. The location of this property was not disputed by the Petitioner.
4. Quantity or Size of the Property-square footage, acreage, front footage, unit count. The PAO must consider the quantity or size of the property by determining and recording the correct land size, building size and extras features and quantities. Land size is based on legal description from recorded plats or metes and bounds. Building sizes and extra features are determined by inspection and measured by deputy property appraisers. The size of the property was not disputed by the Petitioner.
5. Cost of the Property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon- an analysis of cost/depreciated cost is made in the CAMA system and found on the property record card. PAO considers replacement costs through the use of Marshall & Swift Valuation Service data and through annual surveys with different contractors to come up with feature rates (these are adjusted manually). Rates are adjusted annually to reflect the costs relevant to January 1 of the given tax year. No separate analysis of cost has been presented during the hearing. It is the opinion of the Special Magistrate that this cost analysis complies with 193.011(5) F.S. and generally accepted appraisal practices.

6. Condition of the Property- physical state and functional adequacy of improvements. The PAO considers the condition of the property through periodic property inspections, no less than once every five years as required by Statute. Other events can trigger more frequent site inspections, including the sale of a property, issuance of a building permit, assessment appeal or at the taxpayer's request. Condition is considered as a factor applied to the CAMA system value calculation for value losses from all sources based upon an age/life depreciation method. It appears that the condition of the property has been considered by the PAO and depreciation was calculated at 18%.
7. Income from the Property- income producing ability of the property. No analysis of income has been presented during the hearing and buyers in this sector of the real estate market typically do not consider income generating ability when valuing this type of property. It is the opinion of the Special Magistrate that this income analysis complies with 193.011(7) F.S. and generally accepted appraisal practices.
8. Net Proceeds of the Sale- the net proceeds of the sale of the property, as received by the seller, after deduction of the usual and reasonable fees and costs of the sale, including the costs and expenses of financing, and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms of financing arrangements. Applicable law provides for uniform cost of sale deductions in just valuations without regard to whether the property was sold, whether mass appraisal or single property appraisal is used, the appraisal approach used to value the property or whether the petitioner is seeking an increase or decrease in just value.

   The PAO considered cost of sales in their reconciliation process of 21%. The Petitioner adjusted the sales provided at a COS rate of 15%.

Ultimate Findings of Fact

Pursuant to Section 194.301 F.S., the Property Appraiser's assessment shall be entitled to a Presumption of Correctness if the Property Appraiser shows, by the preponderance of the evidence, that the Property Appraiser considered each of the eight criteria set forth in Section 193.011 F.S., the Property Appraiser applied the correct appraisal methodology based upon the characteristics of the property, and the Property Appraiser did not use appraisal practices which are different than the appraisal practices generally applied by the Property Appraiser to comparable properties in the same county.

1. In accordance with Section 194.301 F.S., it is concluded that the PAO DID NOT establish a presumption of correctness by failing to apply the COS adjustment derived from the PAO sales or DR-493, therefore failing to comply with Criterion 8 of 193.011, F.S.
2. The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment was based on arbitrary appraisal practice different from like properties in the same county.
3. The Petitioner HAS shown by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment is excessive. Thus the assessed value DOES exceed 100% of the fair market value of the property.

Property Appraiser	(Indicated Value from Sales Analysis)	$273,160
Petitioner	(Indicated Value from Sales Analysis)	$285,269
Average		$279,215
Assessment	(Just Value)	$291,625

Conclusions of Law

Florida Administrative Code section 12D-9.027 lays out a sequence of general procedural steps that the Special Magistrate has followed in preparation of this recommendation to the Value Adjustment Board:

Determine whether the Property Appraiser has established a presumption of correctness for the assessment and determine whether the Property Appraiser's just valuation methodology is appropriate. The presumption of correctness is not established unless the Property Appraiser proves by a preponderance of the evidence that the methodology used to support the just value for the subject property complies with 193.011 F.S. and professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate.

The Special Magistrate reviewed all evidence presented by all parties and determined that the evidence and testimony was relevant and credible to the valuation at hand. Thus, the evidence as presented was admitted for consideration in relation to the appropriateness of the subject assessment.

The Special Magistrate determined that the testimonial and documentary evidence meet the test of relevancy and credibility and WAS sufficient to reach the preponderance of evidence standard of proof required by Rule 12D-9.027(5)(6). The Special Magistrate also determined that there IS competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with 193.011 F.S. and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish the assessment.

The Special Magistrate determined that the hearing record contains competent, substantial evidence for establishing a revised just value. In establishing a revised just value, the Special Magistrate is not restricted to any specific value offered by one of the parties. After weighing all of the documentary and testimonial evidence it is concluded that the assessment IS NOT reasonable and within market parameters.

Recommendation

In view of the findings of fact and conclusions of law as they relate to this petition before the Value Adjustment Board, the Special Magistrate recommends that the petition be Granted in Part and the Just Value be revised to $279,215.

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

HERNANDO ☑ County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-194	Parcel ID R32 323 17 5200 1352 0060
Petitioner name Patrick Rodriguez c/o SFR JV 1 2021 1 Bor The petitioner is: ☐ taxpayer of record ☑ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain: _____	Property address 6408 Grapewood Rd Spring Hill, FL 34609

Decision Summary ☑ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	383,078.00	383,078.00	383,078.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	383,078.00	383,078.00	383,078.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0.00	0.00	0.00
4. Taxable value,* required	383,078.00	383,078.00	383,078.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact
See attached.

Conclusions of Law
See attached.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Shelley Kennedy — Signature, special magistrate
Shelley Kennedy, MNAA — Print name
02/05/206 — Date

Signature, VAB clerk or special representative
Print name
Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board
Print name
Date of decision

Signature, VAB clerk or representative
Print name
Date mailed to parties

Petition No. 25-194

RECOMMENDATION OF SPECIAL MAGISTRATE
VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
HERNANDO COUNTY, FLORIDA

IN RE: THE PETITION OF: SFR JV-1 2021-1 Borrower LLC
PARCEL KEY NO: 00709941

Petitioner Patrick Rodriguez of Ownwell, Inc. appeared telephonically at a hearing on behalf of SFR JV-1 2021-1 Borrower LLC on January 23, 2026 to provide evidence pertaining to the 2025 property assessment for real property located in Hernando County, Florida. The Hernando County Property Appraiser's Office (PAO) was represented at the hearing by Doug Mack, Residential Supervisor and Kevin Kinney.

The Special Magistrate confirmed that all parties agree to hold the hearing telephonically. An opening statement regarding the role of the special magistrate was read and the parties were placed under oath. This petition was one of 6 scheduled by the petitioner on this hearing date. Any relevant testimony from these individual hearings will be incorporated by reference to avoid redundancy and expedite the hearing process.

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

The Property Appraiser confirmed the 2025 just value at $383,078. The assessed value is $383,078 and the taxable value is $383,078. No change in values after the TRIM process was noted.

The Petitioner estimated just value at $328,000.

The subject of this petition is identified on the Hernando County tax rolls as parcel number R32-323-17-5200-1352-0060. The subject property is located at 6408 Grapewood Road in Spring Hill, Hernando County, Florida. The subject is described as a single-family residence which was originally constructed in 2012. The evidence indicates that the property consists of 2,818 square feet of adjusted building area on a 12,000 square foot residential lot. The PAO last conducted a field review of the subject parcel on 10/01/25 to complete a value adjustment review.

The packet provided by the Property Appraiser was admitted into evidence as PAO-A and consisted of 17 pages including a cover page, case synopsis, subject property record card, comparable sales tester and analysis, location maps, cost of sale adjustment clarification and computations, property record cards for provided sales and a structure area adjustment factors sheet.

The packet provided by the Petitioner was admitted into evidence as PET-1 and consisted of 8 pages including a cover page, property summary, subject aerial and front photos, evaluation summary, sales comparables, adjusted sales comparables, comparables map and photos of the comparables.

Both parties acknowledged that they received the opposing party's evidence in compliance with the statutory procedures for evidence exchange. Overall, the evidence presented meets specific evidence rules as outlined in Florida Administrative Code 12D-9.025(1) and 12D-9.025(2)(b) and is considered sufficient, relevant and credible, from which a reliable estimate of just, assessed and taxable value can be estimated.

BASIC AND UNDERLYING FINDINGS OF FACT

The Property Appraiser asserts in the Case Synopsis that "The Property Appraiser's Office used the Sales Comparison Approach and has considered all of the Eight Criteria required in Florida Statute 193.011 and we believe we have demonstrated that we have the preponderance of evidence that the subject's value represents Just Value".

The Florida Legislature has enacted eight criteria that the property appraiser must consider when determining just value. In any administrative or judicial action where a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment, the property appraiser's estimate of just value is presumed correct if it is proven that the assessment was made in compliance with the eight criteria outlined in F.S. Section 193.011 and in accordance with professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The only standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence, meaning the greater weight of the evidence or "more likely true than not" as per F.S. 194.301.

Florida Courts have consistently held that the property appraiser is required to consider all eight factors, that each factor does not have to be given equal weight but that failure to consider any single factor can invalidate an assessment. The extent to which the property appraiser has considered each of these eight criteria for this property is summarized in the following paragraphs.

1. Present Cash Value of the Property- the amount a willing buyer would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arm's length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through comparable sales analysis similar to that found in fee appraisal. The property appraiser has presented into evidence comparable sales in support of the present cash value. The PAO relied primarily upon the sales comparison approach, considered Computer-Assisted Mass Appraisal (CAMA) analysis and placed no weight on the cost or income approaches to value. This is considered an appropriate methodology by the Special Magistrate.

The PAO supplied 3 improved sales in the subject's market area:
PAO Sale #1 was built in 2004 and has 1,943 adjusted square feet on a 13,766 square foot lot. This property sold in February 2024 for $358,500 and the adjusted sales price for comparison purposes is $340,199. The property record card for Sale #1 indicates that it has a screen enclosed inground pool.
PAO Sale #2 was built in 2004 and has 2,452 adjusted square feet on a 10,000 square foot lot. This property sold in June 2024 for $370,000 and the adjusted sales price for comparison purposes is $366,731.
PAO Sale #3 was built in 1989 and has 2,278 adjusted square feet on a 10,000 square foot lot. This property sold in December 2024 for $405,000 and the adjusted sales price for comparison purposes is $394,400. The property record card for Sale #3 indicates that it has a screen enclosed vinyl lined pool.

The PAO performed their analysis utilizing adjusted square foot (SF). While adjusted square footage is generally considered less precise than heated square footage in fee appraisal, it is commonly utilized in mass appraisal.

Adjusted sales prices range from $340,199 to $394,400 with a median of $366,731 and a mean of $367,110. After adjusting downward 18% for COS, these 3 sales indicate a mean of $301,030 or approximately $136.06 per square foot.

The PAO sales reflect a value for the subject of $136.06/SF x 2,818 (ASQFT) or $383,417.

The subject's Just Value assessment reflects a value of $135.94/SF or $383,078, which is supported by the sales provided once adjusted.

The PAO and Petitioner have no sales in common.

The Petitioner performed their analysis utilizing heated SF. The Petitioner supplied 4 improved sales in the subject's market area:

PET Sale #1 was built in 2002 and has 2,255 square feet of living area on a 10,800 square foot lot. The property sold in September 2024 for $360,000. Evidence indicates that Sale #1 has a pool.
PET Sale #2 was built in 2002 and has 2,027 square feet of living area on an 11,131 square foot lot. The property sold in September 2024 for $330,000.
PET Sale #3 was built in 1988 and has 2,172 square feet of living area on a 15,191 square foot lot. The property sold in December 2024 for $365,000. Evidence indicates that Sale #3 has a pool.
PET Sale #4 was built in 2016 and has 2,456 square feet of living area on an 11,557 square foot lot. The property sold in November 2024 for $350,000.

The Petitioner adjusted the sales provided at a COS rate of 15%. The DR-493 form for Hernando County filed with the Florida Department of Revenue reflects a COS deduction of 15%.

Adjusted sales prices range from $354,173 to $400,574 with a median of $386,208 and a mean of $390,996. After adjusting downward 15% for COS, these sales indicate a mean of $332,347 or approximately $154.67/SF.

The Petitioner's sales reflect a value for the subject of $154.67 x 2,560 or $395,955.

Only the PAO provided a rebuttal argument noting that the Petitioner's Sale #2 is 533 square feet smaller than the subject and that the living area is incorrectly reported for Petitioner's Sale #4. Petitioner indicates that the living area is 2,456 square feet, however, the PAO asserts that the living area is 1,511 square feet and the remainder is a 945 square foot detached garage.

Both sets of sales were considered credible although both the PAO and the Petitioner provided 2 sales each that have a pool amenity while the subject does not have a pool.

2. Highest & Best Use- the use that is legally permissible, physically possible, financially feasible, and maximally productive. The highest and best use of the subject is for residential use. The highest and best use was not disputed by the Petitioner.
3. Location of the Property- how the property's surroundings influence its value. Site specific location adjustments can be made to reflect either an enhanced location or an inferior location. All of the comparables presented in support of value are located in the same overall market area as the subject (same subdivision). Each has similar frontage and/or views. The location of this property was not disputed by the Petitioner.
4. Quantity or Size of the Property- square footage, acreage, front footage, unit count. The PAO must consider the quantity or size of the property by determining and recording the correct land size, building size and extras features and quantities. Land size is based on legal description from recorded plats or metes and bounds. Building sizes and extra features are determined by inspection and measured by deputy property appraisers. The size of the property was not disputed by the Petitioner.

5. Cost of the Property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon- an analysis of cost/depreciated cost is made in the CAMA system and found on the property record card. PAO considers replacement costs through the use of Marshall & Swift Valuation Service data and through annual surveys with different contractors to come up with feature rates (these are adjusted manually). Rates are adjusted annually to reflect the costs relevant to January 1 of the given tax year. No separate analysis of cost has been presented during the hearing. It is the opinion of the Special Magistrate that this cost analysis complies with 193.011(5) F.S. and generally accepted appraisal practices.
6. Condition of the Property- physical state and functional adequacy of improvements. The PAO considers the condition of the property through periodic property inspections, no less than once every five years as required by Statute. Other events can trigger more frequent site inspections, including the sale of a property, issuance of a building permit, assessment appeal or at the taxpayer's request. Condition is considered as a factor applied to the CAMA system value calculation for value losses from all sources based upon an age/life depreciation method. It appears that the condition of the property has been considered by the PAO and depreciation was calculated at 12%.
7. Income from the Property- income producing ability of the property. No analysis of income has been presented during the hearing and buyers in this sector of the real estate market typically do not consider income generating ability when valuing this type of property. It is the opinion of the Special Magistrate that this income analysis complies with 193.011(7) F.S. and generally accepted appraisal practices.
8. Net Proceeds of the Sale- the net proceeds of the sale of the property, as received by the seller, after deduction of the usual and reasonable fees and costs of the sale, including the costs and expenses of financing, and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms of financing arrangements. Applicable law provides for uniform cost of sale deductions in just valuations without regard to whether the property was sold, whether mass appraisal or single property appraisal is used, the appraisal approach used to value the property or whether the petitioner is seeking an increase or decrease in just value.

   The PAO considered cost of sales in their reconciliation process of 18%. The Petitioner adjusted the sales provided at a COS rate of 15%.

Ultimate Findings of Fact

Pursuant to Section 194.301 F.S., the Property Appraiser’s assessment shall be entitled to a Presumption of Correctness if the Property Appraiser shows, by the preponderance of the evidence, that the Property Appraiser considered each of the eight criteria set forth in Section 193.011 F.S., the Property Appraiser applied the correct appraisal methodology based upon the characteristics of the property, and the Property Appraiser did not use appraisal practices which are different than the appraisal practices generally applied by the Property Appraiser to comparable properties in the same county.

1. In accordance with Section 194.301 F.S., it is concluded that the PAO DID establish a presumption of correctness by properly considering the eight criteria and further, it is concluded that the methodology used by PAO IS appropriate and DOES comply with professionally accepted practices for the subject property type. The Petitioner DID NOT overcome the presumption of correctness.
2. The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment was based on arbitrary appraisal practice different from like properties in the same county.
3. The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment is excessive. Thus the assessed value DOES NOT exceed 100% of the fair market value of the property.

Property Appraiser	(Indicated Value from Sales Analysis)	$383,417
Petitioner	(Indicated Value from Sales Analysis)	$395,955
Assessment	(Just Value)	$383,078

Conclusions of Law

Florida Administrative Code section 12D-9.027 lays out a sequence of general procedural steps that the Special Magistrate has followed in preparation of this recommendation to the Value Adjustment Board:

Determine whether the Property Appraiser has established a presumption of correctness for the assessment and determine whether the Property Appraiser's just valuation methodology is appropriate. The presumption of correctness is not established unless the Property Appraiser proves by a preponderance of the evidence that the methodology used to support the just value for the subject property complies with 193.011 F.S. and professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate.

The Special Magistrate reviewed all evidence presented by all parties and determined that the evidence and testimony was relevant and credible to the valuation at hand. Thus, the evidence as presented was admitted for consideration in relation to the appropriateness of the subject assessment.

The Special Magistrate determined that the testimonial and documentary evidence meet the test of relevancy and credibility and WAS sufficient to reach the preponderance of evidence standard of proof required by Rule 12D-9.027(5)(6). The Special Magistrate also determined that there IS competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with 193.011 F.S. and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish the assessment.

The Special Magistrate determined that the hearing record contains competent, substantial evidence supporting the just value assessment. After weighing all of the documentary and testimonial evidence it is concluded that the assessment IS reasonable and within market parameters.

Recommendation

In view of the findings of fact and conclusions of law as they relate to this petition before the Value Adjustment Board, the Special Magistrate recommends that the petition be Denied.

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

HERNANDO ☑ County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-195	Parcel ID R32 323 17 5230 1594 0050
Petitioner name Patrick Rodriguez c/o Invitation Homes INC The petitioner is: ☐ taxpayer of record ☑ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain: ____	Property address 5186 Deltona Blvd. Spring Hill, FL 34606

Decision Summary ☑ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	300,240.00	300,240.00	300,240.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	254,955.00	254,955.00	254,955.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0.00	0.00	0.00
4. Taxable value,* required	254,955.00	254,955.00	254,955.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact
See attached.

Conclusions of Law
See attached.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	Print name	Date
Shelley Kennedy	Shelley Kennedy, MNAA	2/5/26
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

Petition No. 25-195

RECOMMENDATION OF SPECIAL MAGISTRATE
VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
HERNANDO COUNTY, FLORIDA

IN RE: THE PETITION OF: Invitation Homes Inc
PARCEL KEY NO: 00637127

Petitioner Patrick Rodriguez of Ownwell, Inc. appeared telephonically at a hearing on behalf of Invitation Homes Inc on January 23, 2026 to provide evidence pertaining to the 2025 property assessment for real property located in Hernando County, Florida. The Hernando County Property Appraiser's Office (PAO) was represented at the hearing by Doug Mack, Residential Supervisor and Kevin Kinney.

The Special Magistrate confirmed that all parties agree to hold the hearing telephonically. An opening statement regarding the role of the special magistrate was read and the parties were placed under oath. This petition was one of 6 scheduled by the petitioner on this hearing date. Any relevant testimony from these individual hearings will be incorporated by reference to avoid redundancy and expedite the hearing process.

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

The Property Appraiser confirmed the 2025 just value at $300,240. The assessed value is $254,955 and the taxable value is $254,955. No change in values after the TRIM process was noted.

The Petitioner estimated just value at $272,000. The packet provided by the Petitioner reported the Opinion of Value to be $249,000, however, when presenting the packet the representative changed the estimate of value based on Comp #3 which they stated was most like the subject.

The subject of this petition is identified on the Hernando County tax rolls as parcel number R32-323-17-5230-1594-0050. The subject property is located at 5186 Deltona Blvd in Spring Hill, Hernando County, Florida. The subject is described as a single-family residence which was originally constructed in 2015. The evidence indicates that the property consists of 2,094 square feet of adjusted building area on a 10,321 square foot residential lot. The PAO last conducted a field review of the subject parcel on 09/23/25 to complete a value adjustment review.

The packet provided by the Property Appraiser was admitted into evidence as PAO-A and consisted of 15 pages including a cover page, case synopsis, subject property record card, comparable sales tester and analysis, location maps, cost of sale adjustment clarification and computations, property record cards for provided sales and a structure area adjustment factors sheet.

The packet provided by the Petitioner was admitted into evidence as PET-1 and consisted of 8 pages including a cover page, property summary, subject aerial and front photos, evaluation summary, sales comparables, adjusted sales comparables, comparables map and photos of the comparables.

Both parties acknowledged that they received the opposing party's evidence in compliance with the statutory procedures for evidence exchange. Overall, the evidence presented meets specific evidence rules as outlined in Florida Administrative Code 12D-9.025(1) and 12D-9.025(2)(b) and is considered sufficient, relevant and credible, from which a reliable estimate of just, assessed and taxable value can be derived.

BASIC AND UNDERLYING FINDINGS OF FACT

The Property Appraiser asserts in the Case Synopsis that "The Property Appraiser's Office used the Sales Comparison Approach and has considered all of the Eight Criteria required in Florida Statute 193.011 and we believe we have demonstrated that we have the preponderance of evidence that the subject's value represents Just Value".

The Florida Legislature has enacted eight criteria that the property appraiser must consider when determining just value. In any administrative or judicial action where a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment, the property appraiser's estimate of just value is presumed correct if it is proven that the assessment was made in compliance with the eight criteria outlined in F.S. Section 193.011 and in accordance with professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The only standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence, meaning the greater weight of the evidence or "more likely true than not" as per F.S. 194.301.

Florida Courts have consistently held that the property appraiser is required to consider all eight factors, that each factor does not have to be given equal weight but that failure to consider any single factor can invalidate an assessment. The extent to which the property appraiser has considered each of these eight criteria for this property is summarized in the following paragraphs.

1. Present Cash Value of the Property- the amount a willing buyer would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arm's length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through comparable sales analysis similar to that found in fee appraisal. The property appraiser has presented into evidence comparable sales in support of the present cash value. The PAO relied primarily upon the sales comparison approach, considered Computer-Assisted Mass Appraisal (CAMA) analysis and placed no weight on the cost or income approaches to value. This is considered an appropriate methodology by the Special Magistrate.

   The PAO supplied 3 improved sales in the subject's market area:
   PAO Sale #1 was built in 2023 and has 2,115 adjusted square feet on a 11,699 square foot lot. This property sold in June 2024 for $346,500 and the adjusted sales price for comparison purposes is $339,321.
   PAO Sale #2 was built in 2024 and has 2,074 adjusted square feet on a 11,137 square foot lot. This property sold in August 2024 for $358,000 and the adjusted sales price for comparison purposes is $355,725.
   PAO Sale #3 was built in 2006 and has 2,025 adjusted square feet on a 10,718 square foot lot. This property sold in April 2024 for $347,000 and the adjusted sales price for comparison purposes is $344,487. The property record card for Sale #3 indicates that it has a screen enclosed vinyl lined pool.

   The PAO performed their analysis utilizing adjusted square foot (SF). While adjusted square footage is generally considered less precise than heated square footage in fee appraisal, it is commonly utilized in mass appraisal.

   Adjusted sales prices range from $339,321 to $355,725 with a median of $344,487 and a mean of $346,511. After adjusting downward 15% for COS, these 3 sales indicate a mean of $294,534 or approximately $142.25 per square foot.

   The PAO sales reflect a value for the subject of $142.25/SF x 2,094 (ASQFT) or $297,872. The subject's Just Value assessment reflects a value of $143.38/SF or $300,240.

   While the PAO's sales analysis, when adjusted for cost of sale, indicates a reconciled value of $297,872, the subject's assessed just value of $300,240 reflects a variance of less than one percent. This variance is de minimis and well within accepted appraisal tolerance for mass appraisal. The Special Magistrate finds that such a minor difference does not undermine the credibility or reasonableness of the assessment.

The PAO and Petitioner have no sales in common.

The Petitioner performed their analysis utilizing heated SF. The Petitioner supplied 3 improved sales in the subject's market area:
PET Sale #1 was built in 2020 and has 1,560 square feet of living area on a 10,806 square foot lot. The property sold in January 2024 for $265,000.
PET Sale #2 was built in 2002 and has 2,004 square feet of living area on an 15,000 square foot lot. The property sold in June 2024 for $300,000.
PET Sale #3 was built in 2021 and has 1,978 square feet of living area on a 15,213 square foot lot. The property sold in September 2024 for $355,000.

The Petitioner adjusted the sales provided at a COS rate of 15%. The DR-493 form for Hernando County filed with the Florida Department of Revenue reflects a COS deduction of 15%.

Adjusted sales prices range from $279,890 to $320,743 with a median of $293,393 and a mean of $298,009. After adjusting downward 15% for COS, these sales indicate a mean of $253,307 or approximately $138.26/SF.

The Petitioner's sales reflect a value for the subject of $138.26 x 1,874 or $259,099.

Only the PAO provided a rebuttal argument noting that the Petitioner's Sale #1 resold in 2025 for $290,000 which may indicate that the prior sale was a distress sale or possibly an issue with condition at the time of the prior sale.

Both sets of sales were considered credible. It is notable that all of the sales provided by the PAO are located on the subject's street and all have 4 bedrooms and 2 baths like the subject. Petitioner's Sale #1 is located on the subject's street and has 4 bedrooms and 2 baths but is potentially not a market value sale. Petitioner's Sale #2 is located on a golf course site and only has 2 bedrooms. Petitioner's Sale #3 is located on a different main artery through the market area and only has 3 bedrooms.

2. Highest & Best Use- the use that is legally permissible, physically possible, financially feasible, and maximally productive. The highest and best use of the subject is for residential use. The highest and best use was not disputed by the Petitioner.
3. Location of the Property- how the property's surroundings influence its value. Site specific location adjustments can be made to reflect either an enhanced location or an inferior location. All of the comparables presented in support of value are located in the same overall market area as the subject (same subdivision). Each has similar frontage and/or views. The location of this property was not disputed by the Petitioner.

4. Quantity or Size of the Property- square footage, acreage, front footage, unit count. The PAO must consider the quantity or size of the property by determining and recording the correct land size, building size and extras features and quantities. Land size is based on legal description from recorded plats or metes and bounds. Building sizes and extra features are determined by inspection and measured by deputy property appraisers. The size of the property was not disputed by the Petitioner.
5. Cost of the Property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon- an analysis of cost/depreciated cost is made in the CAMA system and found on the property record card. PAO considers replacement costs through the use of Marshall & Swift Valuation Service data and through annual surveys with different contractors to come up with feature rates (these are adjusted manually). Rates are adjusted annually to reflect the costs relevant to January 1 of the given tax year. No separate analysis of cost has been presented during the hearing. It is the opinion of the Special Magistrate that this cost analysis complies with 193.011(5) F.S. and generally accepted appraisal practices.
6. Condition of the Property- physical state and functional adequacy of improvements. The PAO considers the condition of the property through periodic property inspections, no less than once every five years as required by Statute. Other events can trigger more frequent site inspections, including the sale of a property, issuance of a building permit, assessment appeal or at the taxpayer's request. Condition is considered as a factor applied to the CAMA system value calculation for value losses from all sources based upon an age/life depreciation method. It appears that the condition of the property has been considered by the PAO and depreciation was calculated at 9%.
7. Income from the Property- income producing ability of the property. No analysis of income has been presented during the hearing and buyers in this sector of the real estate market typically do not consider income generating ability when valuing this type of property. It is the opinion of the Special Magistrate that this income analysis complies with 193.011(7) F.S. and generally accepted appraisal practices.
8. Net Proceeds of the Sale- the net proceeds of the sale of the property, as received by the seller, after deduction of the usual and reasonable fees and costs of the sale, including the costs and expenses of financing, and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms of financing arrangements. Applicable law provides for uniform cost of sale deductions in just valuations without regard to whether the property was sold, whether mass appraisal or single property appraisal is used, the appraisal approach used to value the property or whether the petitioner is seeking an increase or decrease in just value.

   The PAO considered cost of sales in their reconciliation process of 15%. The Petitioner adjusted the sales provided at a COS rate of 15%.

Ultimate Findings of Fact

Pursuant to Section 194.301 F.S., the Property Appraiser's assessment shall be entitled to a Presumption of Correctness if the Property Appraiser shows, by the preponderance of the evidence, that the Property Appraiser considered each of the eight criteria set forth in Section 193.011 F.S., the Property Appraiser applied the correct appraisal methodology based upon the characteristics of the property, and the Property Appraiser did not use appraisal practices which are different than the appraisal practices generally applied by the Property Appraiser to comparable properties in the same county.

1. In accordance with Section 194.301 F.S., it is concluded that the PAO DID establish a presumption of correctness by properly considering the eight criteria and further, it is concluded that the methodology used by PAO IS appropriate and DOES comply with professionally accepted practices for the subject property type. The Petitioner DID NOT overcome the presumption of correctness.
2. The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment was based on arbitrary appraisal practice different from like properties in the same county.
3. The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment is excessive. Thus the assessed value DOES NOT exceed 100% of the fair market value of the property.

Property Appraiser	(Indicated Value from Sales Analysis)	$297,872
Petitioner	(Indicated Value from Sales Analysis)	$259,099
Assessment	(Just Value)	$300,240

Conclusions of Law

Florida Administrative Code section 12D-9.027 lays out a sequence of general procedural steps that the Special Magistrate has followed in preparation of this recommendation to the Value Adjustment Board:

Determine whether the Property Appraiser has established a presumption of correctness for the assessment and determine whether the Property Appraiser's just valuation methodology is appropriate. The presumption of correctness is not established unless the Property Appraiser proves by a preponderance of the evidence that the methodology used to support the just value for the subject property complies with 193.011 F.S. and professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate.

The Special Magistrate reviewed all evidence presented by all parties and determined that the evidence and testimony was relevant and credible to the valuation at hand. Thus, the evidence as presented was admitted for consideration in relation to the appropriateness of the subject assessment.

The Special Magistrate determined that the testimonial and documentary evidence meet the test of relevancy and credibility and WAS sufficient to reach the preponderance of evidence standard of proof required by Rule 12D-9.027(5)(6). The Special Magistrate also determined that there IS competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with 193.011 F.S. and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish the assessment.

The Special Magistrate determined that the hearing record contains competent, substantial evidence supporting the just value assessment. After weighing all of the documentary and testimonial evidence it is concluded that the assessment IS reasonable and within market parameters.

Recommendation

In view of the findings of fact and conclusions of law as they relate to this petition before the Value Adjustment Board, the Special Magistrate recommends that the petition be Denied.

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

HERNANDO ☑ County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-202	Parcel ID R32 323 17 5200 1347 0070
Petitioner name Edwin Rivera c/o HPA Borrower 2016-2 LLC The petitioner is: ☐ taxpayer of record ☑ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	Property address 13196 Delbarton St Spring Hill, FL

Decision Summary ☑ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	425,183.00	425,183.00	425,183.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	359,612.00	359,612.00	359,612.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0.00	0.00	0.00
4. Taxable value,* required	359,612.00	359,612.00	359,612.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact
See attached.

Conclusions of Law
See attached.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Shelley Kennedy Signature, special magistrate	Shelley Kennedy, MNAA Print name	12/16/2025 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

Petition No. 25-202

RECOMMENDATION OF SPECIAL MAGISTRATE
VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
HERNANDO COUNTY, FLORIDA

IN RE: THE PETITION OF: HPA BORROWER 2016-2 LLC
PARCEL KEY NO: 00708853

Petitioner Edwin Rivera of Ownwell, Inc. appeared telephonically at a hearing on behalf of HPA Borrower 2016-2 LLC on December 12, 2025 to provide evidence pertaining to the 2025 property assessment for real property located in Hernando County, Florida. The Hernando County Property Appraiser's Office (PAO) was represented at the hearing by Doug Mack and Brandon Jimenez.

The Special Magistrate confirmed that all parties agree to hold the hearing telephonically. An opening statement regarding the role of the special magistrate was read and the parties were placed under oath. This petition was one of 12 scheduled by the petitioner on this hearing date. Any relevant testimony from these individual hearings will be incorporated by reference to avoid redundancy and expedite the hearing process. Only testimony relevant to this parcel was considered in reaching the findings and conclusions herein.

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

The Property Appraiser confirmed the 2025 Just Value at $425,183. The assessed value is $359,612 and the taxable value is $359,612. There have been no changes to the values since the Notice of Proposed Property Taxes (TRIM Notice) was issued.

The Petitioner estimated Just Value at $273,000.

The subject of this petition is identified on the Hernando County tax rolls as parcel number R32-323-17-5200-1347-0070. The subject property is located at 13196 Delbarton St in Spring Hill, Hernando County, Florida. The subject is described as a single-family residence which was originally constructed in 2003. The evidence indicates that the property consists of 3,302 square feet of adjusted building area on a 14,597 square foot residential lot. This subject has a screen enclosed inground pool. The PAO conducted a field review of the subject parcel on 10/01/2024 to add PV1 #3 and remeasure PV1 #1 and #2.

The packet provided by the Property Appraiser was admitted into evidence as PAO-A and consisted of 17 pages including a cover page, case synopsis, subject property record card, comparable sales tester and analysis, location maps, cost of sale adjustment clarification and computations, property record cards for provided sales and a structure area adjustment factors sheet.

The Petitioner did not provide documentary evidence within the statutory timeframe. The Special Magistrate considered the Petitioner's sworn verbal testimony presented at the hearing.
The petitioner acknowledged that they received the PAO's evidence in compliance with the statutory procedures for evidence exchange. The documentary evidence submitted by the PAO and the sworn testimony presented at the hearing meet the requirements of Florida Administrative Code 12D-9.025(1) and 12D-9.025(2)(b) and are considered sufficient, relevant, and credible, from which a reliable estimate of just, assessed and taxable value can be estimated.

BASIC AND UNDERLYING FINDINGS OF FACT

The Property Appraiser asserts in the Case Synopsis that "The Property Appraiser's Office used the Sales Comparison Approach and has considered all of the Eight Criteria required in Florida Statute 193.011 and we believe we have demonstrated that we have the preponderance of evidence that the subject's value represents just value".

The Florida Legislature has enacted eight criteria that the property appraiser must consider when determining just value. In any administrative or judicial action where a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment, the property appraiser's estimate of just value is presumed correct if it is proven that the assessment was made in compliance with the eight criteria outlined in F.S. Section 193.011 and in accordance with professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The only standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence, meaning the greater weight of the evidence or "more likely true than not" as per F.S 194.301.

Florida Courts have consistently held that the property appraiser is required to consider all eight factors, that each factor does not have be given equal weight but that failure to consider any single factor can invalidate an assessment. The extent to which the property appraiser has considered each of these eight criteria for this property is summarized in the following paragraphs.

1. Present Cash Value of the Property- the amount a willing buyer would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arm's length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through comparable sales analysis similar to that found in fee appraisal. The property appraiser has presented into evidence comparable sales in support of the present cash value. The PAO relied primarily upon the sales comparison approach, considered Computer-Assisted Mass Appraisal (CAMA) analysis and placed no weight on the cost or income approaches to value. This is considered an appropriate methodology by the Special Magistrate.

The PAO supplied 3 improved sales in the subject's market area:
PAO Sale #1 was built in 2006 and has 3,034 adjusted square feet on a 16,505 square foot lot. This property sold in March 2024 for $474,000 and the adjusted sales price for comparison purposes is $450,397. This property has a screen enclosed inground pool.
PAO Sale #2 was built in 2006 and has 3,268 adjusted square feet on a 14,000 square foot lot. This property sold in March 2024 for $485,000 and the adjusted sales price for comparison purposes is $482,088. This property lacks the subject's screen enclosed inground pool.
PAO Sale #3 was built in 2005 and has 2,706 adjusted square feet on a 10,000 square foot lot. This property sold in January 2024 for $409,000 and the adjusted sales price for comparison purposes is $404,052. This property lacks the subject's screen enclosed inground pool.

The PAO performed their analysis utilizing adjusted square foot (SF). While adjusted square footage is generally considered less precise than heated square footage in fee appraisal, it is commonly utilized in mass appraisal. Adjusted sales prices range from $404,052 to $482,088 with a median of $450,397 and a mean of $445,512. After adjusting downward 6% for COS, these 3 sales indicate a mean of $418,782 or approximately $139.52 per square foot.

The PAO sales reflect a value for the subject of $139.52/SF x 3,302 (ASQFT) or $460,695. The subject's Just Value assessment reflects a value of $128.77/SF or $425,183, which is supported after the COS is applied.

The PAO sales were considered credible and relevant.

The Petitioner did not submit documentary evidence within the statutory timeframe and therefore presented only sworn verbal testimony at the hearing. By filing DR-486, Petition to the Value Adjustment Board Request for Hearing, the Petitioner is alleging that the PAO has assessed the property in excess of just value. It is the Petitioner's burden to prove the assessment does not represent just value. Proof should be based on similar criteria to which the Legislature has provided for the PAO to follow. To prevail in an assessment challenge, the taxpayer must prove more than a mere difference of opinion regarding an assessment.

The Petitioner stated that, in determining their estimate of value, they considered the subject's living area of 1,256 SF for comparison purposes. Their analysis included 5 sales ranging in living area from 1,188 to 1,344 SF with sales prices ranging from $250,000 to $352,500. Their adjusted sales prices range from $224,000 to $321,000 with a median of $273,187, which they rounded to $273,000 for their opinion of value.

2. Highest & Best Use- the use that is legally permissible, physically possible, financially feasible, and maximally productive. The highest and best use of the subject is for residential use. The highest and best use was not disputed by the Petitioner.
3. Location of the Property- how the property's surroundings influence its value. Site specific location adjustments can be made to reflect either an enhanced location or an inferior location. All of the comparables presented in support of value are located in the same overall market area as the subject (same subdivision). Each has similar frontage and/or views. The location of this property was not disputed by the Petitioner.
4. Quantity or Size of the Property-square footage, acreage, front footage, unit count. The PAO must consider the quantity or size of the property by determining and recording the correct land size, building size and extra features and quantities. Land size is based on legal description from recorded plats or metes and bounds. Building sizes and extra features are determined by inspection and measured by deputy property appraisers. The size of the property was not disputed by the Petitioner.
5. Cost of the Property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon – An analysis of cost/depreciated cost is made in the CAMA system and found on the property record card. PAO considers replacement costs through the use of Marshall & Swift Valuation Service data and through annual surveys with different contractors to come up with feature rates (these are adjusted manually). Rates are adjusted annually to reflect the costs relevant to January 1 of the given tax year. No separate analysis of cost has been presented during the hearing. It is the opinion of the Special Magistrate that this cost analysis complies with 193.011(5) F.S. and generally accepted appraisal practices.
6. Condition of the Property-physical state and functional adequacy of improvements. The PAO considers the condition of the property through periodic property inspections, no less than once every five years as required by Statute. Other events can trigger more frequent site inspections, including the sale of a property, issuance of a building permit, assessment appeal or at the taxpayer's request. Condition is considered as a factor applied to the CAMA system value calculation for value losses from all sources based upon an age/life depreciation method. It appears that the condition of the property has been considered by the PAO and depreciation was calculated at 18%.
7. Income from the Property- income producing ability of the property. No analysis of income has been presented during the hearing and buyers in this sector of the real estate market typically do not consider income generating ability when valuing this type of property. It is the opinion of the Special Magistrate that this income analysis complies with 193.011(7) F.S. and generally accepted appraisal practices.
8. Net Proceeds of the Sale- the net proceeds of the sale of the property, as received by the seller, after deduction of the usual and reasonable fees and costs of the sale, including the costs and expenses of financing, and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms of financing arrangements. Applicable law provides for uniform cost of sale deductions in just valuations without regard to whether the property was sold, whether mass appraisal or single property appraisal is used, the appraisal approach used to value the property or whether the petitioner is seeking an increase or decrease in just value.

The PAO considered cost of sales in their reconciliation process of 6%. The Petitioner did not specify if their reconciliation process included a COS adjustment.

Ultimate Findings of Fact

Pursuant to Section 194.301 F.S, the Property Appraiser's assessment shall be entitled to a Presumption of Correctness if the Property Appraiser shows, by the preponderance of the evidence, that the Property Appraiser considered each of the eight criteria set forth in Section 193.011 F.S., the Property Appraiser applied the correct appraisal methodology based upon the characteristics of the property, and the Property Appraiser did not use appraisal practices which are different than the appraisal practices generally applied by the Property Appraiser to comparable properties in the same county.

1. In accordance with Section 194.301 F.S., it is concluded that the PAO DID establish a presumption of correctness by properly considering the eight criteria and further, it is concluded that the methodology used by PAO IS appropriate and DOES comply with professionally accepted practices for the subject property type. The Petitioner DID NOT overcome the presumption of correctness.
2. The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment was based on arbitrary appraisal practice different from like properties in the same county.
3. The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment is excessive. Thus, the assessed value DOES NOT exceed 100% of the fair market value of the property.

Property Appraiser	(Mean Adjusted Price Per SF x Subject ASQFT)	$460,695
Petitioner	(Stated Estimate of Value)	$273,000
Assessment	(Just Value)	$425,183

The Just Value is supported by the PAO sales therefore the petition is denied.

Conclusions of Law

Florida Administrative Code section 12D-9.027 lays out a sequence of general procedural steps that the Special Magistrate has followed in preparation of this recommendation to the Value Adjustment Board:

Determine whether the Property Appraiser has established a presumption of correctness for the assessment and determine whether the Property Appraiser's just valuation methodology is appropriate. The presumption of correctness is not established unless the Property Appraiser proves by a preponderance of the evidence that the methodology used to support the just value for the subject property complies with 193.011 F.S. and professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate.

The Special Magistrate reviewed all evidence presented by all parties and determined that the evidence and testimony was relevant and credible to the valuation at hand. Thus, the evidence as presented was admitted for consideration in relation to the appropriateness of the subject assessment.

The Special Magistrate determined that the testimonial and documentary evidence meet the test of relevancy and credibility and WAS sufficient to reach the preponderance of evidence standard of proof required by Rule 12D-9.027(5)(6). The Special Magistrate also determined that there IS competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with 193.011 F.S. and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish the assessment.

The Special Magistrate determined that the hearing record contains competent, substantial evidence supporting the just value assessment. After weighing all of the documentary and testimonial evidence it is concluded that the assessment IS reasonable and within market parameters.

Recommendation

In view of the findings of fact and conclusions of law as they relate to this petition before the Value Adjustment Board, the Special Magistrate recommends that the petition be Denied.

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

HERNANDO ☑ County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-203	Parcel ID R32 223 18 3743 0000 0250
Petitioner name EdwinRivera c/o Invitation Homes 7 Florida The petitioner is: ☐ taxpayer of record ☑ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	Property address 11923 Lavender Loop Spring Hill, FL 34609

Decision Summary ☑ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	308,611.00	308,611.00	308,611.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	308,611.00	308,611.00	308,611.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0.00	0.00	0.00
4. Taxable value,* required	308,611.00	308,611.00	308,611.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact
See attached.

Conclusions of Law
See attached.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Shelley Kennedy Signature, special magistrate	Shelley Kennedy, MNAA Print name	12/17/2025 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

Petition No. 25-203

RECOMMENDATION OF SPECIAL MAGISTRATE
VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
HERNANDO COUNTY, FLORIDA

IN RE: THE PETITION OF: INVITATION HOMES 7 FLORIDA LP
PARCEL KEY NO: 01818411

Petitioner Edwin Rivera of Ownwell, Inc. appeared telephonically at a hearing on behalf of Invitation Homes 7 Florida LP on December 12, 2025 to provide evidence pertaining to the 2025 property assessment for real property located in Hernando County, Florida. The Hernando County Property Appraiser's Office (PAO) was represented at the hearing by Doug Mack and Brandon Jimenez.

The Special Magistrate confirmed that all parties agree to hold the hearing telephonically. An opening statement regarding the role of the special magistrate was read and the parties were placed under oath. This petition was one of 12 scheduled by the petitioner on this hearing date. Any relevant testimony from these individual hearings will be incorporated by reference to avoid redundancy and expedite the hearing process.

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

The Property Appraiser confirmed the 2025 just value at $308,611. The assessed value is $308,611 and the taxable value is $308,611. No change in values after the TRIM process was noted.

The Petitioner estimated just value at $298,000.

The subject of this petition is identified on the Hernando County tax rolls as parcel number R32-223-18-3743-0000-0250. The subject property is located at 11923 Lavender Loop in Spring Hill, Hernando County, Florida. The subject is described as a single-family residence which was originally constructed in 2024. The evidence indicates that the property consists of 2,486 square feet of adjusted building area on a 4,600 square foot residential lot. The PAO conducted a field review of the subject parcel on 04/24/25 to record the improvements as Structure #1.

The packet provided by the Property Appraiser was admitted into evidence as PAO-A and consisted of 15 pages including a cover page, case synopsis, subject property record card, comparable sales tester and analysis, location maps, cost of sale adjustment clarification and computations, property record cards for provided sales and a structure area adjustment factors sheet.

The Petitioner did not provide documentary evidence within the statutory timeframe. The Special Magistrate considered the Petitioner's sworn verbal testimony presented at the hearing.

The petitioner acknowledged that they received the PAO's evidence in compliance with the statutory procedures for evidence exchange. The documentary evidence submitted by the PAO and the sworn testimony presented at the hearing meet the requirements of Florida Administrative Code 12D-9.025(1) and 12D-9.025(2)(b) and are considered sufficient, relevant, and credible, from which a reliable estimate of just, assessed and taxable value can be estimated.

BASIC AND UNDERLYING FINDINGS OF FACT

The Property Appraiser asserts in the Case Synopsis that "The Property Appraiser's Office used the Sales Comparison Approach and has considered all of the Eight Criteria required in Florida Statute 193.011 and we believe we have demonstrated that we have the preponderance of evidence that the subject's value represents Just Value".

The Florida Legislature has enacted eight criteria that the property appraiser must consider when determining just value. In any administrative or judicial action where a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment, the property appraiser's estimate of just value is presumed correct if it is proven that the assessment was made in compliance with the eight criteria outlined in F.S. Section 193.011 and in accordance with professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The only standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence, meaning the greater weight of the evidence or "more likely true than not" as per F.S 194.301.

Florida Courts have consistently held that the property appraiser is required to consider all eight factors, that each factor does not have be given equal weight but that failure to consider any single factor can invalidate an assessment. The extent to which the property appraiser has considered each of these eight criteria for this property is summarized in the following paragraphs.

1. Present Cash Value of the Property- the amount a willing buyer would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arm's length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through comparable sales analysis similar to that found in fee appraisal. The property appraiser has presented into evidence comparable sales in support of the present cash value. The PAO relied primarily upon the sales comparison approach, considered Computer-Assisted Mass Appraisal (CAMA) analysis and placed no weight on the cost or income approaches to value. This is considered an appropriate methodology by the Special Magistrate.

The PAO supplied 3 improved sales in the subject's market area:
PAO Sale #1 was built in 2024 and has 2,453 adjusted square feet on a 4,600 square foot lot. This property sold in June 2024 for $339,900 and the adjusted sales price for comparison purposes is $338,356.
PAO Sale #2 was built in 2024 and has 2,453 adjusted square feet on a 4,600 square foot lot. This property sold in August 2024 for $346,400 and the adjusted sales price for comparison purposes is $344,913.
PAO Sale #3 was built in 2024 and has 2,453 adjusted square feet on a 4,600 square foot lot. This property sold in July 2024 for $353,500 and the adjusted sales price for comparison purposes is $352,013.

The PAO performed their analysis utilizing adjusted square foot (SF). While adjusted square footage is generally considered less precise than heated square footage in fee appraisal, it is commonly utilized in mass appraisal. Adjusted sales prices range from $338,356 to $352,013 with a median of $344,913 and a mean of $345,094. After adjusting downward 12% for COS, these 3 sales indicate a mean of $303,683 or approximately $123.80 per square foot.

The PAO sales reflect a value for the subject of $123.80/SF x 2,486 (ASQFT) or $307,767. The subject's Just Value assessment reflects a value of $124.14/SF or $308,611, which is marginally supported (a difference of less than 1%).

The PAO sales were considered credible and relevant.

The Petitioner did not submit documentary evidence within the statutory timeframe and therefore presented only sworn verbal testimony at the hearing. By filing DR-486, Petition to the Value Adjustment Board Request for Hearing, the Petitioner is alleging that the PAO has assessed the property in excess of just value. It is the Petitioner's burden to prove the assessment does not represent just value. Proof should be based on similar criteria to which the Legislature has provided for the PAO to follow. To prevail in an assessment challenge, the taxpayer must prove more than a mere difference of opinion regarding an assessment.

The Petitioner reported the subject's living area as 960 square feet, reflecting only the ground level of a two-story improvement. The comparable sales relied upon by the Petitioner are model-match properties with the same two-story design; however, the same reduced square footage was applied to both the subject and the comparables. While this results in internal consistency within the Petitioner's analysis, it does not reflect the full living area of the subject as recorded by the Property Appraiser.

Their sales prices ranged from $339,900 to $353,500. Their adjusted sales prices ranged from $293,000 to $304,580 with a mean of $298,000 and a median of $298,068, which they rounded to $298,000 for their opinion of value.

2. Highest & Best Use- the use that is legally permissible, physically possible, financially feasible, and maximally productive. The highest and best use of the subject is for residential use. The highest and best use was not disputed by the Petitioner.
3. Location of the Property- how the property's surroundings influence its value. Site specific location adjustments can be made to reflect either an enhanced location or an inferior location. All of the comparables presented in support of value are located in the same overall market area as the subject (same subdivision). Each has similar frontage and/or views. The location of this property was not disputed by the Petitioner.
4. Quantity or Size of the Property-square footage, acreage, front footage, unit count. The PAO must consider the quantity or size of the property by determining and recording the correct land size, building size and extras features and quantities. Land size is based on legal description from recorded plats or metes and bounds. Building sizes and extra features are determined by inspection and measured by deputy property appraisers. The size of the property was not disputed by the Petitioner.
5. Cost of the Property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon – An analysis of cost/depreciated cost is made in the CAMA system and found on the property record card. PAO considers replacement costs through the use of Marshall & Swift Valuation Service data and through annual surveys with different contractors to come up with feature rates (these are adjusted manually). Rates are adjusted annually to reflect the costs relevant to January 1 of the given tax year. No separate analysis of cost has been presented during the hearing. It is the opinion of the Special Magistrate that this cost analysis complies with 193.011(5) F.S. and generally accepted appraisal practices.
6. Condition of the Property-physical state and functional adequacy of improvements. The PAO considers the condition of the property through periodic property inspections, no less than once every five years as required by Statute. Other events can trigger more frequent site inspections, including the sale of a property, issuance of a building permit, assessment appeal or at the taxpayer's request. Condition is considered as a factor applied to the CAMA system value calculation for value losses from all sources based upon an age/life depreciation method. It appears that the condition of the property has been considered by the PAO and as the subject was new construction, no depreciation was calculated for the subject.
7. Income from the Property- income producing ability of the property. No analysis of income has been presented during the hearing and buyers in this sector of the real estate market typically do not consider income generating ability when valuing this type of property. It is the opinion of the Special Magistrate that this income analysis complies with 193.011(7) F.S. and generally accepted appraisal practices.

8. Net Proceeds of the Sale- the net proceeds of the sale of the property, as received by the seller, after deduction of the usual and reasonable fees and costs of the sale, including the costs and expenses of financing, and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms of financing arrangements. Applicable law provides for uniform cost of sale deductions in just valuations without regard to whether the property was sold, whether mass appraisal or single property appraisal is used, the appraisal approach used to value the property or whether the petitioner is seeking an increase or decrease in just value.

   The PAO considered cost of sales in their reconciliation process of 12%. The Petitioner did not specify if their reconciliation process included a COS adjustment.

Ultimate Findings of Fact

Pursuant to Section 194.301 F.S, the Property Appraiser's assessment shall be entitled to a Presumption of Correctness if the Property Appraiser shows, by the preponderance of the evidence, that the Property Appraiser considered each of the eight criteria set forth in Section 193.011 F.S., the Property Appraiser applied the correct appraisal methodology based upon the characteristics of the property, and the Property Appraiser did not use appraisal practices which are different than the appraisal practices generally applied by the Property Appraiser to comparable properties in the same county.

1. In accordance with Section 194.301 F.S., it is concluded that the PAO DID establish a presumption of correctness by properly considering the eight criteria and further, it is concluded that the methodology used by PAO IS appropriate and DOES comply with professionally accepted practices for the subject property type. The Petitioner DID NOT overcome the presumption of correctness.
2. The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment was based on arbitrary appraisal practice different from like properties in the same county.
3. The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment is excessive. Thus the assessed value DOES NOT exceed 100% of the fair market value of the property.

Property Appraiser	(Indicated Value from Sales Analysis)	$307,767
Petitioner	(Stated Estimate of Value)	$298,000
Assessment (Just Value)		$308,611

Conclusions of Law

Florida Administrative Code section 12D-9.027 lays out a sequence of general procedural steps that the Special Magistrate has followed in preparation of this recommendation to the Value Adjustment Board:

Determine whether the Property Appraiser has established a presumption of correctness for the assessment and determine whether the Property Appraiser's just valuation methodology is appropriate. The presumption of correctness is not established unless the Property Appraiser proves by a preponderance of the evidence that the methodology used to support the just value for the subject property complies with 193.011 F.S. and professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate.

The Special Magistrate reviewed all evidence presented by all parties and determined that the evidence and testimony was relevant and credible to the valuation at hand. Thus, the evidence as presented was admitted for consideration in relation to the appropriateness of the subject assessment.

The Special Magistrate determined that the testimonial and documentary evidence meet the test of relevancy and credibility and WAS sufficient to reach the preponderance of evidence standard of proof required by Rule 12D-9.027(5)(6). The Special Magistrate also determined that there IS competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with 193.011 F.S. and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish the assessment.

The Special Magistrate determined that the hearing record contains competent, substantial evidence supporting the just value assessment. After weighing all of the documentary and testimonial evidence it is concluded that the assessment IS reasonable and within market parameters.

Recommendation

In view of the findings of fact and conclusions of law as they relate to this petition before the Value Adjustment Board, the Special Magistrate recommends that the petition be Denied.

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

HERNANDO County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-204	Parcel ID R32 223 18 3743 0000 0080
Petitioner name EdwinRivera c/o Invitation Homes 7 Florida I The petitioner is: ☐ taxpayer of record ☑ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain: _____	Property address 11966 Lavender Loop Spring Hill, FL 34609

Decision Summary ☑ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	322,461.00	322,461.00	322,461.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	322,461.00	322,461.00	322,461.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0.00	0.00	0.00
4. Taxable value,* required	322,461.00	322,461.00	322,461.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact
See attached.

Conclusions of Law
See attached.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	Print name	Date
Shelley Kennedy	Shelley Kennedy, MNAA	12/17/2025
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

Petition No. 25-204

RECOMMENDATION OF SPECIAL MAGISTRATE
VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
HERNANDO COUNTY, FLORIDA

IN RE: THE PETITION OF: INVITATION HOMES 7 FLORIDA LP
PARCEL KEY NO: 01818242

Petitioner Edwin Rivera of Ownwell, Inc. appeared telephonically at a hearing on behalf of Invitation Homes 7 Florida LP on December 12, 2025 to provide evidence pertaining to the 2025 property assessment for real property located in Hernando County, Florida. The Hernando County Property Appraiser's Office (PAO) was represented at the hearing by Doug Mack and Brandon Jimenez.

The Special Magistrate confirmed that all parties agree to hold the hearing telephonically. An opening statement regarding the role of the special magistrate was read and the parties were placed under oath. This petition was one of 12 scheduled by the petitioner on this hearing date. Any relevant testimony from these individual hearings will be incorporated by reference to avoid redundancy and expedite the hearing process.

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

The Property Appraiser confirmed the 2025 just value at $322,461. The assessed value is $322,461 and the taxable value is $322,461. No change in values after the TRIM process was noted.

The Petitioner estimated just value at $302,000.

The subject of this petition is identified on the Hernando County tax rolls as parcel number R32-223-18-3743-0000-0080. The subject property is located at 11966 Lavender Loop in Spring Hill, Hernando County, Florida. The subject is described as a single-family residence which was originally constructed in 2024. The evidence indicates that the property consists of 2,625 square feet of adjusted building area on a 4,600 square foot residential lot. The PAO conducted a field review of the subject parcel on 04/24/25 to record the improvements as Structure #1.

The packet provided by the Property Appraiser was admitted into evidence as PAO-A and consisted of 15 pages including a cover page, case synopsis, subject property record card, comparable sales tester and analysis, location maps, cost of sale adjustment clarification and computations, property record cards for provided sales and a structure area adjustment factors sheet.

The Petitioner did not provide documentary evidence within the statutory timeframe. The Special Magistrate considered the Petitioner's sworn verbal testimony presented at the hearing.

The petitioner acknowledged that they received the PAO's evidence in compliance with the statutory procedures for evidence exchange. The documentary evidence submitted by the PAO and the sworn testimony presented at the hearing meet the requirements of Florida Administrative Code 12D-9.025(1) and 12D-9.025(2)(b) and are considered sufficient, relevant, and credible, from which a reliable estimate of just, assessed and taxable value can be estimated.

BASIC AND UNDERLYING FINDINGS OF FACT

The Property Appraiser asserts in the Case Synopsis that "The Property Appraiser's Office used the Sales Comparison Approach and has considered all of the Eight Criteria required in Florida Statute 193.011 and we believe we have demonstrated that we have the preponderance of evidence that the subject's value represents Just Value".

The Florida Legislature has enacted eight criteria that the property appraiser must consider when determining just value. In any administrative or judicial action where a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment, the property appraiser's estimate of just value is presumed correct if it is proven that the assessment was made in compliance with the eight criteria outlined in F.S. Section 193.011 and in accordance with professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The only standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence, meaning the greater weight of the evidence or "more likely true than not" as per F.S 194.301.

Florida Courts have consistently held that the property appraiser is required to consider all eight factors, that each factor does not have be given equal weight but that failure to consider any single factor can invalidate an assessment. The extent to which the property appraiser has considered each of these eight criteria for this property is summarized in the following paragraphs.

1. Present Cash Value of the Property- the amount a willing buyer would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arm's length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through comparable sales analysis similar to that found in fee appraisal. The property appraiser has presented into evidence comparable sales in support of the present cash value. The PAO relied primarily upon the sales comparison approach, considered Computer-Assisted Mass Appraisal (CAMA) analysis and placed no weight on the cost or income approaches to value. This is considered an appropriate methodology by the Special Magistrate.

The PAO supplied 3 improved sales in the subject's market area:
PAO Sale #1 was built in 2024 and has 2,625 adjusted square feet on a 5,980 square foot lot. This property sold in August 2024 for $372,600 and the adjusted sales price for comparison purposes is $371,171.
PAO Sale #2 was built in 2024 and has 2,625 adjusted square feet on a 4,600 square foot lot. This property sold in September 2024 for $376,800 and the adjusted sales price for comparison purposes is $375,310.
PAO Sale #3 was built in 2024 and has 2,625 adjusted square feet on a 4,600 square foot lot. This property sold in August 2024 for $373,100 and the adjusted sales price for comparison purposes is $371,610.

The PAO performed their analysis utilizing adjusted square foot (SF). While adjusted square footage is generally considered less precise than heated square footage in fee appraisal, it is commonly utilized in mass appraisal. Adjusted sales prices range from $371,171 to $375,310 with a median of $371,610 and a mean of $372,697. After adjusting downward 14% for COS, these 3 sales indicate a mean of $320,519 or approximately $122.10 per square foot.

The PAO sales reflect a value for the subject of $122.10/SF x 2,625 (ASQFT) or $320,513. The subject's Just Value assessment reflects a value of $122.84/SF or $322,461, which is marginally supported (a difference of less than 1%).

The PAO sales were considered credible and relevant.

The Petitioner did not submit documentary evidence within the statutory timeframe and therefore presented only sworn verbal testimony at the hearing. By filing DR-486, Petition to the Value Adjustment Board Request for Hearing, the Petitioner is alleging that the PAO has assessed the property in excess of just value. It is the Petitioner's burden to prove the assessment does not represent just value. Proof should be based on similar criteria to which the Legislature has provided for the PAO to follow. To prevail in an assessment challenge, the taxpayer must prove more than a mere difference of opinion regarding an assessment.

The Petitioner reported the subject's living area as 1,280 square feet, reflecting only the ground level of a two-story improvement. The comparable sales relied upon by the Petitioner are model-match properties with the same two-story design; however, the same reduced square footage was applied to both the subject and the comparables. While this results in internal consistency within the Petitioner's analysis, it does not reflect the full living area of the subject as recorded by the Property Appraiser.

Their sales prices ranged from $354,900 to $360,300. Their adjusted sales prices ranged from $302,950 to $302,980 with a median of $302,958, which they rounded to $302,000 for their opinion of value.

2. Highest & Best Use- the use that is legally permissible, physically possible, financially feasible, and maximally productive. The highest and best use of the subject is for residential use. The highest and best use was not disputed by the Petitioner.
3. Location of the Property- how the property's surroundings influence its value. Site specific location adjustments can be made to reflect either an enhanced location or an inferior location. All of the comparables presented in support of value are located in the same overall market area as the subject (same subdivision). Each has similar frontage and/or views. The location of this property was not disputed by the Petitioner.
4. Quantity or Size of the Property-square footage, acreage, front footage, unit count. The PAO must consider the quantity or size of the property by determining and recording the correct land size, building size and extras features and quantities. Land size is based on legal description from recorded plats or metes and bounds. Building sizes and extra features are determined by inspection and measured by deputy property appraisers. The size of the property was not disputed by the Petitioner.
5. Cost of the Property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon – An analysis of cost/depreciated cost is made in the CAMA system and found on the property record card. PAO considers replacement costs through the use of Marshall & Swift Valuation Service data and through annual surveys with different contractors to come up with feature rates (these are adjusted manually). Rates are adjusted annually to reflect the costs relevant to January 1 of the given tax year. No separate analysis of cost has been presented during the hearing. It is the opinion of the Special Magistrate that this cost analysis complies with 193.011(5) F.S. and generally accepted appraisal practices.
6. Condition of the Property-physical state and functional adequacy of improvements. The PAO considers the condition of the property through periodic property inspections, no less than once every five years as required by Statute. Other events can trigger more frequent site inspections, including the sale of a property, issuance of a building permit, assessment appeal or at the taxpayer's request. Condition is considered as a factor applied to the CAMA system value calculation for value losses from all sources based upon an age/life depreciation method. It appears that the condition of the property has been considered by the PAO and as the subject was new construction, no depreciation was calculated for the subject.
7. Income from the Property- income producing ability of the property. No analysis of income has been presented during the hearing and buyers in this sector of the real estate market

typically do not consider income generating ability when valuing this type of property. It is the opinion of the Special Magistrate that this income analysis complies with 193.011(7) F.S. and generally accepted appraisal practices.

8. Net Proceeds of the Sale- the net proceeds of the sale of the property, as received by the seller, after deduction of the usual and reasonable fees and costs of the sale, including the costs and expenses of financing, and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms of financing arrangements. Applicable law provides for uniform cost of sale deductions in just valuations without regard to whether the property was sold, whether mass appraisal or single property appraisal is used, the appraisal approach used to value the property or whether the petitioner is seeking an increase or decrease in just value.

   The PAO considered cost of sales in their reconciliation process of 14%. The Petitioner did not specify if their reconciliation process included a COS adjustment.

Ultimate Findings of Fact

Pursuant to Section 194.301 F.S, the Property Appraiser's assessment shall be entitled to a Presumption of Correctness if the Property Appraiser shows, by the preponderance of the evidence, that the Property Appraiser considered each of the eight criteria set forth in Section 193.011 F.S., the Property Appraiser applied the correct appraisal methodology based upon the characteristics of the property, and the Property Appraiser did not use appraisal practices which are different than the appraisal practices generally applied by the Property Appraiser to comparable properties in the same county.

1. In accordance with Section 194.301 F.S., it is concluded that the PAO DID establish a presumption of correctness by properly considering the eight criteria and further, it is concluded that the methodology used by PAO IS appropriate and DOES comply with professionally accepted practices for the subject property type. The Petitioner DID NOT overcome the presumption of correctness.
2. The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment was based on arbitrary appraisal practice different from like properties in the same county.
3. The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment is excessive. Thus the assessed value DOES NOT exceed 100% of the fair market value of the property.

Property Appraiser	(Indicated Value from Sales Analysis)	$320,513
Petitioner	(Stated Estimate of Value)	$302,000
Assessment (Just Value)		$322,461

Conclusions of Law

Florida Administrative Code section 12D-9.027 lays out a sequence of general procedural steps that the Special Magistrate has followed in preparation of this recommendation to the Value Adjustment Board:

Determine whether the Property Appraiser has established a presumption of correctness for the assessment and determine whether the Property Appraiser's just valuation methodology is appropriate. The presumption of correctness is not established unless the Property Appraiser proves by a preponderance of the evidence that the methodology used to support the just value for the subject property complies with 193.011 F.S. and professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate.

The Special Magistrate reviewed all evidence presented by all parties and determined that the evidence and testimony was relevant and credible to the valuation at hand. Thus, the evidence as presented was admitted for consideration in relation to the appropriateness of the subject assessment.

The Special Magistrate determined that the testimonial and documentary evidence meet the test of relevancy and credibility and WAS sufficient to reach the preponderance of evidence standard of proof required by Rule 12D-9.027(5)(6). The Special Magistrate also determined that there IS competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with 193.011 F.S. and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish the assessment.

The Special Magistrate determined that the hearing record contains competent, substantial evidence supporting the just value assessment. After weighing all of the documentary and testimonial evidence it is concluded that the assessment IS reasonable and within market parameters.

Recommendation

In view of the findings of fact and conclusions of law as they relate to this petition before the Value Adjustment Board, the Special Magistrate recommends that the petition be Denied.

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

HERNANDO ☑ County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-205	Parcel ID R32 223 18 3743 0000 0200
Petitioner name EdwinRivera c/o Invitation Homes 7 Florida I The petitioner is: ☐ taxpayer of record ☑ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain: ____	Property address 11963 Lavender Loop Spring Hill, FL 34609

Decision Summary ☑ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	321,748.00	321,748.00	321,748.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	321,748.00	321,748.00	321,748.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0.00	0.00	0.00
4. Taxable value,* required	321,748.00	321,748.00	321,748.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact
See attached.

Conclusions of Law
See attached.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	Print name	Date
Shelley Kennedy	Shelley Kennedy, MNAA	12/17/2025
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

Petition No. 25-205

RECOMMENDATION OF SPECIAL MAGISTRATE
VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
HERNANDO COUNTY, FLORIDA

IN RE: THE PETITION OF: INVITATION HOMES 7 FLORIDA LP
PARCEL KEY NO: 01818368

Petitioner Edwin Rivera of Ownwell, Inc. appeared telephonically at a hearing on behalf of Invitation Homes 7 Florida LP on December 12, 2025 to provide evidence pertaining to the 2025 property assessment for real property located in Hernando County, Florida. The Hernando County Property Appraiser's Office (PAO) was represented at the hearing by Doug Mack and Brandon Jimenez.

The Special Magistrate confirmed that all parties agree to hold the hearing telephonically. An opening statement regarding the role of the special magistrate was read and the parties were placed under oath. This petition was one of 12 scheduled by the petitioner on this hearing date. Any relevant testimony from these individual hearings will be incorporated by reference to avoid redundancy and expedite the hearing process.

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

The Property Appraiser confirmed the 2025 just value at $321,748. The assessed value is $321,748 and the taxable value is $321,748. No change in values after the TRIM process was noted.

The Petitioner estimated just value at $302,000.

The subject of this petition is identified on the Hernando County tax rolls as parcel number R32-223-18-3743-0000-0200. The subject property is located at 11963 Lavender Loop in Spring Hill, Hernando County, Florida. The subject is described as a single-family residence which was originally constructed in 2024. The evidence indicates that the property consists of 2,619 square feet of adjusted building area on a 4,600 square foot residential lot. The PAO conducted a field review of the subject parcel on 04/24/25 to record the improvements as Structure #1.

The packet provided by the Property Appraiser was admitted into evidence as PAO-A and consisted of 15 pages including a cover page, case synopsis, subject property record card, comparable sales tester and analysis, location maps, cost of sale adjustment clarification and computations, property record cards for provided sales and a structure area adjustment factors sheet.

The Petitioner did not provide documentary evidence within the statutory timeframe. The Special Magistrate considered the Petitioner's sworn verbal testimony presented at the hearing.

The petitioner acknowledged that they received the PAO's evidence in compliance with the statutory procedures for evidence exchange. The documentary evidence submitted by the PAO and the sworn testimony presented at the hearing meet the requirements of Florida Administrative Code 12D-9.025(1) and 12D-9.025(2)(b) and are considered sufficient, relevant, and credible, from which a reliable estimate of just, assessed and taxable value can be estimated.

BASIC AND UNDERLYING FINDINGS OF FACT

The Property Appraiser asserts in the Case Synopsis that "The Property Appraiser's Office used the Sales Comparison Approach and has considered all of the Eight Criteria required in Florida Statute 193.011 and we believe we have demonstrated that we have the preponderance of evidence that the subject's value represents Just Value".

The Florida Legislature has enacted eight criteria that the property appraiser must consider when determining just value. In any administrative or judicial action where a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment, the property appraiser's estimate of just value is presumed correct if it is proven that the assessment was made in compliance with the eight criteria outlined in F.S. Section 193.011 and in accordance with professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The only standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence, meaning the greater weight of the evidence or "more likely true than not" as per F.S 194.301.

Florida Courts have consistently held that the property appraiser is required to consider all eight factors, that each factor does not have be given equal weight but that failure to consider any single factor can invalidate an assessment. The extent to which the property appraiser has considered each of these eight criteria for this property is summarized in the following paragraphs.

1. Present Cash Value of the Property- the amount a willing buyer would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arm's length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through comparable sales analysis similar to that found in fee appraisal. The property appraiser has presented into evidence comparable sales in support of the present cash value. The PAO relied primarily upon the sales comparison approach, considered Computer-Assisted Mass Appraisal (CAMA) analysis and placed no weight on the cost or income approaches to value. This is considered an appropriate methodology by the Special Magistrate.

The PAO supplied 3 improved sales in the subject's market area:
PAO Sale #1 was built in 2024 and has 2,625 adjusted square feet on a 5,980 square foot lot. This property sold in August 2024 for $372,600 and the adjusted sales price for comparison purposes is $371,171.
PAO Sale #2 was built in 2024 and has 2,625 adjusted square feet on a 4,600 square foot lot. This property sold in September 2024 for $376,800 and the adjusted sales price for comparison purposes is $375,310.
PAO Sale #3 was built in 2024 and has 2,625 adjusted square feet on a 4,600 square foot lot. This property sold in August 2024 for $373,100 and the adjusted sales price for comparison purposes is $371,610.

The PAO performed their analysis utilizing adjusted square foot (SF). While adjusted square footage is generally considered less precise than heated square footage in fee appraisal, it is commonly utilized in mass appraisal. Adjusted sales prices range from $371,171 to $375,310 with a median of $371,610 and a mean of $372,697. After adjusting downward 14% for COS, these 3 sales indicate a mean of $320,519 or approximately $122.10 per square foot.

The PAO sales reflect a value for the subject of $122.10/SF x 2,619 (ASQFT) or $319,780. The subject's Just Value assessment reflects a value of $122.85/SF or $321,748, which is marginally supported (a difference of less than 1%).

The PAO sales were considered credible and relevant.

The Petitioner did not submit documentary evidence within the statutory timeframe and therefore presented only sworn verbal testimony at the hearing. By filing DR-486, Petition to the Value Adjustment Board Request for Hearing, the Petitioner is alleging that the PAO has assessed the property in excess of just value. It is the Petitioner's burden to prove the assessment does not represent just value. Proof should be based on similar criteria to which the Legislature has provided for the PAO to follow. To prevail in an assessment challenge, the taxpayer must prove more than a mere difference of opinion regarding an assessment.

The Petitioner reported the subject's living area as 1,280 square feet, reflecting only the ground level of a two-story improvement. The comparable sales relied upon by the Petitioner are model-match properties with the same two-story design; however, the same reduced square footage was applied to both the subject and the comparables. While this results in internal consistency within the Petitioner's analysis, it does not reflect the full living area of the subject as recorded by the Property Appraiser.

Their sales prices ranged from $354,900 to $360,300. Their adjusted sales prices ranged from $302,958 to $308,390 with a median of $302,958, which they rounded to $302,000 for their opinion of value.

2. Highest & Best Use- the use that is legally permissible, physically possible, financially feasible, and maximally productive. The highest and best use of the subject is for residential use. The highest and best use was not disputed by the Petitioner.
3. Location of the Property- how the property's surroundings influence its value. Site specific location adjustments can be made to reflect either an enhanced location or an inferior location. All of the comparables presented in support of value are located in the same overall market area as the subject (same subdivision). Each has similar frontage and/or views. The location of this property was not disputed by the Petitioner.
4. Quantity or Size of the Property-square footage, acreage, front footage, unit count. The PAO must consider the quantity or size of the property by determining and recording the correct land size, building size and extras features and quantities. Land size is based on legal description from recorded plats or metes and bounds. Building sizes and extra features are determined by inspection and measured by deputy property appraisers. The size of the property was not disputed by the Petitioner.
5. Cost of the Property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon – An analysis of cost/depreciated cost is made in the CAMA system and found on the property record card. PAO considers replacement costs through the use of Marshall & Swift Valuation Service data and through annual surveys with different contractors to come up with feature rates (these are adjusted manually). Rates are adjusted annually to reflect the costs relevant to January 1 of the given tax year. No separate analysis of cost has been presented during the hearing. It is the opinion of the Special Magistrate that this cost analysis complies with 193.011(5) F.S. and generally accepted appraisal practices.
6. Condition of the Property-physical state and functional adequacy of improvements. The PAO considers the condition of the property through periodic property inspections, no less than once every five years as required by Statute. Other events can trigger more frequent site inspections, including the sale of a property, issuance of a building permit, assessment appeal or at the taxpayer's request. Condition is considered as a factor applied to the CAMA system value calculation for value losses from all sources based upon an age/life depreciation method. It appears that the condition of the property has been considered by the PAO and as the subject was new construction, no depreciation was calculated for the subject.
7. Income from the Property- income producing ability of the property. No analysis of income has been presented during the hearing and buyers in this sector of the real estate market

typically do not consider income generating ability when valuing this type of property. It is the opinion of the Special Magistrate that this income analysis complies with 193.011(7) F.S. and generally accepted appraisal practices.

8. Net Proceeds of the Sale- the net proceeds of the sale of the property, as received by the seller, after deduction of the usual and reasonable fees and costs of the sale, including the costs and expenses of financing, and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms of financing arrangements. Applicable law provides for uniform cost of sale deductions in just valuations without regard to whether the property was sold, whether mass appraisal or single property appraisal is used, the appraisal approach used to value the property or whether the petitioner is seeking an increase or decrease in just value.

   The PAO considered cost of sales in their reconciliation process of 14%. The Petitioner did not specify if their reconciliation process included a COS adjustment.

Ultimate Findings of Fact

Pursuant to Section 194.301 F.S, the Property Appraiser's assessment shall be entitled to a Presumption of Correctness if the Property Appraiser shows, by the preponderance of the evidence, that the Property Appraiser considered each of the eight criteria set forth in Section 193.011 F.S., the Property Appraiser applied the correct appraisal methodology based upon the characteristics of the property, and the Property Appraiser did not use appraisal practices which are different than the appraisal practices generally applied by the Property Appraiser to comparable properties in the same county.

1. In accordance with Section 194.301 F.S., it is concluded that the PAO DID establish a presumption of correctness by properly considering the eight criteria and further, it is concluded that the methodology used by PAO IS appropriate and DOES comply with professionally accepted practices for the subject property type. The Petitioner DID NOT overcome the presumption of correctness.
2. The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment was based on arbitrary appraisal practice different from like properties in the same county.
3. The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment is excessive. Thus the assessed value DOES NOT exceed 100% of the fair market value of the property.

Property Appraiser	(Indicated Value from Sales Analysis)	$319,780
Petitioner	(Stated Estimate of Value)	$302,000
Assessment (Just Value)		$321,748

Conclusions of Law

Florida Administrative Code section 12D-9.027 lays out a sequence of general procedural steps that the Special Magistrate has followed in preparation of this recommendation to the Value Adjustment Board:

Determine whether the Property Appraiser has established a presumption of correctness for the assessment and determine whether the Property Appraiser's just valuation methodology is appropriate. The presumption of correctness is not established unless the Property Appraiser proves by a preponderance of the evidence that the methodology used to support the just value for the subject property complies with 193.011 F.S. and professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate.

The Special Magistrate reviewed all evidence presented by all parties and determined that the evidence and testimony was relevant and credible to the valuation at hand. Thus, the evidence as presented was admitted for consideration in relation to the appropriateness of the subject assessment.

The Special Magistrate determined that the testimonial and documentary evidence meet the test of relevancy and credibility and WAS sufficient to reach the preponderance of evidence standard of proof required by Rule 12D-9.027(5)(6). The Special Magistrate also determined that there IS competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with 193.011 F.S. and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish the assessment.

The Special Magistrate determined that the hearing record contains competent, substantial evidence supporting the just value assessment. After weighing all of the documentary and testimonial evidence it is concluded that the assessment IS reasonable and within market parameters.

Recommendation

In view of the findings of fact and conclusions of law as they relate to this petition before the Value Adjustment Board, the Special Magistrate recommends that the petition be Denied.

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

HERNANDO ☑ County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-206	Parcel ID R32 223 18 3743 0000 0530
Petitioner name EdwinRivera c/o Invitation Homes 7 Florida I The petitioner is: ☐ taxpayer of record ☑ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	Property address 357 Rain Lily Ave Spring Hill, FL 34609

Decision Summary ☑ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	337,309.00	337,309.00	337,309.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	337,309.00	337,309.00	337,309.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0.00	0.00	0.00
4. Taxable value,* required	337,309.00	337,309.00	337,309.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact
See attached.

Conclusions of Law
See attached.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Shelley Kennedy Signature, special magistrate	Shelley Kennedy, MNAA Print name	12/17/2025 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

Petition No. 25-206

RECOMMENDATION OF SPECIAL MAGISTRATE
VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
HERNANDO COUNTY, FLORIDA

IN RE: THE PETITION OF: INVITATION HOMES 7 FLORIDA LP
PARCEL KEY NO: 01818698

Petitioner Edwin Rivera of Ownwell, Inc. appeared telephonically at a hearing on behalf of Invitation Homes 7 Florida LP on December 12, 2025 to provide evidence pertaining to the 2025 property assessment for real property located in Hernando County, Florida. The Hernando County Property Appraiser's Office (PAO) was represented at the hearing by Doug Mack and Brandon Jimenez.

The Special Magistrate confirmed that all parties agree to hold the hearing telephonically. An opening statement regarding the role of the special magistrate was read and the parties were placed under oath. This petition was one of 12 scheduled by the petitioner on this hearing date. Any relevant testimony from these individual hearings will be incorporated by reference to avoid redundancy and expedite the hearing process.

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

The Property Appraiser confirmed the 2025 just value at $337,309. The assessed value is $337,309 and the taxable value is $337,309. No change in values after the TRIM process was noted.

The Petitioner estimated just value at $306,000.

The subject of this petition is identified on the Hernando County tax rolls as parcel number R32-223-18-3743-0000-0530. The subject property is located at 357 Rain Lily Ave in Spring Hill, Hernando County, Florida. The subject is described as a single-family residence which was originally constructed in 2024. The evidence indicates that the property consists of 2,807 square feet of adjusted building area on a 5,750 square foot residential lot. The PAO conducted a field review of the subject parcel on 04/28/25 to record the improvements as Structure #1.

The packet provided by the Property Appraiser was admitted into evidence as PAO-A and consisted of 15 pages including a cover page, case synopsis, subject property record card, comparable sales tester and analysis, location maps, cost of sale adjustment clarification and computations, property record cards for provided sales and a structure area adjustment factors sheet.

The Petitioner did not provide documentary evidence within the statutory timeframe. The Special Magistrate considered the Petitioner's sworn verbal testimony presented at the hearing.

The petitioner acknowledged that they received the PAO's evidence in compliance with the statutory procedures for evidence exchange. The documentary evidence submitted by the PAO and the sworn testimony presented at the hearing meet the requirements of Florida Administrative Code 12D-9.025(1) and 12D-9.025(2)(b) and are considered sufficient, relevant, and credible, from which a reliable estimate of just, assessed and taxable value can be estimated.

BASIC AND UNDERLYING FINDINGS OF FACT

The Property Appraiser asserts in the Case Synopsis that "The Property Appraiser's Office used the Sales Comparison Approach and has considered all of the Eight Criteria required in Florida Statute 193.011 and we believe we have demonstrated that we have the preponderance of evidence that the subject's value represents Just Value".

The Florida Legislature has enacted eight criteria that the property appraiser must consider when determining just value. In any administrative or judicial action where a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment, the property appraiser's estimate of just value is presumed correct if it is proven that the assessment was made in compliance with the eight criteria outlined in F.S. Section 193.011 and in accordance with professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The only standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence, meaning the greater weight of the evidence or "more likely true than not" as per F.S 194.301.

Florida Courts have consistently held that the property appraiser is required to consider all eight factors, that each factor does not have be given equal weight but that failure to consider any single factor can invalidate an assessment. The extent to which the property appraiser has considered each of these eight criteria for this property is summarized in the following paragraphs.

1. Present Cash Value of the Property- the amount a willing buyer would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arm's length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through comparable sales analysis similar to that found in fee appraisal. The property appraiser has presented into evidence comparable sales in support of the present cash value. The PAO relied primarily upon the sales comparison approach, considered Computer-Assisted Mass Appraisal (CAMA) analysis and placed no weight on the cost or income approaches to value. This is considered an appropriate methodology by the Special Magistrate.

The PAO supplied 3 improved sales in the subject's market area:
PAO Sale #1 was built in 2024 and has 2,807 adjusted square feet on a 6,038 square foot lot. This property sold in October 2024 for $384,900 and the adjusted sales price for comparison purposes is $383,410.
PAO Sale #2 was built in 2024 and has 2,807 adjusted square feet on a 5,750 square foot lot. This property sold in August 2024 for $390,400 and the adjusted sales price for comparison purposes is $388,910.
PAO Sale #3 was built in 2024 and has 2,807 adjusted square feet on a 7,301 square foot lot. This property sold in August 2024 for $392,900 and the adjusted sales price for comparison purposes is $391,410.

The PAO performed their analysis utilizing adjusted square foot (SF). While adjusted square footage is generally considered less precise than heated square footage in fee appraisal, it is commonly utilized in mass appraisal. Adjusted sales prices range from $383,410 to $391,410 with a median of $388,910 and a mean of $387,910. After adjusting downward 13% for COS, these 3 sales indicate a mean of $337,482 or approximately $120.23 per square foot.

The PAO sales reflect a value for the subject of $120.23/SF x 2,807 (ASQFT) or $337,486. The subject's Just Value assessment reflects a value of $120.17/SF or $337,309. This assessment is supported by and within the range indicated by the PAO's COS-adjusted comparable sales analysis. The PAO sales were considered credible and relevant.

The Petitioner did not submit documentary evidence within the statutory timeframe and therefore presented only sworn verbal testimony at the hearing. By filing DR-486, Petition to the Value Adjustment Board Request for Hearing, the Petitioner is alleging that the PAO has assessed the property in excess of just value. It is the Petitioner's burden to prove the assessment does not represent just value. Proof should be based on similar criteria to which the Legislature has provided for the PAO to follow. To prevail in an assessment challenge, the taxpayer must prove more than a mere difference of opinion regarding an assessment.

The Petitioner reported the subject's living area as 1,100 square feet, reflecting only the ground level of a two-story improvement. The comparable sales relied upon by the Petitioner are model-match properties with the same two-story design; however, the same reduced square footage was applied to both the subject and the comparables. While this results in internal consistency within the Petitioner's analysis, it does not reflect the full living area of the subject as recorded by the Property Appraiser.

Their sales prices ranged from $306,300 to $401,500. Their adjusted sales prices ranged from $236,192 to $326,744 with a median of $306,000, which is also their opinion of value.

2. Highest & Best Use- the use that is legally permissible, physically possible, financially feasible, and maximally productive. The highest and best use of the subject is for residential use. The highest and best use was not disputed by the Petitioner.
3. Location of the Property- how the property's surroundings influence its value. Site specific location adjustments can be made to reflect either an enhanced location or an inferior location. All of the comparables presented in support of value are located in the same overall market area as the subject (same subdivision). Each has similar frontage and/or views. The location of this property was not disputed by the Petitioner.
4. Quantity or Size of the Property-square footage, acreage, front footage, unit count. The PAO must consider the quantity or size of the property by determining and recording the correct land size, building size and extras features and quantities. Land size is based on legal description from recorded plats or metes and bounds. Building sizes and extra features are determined by inspection and measured by deputy property appraisers. The size of the property was not disputed by the Petitioner.
5. Cost of the Property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon – An analysis of cost/depreciated cost is made in the CAMA system and found on the property record card. PAO considers replacement costs through the use of Marshall & Swift Valuation Service data and through annual surveys with different contractors to come up with feature rates (these are adjusted manually). Rates are adjusted annually to reflect the costs relevant to January 1 of the given tax year. No separate analysis of cost has been presented during the hearing. It is the opinion of the Special Magistrate that this cost analysis complies with 193.011(5) F.S. and generally accepted appraisal practices.
6. Condition of the Property-physical state and functional adequacy of improvements. The PAO considers the condition of the property through periodic property inspections, no less than once every five years as required by Statute. Other events can trigger more frequent site inspections, including the sale of a property, issuance of a building permit, assessment appeal or at the taxpayer's request. Condition is considered as a factor applied to the CAMA system value calculation for value losses from all sources based upon an age/life depreciation method. It appears that the condition of the property has been considered by the PAO and as the subject was new construction, no depreciation was calculated for the subject.
7. Income from the Property- income producing ability of the property. No analysis of income has been presented during the hearing and buyers in this sector of the real estate market typically do not consider income generating ability when valuing this type of property. It is the opinion of the Special Magistrate that this income analysis complies with 193.011(7) F.S. and generally accepted appraisal practices.

8. Net Proceeds of the Sale- the net proceeds of the sale of the property, as received by the seller, after deduction of the usual and reasonable fees and costs of the sale, including the costs and expenses of financing, and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms of financing arrangements. Applicable law provides for uniform cost of sale deductions in just valuations without regard to whether the property was sold, whether mass appraisal or single property appraisal is used, the appraisal approach used to value the property or whether the petitioner is seeking an increase or decrease in just value.

   The PAO considered cost of sales in their reconciliation process of 13%. The Petitioner did not specify if their reconciliation process included a COS adjustment.

Ultimate Findings of Fact

Pursuant to Section 194.301 F.S, the Property Appraiser's assessment shall be entitled to a Presumption of Correctness if the Property Appraiser shows, by the preponderance of the evidence, that the Property Appraiser considered each of the eight criteria set forth in Section 193.011 F.S., the Property Appraiser applied the correct appraisal methodology based upon the characteristics of the property, and the Property Appraiser did not use appraisal practices which are different than the appraisal practices generally applied by the Property Appraiser to comparable properties in the same county.

1. In accordance with Section 194.301 F.S., it is concluded that the PAO DID establish a presumption of correctness by properly considering the eight criteria and further, it is concluded that the methodology used by PAO IS appropriate and DOES comply with professionally accepted practices for the subject property type. The Petitioner DID NOT overcome the presumption of correctness.
2. The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment was based on arbitrary appraisal practice different from like properties in the same county.
3. The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment is excessive. Thus the assessed value DOES NOT exceed 100% of the fair market value of the property.

Property Appraiser	(Indicated Value from Sales Analysis)	$337,486
Petitioner	(Stated Estimate of Value)	$306,000
Assessment (Just Value)		$337,309

Conclusions of Law

Florida Administrative Code section 12D-9.027 lays out a sequence of general procedural steps that the Special Magistrate has followed in preparation of this recommendation to the Value Adjustment Board:

Determine whether the Property Appraiser has established a presumption of correctness for the assessment and determine whether the Property Appraiser's just valuation methodology is appropriate. The presumption of correctness is not established unless the Property Appraiser proves by a preponderance of the evidence that the methodology used to support the just value for the subject property complies with 193.011 F.S. and professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate.

The Special Magistrate reviewed all evidence presented by all parties and determined that the evidence and testimony was relevant and credible to the valuation at hand. Thus, the evidence as presented was admitted for consideration in relation to the appropriateness of the subject assessment.

The Special Magistrate determined that the testimonial and documentary evidence meet the test of relevancy and credibility and WAS sufficient to reach the preponderance of evidence standard of proof required by Rule 12D-9.027(5)(6). The Special Magistrate also determined that there IS competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with 193.011 F.S. and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish the assessment.

The Special Magistrate determined that the hearing record contains competent, substantial evidence supporting the just value assessment. After weighing all of the documentary and testimonial evidence it is concluded that the assessment IS reasonable and within market parameters.

Recommendation

In view of the findings of fact and conclusions of law as they relate to this petition before the Value Adjustment Board, the Special Magistrate recommends that the petition be Denied.

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

HERNANDO ☑ County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-207	Parcel ID R32 223 18 3743 0000 0550
Petitioner name EdwinRivera c/o Invitation Homes 7 Florida The petitioner is: ☐ taxpayer of record ☑ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	Property address 337 Rain Lily Ave Spring Hill, FL 34609

Decision Summary ☑ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	373,313.00	373,313.00	373,313.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	373,313.00	373,313.00	373,313.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0.00	0.00	0.00
4. Taxable value,* required	373,313.00	373,313.00	373,313.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact
See attached.

Conclusions of Law
See attached.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Shelley Kennedy Signature, special magistrate	Shelley Kennedy, MNAA Print name	12/17/2025 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

Petition No. 25-207

RECOMMENDATION OF SPECIAL MAGISTRATE
VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
HERNANDO COUNTY, FLORIDA

IN RE: THE PETITION OF: INVITATION HOMES 7 FLORIDA LP
PARCEL KEY NO: 01818714

Petitioner Edwin Rivera of Ownwell, Inc. appeared telephonically at a hearing on behalf of Invitation Homes 7 Florida LP on December 12, 2025 to provide evidence pertaining to the 2025 property assessment for real property located in Hernando County, Florida. The Hernando County Property Appraiser's Office (PAO) was represented at the hearing by Doug Mack and Brandon Jimenez.

The Special Magistrate confirmed that all parties agree to hold the hearing telephonically. An opening statement regarding the role of the special magistrate was read and the parties were placed under oath. This petition was one of 12 scheduled by the petitioner on this hearing date. Any relevant testimony from these individual hearings will be incorporated by reference to avoid redundancy and expedite the hearing process.

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

The Property Appraiser confirmed the 2025 just value at $373,313. The assessed value is $373,313 and the taxable value is $373,313. No change in values after the TRIM process was noted.

The Petitioner estimated just value at $292,000.

The subject of this petition is identified on the Hernando County tax rolls as parcel number R32-223-18-3743-0000-0550. The subject property is located at 337 Rain Lily Ave in Spring Hill, Hernando County, Florida. The subject is described as a single-family residence which was originally constructed in 2024. The evidence indicates that the property consists of 3,119 square feet of adjusted building area on a 5,750 square foot residential lot. The PAO conducted a field review of the subject parcel on 04/28/25 to record the improvements as Structure #1.

The packet provided by the Property Appraiser was admitted into evidence as PAO-A and consisted of 15 pages including a cover page, case synopsis, subject property record card, comparable sales tester and analysis, location maps, cost of sale adjustment clarification and computations, property record cards for provided sales and a structure area adjustment factors sheet.

The Petitioner did not provide documentary evidence within the statutory timeframe. The Special Magistrate considered the Petitioner's sworn verbal testimony presented at the hearing.

The petitioner acknowledged that they received the PAO's evidence in compliance with the statutory procedures for evidence exchange. The documentary evidence submitted by the PAO and the sworn testimony presented at the hearing meet the requirements of Florida Administrative Code 12D-9.025(1) and 12D-9.025(2)(b) and are considered sufficient, relevant, and credible, from which a reliable estimate of just, assessed and taxable value can be estimated.

BASIC AND UNDERLYING FINDINGS OF FACT

The Property Appraiser asserts in the Case Synopsis that "The Property Appraiser's Office used the Sales Comparison Approach and has considered all of the Eight Criteria required in Florida Statute 193.011 and we believe we have demonstrated that we have the preponderance of evidence that the subject's value represents Just Value".

The Florida Legislature has enacted eight criteria that the property appraiser must consider when determining just value. In any administrative or judicial action where a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment, the property appraiser's estimate of just value is presumed correct if it is proven that the assessment was made in compliance with the eight criteria outlined in F.S. Section 193.011 and in accordance with professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The only standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence, meaning the greater weight of the evidence or "more likely true than not" as per F.S 194.301.

Florida Courts have consistently held that the property appraiser is required to consider all eight factors, that each factor does not have be given equal weight but that failure to consider any single factor can invalidate an assessment. The extent to which the property appraiser has considered each of these eight criteria for this property is summarized in the following paragraphs.

1. Present Cash Value of the Property- the amount a willing buyer would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arm's length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through comparable sales analysis similar to that found in fee appraisal. The property appraiser has presented into evidence comparable sales in support of the present cash value. The PAO relied primarily upon the sales comparison approach, considered Computer-Assisted Mass Appraisal (CAMA) analysis and placed no weight on the cost or income approaches to value. This is considered an appropriate methodology by the Special Magistrate.

The PAO supplied 3 improved sales in the subject's market area:
PAO Sale #1 was built in 2024 and has 3,334 adjusted square feet on a 6,038 square foot lot. This property sold in October 2024 for $401,500 and the adjusted sales price for comparison purposes is $400,010.
PAO Sale #2 was built in 2024 and has 3,119 adjusted square feet on a 6,975 square foot lot. This property sold in August 2024 for $380,600 and the adjusted sales price for comparison purposes is $379,110.
PAO Sale #3 was built in 2024 and has 3,140 adjusted square feet on a 5,750 square foot lot. This property sold in July 2024 for $398,100 and the adjusted sales price for comparison purposes is $396,610.

The PAO performed their analysis utilizing adjusted square foot (SF). While adjusted square footage is generally considered less precise than heated square footage in fee appraisal, it is commonly utilized in mass appraisal. Adjusted sales prices range from $379,110 to $400,010 with a median of $396,610 and a mean of $391,910. After application of a 3% COS adjustment as reflected in the PAO's reconciliation, these sales indicate a mean of $380,153 or approximately $118.93 per square foot.

The PAO sales reflect a value for the subject of $118.93/SF x 3,119 (ASQFT) or $370,943. The subject's Just Value assessment reflects a value of $119.69/SF or $373,313, which is supported when considered in relation to the PAO's reconciliation process and the range of adjusted comparable sales. The slight variance above the indicated value is attributable to reconciliation within a narrow and well-supported range and does not render the assessment excessive.

The PAO sales were considered credible and relevant.

The Petitioner did not submit documentary evidence within the statutory timeframe and therefore presented only sworn verbal testimony at the hearing. By filing DR-486, Petition to the Value Adjustment Board Request for Hearing, the Petitioner is alleging that the PAO has assessed the property in excess of just value. It is the Petitioner's burden to prove the assessment does not represent just value. Proof should be based on similar criteria to which the Legislature has provided for the PAO to follow. To prevail in an assessment challenge, the taxpayer must prove more than a mere difference of opinion regarding an assessment.

The Petitioner reported the subject's living area as 1,789 square feet, reflecting only the ground level of a two-story improvement. The comparable sales relied upon by the Petitioner are model-match properties with the same two-story design; however, the same reduced square footage was applied to both the subject and the comparables. While this results in internal consistency within the Petitioner's analysis, it does not reflect the full living area of the subject as recorded by the Property Appraiser.

Their sales prices ranged from $330,000 to $350,000. Their adjusted sales prices ranged from $281,630 to $297,329 with a mean of $290,000 and a median of $292,378, which they rounded to $292,000 for their opinion of value.

2. Highest & Best Use- the use that is legally permissible, physically possible, financially feasible, and maximally productive. The highest and best use of the subject is for residential use. The highest and best use was not disputed by the Petitioner.
3. Location of the Property- how the property's surroundings influence its value. Site specific location adjustments can be made to reflect either an enhanced location or an inferior location. All of the comparables presented in support of value are located in the same overall market area as the subject (same subdivision). Each has similar frontage and/or views. The location of this property was not disputed by the Petitioner.
4. Quantity or Size of the Property-square footage, acreage, front footage, unit count. The PAO must consider the quantity or size of the property by determining and recording the correct land size, building size and extras features and quantities. Land size is based on legal description from recorded plats or metes and bounds. Building sizes and extra features are determined by inspection and measured by deputy property appraisers. The size of the property was not disputed by the Petitioner.
5. Cost of the Property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon – An analysis of cost/depreciated cost is made in the CAMA system and found on the property record card. PAO considers replacement costs through the use of Marshall & Swift Valuation Service data and through annual surveys with different contractors to come up with feature rates (these are adjusted manually). Rates are adjusted annually to reflect the costs relevant to January 1 of the given tax year. No separate analysis of cost has been presented during the hearing. It is the opinion of the Special Magistrate that this cost analysis complies with 193.011(5) F.S. and generally accepted appraisal practices.
6. Condition of the Property-physical state and functional adequacy of improvements. The PAO considers the condition of the property through periodic property inspections, no less than once every five years as required by Statute. Other events can trigger more frequent site inspections, including the sale of a property, issuance of a building permit, assessment appeal or at the taxpayer's request. Condition is considered as a factor applied to the CAMA system value calculation for value losses from all sources based upon an age/life depreciation method. It appears that the condition of the property has been considered by the PAO and as the subject was new construction, no depreciation was calculated for the subject.

7. Income from the Property- income producing ability of the property. No analysis of income has been presented during the hearing and buyers in this sector of the real estate market typically do not consider income generating ability when valuing this type of property. It is the opinion of the Special Magistrate that this income analysis complies with 193.011(7) F.S. and generally accepted appraisal practices.
8. Net Proceeds of the Sale- the net proceeds of the sale of the property, as received by the seller, after deduction of the usual and reasonable fees and costs of the sale, including the costs and expenses of financing, and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms of financing arrangements. Applicable law provides for uniform cost of sale deductions in just valuations without regard to whether the property was sold, whether mass appraisal or single property appraisal is used, the appraisal approach used to value the property or whether the petitioner is seeking an increase or decrease in just value.

The PAO considered cost of sales in their reconciliation process of 3%. The Petitioner did not specify if their reconciliation process included a COS adjustment.

Ultimate Findings of Fact

Pursuant to Section 194.301 F.S, the Property Appraiser's assessment shall be entitled to a Presumption of Correctness if the Property Appraiser shows, by the preponderance of the evidence, that the Property Appraiser considered each of the eight criteria set forth in Section 193.011 F.S., the Property Appraiser applied the correct appraisal methodology based upon the characteristics of the property, and the Property Appraiser did not use appraisal practices which are different than the appraisal practices generally applied by the Property Appraiser to comparable properties in the same county.

1. In accordance with Section 194.301 F.S., it is concluded that the PAO DID establish a presumption of correctness by properly considering the eight criteria and further, it is concluded that the methodology used by PAO IS appropriate and DOES comply with professionally accepted practices for the subject property type. The Petitioner DID NOT overcome the presumption of correctness.
2. The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment was based on arbitrary appraisal practice different from like properties in the same county.
3. The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment is excessive. Thus the assessed value DOES NOT exceed 100% of the fair market value of the property.

Property Appraiser	(Indicated Value from Sales Analysis)	$370,943
Petitioner	(Stated Estimate of Value)	$292,000
Assessment (Just Value)		$373,313

Conclusions of Law

Florida Administrative Code section 12D-9.027 lays out a sequence of general procedural steps that the Special Magistrate has followed in preparation of this recommendation to the Value Adjustment Board:

Determine whether the Property Appraiser has established a presumption of correctness for the assessment and determine whether the Property Appraiser's just valuation methodology is appropriate. The presumption of correctness is not established unless the Property Appraiser proves by a preponderance of the evidence that the methodology used to support the just value for the subject property complies with 193.011 F.S. and professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate.

The Special Magistrate reviewed all evidence presented by all parties and determined that the evidence and testimony was relevant and credible to the valuation at hand. Thus, the evidence as presented was admitted for consideration in relation to the appropriateness of the subject assessment.

The Special Magistrate determined that the testimonial and documentary evidence meet the test of relevancy and credibility and WAS sufficient to reach the preponderance of evidence standard of proof required by Rule 12D-9.027(5)(6). The Special Magistrate also determined that there IS competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with 193.011 F.S. and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish the assessment.

The Special Magistrate determined that the hearing record contains competent, substantial evidence supporting the just value assessment. After weighing all of the documentary and testimonial evidence it is concluded that the assessment IS reasonable and within market parameters.

Recommendation

In view of the findings of fact and conclusions of law as they relate to this petition before the Value Adjustment Board, the Special Magistrate recommends that the petition be Denied.

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

HERNANDO ☑ County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-208	Parcel ID R32-323-17-5070-0317-0140
Petitioner name Edwin Rivera c/o SFR II Borrower 2021-3 LL The petitioner is: ☐ taxpayer of record ☑ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	Property address 1447 Waterfall Drive Spring Hill, FL 34608

Decision Summary ☐ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☑ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	311,215.00	311,215.00	273,280.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	311,215.00	311,215.00	273,280.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0.00	0.00	0.00
4. Taxable value,* required	311,215.00	311,215.00	273,280.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact
See attached.

Conclusions of Law
See attached.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	Shelley Kennedy, MNAA Print name	01/07/2026 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

Petition No. 25-208

RECOMMENDATION OF SPECIAL MAGISTRATE
VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
HERNANDO COUNTY, FLORIDA

IN RE: THE PETITION OF: SFR II BORROWER 2021-3 LLC
PARCEL KEY NO: 00256216

Petitioner Edwin Rivera of Ownwell, Inc. appeared telephonically at a hearing on behalf of SFR II BORROWER 2021-3 LLC on December 12, 2025 to provide evidence pertaining to the 2025 property assessment for real property located in Hernando County, Florida. The Hernando County Property Appraiser's Office (PAO) was represented at the hearing by Doug Mack and Brandon Jimenez.

The Special Magistrate confirmed that all parties agree to hold the hearing telephonically. An opening statement regarding the role of the special magistrate was read and the parties were placed under oath. This petition was one of 12 scheduled by the petitioner on this hearing date. Any relevant testimony from these individual hearings will be incorporated by reference to avoid redundancy and expedite the hearing process. Only testimony relevant to this parcel was considered in reaching the findings and conclusions herein.

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

The Property Appraiser confirmed the 2025 Just Value at $311,215. The assessed value is $311,215 and the taxable value is $311,215. There have been no changes to the values since the Notice of Proposed Property Taxes (TRIM Notice) was issued.

The Petitioner estimated Just Value at $270,000.

The subject of this petition is identified on the Hernando County tax rolls as parcel number R32-323-17-5070-0317-0140. The subject property is located at 1447 Waterfall Dr in Spring Hill, Hernando County, Florida. The subject is described as a single-family residence which was originally constructed in 1984. The evidence indicates that the property consists of 2,161 square feet of adjusted building area on a 12,487 square foot residential lot. The PAO conducted a field review of the subject parcel on 09/20/2024 for a VAB hearing.

The packet provided by the Property Appraiser was admitted into evidence as PAO-A and consisted of 19 pages including a cover page, case synopsis, subject property record card, comparable sales tester and analysis, location maps, cost of sale adjustment clarification and computations, property record cards for provided sales and a structure area adjustment factors sheet.

The Petitioner did not provide documentary evidence within the statutory timeframe. The Special Magistrate considered the Petitioner's sworn verbal testimony presented at the hearing.

The petitioner acknowledged that they received the PAO's evidence in compliance with the statutory procedures for evidence exchange. The documentary evidence submitted by the PAO and the sworn testimony presented at the hearing meet the requirements of Florida Administrative Code 12D-9.025(1) and 12D-9.025(2)(b) and are considered sufficient, relevant, and credible, from which a reliable estimate of just, assessed and taxable value can be estimated.

BASIC AND UNDERLYING FINDINGS OF FACT

The Property Appraiser asserts in the Case Synopsis that "The Property Appraiser's Office used the Sales Comparison Approach and has considered all of the Eight Criteria required in Florida Statute 193.011 and we believe we have demonstrated that we have the preponderance of evidence that the subject's value represents just value".

The Florida Legislature has enacted eight criteria that the property appraiser must consider when determining just value. In any administrative or judicial action where a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment, the property appraiser's estimate of just value is presumed correct if it is proven that the assessment was made in compliance with the eight criteria outlined in F.S. Section 193.011 and in accordance with professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The only standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence, meaning the greater weight of the evidence or "more likely true than not" as per F.S 194.301.

Florida Courts have consistently held that the property appraiser is required to consider all eight factors, that each factor does not have be given equal weight but that failure to consider any single factor can invalidate an assessment. The extent to which the property appraiser has considered each of these eight criteria for this property is summarized in the following paragraphs.

1. Present Cash Value of the Property- the amount a willing buyer would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arm's length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through comparable sales analysis similar to that found in fee appraisal. The property appraiser has submitted into evidence comparable sales in support of the present cash value. The PAO relied primarily upon the sales comparison approach, considered Computer-Assisted Mass Appraisal (CAMA) analysis, and placed no weight on the cost or income approaches to value. This is considered an appropriate methodology by the Special Magistrate.

The PAO supplied 3 improved sales in the subject's market area:
PAO Sale #1 was built in 1984 and has 2,309 adjusted square feet on a 10,000 square foot lot. This property sold in February 2024 for $325,000 and the adjusted sales price for comparison purposes is $322,223.
PAO Sale #2 was built in 1987 and has 2,101 adjusted square feet on a 12,731 square foot lot. This property sold in May 2024 for $320,000 and the adjusted sales price for comparison purposes is $317,422.
PAO Sale #3 was built in 1984 and has 2,222 adjusted square feet on a 10,000 square foot lot. This property sold in January 2024 for $328,000 and the adjusted sales price for comparison purposes is $323,148.

The PAO performed their analysis utilizing adjusted square foot (SF). While adjusted square footage is generally considered less precise than heated square footage in fee appraisal, it is commonly utilized in mass appraisal. Adjusted sales prices range from $317,422 to $323,148 with a median of $322,223 and a mean of $320,931. After adjusting downward 13% for COS, these 3 sales indicate a mean of $279,210 or approximately $126.46 per square foot.

The PAO sales reflect a value for the subject of $126.46/SF x 2,161 (ASQFT) or $273,280. The subject's Just Value assessment reflects a value of $144.01/SF or $311,215, which is not supported after the COS is applied.

The PAO sales were considered credible and relevant.

The Petitioner did not submit documentary evidence within the statutory timeframe and therefore presented only sworn verbal testimony at the hearing. By filing DR-486, Petition to the Value Adjustment Board Request for Hearing, the Petitioner is alleging that the PAO has assessed the property in excess of just value. It is the Petitioner's burden to prove the assessment does not represent just value. Proof should be based on similar criteria to which the Legislature has provided for the PAO to follow. To prevail in an assessment challenge, the taxpayer must prove more than a mere difference of opinion regarding an assessment.

The Petitioner stated that, in determining their estimate of value, they considered the subject's living area of 1,787 SF for comparison purposes. Their analysis included 6 sales ranging in living area from 1,404 to 1,955 SF with sales prices ranging from $252,500 to $345,000. Their adjusted sales prices range from $218,383 to $294,632 with a mean of $262,000 and a median of $270,000, which is also their opinion of value.

2. Highest & Best Use- the use that is legally permissible, physically possible, financially feasible, and maximally productive. The highest and best use of the subject is for residential use. The highest and best use was not disputed by the Petitioner.
3. Location of the Property- how the property's surroundings influence its value. Site specific location adjustments can be made to reflect either an enhanced location or an inferior location. All of the comparables presented in support of value are located in the same overall market area as the subject (same subdivision). Each has similar frontage and/or views. The location of this property was not disputed by the Petitioner.
4. Quantity or Size of the Property-square footage, acreage, front footage, unit count. The PAO must consider the quantity or size of the property by determining and recording the correct land size, building size and extra features and quantities. Land size is based on legal description from recorded plats or metes and bounds. Building sizes and extra features are determined by inspection and measured by deputy property appraisers. The size of the property was not disputed by the Petitioner.
5. Cost of the Property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon – An analysis of cost/depreciated cost is made in the CAMA system and found on the property record card. PAO considers replacement costs through the use of Marshall & Swift Valuation Service data and through annual surveys with different contractors to come up with feature rates (these are adjusted manually). Rates are adjusted annually to reflect the costs relevant to January 1 of the given tax year. No separate analysis of cost has been presented during the hearing. It is the opinion of the Special Magistrate that this cost analysis complies with 193.011(5) F.S. and generally accepted appraisal practices.
6. Condition of the Property-physical state and functional adequacy of improvements. The PAO considers the condition of the property through periodic property inspections, no less than once every five years as required by Statute. Other events can trigger more frequent site inspections, including the sale of a property, issuance of a building permit, assessment appeal or at the taxpayer's request. Condition is considered as a factor applied to the CAMA system value calculation for value losses from all sources based upon an age/life depreciation method. It appears that the condition of the property has been considered by the PAO and depreciation was calculated at 16%.
7. Income from the Property- income producing ability of the property. No analysis of income has been presented during the hearing and buyers in this sector of the real estate market typically do not consider income generating ability when valuing this type of property. It is the opinion of the Special Magistrate that this income analysis complies with 193.011(7) F.S. and generally accepted appraisal practices.

8. Net Proceeds of the Sale- the net proceeds of the sale of the property, as received by the seller, after deduction of the usual and reasonable fees and costs of the sale, including the costs and expenses of financing, and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms of financing arrangements. Applicable law provides for uniform cost of sale deductions in just valuations without regard to whether the property was sold, whether mass appraisal or single property appraisal is used, the appraisal approach used to value the property or whether the petitioner is seeking an increase or decrease in just value.

   The PAO considered cost of sales in their reconciliation process of 13%. The Petitioner did not specify if their reconciliation process included a COS adjustment.

Ultimate Findings of Fact

Pursuant to Section 194.301 F.S, the Property Appraiser's assessment shall be entitled to a Presumption of Correctness if the Property Appraiser shows, by the preponderance of the evidence, that the Property Appraiser considered each of the eight criteria set forth in Section 193.011 F.S., the Property Appraiser applied the correct appraisal methodology based upon the characteristics of the property, and the Property Appraiser did not use appraisal practices which are different than the appraisal practices generally applied by the Property Appraiser to comparable properties in the same county.

1. In accordance with Section 194.301 F.S., it is concluded that the PAO DID NOT establish a presumption of correctness by failing to apply the COS adjustment derived from the PAO sales, therefore failing to comply with Criterion 8 of 193.011, F.S. The Petitioner did not submit documentary evidence and did not independently establish a specific just value by a preponderance of the evidence.
2. The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment was based on arbitrary appraisal practice different from like properties in the same county.
3. Notwithstanding the foregoing, the hearing record contains competent, substantial evidence, including the PAO's own comparable sales analysis with appropriate COS adjustments applied, demonstrating that the assessed just value exceeds fair market value.

Property Appraiser	(Mean Adjusted Price Per SF x Subject ASQFT)	$273,280
Petitioner	(Stated Estimate of Value)	$270,000
Assessment (Just Value)		$311,215

The assessment is above the range and should be adjusted.

Conclusions of Law

Florida Administrative Code section 12D-9.027 lays out a sequence of general procedural steps that the Special Magistrate has followed in preparation of this recommendation to the Value Adjustment Board:

Determine whether the Property Appraiser has established a presumption of correctness for the assessment and determine whether the Property Appraiser's just valuation methodology is appropriate. The presumption of correctness is not established unless the Property Appraiser proves by a preponderance of the evidence that the methodology used to support the just value for the subject property complies with 193.011 F.S. and professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate.

The Special Magistrate reviewed all documentary evidence submitted by the PAO and the sworn testimony presented at the hearing and determined that such evidence was relevant and credible to the valuation at issue.

The Special Magistrate further determined that the hearing record contains competent, substantial evidence of value in compliance with Section 193.011, F.S. and professionally accepted appraisal practices.

Because the PAO did not establish a presumption of correctness, and because the evidence of record demonstrates that the assessed just value exceeds fair market value, the Special Magistrate is authorized to determine a revised just value based upon the competent, substantial evidence in the record. In establishing a revised just value, the Special Magistrate is not restricted to any specific value offered by either party.

Recommendation

In view of the findings of fact and conclusions of law as they relate to this petition before the Value Adjustment Board, the Special Magistrate recommends that the petition be Granted in Part and revised to $273,280.

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

HERNANDO ☑ County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-210	Parcel ID R32 323 17 5182 1833 0200
Petitioner name Edwin Rivera c/oSFR JV-1 2021-1 BORRO\ The petitioner is: ☐ taxpayer of record ☑ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	Property address 5293 Woodridge Ln Spring Hill, FL 34609

Decision Summary ☐ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☑ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	293,936.00	293,936.00	275,817.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	293,936.00	293,936.00	275,817.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0.00	0.00	0.00
4. Taxable value,* required	293,936.00	293,936.00	275,817.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact
See attached.

Conclusions of Law
See attached.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Shelley Kennedy Signature, special magistrate	Shelley Kennedy, MNAA Print name	12/16/2025 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

Petition No. 25-210

RECOMMENDATION OF SPECIAL MAGISTRATE
VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
HERNANDO COUNTY, FLORIDA

IN RE: THE PETITION OF: SFR JV-1 2021-1 BORROWER LLC
PARCEL KEY NO: 00841799

Petitioner Edwin Rivera of Ownwell, Inc. appeared telephonically at a hearing on behalf of SFR JV-1 2021-1 BORROWER LLC on December 12, 2025 to provide evidence pertaining to the 2025 property assessment for real property located in Hernando County, Florida. The Hernando County Property Appraiser's Office (PAO) was represented at the hearing by Doug Mack and Brandon Jimenez.

The Special Magistrate confirmed that all parties agree to hold the hearing telephonically. An opening statement regarding the role of the special magistrate was read and the parties were placed under oath. This petition was one of 12 scheduled by the petitioner on this hearing date. Any relevant testimony from these individual hearings will be incorporated by reference to avoid redundancy and expedite the hearing process. Only testimony relevant to this parcel was considered in reaching the findings and conclusions herein.

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

The Property Appraiser confirmed the 2025 Just Value at $293,936. The assessed value is $293,936 and the taxable value is $293,936. There have been no changes to the values since the Notice of Proposed Property Taxes (TRIM Notice) was issued.

The Petitioner estimated Just Value at $264,000.

The subject of this petition is identified on the Hernando County tax rolls as parcel number R32-323-17-5182-1833-0200. The subject property is located at 5293 Woodridge Ln in Spring Hill, Hernando County, Florida. The subject is described as a single-family residence which was originally constructed in 2021. The evidence indicates that the property consists of 1,906 square feet of adjusted building area on an 8,000 square foot residential lot. The PAO conducted a field review of the subject parcel on 09/30/2024 to remeasure PV1 #1 and #2.

The packet provided by the Property Appraiser was admitted into evidence as PAO-A and consisted of 15 pages including a cover page, case synopsis, subject property record card, comparable sales tester and analysis, location maps, cost of sale adjustment clarification and computations, property record cards for provided sales and a structure area adjustment factors sheet.

The Petitioner did not provide documentary evidence within the statutory timeframe. The Special Magistrate considered the Petitioner's sworn verbal testimony presented at the hearing.

The petitioner acknowledged that they received the PAO's evidence in compliance with the statutory procedures for evidence exchange. The documentary evidence submitted by the PAO and the sworn testimony presented at the hearing meet the requirements of Florida Administrative Code 12D-9.025(1) and 12D-9.025(2)(b) and are considered sufficient, relevant, and credible, from which a reliable estimate of just, assessed and taxable value can be estimated.

BASIC AND UNDERLYING FINDINGS OF FACT

The Property Appraiser asserts in the Case Synopsis that "The Property Appraiser's Office used the Sales Comparison Approach and has considered all of the Eight Criteria required in Florida Statute 193.011 and we believe we have demonstrated that we have the preponderance of evidence that the subject's value represents just value".

The Florida Legislature has enacted eight criteria that the property appraiser must consider when determining just value. In any administrative or judicial action where a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment, the property appraiser's estimate of just value is presumed correct if it is proven that the assessment was made in compliance with the eight criteria outlined in F.S. Section 193.011 and in accordance with professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The only standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence, meaning the greater weight of the evidence or "more likely true than not" as per F.S 194.301.

Florida Courts have consistently held that the property appraiser is required to consider all eight factors, that each factor does not have be given equal weight but that failure to consider any single factor can invalidate an assessment. The extent to which the property appraiser has considered each of these eight criteria for this property is summarized in the following paragraphs.

1. Present Cash Value of the Property- the amount a willing buyer would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arm's length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through comparable sales analysis similar to that found in fee appraisal. The property appraiser presented comparable sales as evidence in support of the present cash value. The PAO relied primarily upon the sales comparison approach, considered Computer-Assisted Mass Appraisal (CAMA) analysis, and placed no weight on the cost or income approaches to value. This is considered an appropriate methodology by the Special Magistrate.

The PAO supplied 3 improved sales in the subject's market area:
PAO Sale #1 was built in 2023 and has 2,011 adjusted square feet on a 10,000 square foot lot. This property sold in June 2024 for $350,000 and the adjusted sales price for comparison purposes is $347,452.
PAO Sale #2 was built in 2023 and has 1,676 adjusted square feet on a 10,000 square foot lot. This property sold in January 2024 for $304,900 and the adjusted sales price for comparison purposes is $301,196.
PAO Sale #3 was built in 2017 and has 2,121 adjusted square feet on an 8,560 square foot lot. This property sold in October 2024 for $377,500 and the adjusted sales price for comparison purposes is $375,326.

The PAO performed their analysis utilizing adjusted square foot (SF). While adjusted square footage is generally considered less precise than heated square footage in fee appraisal, it is commonly utilized in mass appraisal. Adjusted sales prices range from $301,196 to $375,326 with a median of $347,452 and a mean of $341,325. After adjusting downward 18% for COS, these 3 sales indicate a mean of $279,886 or approximately $144.71 per square foot (based on the mean ASQFT of the PAO's sales).

The PAO sales reflect a value for the subject of $144.71/SF x 1,906 (ASQFT) or $275,817. The subject's Just Value assessment reflects a value of $154.22/SF or $293,936, which is not supported after the COS is applied.

The PAO sales were considered credible and relevant.

The Petitioner did not submit documentary evidence within the statutory timeframe and therefore presented only sworn verbal testimony at the hearing. By filing DR-486, Petition to the Value Adjustment Board Request for Hearing, the Petitioner is alleging that the PAO has assessed the property in excess of just value. It is the Petitioner's burden to prove the assessment does not represent just value. Proof should be based on similar criteria to which the Legislature has provided for the PAO to follow. To prevail in an assessment challenge, the taxpayer must prove more than a mere difference of opinion regarding an assessment.

The Petitioner stated that, in determining their estimate of value, they considered the subject's living area of 1,633 SF for comparison purposes. Their analysis included 5 sales ranging in living area from 1,200 to 2,047 SF with sales prices ranging from $210,000 to $319,000. Their adjusted sales prices range from $213,468 to $289,644 with a mean of $259,000 and a median of $264,000, which is also their opinion of value.

The PAO representative stated on rebuttal that based on the ages provided, one of the Petitioner's sales is 36 years older than the subject.

2. Highest & Best Use- the use that is legally permissible, physically possible, financially feasible, and maximally productive. The highest and best use of the subject is for residential use. The highest and best use was not disputed by the Petitioner.
3. Location of the Property- how the property's surroundings influence its value. Site specific location adjustments can be made to reflect either an enhanced location or an inferior location. All of the comparables presented in support of value are located in the same overall market area as the subject (same subdivision). Each has similar frontage and/or views. The location of this property was not disputed by the Petitioner.
4. Quantity or Size of the Property-square footage, acreage, front footage, unit count. The PAO must consider the quantity or size of the property by determining and recording the correct land size, building size and extra features and quantities. Land size is based on legal description from recorded plats or metes and bounds. Building sizes and extra features are determined by inspection and measured by deputy property appraisers. The size of the property was not disputed by the Petitioner.
5. Cost of the Property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon – An analysis of cost/depreciated cost is made in the CAMA system and found on the property record card. PAO considers replacement costs through the use of Marshall & Swift Valuation Service data and through annual surveys with different contractors to come up with feature rates (these are adjusted manually). Rates are adjusted annually to reflect the costs relevant to January 1 of the given tax year. No separate analysis of cost has been presented during the hearing. It is the opinion of the Special Magistrate that this cost analysis complies with 193.011(5) F.S. and generally accepted appraisal practices.
6. Condition of the Property-physical state and functional adequacy of improvements. The PAO considers the condition of the property through periodic property inspections, no less than once every five years as required by Statute. Other events can trigger more frequent site inspections, including the sale of a property, issuance of a building permit, assessment appeal or at the taxpayer's request. Condition is considered as a factor applied to the CAMA system value calculation for value losses from all sources based upon an age/life depreciation method. It appears that the condition of the property has been considered by the PAO and depreciation was calculated at 3%.

7. Income from the Property- income producing ability of the property. No analysis of income has been presented during the hearing and buyers in this sector of the real estate market typically do not consider income generating ability when valuing this type of property. It is the opinion of the Special Magistrate that this income analysis complies with 193.011(7) F.S. and generally accepted appraisal practices.
8. Net Proceeds of the Sale- the net proceeds of the sale of the property, as received by the seller, after deduction of the usual and reasonable fees and costs of the sale, including the costs and expenses of financing, and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms of financing arrangements. Applicable law provides for uniform cost of sale deductions in just valuations without regard to whether the property was sold, whether mass appraisal or single property appraisal is used, the appraisal approach used to value the property or whether the petitioner is seeking an increase or decrease in just value.

   The PAO considered cost of sales in their reconciliation process of 18%. The Petitioner did not specify if their reconciliation process included a COS adjustment.

Ultimate Findings of Fact

Pursuant to Section 194.301 F.S, the Property Appraiser's assessment shall be entitled to a Presumption of Correctness if the Property Appraiser shows, by the preponderance of the evidence, that the Property Appraiser considered each of the eight criteria set forth in Section 193.011 F.S., the Property Appraiser applied the correct appraisal methodology based upon the characteristics of the property, and the Property Appraiser did not use appraisal practices which are different than the appraisal practices generally applied by the Property Appraiser to comparable properties in the same county.

1. In accordance with Section 194.301 F.S., it is concluded that the PAO DID NOT establish a presumption of correctness by failing to apply the COS adjustment derived from the PAO sales to the subject property in the final reconciliation supporting the just value assessment, therefore failing to comply with Criterion 8 of 193.011, F.S. The Petitioner did not submit documentary evidence and did not independently establish a specific just value by a preponderance of the evidence.
2. The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment was based on arbitrary appraisal practice different from like properties in the same county.
3. Notwithstanding the foregoing, the hearing record contains competent, substantial evidence, including the PAO's own comparable sales analysis with appropriate COS adjustments applied, demonstrating that the assessed just value exceeds fair market value.

   Property Appraiser (Mean Adjusted Price Per SF x Subject ASQFT) $275,817

Petitioner	(Stated Estimate of Value)	$264,000
Assessment (Just Value)		$293,936

The assessment is above the range and should be adjusted.

Conclusions of Law

Florida Administrative Code section 12D-9.027 lays out a sequence of general procedural steps that the Special Magistrate has followed in preparation of this recommendation to the Value Adjustment Board:

Determine whether the Property Appraiser has established a presumption of correctness for the assessment and determine whether the Property Appraiser's just valuation methodology is appropriate. The presumption of correctness is not established unless the Property Appraiser proves by a preponderance of the evidence that the methodology used to support the just value for the subject property complies with 193.011 F.S. and professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate.

The Special Magistrate reviewed all documentary evidence submitted by the PAO and the sworn testimony presented at the hearing and determined that such evidence was relevant and credible to the valuation at issue.

The Special Magistrate further determined that the hearing record contains competent, substantial evidence of value in compliance with Section 193.011, F.S. and professionally accepted appraisal practices.

Because the PAO did not establish a presumption of correctness, and because the evidence of record demonstrates that the assessed just value exceeds fair market value, the Special Magistrate is authorized to determine a revised just value based upon the competent, substantial evidence in the record. In establishing a revised just value, the Special Magistrate is not restricted to any specific value offered by either party.

Recommendation

In view of the findings of fact and conclusions of law as they relate to this petition before the Value Adjustment Board, the Special Magistrate recommends that the petition be Granted in Part and revised to $275,817.

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

HERNANDO ☑ County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-211	Parcel ID R32 323 17 5260 1755 0300
Petitioner name Edwin Rivera c/oSFR JV-1 2021-1 BORRO\ The petitioner is: ☐ taxpayer of record ☑ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	Property address 8421 Bay Drive Spring Hill, FL 34606

Decision Summary ☑ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	278,452.00	271,370.00	271,370.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	278,452.00	271,370.00	271,370.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0.00	0.00	0.00
4. Taxable value,* required	278,452.00	271,370.00	271,370.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact
See attached.

Conclusions of Law
See attached.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Shelley Kennedy Signature, special magistrate	Shelley Kennedy, MNAA Print name	12/16/2025 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

Petition No. 25-211

RECOMMENDATION OF SPECIAL MAGISTRATE
VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
HERNANDO COUNTY, FLORIDA

IN RE: THE PETITION OF: SFR JV-1 2021-1 BORROWER LLC
PARCEL KEY NO: 00738660

Petitioner Edwin Rivera of Ownwell, Inc. appeared telephonically at a hearing on behalf of SFR JV-1 2021-1 BORROWER LLC on December 12, 2025 to provide evidence pertaining to the 2025 property assessment for real property located in Hernando County, Florida. The Hernando County Property Appraiser's Office (PAO) was represented at the hearing by Doug Mack and Brandon Jimenez.

The Special Magistrate confirmed that all parties agree to hold the hearing telephonically. An opening statement regarding the role of the special magistrate was read and the parties were placed under oath. This petition was one of 12 scheduled by the petitioner on this hearing date. Any relevant testimony from these individual hearings will be incorporated by reference to avoid redundancy and expedite the hearing process. Only testimony relevant to this parcel was considered in reaching the findings and conclusions herein.

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

The Property Appraiser confirmed the 2025 Just Value at $271,370. The assessed value is $271,370 and the taxable value is $271,370. At the time the Notice of Proposed Property Taxes (TRIM Notice) was issued, the just value was $278,452 which was subsequently reduced to $271,370.

The Petitioner estimated Just Value at $258,000.

The subject of this petition is identified on the Hernando County tax rolls as parcel number R32-323-17-5260-1755-0300. The subject property is located at 8421 Bay Drive in Spring Hill, Hernando County, Florida. The subject is described as a single-family residence which was originally constructed in 2004. The evidence indicates that the property consists of 1,958 square feet of adjusted building area on a 13,516 square foot residential lot. The PAO conducted a field review of the subject parcel on 09/25/2025 to change class quality to D3 from C1.

The packet provided by the Property Appraiser was admitted into evidence as PAO-A and consisted of 15 pages including a cover page, case synopsis, subject property record card, comparable sales tester and analysis, location maps, cost of sale adjustment clarification and computations, property record cards for provided sales and a structure area adjustment factors sheet.

The Petitioner did not provide documentary evidence within the statutory timeframe. The Special Magistrate considered the Petitioner's sworn verbal testimony presented at the hearing.

The petitioner acknowledged that they received the PAO's evidence in compliance with the statutory procedures for evidence exchange. The documentary evidence submitted by the PAO and the sworn testimony presented at the hearing meet the requirements of Florida Administrative Code 12D-9.025(1) and 12D-9.025(2)(b) and are considered sufficient, relevant, and credible, from which a reliable estimate of just, assessed and taxable value can be estimated.

BASIC AND UNDERLYING FINDINGS OF FACT

The Property Appraiser asserts in the Case Synopsis that "The Property Appraiser's Office used the Sales Comparison Approach and has considered all of the Eight Criteria required in Florida Statute 193.011 and we believe we have demonstrated that we have the preponderance of evidence that the subject's value represents just value".

The Florida Legislature has enacted eight criteria that the property appraiser must consider when determining just value. In any administrative or judicial action where a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment, the property appraiser's estimate of just value is presumed correct if it is proven that the assessment was made in compliance with the eight criteria outlined in F.S. Section 193.011 and in accordance with professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The only standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence, meaning the greater weight of the evidence or "more likely true than not" as per F.S 194.301.

Florida Courts have consistently held that the property appraiser is required to consider all eight factors, that each factor does not have be given equal weight but that failure to consider any single factor can invalidate an assessment. The extent to which the property appraiser has considered each of these eight criteria for this property is summarized in the following paragraphs.

1. Present Cash Value of the Property- the amount a willing buyer would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arm's length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through comparable sales analysis similar to that found in fee appraisal. The property appraiser presented comparable sales as evidence in support of the present cash value. The PAO relied primarily upon the sales comparison approach, considered Computer-Assisted Mass Appraisal (CAMA) analysis, and placed no weight on the cost or income approaches to value. This is considered an appropriate methodology by the Special Magistrate.

The PAO supplied 3 improved sales in the subject's market area:
PAO Sale #1 was built in 2005 and has 1,705 adjusted square feet on a 13,055 square foot lot. This property sold in May 2024 for $302,000 and the adjusted sales price for comparison purposes is $299,091.
PAO Sale #2 was built in 2004 and has 1,668 adjusted square feet on a 13,855 square foot lot. This property sold in November 2024 for $287,000 and the adjusted sales price for comparison purposes is $285,124.
PAO Sale #3 was built in 2005 and has 1,819 adjusted square feet on a 10,000 square foot lot. This property sold in July 2024 for $299,900 and the adjusted sales price for comparison purposes is $296,862.

The PAO performed their analysis utilizing adjusted square foot (SF). While adjusted square footage is generally considered less precise than heated square footage in fee appraisal, it is commonly utilized in mass appraisal. Adjusted sales prices range from $285,124 to $299,091 with a median of $296,862 and a mean of $293,692. After adjusting downward 15% for COS, these 3 sales indicate a mean of $249,638 or approximately $144.37 per square foot (based on the mean ASQFT of the PAO's sales).

The PAO sales reflect a value for the subject of $144.37/SF x 1,958 (ASQFT) or $282,676. The subject's Just Value assessment reflects a value of $138.60/SF or $271,370, which is supported when considered in relation to the comparable sales after the COS adjustment is applied.

The PAO sales were considered credible and relevant.

The Petitioner did not submit documentary evidence within the statutory timeframe and therefore presented only sworn verbal testimony at the hearing. By filing DR-486, Petition to the Value Adjustment Board Request for Hearing, the Petitioner is alleging that the PAO has assessed the property in excess of just value. It is the Petitioner's burden to prove the assessment does not represent just value. Proof should be based on similar criteria to which the Legislature has provided for the PAO to follow. To prevail in an assessment challenge, the taxpayer must prove more than a mere difference of opinion regarding an assessment.

The Petitioner stated that, in determining their estimate of value, they considered the subject's living area of 1,647 SF for comparison purposes. Their analysis included 5 sales ranging in living area from 1,354 to 1,980 SF with sales prices ranging from $127,200 to $350,000. Their adjusted sales prices range from $115,621 to $270,003 with a mean of $226,000 and a median of $258,000, which is also their opinion of value.

The PAO representative stated on rebuttal that 2 of the Petitioner's sales are significantly older than the subject.

2. Highest & Best Use- the use that is legally permissible, physically possible, financially feasible, and maximally productive. The highest and best use of the subject is for residential use. The highest and best use was not disputed by the Petitioner.
3. Location of the Property- how the property's surroundings influence its value. Site specific location adjustments can be made to reflect either an enhanced location or an inferior location. All of the comparables presented in support of value are located in the same overall market area as the subject (same subdivision). Each has similar frontage and/or views. The location of this property was not disputed by the Petitioner.
4. Quantity or Size of the Property-square footage, acreage, front footage, unit count. The PAO must consider the quantity or size of the property by determining and recording the correct land size, building size and extra features and quantities. Land size is based on legal description from recorded plats or metes and bounds. Building sizes and extra features are determined by inspection and measured by deputy property appraisers. The size of the property was not disputed by the Petitioner.
5. Cost of the Property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon – An analysis of cost/depreciated cost is made in the CAMA system and found on the property record card. PAO considers replacement costs through the use of Marshall & Swift Valuation Service data and through annual surveys with different contractors to come up with feature rates (these are adjusted manually). Rates are adjusted annually to reflect the costs relevant to January 1 of the given tax year. No separate analysis of cost has been presented during the hearing. It is the opinion of the Special Magistrate that this cost analysis complies with 193.011(5) F.S. and generally accepted appraisal practices.
6. Condition of the Property-physical state and functional adequacy of improvements. The PAO considers the condition of the property through periodic property inspections, no less than once every five years as required by Statute. Other events can trigger more frequent site inspections, including the sale of a property, issuance of a building permit, assessment appeal or at the taxpayer's request. Condition is considered as a factor applied to the CAMA system value calculation for value losses from all sources based upon an age/life depreciation method. It appears that the condition of the property has been considered by the PAO and depreciation was calculated at 20%.

7. Income from the Property- income producing ability of the property. No analysis of income has been presented during the hearing and buyers in this sector of the real estate market typically do not consider income generating ability when valuing this type of property. It is the opinion of the Special Magistrate that this income analysis complies with 193.011(7) F.S. and generally accepted appraisal practices.
8. Net Proceeds of the Sale- the net proceeds of the sale of the property, as received by the seller, after deduction of the usual and reasonable fees and costs of the sale, including the costs and expenses of financing, and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms of financing arrangements. Applicable law provides for uniform cost of sale deductions in just valuations without regard to whether the property was sold, whether mass appraisal or single property appraisal is used, the appraisal approach used to value the property or whether the petitioner is seeking an increase or decrease in just value.

The PAO considered cost of sales in their reconciliation process of 15%. The Petitioner did not specify if their reconciliation process included a COS adjustment.

Ultimate Findings of Fact

Pursuant to Section 194.301 F.S, the Property Appraiser's assessment shall be entitled to a Presumption of Correctness if the Property Appraiser shows, by the preponderance of the evidence, that the Property Appraiser considered each of the eight criteria set forth in Section 193.011 F.S., the Property Appraiser applied the correct appraisal methodology based upon the characteristics of the property, and the Property Appraiser did not use appraisal practices which are different than the appraisal practices generally applied by the Property Appraiser to comparable properties in the same county.

1. In accordance with Section 194.301 F.S., it is concluded that the PAO DID establish a presumption of correctness by properly considering the eight criteria and further, it is concluded that the methodology used by the PAO IS appropriate and DOES comply with professionally accepted practices for the subject property type. The Petitioner DID NOT overcome the presumption of correctness.
2. The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment was based on arbitrary appraisal practice different from like properties in the same county.
3. The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment is excessive. Thus, the assessed value DOES NOT exceed 100% of the fair market value of the property.

Property Appraiser	(Indicated Value from Sales Analysis)	$282,676
Petitioner	(Stated Estimate of Value)	$258,000
Assessment (Just Value)		$271,370

The Just Value is supported by the PAO sales, therefore the petition is denied.

Conclusions of Law

Florida Administrative Code section 12D-9.027 lays out a sequence of general procedural steps that the Special Magistrate has followed in preparation of this recommendation to the Value Adjustment Board:

Determine whether the Property Appraiser has established a presumption of correctness for the assessment and determine whether the Property Appraiser's just valuation methodology is appropriate. The presumption of correctness is not established unless the Property Appraiser proves by a preponderance of the evidence that the methodology used to support the just value for the subject property complies with 193.011 F.S. and professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate.

The Special Magistrate reviewed all evidence presented by all parties and determined that the evidence and testimony was relevant and credible to the valuation at hand. Thus, the evidence as presented was admitted for consideration in relation to the appropriateness of the subject assessment.

The Special Magistrate determined that the testimonial and documentary evidence meet the test of relevancy and credibility and WAS sufficient to reach the preponderance of evidence standard of proof required by Rule 12D-9.027(5)(6). The Special Magistrate also determined that there IS competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with 193.011 F.S. and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish the assessment.

The Special Magistrate determined that the hearing record contains competent, substantial evidence supporting the just value assessment. After weighing all of the documentary and testimonial evidence it is concluded that the assessment IS reasonable and within market parameters.

Recommendation

In view of the findings of fact and conclusions of law as they relate to this petition before the Value Adjustment Board, the Special Magistrate recommends that the petition be Denied.

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

HERNANDO ☑ County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-216	Parcel ID R32-323-17-5120-0718-0020
Petitioner name Kenyon, Charles H & Tameka The petitioner is: ☐ taxpayer of record ☑ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	Property address 14071 Linden Drive Spring Hill, FL 34608

Decision Summary ☑ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	521,986.00	521,986.00	521,986.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	521,986.00	521,986.00	521,986.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	55,722.00	55,722.00	55,722.00
4. Taxable value,* required	466,264.00	466,264.00	466,264.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact
See attached.

Conclusions of Law
See attached.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Shelley Kennedy Signature, special magistrate	Shelley Kennedy, MNAA Print name	01/07/2026 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

Petition No. 25-216

RECOMMENDATION OF SPECIAL MAGISTRATE
VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
HERNANDO COUNTY, FLORIDA

IN RE: THE PETITION OF: KENYON, CHARLES H & TAMEKA
PARCEL KEY NO: 00295460

Petitioner Edwin Rivera of Ownwell, Inc. appeared telephonically at a hearing on behalf of KENYON, CHARLES H & TAMEKA on December 12, 2025 to provide evidence pertaining to the 2025 property assessment for real property located in Hernando County, Florida. The Hernando County Property Appraiser's Office (PAO) was represented at the hearing by Doug Mack and Brandon Jimenez.

The Special Magistrate confirmed that all parties agree to hold the hearing telephonically. An opening statement regarding the role of the special magistrate was read and the parties were placed under oath. This petition was one of 12 scheduled by the petitioner on this hearing date. Any relevant testimony from these individual hearings will be incorporated by reference to avoid redundancy and expedite the hearing process. Only testimony relevant to this parcel was considered in reaching the findings and conclusions herein.

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

The Property Appraiser confirmed the 2025 Just Value at $521,986. The assessed value is $521,986 and the taxable value is $466,264. There have been no changes to the values since the Notice of Proposed Property Taxes (TRIM Notice) was issued.

The Petitioner estimated Just Value at $420,000.

The subject of this petition is identified on the Hernando County tax rolls as parcel number R32-323-17-5120-0718-0020. The subject property is located at 14071 Linden Drive in Spring Hill, Hernando County, Florida. The subject is described as a single-family residence which was originally constructed in 2005. The evidence indicates that the property consists of 3,160 square feet of adjusted building area on a 44,531 square foot residential lot with a screen enclosed inground pool. The PAO conducted a field review of the subject parcel on 02/22/2023 for sales review.

The packet provided by the Property Appraiser was admitted into evidence as PAO-A and consisted of 19 pages including a cover page, case synopsis, subject property record card, comparable sales tester and analysis, location maps, cost of sale adjustment clarification and computations, property record cards for provided sales and a structure area adjustment factors sheet.

The Petitioner did not provide documentary evidence within the statutory timeframe. The Special Magistrate considered the Petitioner's sworn verbal testimony presented at the hearing.

The petitioner acknowledged that they received the PAO's evidence in compliance with the statutory procedures for evidence exchange. The documentary evidence submitted by the PAO and the sworn testimony presented at the hearing meet the requirements of Florida Administrative Code 12D-9.025(1) and 12D-9.025(2)(b) and are considered sufficient, relevant, and credible, for purposes of the hearing record and consideration of the assessment at issue.

BASIC AND UNDERLYING FINDINGS OF FACT

The Property Appraiser asserts in the Case Synopsis that "The Property Appraiser's Office used the Sales Comparison Approach and has considered all of the Eight Criteria required in Florida Statute 193.011 and we believe we have demonstrated that we have the preponderance of evidence that the subject's value represents just value".

The Florida Legislature has enacted eight criteria that the property appraiser must consider when determining just value. In any administrative or judicial action where a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment, the property appraiser's estimate of just value is presumed correct if it is proven that the assessment was made in compliance with the eight criteria outlined in F.S. Section 193.011 and in accordance with professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The only standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence, meaning the greater weight of the evidence or "more likely true than not" as per F.S 194.301.

Florida Courts have consistently held that the property appraiser is required to consider all eight factors, that each factor does not have be given equal weight but that failure to consider any single factor can invalidate an assessment. The extent to which the property appraiser has considered each of these eight criteria for this property is summarized in the following paragraphs.

1. Present Cash Value of the Property- the amount a willing buyer would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arm's length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through comparable sales analysis similar to that found in fee appraisal. The property appraiser presented comparable sales as evidence in support of the present cash value. The PAO relied primarily upon the sales comparison approach, considered Computer-Assisted Mass Appraisal (CAMA) analysis, and placed no weight on the cost or income approaches to value. This is considered an appropriate methodology by the Special Magistrate.

The PAO supplied 3 improved sales in the subject's market area:
PAO Sale #1 was built in 2009 and has 2,947 adjusted square feet on a 12,500 square foot lot. This property sold in June 2024 for $410,000 and the adjusted sales price for comparison purposes is $390,913. This property has a screen enclosed inground pool.
PAO Sale #2 was built in 2002 and has 2,684 adjusted square feet on a 10,000 square foot lot. This property sold in September 2024 for $407,500 and the adjusted sales price for comparison purposes is $382,848. This property has a screen enclosed inground pool.
PAO Sale #3 was built in 2004 and has 2,574 adjusted square feet on a 15,825 square foot lot. This property sold in August 2024 for $384,900 and the adjusted sales price for comparison purposes is $373,738. This property has a screen enclosed inground pool.

Each of the PAO's comparable sales is located on a significantly smaller residential site than the subject property, which contains approximately one acre.

The PAO performed their analysis utilizing adjusted square foot (SF). While adjusted square footage is generally considered less precise than heated square footage in fee appraisal, it is commonly utilized in mass appraisal. Adjusted sales prices range from $373,738 to $390,913 with a median of $382,848 and a mean of $382,500. After adjusting downward 12% for COS, these 3 sales indicate a mean of $336,600 or approximately $123.34 per square foot (based on the mean ASQFT of the PAO's sales).

The PAO sales reflect a value for the subject of $123.34/SF x 3,160 (ASQFT) or $389,754. The subject's Just Value assessment reflects a value of $165.19/SF or $521,986, which is not supported when the comparable sales are analyzed after the application of the COS adjustment and in light of the unadjusted site size differences.

The PAO sales were considered credible and relevant.

The Petitioner did not submit documentary evidence within the statutory timeframe and therefore presented only sworn verbal testimony at the hearing. By filing DR-486, Petition to the Value Adjustment Board Request for Hearing, the Petitioner is alleging that the PAO has assessed the property in excess of just value. It is the Petitioner's burden to prove the assessment does not represent just value. Proof should be based on similar criteria to which the Legislature has provided for the PAO to follow. To prevail in an assessment challenge, the taxpayer must prove more than a mere difference of opinion regarding an assessment.

The Petitioner stated that, in determining their estimate of value, they considered the subject's living area of 2,773 SF for comparison purposes. Their analysis included 3 sales ranging in living area from 2,388 to 2,713 SF with sales prices ranging from $410,000 to $580,000. Their adjusted sales prices range from $386,064 to $504,101 with a mean of $437,000 and a median of $420,972, which, when rounded, is also their opinion of value.

The PAO representative stated on rebuttal that one of the Petitioner's sales was a repaired sinkhole property, although the subject property and all of the PAO's provided sales are repaired sinkhole properties.

2. Highest & Best Use- the use that is legally permissible, physically possible, financially feasible, and maximally productive. The highest and best use of the subject is for residential use. The highest and best use was not disputed by the Petitioner.
3. Location of the Property- how the property's surroundings influence its value. Site specific location adjustments can be made to reflect either an enhanced location or an inferior location. All of the comparables presented in support of value are located in the same overall market area as the subject (same subdivision). Each has similar frontage and/or views. The location of this property was not disputed by the Petitioner.
4. Quantity or Size of the Property-square footage, acreage, front footage, unit count. The PAO must consider the quantity or size of the property by determining and recording the correct land size, building size and extra features and quantities. Land size is based on legal description from recorded plats or metes and bounds. Building sizes and extra features are determined by inspection and measured by deputy property appraisers. The size of the property was not disputed by the Petitioner.
5. Cost of the Property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon – An analysis of cost/depreciated cost is made in the CAMA system and found on the property record card. PAO considers replacement costs through the use of Marshall & Swift Valuation Service data and through annual surveys with different contractors to come up with feature rates (these are adjusted manually). Rates are adjusted annually to reflect the costs relevant to January 1 of the given tax year. No separate analysis of cost has been presented during the hearing. It is the opinion of the Special Magistrate that this cost analysis complies with 193.011(5) F.S. and generally accepted appraisal practices.
6. Condition of the Property-physical state and functional adequacy of improvements. The PAO considers the condition of the property through periodic property inspections, no less than once every five years as required by Statute. Other events can trigger more frequent site inspections, including the sale of a property, issuance of a building permit, assessment appeal or at the taxpayer's request. Condition is considered as a factor applied to the CAMA system value calculation for value losses from all sources based upon an age/life depreciation method. It appears that the condition of the property has been considered by the PAO and depreciation was calculated at 16%.

7. Income from the Property- income producing ability of the property. No analysis of income has been presented during the hearing and buyers in this sector of the real estate market typically do not consider income generating ability when valuing this type of property. It is the opinion of the Special Magistrate that this income analysis complies with 193.011(7) F.S. and generally accepted appraisal practices.
8. Net Proceeds of the Sale- the net proceeds of the sale of the property, as received by the seller, after deduction of the usual and reasonable fees and costs of the sale, including the costs and expenses of financing, and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms of financing arrangements. Applicable law provides for uniform cost of sale deductions in just valuations without regard to whether the property was sold, whether mass appraisal or single property appraisal is used, the appraisal approach used to value the property or whether the petitioner is seeking an increase or decrease in just value. The PAO considered cost of sales in their reconciliation process of 12%. The Petitioner did not specify if their reconciliation process included a COS adjustment.

Ultimate Findings of Fact

Pursuant to Section 194.301 F.S, the Property Appraiser's assessment shall be entitled to a Presumption of Correctness if the Property Appraiser shows, by the preponderance of the evidence, that the Property Appraiser considered each of the eight criteria set forth in Section 193.011 F.S., the Property Appraiser applied the correct appraisal methodology based upon the characteristics of the property, and the Property Appraiser did not use appraisal practices which are different than the appraisal practices generally applied by the Property Appraiser to comparable properties in the same county.

1. In accordance with Section 194.301 F.S., it is concluded that the PAO DID NOT establish a presumption of correctness. While the PAO presented comparable sales, those sales are located on substantially smaller sites than the subject property, which consists of approximately one acre. The record reflects no meaningful site size or land adjustment applied to account for this material difference. Notably, the adjusted sales prices are lower than the original sales prices, despite the subject also having a larger living area than two of the comparable properties and a substantially larger site, without evidence of corresponding land or excess site adjustments. As a result, the PAO's comparable sales analysis does not provide a reliable indication of the subject's value. The Petitioner did not submit documentary evidence and did not independently establish a specific just value by a preponderance of the evidence.

2. The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment was based on arbitrary appraisal practice different from like properties in the same county.
3. The Special Magistrate finds that the evidence presented by both parties is insufficient to establish a reliable alternative estimate of just value. While the PAO's reconciliation produces a lower indicated value, a lower indication alone is insufficient to support a reduction where the underlying analysis fails to account for material differences in site size. The failure to account for the subject's materially larger site renders the analysis non-probative and not competent, substantial evidence upon which to revise the assessment.

Property Appraiser	(Indicated Value from Sales Analysis)	$389,754
Petitioner	(Stated Estimate of Value)	$420,000
Assessment (Just Value)		$521,986

Accordingly, the assessment is not supported by a reliable alternative value derived from the evidence of record.

Conclusions of Law

Florida Administrative Code section 12D-9.027 lays out a sequence of general procedural steps that the Special Magistrate has followed in preparation of this recommendation to the Value Adjustment Board:

Determine whether the Property Appraiser has established a presumption of correctness for the assessment and determine whether the Property Appraiser's just valuation methodology is appropriate. The presumption of correctness is not established unless the Property Appraiser proves by a preponderance of the evidence that the methodology used to support the just value for the subject property complies with 193.011 F.S. and professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate.

The Special Magistrate reviewed all documentary evidence submitted by the PAO and the sworn testimony presented at the hearing and determined that, although relevant, the evidence does not provide a reliable basis for determining a revised just value due to the failure to account for material site size differences.

The Special Magistrate further determined that the hearing record does not contain competent, substantial evidence sufficient to establish a specific alternative just value for the subject property.

Because the PAO did not establish a presumption of correctness, and because neither party presented competent, substantial evidence sufficient to establish a reliable alternative just value, the Special Magistrate is not authorized to revise the assessment based on the evidence of record.

Recommendation

In view of the findings of fact and conclusions of law as they relate to this petition before the Value Adjustment Board, the Special Magistrate recommends that the petition be Denied.

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

Hernando County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-217	Parcel ID R31-223-18-3527-0000-0180
Petitioner name Ana Fernandes, Paulo M Fernandes The petitioner is: ☑ taxpayer of record ☐ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	Property address 10337 Fairchild Rd Spring Hill, FL 34608

Decision Summary ☐ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☑ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	391,269.00	391,269.00	315,036.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	369,510.00	369,510.00	315,036.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0.00	0.00	0.00
4. Taxable value,* required	369,510.00	369,510.00	315,036.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact
See attached.

Conclusions of Law
See attached.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Colleen E Millett	Colleen E Millett	02/04/2026
Signature, special magistrate	Print name	Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

PETITION NO. 25-217

RECOMMENDATION OF SPECIAL MAGISTRATE

VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD

HERNANDO COUNTY, FLORIDA

IN RE: THE PETITION OF: Ana Fernandes, Paulo M Fernandes

PARCEL KEY NO: 01182062

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

The Petitioner, Travis Schneider of Ownwell, Inc for Ana Fernandes and Paulo M Fernandes, appeared telephonically before the Special Magistrate to give testimony. The Property Appraiser was represented by BRANDON JIMENEZ and DOUG MACK. All present parties were put under sworn oath.

The Property Appraiser verified the values accordingly; a just value of $391,269, an assessed or capped value of $369,510, and a taxable value of $369,510. There was no change in value after the process.

The Petitioner estimated just value at $312,000 and amended it to $317,000.

Subject Property Type: The subject is a 2,202 SF (heated) single family dwelling with 2,621 adjusted SF that was built in 1999. The subject is located at 10337 Fairchild Rd, Spring Hill, FL and is a repaired sinkhole property.

The PAO evidence consists of an evidence packet with a case synopsis, PRC with photo and an aerial map of the subject property, a sales analysis report with (3) sales, location map of sales, summary of cost of sale adjustment, PRCs for each sale, and verbal testimony.

The Petitioner's evidence consists of a petition, summary of evidence submission, property photos, evaluation summary, market value analysis grid with (5) sales, location map of sales, photos of comparable sales, and verbal testimony.

Per testimony by the PAO, there was a timely evidence exchange. There were no objections, and all the evidence noted above is considered admissible (unless specifically noted as inadmissible).

Overall, the evidence presented meets specific evidence rules (See Rule 12D-9,025(1) and Rule 12D-9.025(2)b, F.A.C) and is considered sufficient, relevant, and credible information available, from which a reliable estimate of just, assessed, and taxable value can be estimated.

BASIC AND UNDERLYING FINDINGS OF FACT

The PAO relied upon the sales comparison approach to value and considered CAMA analysis at TRIM. The approach utilized is considered an appropriate methodology by the Special Magistrate.

The PAO presented their evidence packet with a sales analysis report utilizing (3) improved sales from the subject market area, all of which were repaired sinkhole properties. The PAO performed their analysis utilizing adjusted SF which is generally considered less reliable than utilizing heated SF however, is often used in mass appraisal. The PAO focused on age and location of the subject, and as such, all comparable sales are within 0.78 miles.

The Petitioner provided (5) improved sales (including the subject transfer if applicable). Of these sales, (0) were used by the PAO. The Petitioner adjusted for differences in age, heated SF, land size, features, time, and COS. The Petitioner was unaware if any of the sales utilized were repaired sinkhole properties. The Petitioner focused on location and as such, all (5) comparable sales were within a 0.34-mile radius of the subject.

The PAO had a rebuttal to the Petitioner's evidence and stated that Sales 1, 2, 4 and 5 were not repaired sinkhole properties, Sale 3 is a repaired sinkhole property, and Sale 2 is a villa. The PAO also noted the Petitioner's adjustment of $38/SF to be low.

Of the sales provided, (3) Petitioner and (0) PAO sales are not considered reliable (dissimilar in age, dissimilar design and/or size, lack of or excessive adjustment due to size discrepancies, sale date out of range). The median of the most reliable Petitioner sales indicates a just value for the subject of $330,021. The median of the most reliable PAO sales indicates a just value for the subject of $300,050. The median of all the most reliable sales from both parties is $315,036, which is a credible and reliable just value for the subject based on the available data. The PAO just value conclusion is $391,269. This data reliably supports that the subject is over assessed.

The PAO reported that their internal analysis supports a 15% increase in sale prices from 1/1/2024 to the lien date of 1/1/2025. They also reported that the DOR performed a study across this same period, utilizing qualified sales of like property, and concluded a 15% increase over the same period. The Special Magistrate assumes that the PAO utilized a process of sampling paired sales or some other subset of the available data. The Special Magistrate will equally weigh the DOR study results (15%) utilizing all qualified property sales, and the PAO conclusion (15%) and utilize 15% herein.

The Special Magistrate has applied a qualitative analysis of the data submitted by all parties and has also considered the recent sale of the subject property, if applicable. A COS factor of 15%, market conditions adjustment based on 12% annually, age/condition adjustment, land size/value, a factor for adjusted SF or non-heated area as a % of overall space, extra features differences, a SF adjustment, quality and view adjustments were considered.

The PAO considered the cost of sales in their reconciliation process. Proper consideration of the 1st and 8th criteria for the subject property would be approximately 7-12% (cost of sales adjustment; estimated to be brokerage cost of 5-7%, personal property 1-2%, and financing costs of 1-3%, properly considered for the subject). The Special Magistrate will consider this when weighing the appropriateness of each parties' conclusions and the assessment level.

The DOR utilizes 15% cost of sales in their oversight function for all property in aggregate. The Magistrate has considered the specific subject property in relation to cost of sales factors as follows (certain scale and property types will vary significantly if cost of sales is to be performed according to statute).

Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., requires proper consideration of the "net proceeds of sale," regardless of whether an actual sale of the property has occurred. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001). However, the statute does not require the property appraiser to select the value generated by the application of Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., and apply it in a blanket fashion to all assessments. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001).

All property is to be assessed at 100% of just value Walter v. Schuler 176 So.2d 81 (Fla 1965). The terms "just value" "fair market value' and "full cash value" are legally synonymous. Id.

The 1st and 8th criteria were introduced by the legislature after this ruling, suggesting that the legislature wishes real estate to be taxed net of typical sales costs, implying that "just value" is in fact equal to "market value net of typical sales costs". Based on current training material for Special Magistrates, this consistently and strongly advises a deduction for the 1st and 8th criteria.

The PAO testified to documentation that pertains to the DOR treatment of the eight criteria

required under FS 193.011. The PAO testified to and has documented how each of the criteria was considered in their development of the assessment in regard to the property at hand. The PAO addressed the requirements of FS 193.011 as follows:

"Factors to consider in deriving just valuation. – In arriving at just valuation as required under s. 4, Art. VII of the State Constitution, the property appraiser shall take into consideration the following factors:

(1) The present cash value of the property, which is the amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arm's length;

The PAO, within the CAMA system, makes an adjustment for cost of sale within their direct application of the sales comparison analysis. An adjustment is made for cost of sale as noted under Criteria 8 in their CAMA analysis and in the reconciliation process.

(2) The highest and best use...,(shortened) Land use and building codes were considered along with the character of any existing site improvements, the subject is noted to be residential use and was not disputed by either party. Comparable data was selected based on this information.

(3) The location of the property; The subject property is assigned a location or neighborhood code within the PAO database related to its specific location. Comparable data is selected with as similar a location as is possible, while also considering other relevant factors.

(4) The quantity or size of the property; The size of the building, the site size and site improvements are based on data contained within the PRC and all comparable sales are selected with attention to similarity of size, while also considering and weighing the other relevant factors.

(5) The cost of said property and the present replacement value of any improvements thereon; Within the CAMA system, the PAO uses cost data and when applicable, considers a pure replacement cost new and depreciation factors within a cost approach to value.

(6) The condition of said property; The condition of the property, through periodic site inspections, actual age, and information submitted to them by property owners is considered by the PAO. The information is given a % good or % depreciation factor and is noted in their subject documentation and/or PRC card and utilized in the CAMA analysis.

(7) The income from said property; and; When applicable, the PAO prepares an income capitalization analysis based on market data contained in their files, general market statistics, and when available, actual subject performance is considered.

(8) "The net proceeds of the sale of the property, as received by the seller, after deduction of all the usual and reasonable fees and costs of the sale, including the costs and expenses of financing, and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms or financing arrangements. When the net proceeds of the sale of any property are utilized, directly or indirectly, in the determination of just valuation of realty of the sold parcel or any other parcel under the provisions of this section, the property appraiser, for the purposes of such determination, shall exclude any portion of such net proceeds attributable to payments for household furnishings or other items of personal property."

The cost of sales is considered by the PAO within their CAMA analysis and in reconciliation when performing discrete sales, income or cost analysis. Sales prices of comparable properties are adjusted downward (reportedly) within CAMA, typically at near 15%.

ULTIMATE FINDINGS OF FACT

Florida Statute section 194.301 elaborates the standards of review that the Special Magistrate must apply to any petition to the Value Adjustment Board. The statute states as follows:

Pursuant to Section 194.301, the Property Appraiser's assessment shall be entitled to a Presumption of Correctness if the Property Appraiser shows, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the Property Appraiser considered each of the eight criteria set forth in Section 193.011, the Property Appraiser applied the correct appraisal methodology based upon the characteristics of the property, and the Property Appraiser did not use appraisal practices which are different than the appraisal practices generally applied by the Property Appraiser to comparable property in the same county.

In accordance with Rule 12D-10.003(5)(a), it is concluded that the PAO DID establish a presumption of correctness by properly considering the eight criteria described in FS 193.011. Further, it is concluded that the methodology used by the PAO IS appropriate and DOES comply with professionally accepted appraisal practices for the subject property type. The Petitioner DID overcome the presumption of correctness.

The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment was based on an arbitrary appraisal practice different from like property in the same county.

The Petitioner HAS shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment is excessive. Thus, the assessed value DOES exceed 100% of the fair market value of the property.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence. See Rule 12D-9.025(1), Florida Administrative Code (FAC). Generally, “relevant evidence” is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. This description means the evidence meets or exceeds the minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. See Rule 12D-9.025(2)(b) FAC.

The Special Magistrate reviewed all evidence presented by all parties. In accordance with DOR guidelines, the Special Magistrate determined that the evidence and testimony was relevant and credible to the valuation at hand. Thus, the evidence as presented was admitted for consideration in relation to the appropriateness of the subject assessment.

The Special Magistrate has determined that the testimonial and documentary evidence (combined) meet the test of “relevancy and credibility” and WAS sufficient to reach the “preponderance of the evidence” standard of proof required by Rule 12D-9.027(6) FAC.

The Special Magistrate also determined that there IS competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with the criteria of FS 193.011 and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish the assessment.

The Special Magistrate finds that the Petitioner HAS satisfied the "preponderance of the evidence" standard under the facts as testified to, that the appraiser's assessment is in excess of just value. After weighing all the documentary and testimonial evidence it is concluded that the assessment IS NOT reasonable and within market parameters.

RECOMMENDATION

It is recommended by the Special Magistrate that the relief applied for in this petition be GRANTED in part with a reduction in just value to $315,036.

Special Magistrate

Colleen E Millett

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

Hernando County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-223	Parcel ID R32-223-18-3743-0000-0060
Petitioner name Chris Cash (Invitation Homes 7 Florida LP) The petitioner is: ☑ taxpayer of record ☐ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	Property address 11980 Lavender Loop Spring Hill, FL 34609

Decision Summary ☐ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☑ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	342,136.00	342,136.00	313,137.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	342,136.00	342,136.00	313,137.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0.00	0.00	0.00
4. Taxable value,* required	342,136.00	342,136.00	313,137.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact
See attached.

Conclusions of Law
See attached.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	Print name	Date
Colleen E Millett	Colleen E Millett	02/04/2026
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

PETITION NO. 25-223

RECOMMENDATION OF SPECIAL MAGISTRATE

VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD

HERNANDO COUNTY, FLORIDA

IN RE: THE PETITION OF: Chris Cash (Invitation Homes 7 Florida LP)

PARCEL KEY NO: 01818224

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

The Petitioner, Travis Schneider of Ownwell, Inc for Chris Cash (Invitation Homes 7 Florida LP), appeared telephonically before the Special Magistrate to give testimony. The Property Appraiser was represented by BRANDON JIMENEZ and DOUG MACK. All present parties were put under sworn oath.

The Property Appraiser verified the values accordingly; a just value of $342,136, an assessed or capped value of $342,136, and a taxable value of $342,136. There was no change in value after the process.

The Petitioner estimated just value at $295,000.

Subject Property Type: The subject is a 2,578 SF (heated) single family dwelling with 2,816 adjusted SF that was built in 2024. The subject is located at 11980 Lavender Lp, Spring Hill, FL.

The PAO evidence consists of an evidence packet with a case synopsis, PRC with photo and an aerial map of the subject property, a sales analysis report with (3) sales, location map of sales, summary of cost of sale adjustment, PRCs for each sale, and verbal testimony.

The Petitioner's evidence consists of a petition, summary of evidence submission, property photos, evaluation summary, market value analysis grid with (3) sales, location map of sales, damage/deferred maintenance estimate, no photos of comparable sales, and verbal testimony.

Per testimony by the PAO, there was a timely evidence exchange. There were no objections, and all the evidence noted above is considered admissible (unless specifically noted as inadmissible).

Overall, the evidence presented meets specific evidence rules (See Rule 12D-9,025(1) and Rule 12D-9.025(2)b, F.A.C) and is considered sufficient, relevant, and credible information available, from which a reliable estimate of just, assessed, and taxable value can be estimated.

BASIC AND UNDERLYING FINDINGS OF FACT

The PAO relied upon the sales comparison approach to value and considered CAMA analysis at TRIM. The approach utilized is considered an appropriate methodology by the Special Magistrate.

The PAO presented their evidence packet with a sales analysis report utilizing (3) improved sales from the subject market area. The PAO performed their analysis utilizing adjusted SF which is generally considered less reliable than utilizing heated SF however, is often used in mass appraisal. The PAO focused on age and location of the subject, and as such, all comparable sales are within 0.19 miles.

The Petitioner provided (3) improved sales (including the subject transfer if applicable). Of these sales, (0) were used by the PAO. The Petitioner adjusted for differences in age, heated SF, land size, features, time, and COS. The Petitioner provided an estimate of damage/deferred maintenance of $5,780 for A/C unit. The Petitioner focused on location and as such, all (3) comparable sales were within the subject subdivision.

The PAO had a rebuttal to the Petitioner's evidence in that only first floor living area was noted on the sales grid, and the subject and comparable sales are all 2-story dwellings.

Of the sales provided, (0) Petitioner and (0) PAO sales are not considered reliable (dissimilar in age, dissimilar design and/or size, lack of or excessive adjustment due to size discrepancies, sale date out of range). The median of the most reliable Petitioner sales indicates a just value for the subject of $295,283. The median of the most reliable PAO sales indicates a just value for the subject of $330,990. The median of all the most reliable sales from both parties is $313,137, which is a credible and reliable just value for the subject based on the available data. The PAO just value conclusion is $342,136. This data reliably supports that the subject is over assessed.

The PAO reported that their internal analysis supports a 15% increase in sale prices from 1/1/2024 to the lien date of 1/1/2025. They also reported that the DOR performed a study across this same period, utilizing qualified sales of like property, and concluded a 15% increase over the same period. The Special Magistrate assumes that the PAO utilized a process of sampling paired sales or some other subset of the available data. The Special

Magistrate will equally weigh the DOR study results (15%) utilizing all qualified property sales, and the PAO conclusion (15%) and utilize 15% herein.

The Special Magistrate has applied a qualitative analysis of the data submitted by all parties and has also considered the recent sale of the subject property, if applicable. A COS factor of 15%, market conditions adjustment based on 12% annually, age/condition adjustment, land size/value, a factor for adjusted SF or non-heated area as a % of overall space, extra features differences, a SF adjustment, quality and view adjustments were considered.

The PAO considered the cost of sales in their reconciliation process. Proper consideration of the 1st and 8th criteria for the subject property would be approximately 7-12% (cost of sales adjustment; estimated to be brokerage cost of 5-7%, personal property 1-2%, and financing costs of 1-3%, properly considered for the subject). The Special Magistrate will consider this when weighing the appropriateness of each parties' conclusions and the assessment level.

The DOR utilizes 15% cost of sales in their oversight function for all property in aggregate. The Magistrate has considered the specific subject property in relation to cost of sales factors as follows (certain scale and property types will vary significantly if cost of sales is to be performed according to statute).

Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., requires proper consideration of the "net proceeds of sale," regardless of whether an actual sale of the property has occurred. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001). However, the statute does not require the property appraiser to select the value generated by the application of Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., and apply it in a blanket fashion to all assessments. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001).

All property is to be assessed at 100% of just value Walter v. Schuler 176 So.2d 81 (Fla 1965). The terms "just value" "fair market value' and "full cash value" are legally synonymous. Id.

The 1st and 8th criteria were introduced by the legislature after this ruling, suggesting that the legislature wishes real estate to be taxed net of typical sales costs, implying that "just value" is in fact equal to "market value net of typical sales costs". Based on current training material for Special Magistrates, this consistently and strongly advises a deduction for the 1st and 8th criteria.

The PAO testified to documentation that pertains to the DOR treatment of the eight criteria required under FS 193.011. The PAO testified to and has documented how each of the criteria was considered in their development of the assessment in regard to the property at hand. The PAO addressed the requirements of FS 193.011 as follows:

“Factors to consider in deriving just valuation. – In arriving at just valuation as required under s. 4, Art. VII of the State Constitution, the property appraiser shall take into consideration the following factors:

(1) The present cash value of the property, which is the amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arm's length;

The PAO, within the CAMA system, makes an adjustment for cost of sale within their direct application of the sales comparison analysis. An adjustment is made for cost of sale as noted under Criteria 8 in their CAMA analysis and in the reconciliation process.

(2) The highest and best use...,(shortened) Land use and building codes were considered along with the character of any existing site improvements, the subject is noted to be residential use and was not disputed by either party. Comparable data was selected based on this information.

(3) The location of the property; The subject property is assigned a location or neighborhood code within the PAO database related to its specific location. Comparable data is selected with as similar a location as is possible, while also considering other relevant factors.

(4) The quantity or size of the property; The size of the building, the site size and site improvements are based on data contained within the PRC and all comparable sales are selected with attention to similarity of size, while also considering and weighing the other relevant factors.

(5) The cost of said property and the present replacement value of any improvements thereon; Within the CAMA system, the PAO uses cost data and when applicable, considers a pure replacement cost new and depreciation factors within a cost approach to value.

(6) The condition of said property; The condition of the property, through periodic site inspections, actual age, and information submitted to them by property owners is considered by the PAO. The information is given a % good or % depreciation factor and is noted in their subject documentation and/or PRC card and utilized in the CAMA analysis.

(7) The income from said property; and; When applicable, the PAO prepares an income capitalization analysis based on market data contained in their files, general market statistics, and when available, actual subject performance is considered.

(8) "The net proceeds of the sale of the property, as received by the seller, after deduction of all the usual and reasonable fees and costs of the sale, including the costs and expenses of financing, and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms or financing arrangements. When the net proceeds of the sale of any property are utilized, directly or indirectly, in the determination of just valuation of realty of the sold parcel or any other parcel under the provisions of this section, the property appraiser, for the purposes of such determination, shall exclude any portion of such net proceeds attributable to payments for household furnishings or other items of personal property."

The cost of sales is considered by the PAO within their CAMA analysis and in reconciliation when performing discrete sales, income or cost analysis. Sales prices of comparable properties are adjusted downward (reportedly) within CAMA, typically at near 15%.

ULTIMATE FINDINGS OF FACT

Florida Statute section 194.301 elaborates the standards of review that the Special Magistrate must apply to any petition to the Value Adjustment Board. The statute states as follows:

Pursuant to Section 194.301, the Property Appraiser's assessment shall be entitled to a Presumption of Correctness if the Property Appraiser shows, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the Property Appraiser considered each of the eight criteria set forth in Section 193.011, the Property Appraiser applied the correct appraisal methodology based upon the characteristics of the property, and the Property Appraiser did not use appraisal practices which are different than the appraisal practices generally applied by the Property Appraiser to comparable property in the same county.

In accordance with Rule 12D-10.003(5)(a), it is concluded that the PAO DID establish a presumption of correctness by properly considering the eight criteria described in FS 193.011. Further, it is concluded that the methodology used by the PAO IS appropriate and DOES comply with professionally accepted appraisal practices for the subject property type. The Petitioner DID overcome the presumption of correctness.

The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment was based on an arbitrary appraisal practice different from like property in the same county.

The Petitioner HAS shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment is excessive. Thus, the assessed value DOES exceed 100% of the fair market value of the property.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence. See Rule 12D-9.025(1), Florida Administrative Code (FAC). Generally, “relevant evidence” is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. This description means the evidence meets or exceeds the minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. See Rule 12D-9.025(2)(b) FAC.

The Special Magistrate reviewed all evidence presented by all parties. In accordance with DOR guidelines, the Special Magistrate determined that the evidence and testimony was relevant and credible to the valuation at hand. Thus, the evidence as presented was admitted for consideration in relation to the appropriateness of the subject assessment.

The Special Magistrate has determined that the testimonial and documentary evidence (combined) meet the test of “relevancy and credibility” and WAS sufficient to reach the “preponderance of the evidence” standard of proof required by Rule 12D-9.027(6) FAC.

The Special Magistrate also determined that there IS competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with the criteria of FS 193.011 and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish the assessment.

The Special Magistrate finds that the Petitioner HAS satisfied the "preponderance of the evidence" standard under the facts as testified to, that the appraiser's assessment is in excess of just value. After weighing all the documentary and testimonial evidence it is concluded that the assessment IS NOT reasonable and within market parameters.

RECOMMENDATION

It is recommended by the Special Magistrate that the relief applied for in this petition be GRANTED in part with a reduction in just value to $313,137.

Special Magistrate

Colleen E Millett

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

HERNANDO County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-225	Parcel ID 01266944
Petitioner name TARGET CORPORATION The petitioner is: ☑ taxpayer of record ☐ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain: _____	Property address 4401 Commercial Way, Spring Hill FL

Decision Summary ☑ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0.00	0.00	0.00
4. Taxable value,* required	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact

See attached.

Conclusions of Law

See attached.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

	Steven Nystrom	02/18/2026
Signature, special magistrate	Print name	Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

PETITION NO. 25-225

RECOMMENDATION OF SPECIAL MAGISTRATE
VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
HERNANDO COUNTY, FLORIDA

IN RE: THE PETITION OF: TARGET CORPORATION
PARCEL KEY NO: 01266944

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

1 The Petitioner, SYDNEY CIMINI of FLANAGAN BILTON LLC for TARGET CORPORATION, did appear before the Special Magistrate telephonically to give testimony. The Property Appraiser was represented by DANIEL SCOTT. All parties present were put under sworn oath.

2 The Property Appraiser shows a just value of $5,359,827 ($51.79/SF), an assessed or capped value of $5,359,827, and a taxable value of $5,359,827.

3 The Petitioner estimated just value to be $4,070,600.

4 Subject Property Type: The subject is a 103,488 heated SF department store on 10.1 acres of land. It was constructed in 1994. The petitioned property is located at 4401 Commercial Way, Spring Hill FL.

5 The PAO evidence consists of hearing notices and correspondence, valuation package, PRC, photographs, maps, cost approach, cost service data support, and verbal testimony.

6 The Petitioners' evidence consists of a petition, correspondence, subject data, PRC, pictures, maps, sales comparison approach, income approach, cost of sales support, and verbal testimony.

7 Per testimony, the evidence exchange complied with statutory time-frame requirements. No objections were made by any party present as it relates to data submittal noted above (unless specifically noted). All the evidence noted above is considered admissible (unless specifically noted as inadmissible).

8 Overall, there is sufficient, relevant, and credible information available, from which a reliable estimate of just, assessed, and taxable value can be estimated.

BASIC AND UNDERLYING FINDINGS OF FACT

9 The PAO relied primarily upon the cost approach, placed no weight on the income approach and no weight on the sales comparison approach to value. This is considered appropriate methodology for mass appraisal by the Special Magistrate.

10 The PAO performed a cost approach but supplied no land sales. The CAMA estimated just land value for this generally commercial corridor in Spring Hill was $1,999,800 ($198,000/acre or $4.54/SF) (37% of just value). While no specific sales support were supplied, this conclusion does not appear to be unreasonable, given general commercial land sales and values in the broader market (Special Magistrate's experience). This will greatly decrease the reliability of the cost approach.

11 The PAO cost approach utilized a discount store, Class C, good quality, 31-year effective age (31-year actual age), 40-year economic life, 15% total entrepreneurial profit & soft/indirect costs (on the building improvements, excluding land) and 60% depreciation as the base factors. Cost service support pages were supplied. All the PAO applied factors appear on the conservative side of reasonable (likely the effective age & depreciation should be lower). The Special Magistrate applied a $2,352,706 land value ($1,999,800 / 0.85), the PAO depreciated cost value of $6,377,578, and a subject specific and appropriate COS factor of 8%. This credibly and reliably supports a just value of $8,031,861 ($2,352,706, plus $6,377,578 = $8,730,284, less 8% COS = $8,031,861). The PAO did not supply land sales. As a check of reasonableness, the Special Magistrate notes that this cost approach supports the just value at the subject even if land value were $0. This suggests that the PAO analysis is very conservative. The PAO cost approach credibly and reliably supports that the subject is not over assessed.

12 The subject was originally developed for a specific department store occupant that is still operating the facility. As such, the facility is first generation space and there is assumed to be minimal or no functional obsolescence. There is no indication that the occupant is performing poorly in this location or has any desire to vacate. There is a high-quality grocery store also anchoring the center where this facility is in place.

13 The Petitioner performed an income approach. They utilized a $4.20/SF NNN rent (conservative), 5% vacancy and collection loss (reasonable), 13% expenses (conservative), applied a 7.50% OAR, and deducted 15% COS.

14 The Petitioner rent support included a national average of internal leased fee rates for Walmart (not very reliable as a basis for fee simple rent at a specific location), a build to suit rent at $4/SF NNN (how much of the development cost did the occupant bear? Lecanto FL, not reliable), and a 2021 signed lease of a vacant 2nd generation shell space @ $4.71/SF NNN (Royal Palm Beach FL). It is revealing that the highest of these 3 was for shell space and was signed in 2021. Placing complete weight on this 3rd lease, adjusting upwards for shell space ($30 interior buildout would require approximately $3.50/SF to $4.50/SF in rent discounted to PV over a 10 to 15-year period). Assuming a $3.50/SF adjustment for buildout, 10% upward adjustment for improving market conditions, 10% downward for location, 5% downward for age condition, upwards 5% for second generation space indicates a subject market rental rate of $8.11/SF. This Rent Comparable 3 suggests a fee simple rental rate almost double the conclusion of the Petitioner. The Petitioner income and lease support and conclusion are not considered to be very reliable.

15 The Petitioner OAR support showed that 1st generation Walmart leases nationally show a 5% to 6.3% OAR, 7.6% for small scale local retail (generally smaller & inferior to the subject) in Hernando County, Situs 2nd Tier (1st tier not provided) 6.8% to 8.5% (1st qtr. 2025), 5.6% to 6.5% for retail in FL via Lee & Associates, Net Lease 6.25% to 9% (Realty Rates & Band of Investment are not considered reliable). Overall, the OAR survey data best supports a 7% OAR for the subject.

16 The Special Magistrate has recalculated the income data utilizing a conservative $7.00/SF NNN fee simple market lease rental rate for this 1st generation space user (meaning the space was designed for this occupant), 5% vacancy and collection loss, 10% expenses, applied a 7% OAR and then deducted a subject specific and appropriate 8% COS ($7.00/SF, less 5% V&C, less 10% expenses = $5.98/SF NOI / 7% OAR, less 8% COS = $78.66/SF or $8,140,366). This (very marginally) credibly and reliably supports that the subject is not over assessed.

17 The Petitioner supplied many sales of closed Target facilities across the nation over a many year period. The details of these sales were not provided, were of failed facilities, some were very old, and often the sales presented appeared to sell for only land value. As presented and analyzed, this information is inconclusive.

18 The Petitioner supplied 6 additional improved sales. Sale 1 was a below average quality, older, retail facility (multi-tenant?) in an inferior location. This sale is not considered very reliable. Sale 2 is a vacant 2nd generation space, is older, in a superior location, but is generally similar in other factors. Sale 3 was purchased by a self storage operator and is unlikely to have a retail highest and best use (not weighted), Sales 4 & 5 are part of regional malls and are not comparable, Sale 6 is physically somewhat inferior, was leased fee purchased by the tenant, is a little older, sold in early 2022, and is in a superior location. This sale would require too much adjustment to be reliable.

The Petitioner supplied sales (1 & 2), adjusted for differences (market conditions, age/condition, quality, 1st generation, occupancy, location, and COS), marginally support a just value of $56.81/SF to $58.26/SF (median $57.53/SF or $5,954,182). This marginally credibly and reliably support that the subject is not over assessed.

19 The PAO considered cost of sales in their reconciliation process. Proper consideration of the 1st and 8th criteria for the subject property would be approximately 6-10% (cost of sales adjustment; estimated to be brokerage cost of 2-3%, personal property 0-1%, and financing costs of 1%, properly considered for the subject). The Special Magistrate will consider this when weighting the appropriateness of each parties' conclusions and the assessment level. Intangible value of approximately 3-5% is appropriate for the subject property (goodwill, assembled workforce, long term leases, user specific improvements, etc.). This is for goodwill, assembled workforce, long-term leases, and user specific improvements in this instance.

20 The DOR utilize 15% cost of sales in their oversight function for all property in aggregate. The Magistrate has considered the specific subject property in relation to cost of sales factors as follows (certain scale and property types will vary significantly if cost of sales is to be performed according to statute).

21 Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., requires proper consideration of the "net proceeds of sale," regardless of whether an actual sale of the property has occurred. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001). However, the statute does not require the property appraiser to select the value generated by the application of Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., and apply it in a blanket fashion to all assessments. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001).

22 All property is to be assessed at 100% of just value Walter v. Schuler 176 So.2d 81 (Fla 1965). The terms "just value" "fair market value' and "full cash value" are legally synonymous. Id.

23 The 1st and 8th criteria were introduced by the legislature after this ruling, suggesting that the legislature wishes real estate to be taxed net of typical sales costs. This implies that "just value" is in fact equal to "market value net of typical sales costs". The Special Magistrate training material for the current year also consistently and strongly advises a deduction for 1st and 8th criteria.

24 The PAO testified to documentation that pertains to the DOR treatment of the eight criteria required under FS 193.011. The PAO testified to and has documented how each of the criteria was considered and addressed to the property at issue, as part of the development of the assessment. The PAO addressed the requirements of FS 193.011 as follows:

"Factors to consider in deriving just valuation. – In arriving at just valuation as required under s. 4, Art. VII of the State Constitution, the property appraiser shall take into consideration the following factors:*

(1) The present cash value of the property, which is the amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arm's length;
The sale of similar properties is considered within the PAO CAMA system, as well as within their direct application of sales comparison analysis. An adjustment is made for cost of sales as noted under Criteria 8 in their CAMA analysis and in reconciliation as applicable.

(2) The highest and best use…,(shortened)
Land use and building codes were considered along with the character of any existing site improvements, as noted on the submitted subject property data. Comparable data was chosen based on this information.

(3) The location of said property;
The subject property is assigned a location code within the PAO database related to its specific location. Comparable data is chosen with as similar a location as is possible, while also considering the other relevant factors.

(4) The quantity or size of said property;
The size of building, site and site improvements are based on data contained with the PRC and all comparables are chosen with as similar size as possible, while also considering and weighing the other relevant factors.

(5) The cost of said property and the present replacement value of any improvements thereon;
The PAO uses cost data within their CAMA cost/market hybrid model. When applicable, a pure replacement cost new and depreciation factors are also estimated and utilized within a cost approach to value.

(6) The condition of said property;
The PAO considers condition through periodic site inspections, actual age, and information submitted to them by property owners. A % good or % depreciation factor is noted in their subject documentation and/or PRC card and utilized in the CAMA analysis.

(7) The income from said property; and
When applicable, the PAO prepares an income capitalization analysis based on market data contained in their files as well as general market statistics. Actual subject performance is also considered when that information is available.

(8) The net proceeds of the sale of the property, as received by the seller, after deduction of all of the usual and reasonable fees and costs of the sale, including the costs and expenses of financing, and allowance for unconventional or a typical terms of financing arrangements. When the net proceeds of the sale of any property are utilized, directly or indirectly, in the determination of just valuation of realty of the sold parcel or any other parcel under the provisions of this section, the property appraiser, for the purposes of such determination, shall exclude any portion of such net proceeds attributable to payments for household furnishings or other items of personal property."

The PAO considers cost of sales within their CAMA analysis and in reconciliation when performing discrete sales, income or cost analysis. Sales prices of comparable properties are adjusted downward (reportedly) within CAMA, typically at near 15%.

ULTIMATE FINDINGS OF FACT

Florida Statute section 194.301 elaborates the standards of review that the Special Magistrate must apply to any petition to the Value Adjustment Board. The statute states as follows:

> Pursuant to Section 194.301, the Property Appraiser's assessment shall be entitled to a Presumption of Correctness if the Property Appraiser shows, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the Property Appraiser considered each of the eight criteria set forth in Section 193.011, the Property Appraiser applied the correct appraisal methodology based upon the characteristics of the property, and the Property Appraiser did not use appraisal practices which are different than the appraisal practices generally applied by the Property Appraiser to comparable property in the same county.

1 In accordance with Rule 12D-10.003(5)(a), it is concluded that the PAO DID NOT establish a presumption of correctness by properly considering the eight criteria described in FS 193.011. Specifically, Criteria 5 (cost) was not properly considered in that land value was an important overall component and was not analyzed at all. Further, it is concluded that the methodology used by the PAO IS NOT appropriate and DOES NOT comply with professionally accepted appraisal practices for the subject property type.

2 The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment was based on an arbitrary appraisal practice different from like property in the same county.

3 The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment is excessive. Thus, the assessed value DOES NOT exceed 100% of the fair market value of the property.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence. See Rule 12D-9.025(1), Florida Administrative Code (FAC). Generally, “relevant evidence” is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. This description means the evidence meets or exceeds the minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. See Rule 12D-9.025(2)(b) FAC.

The Special Magistrate reviewed all evidence presented by all parties. In accordance with DOR guidelines, the Special Magistrate determined that the evidence and testimony was relevant and credible to the valuation at hand. Thus, the evidence as presented was admitted for consideration in relation to the appropriateness of the subject assessment.

The Special Magistrate determined that the testimonial and documentary evidence (combined) meet the test of “relevancy and credibility” and WAS sufficient to reach the “preponderance of the evidence” standard of proof required by Rule 12D-9.027(6) FAC. The Special Magistrate also determined that there IS competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with the criteria of FS 193.011 and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish the assessment.

The Special Magistrate finds that the Petitioner HAS NOT satisfied the "preponderance of the evidence" standard under the facts as testified to that the appraiser's assessment is in excess of just value. After weighting all of the documentary and testimonial evidence it is concluded that the assessment IS reasonable and within market parameters.

RECOMMENDATION

It is recommended by the Special Magistrate that the relief applied for in this petition be denied.

_____
Special Magistrate
Steven L. Nystrom, MAI

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

HERNANDO County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-225	Parcel ID 01266944
Petitioner name TARGET CORPORATION The petitioner is: ☑ taxpayer of record ☐ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain: _____	Property address 4401 Commercial Way, Spring Hill FL

Decision Summary ☑ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0.00	0.00	0.00
4. Taxable value,* required	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact

See attached.

Conclusions of Law

See attached.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

	Steven Nystrom	02/18/2026
Signature, special magistrate	Print name	Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

PETITION NO. 25-226

RECOMMENDATION OF SPECIAL MAGISTRATE
VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
HERNANDO COUNTY, FLORIDA

IN RE: THE PETITION OF: TARGET CORPORATION
PARCEL KEY NO: 01084445

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

1 The Petitioner, SYDNEY CIMINI of FLANAGAN BILTON LLC for TARGET CORPORATION, did appear before the Special Magistrate telephonically to give testimony. The Property Appraiser was represented by DANIEL SCOTT. All parties present were put under sworn oath.

2 The Property Appraiser shows a just value of $9,110,984 ($66.64/SF), an assessed or capped value of $9,110,984, and a taxable value of $9,110,984.

3 The Petitioner estimated just value to be $6,486,221.

4 Subject Property Type: The subject is a 136,722 heated SF department store on 12.50 acres of land. It was constructed in 2009. The petitioned property is located at 3101 Aerial Way, Brooksville FL.

5 The PAO evidence consists of hearing notices and correspondence, valuation package, PRC, photographs, maps, cost approach, cost service data support, and verbal testimony.

6 The Petitioners' evidence consists of a petition, correspondence, subject data, PRC, pictures, maps, sales comparison approach, income approach, cost of sales support, and verbal testimony.

7 Per testimony, the evidence exchange complied with statutory time-frame requirements. No objections were made by any party present as it relates to data submittal noted above (unless specifically noted). All the evidence noted above is considered admissible (unless specifically noted as inadmissible).

8 Overall, there is sufficient, relevant, and credible information available, from which a reliable estimate of just, assessed, and taxable value can be estimated.

BASIC AND UNDERLYING FINDINGS OF FACT

9 The PAO relied primarily upon the cost approach, placed no weight on the income approach and no weight on the sales comparison approach to value. This is considered appropriate methodology for mass appraisal by the Special Magistrate.

10 The PAO performed a cost approach but supplied no land sales. The CAMA estimated just land value for this generally commercial node adjacent to the Suncoast Parkway was $1,993,750 ($159,500/acre or $3.67/SF) (22% of just value). While no specific sales support were supplied, this conclusion does not appear to be unreasonably high (it appears to be very conservative), given general commercial land sales and values in the broader market (Special Magistrate's experience). This will greatly decrease the reliability of the cost approach.

11 The subject land was purchased in April of 2008 for $3,345,000. This is prior to the facility being developed and is much higher than the currently estimated land value. This suggests that the PAO CAMA land value conclusion is very conservative.

12 The PAO cost approach utilized a discount store, Class C, good quality, 16-year effective age (16-year actual age), 40-year economic life, 15% total entrepreneurial profit & soft/indirect costs (on the building improvements, excluding land) and 22% depreciation as the base factors. Cost service support pages were supplied. All the PAO applied factors appear to be reasonable. The Special Magistrate applied a $2,345,588 land value ($1,993,750 / 0.85), the PAO depreciated cost value of $14,876,112, and a subject specific and appropriate COS factor of 7%. This credibly and reliably supports a just value of $16,016,181 ($2,345,588, plus $14,876,112 = $17,221,700, less 7% COS = $16,016,181). The PAO did not supply land sales. As a check of reasonableness, the Special Magistrate notes that this cost approach supports the just value at the subject even if land value were $0, and the 2008 subject land sale suggests a higher land value than that used by the PAO (the subject has a very strong location). This suggests that the PAO analysis is conservative. The PAO cost approach credibly and reliably supports that the subject is not over assessed.

13 The subject was originally developed for a specific department store occupant that is still operating the facility. As such, the facility is first generation space and there is assumed to be minimal or no functional obsolescence. There is no indication that the occupant is performing poorly in this location or has any desire to vacate.

14 The Petitioner performed an income approach. They utilized a $4.20/SF NNN rent (very conservative), 5% vacancy and collection loss (reasonable), 13% expenses (conservative), applied a 7.50% OAR, and deducted 15% COS.

15 The Petitioner rent support included a national average of internal leased fee rates for Walmart (not very reliable as a basis for fee simple rent at a specific location), a build to suit rent at $4/SF NNN (how much of the development cost did the occupant bear? Lecanto FL, not reliable), and a 2021 signed lease of a vacant 2nd generation shell space @ $4.71/SF NNN (Royal Palm Beach FL). It is revealing that the highest of these 3 was for shell space and was signed in 2021. Placing complete weight on this 3rd lease, adjusting upwards for shell space ($30 interior buildout would require approximately $3.50/SF to $4.50/SF in rent discounted to PV over a 10 to 15-year period). Assuming a $3.50/SF adjustment for buildout, 10% upward adjustment for improving market conditions, upwards 5% for second generation space indicates a subject market rental rate of $9.48/SF. This Rent Comparable 3 suggests a fee simple rental rate over double the conclusion of the Petitioner. The Petitioner income and lease support and conclusion are not considered to be very reliable.

16 The Petitioner OAR support showed that 1st generation Walmart leases nationally show a 5% to 6.3% OAR, 7.6% for small scale local retail (generally smaller & inferior to the subject) in Hernando County, Situs 2nd Tier (1st tier not provided) 6.8% to 8.5% (1st qtr. 2025), 5.6% to 6.5% for retail in FL via Lee & Associates, Net Lease 6.25% to 9% (Realty Rates & Band of Investment are not considered reliable). Overall, the OAR survey data best supports a 6.75% OAR for the subject.

17 The Special Magistrate has recalculated the income data utilizing a conservative $8.00/SF NNN fee simple market lease rental rate for this 1st generation space user (meaning the space was designed for this occupant), 5% vacancy and collection loss, 10% expenses, applied a 6.75% OAR and then deducted a subject specific and appropriate 7% COS ($8.00/SF, less 5% V&C, less 10% expenses = $6.84/SF NOI / 6.75% OAR, less 7% COS = $94.24/SF or $12,884,681). This (very marginally) credibly and reliably supports that the subject is not over assessed.

18 The Petitioner supplied many sales of closed Target facilities across the nation over a many year period. The details of these sales were not provided, were of failed facilities, some were very old, and often the sales presented appeared to sell for only land value. As presented and analyzed, this information is inconclusive.

19 The Petitioner supplied 6 additional improved sales. Sale 1 was a below average quality, older, retail facility (multi-tenant?) in an inferior location. This sale is not considered very reliable. Sale 2 is a vacant 2nd generation space, is older, and in a similar location. Sale 3 was purchased by a self storage operator and is unlikely to have a retail highest and best use (not weighted), Sales 4 & 5 are part of regional malls and are not comparable, Sale 6 is physically somewhat inferior, was leased fee purchased by the tenant, is a little older, sold in early 2022, and is in a superior location. This sale would require too much adjustment to be reliable. The Petitioner supplied sales (1 & 2), adjusted for differences (market conditions, age/condition, quality, 1st generation, occupancy, location, and COS), marginally support a just value of $68.17/SF to $68.93/SF (median $68.55/SF or $9,372,677). This marginally credibly and reliably support that the subject is not over assessed.

20 The Petitioner performed a uniformity analysis. The subject facility is in a superior location, relative to most of the comparable assessed properties (adjacent to the Suncoast Parkway), is newer than all of them, and has a more expensive interior buildout than some of them. Overall, the uniformity analysis suggests that the subject is assessed similarly to the competing facilities of its class in this county, given the subject property specifics.

21 The PAO considered cost of sales in their reconciliation process. Proper consideration of the 1st and 8th criteria for the subject property would be approximately 4-10% (cost of sales adjustment; estimated to be brokerage cost of 1-3%, personal property 0-1%, and financing costs of 0-1%, properly considered for the subject). The Special Magistrate will consider this when weighting the appropriateness of each parties' conclusions and the assessment level. Intangible value of approximately 3-5% is appropriate for the subject property (goodwill, assembled workforce, long term leases, user specific improvements, etc.). This is for goodwill, assembled workforce, long-term leases, and user specific improvements in this instance.

22 The DOR utilize 15% cost of sales in their oversight function for all property in aggregate. The Magistrate has considered the specific subject property in relation to cost of sales factors as follows (certain scale and property types will vary significantly if cost of sales is to be performed according to statute).

23 Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., requires proper consideration of the "net proceeds of sale," regardless of whether an actual sale of the property has occurred. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001). However, the statute does not require the property appraiser to select the value generated by the application of Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., and apply it in a blanket fashion to all assessments. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001).

24 All property is to be assessed at 100% of just value Walter v. Schuler 176 So.2d 81 (Fla 1965). The terms "just value" "fair market value' and "full cash value" are legally synonymous. Id.

25 The 1st and 8th criteria were introduced by the legislature after this ruling, suggesting that the legislature wishes real estate to be taxed net of typical sales costs. This implies that "just value" is in fact equal to "market value net of typical sales costs". The Special Magistrate training material for the current year also consistently and strongly advises a deduction for 1st and 8th criteria.

26 The PAO testified to documentation that pertains to the DOR treatment of the eight criteria required under FS 193.011. The PAO testified to and has documented how each of the criteria was considered and addressed to the property at issue, as part of the development of the assessment. The PAO addressed the requirements of FS 193.011 as follows:

"Factors to consider in deriving just valuation. – In arriving at just valuation as required under s. 4, Art. VII of the State Constitution, the property appraiser shall take into consideration the following factors:*

(1) The present cash value of the property, which is the amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arm's length;
The sale of similar properties is considered within the PAO CAMA system, as well as within their direct application of sales comparison analysis. An adjustment is made for cost of sales as noted under Criteria 8 in their CAMA analysis and in reconciliation as applicable.

(2) The highest and best use…,(shortened)
Land use and building codes were considered along with the character of any existing site improvements, as noted on the submitted subject property data. Comparable data was chosen based on this information.

(3) The location of said property;
The subject property is assigned a location code within the PAO database related to its specific location. Comparable data is chosen with as similar a location as is possible, while also considering the other relevant factors.

(4) The quantity or size of said property;
The size of building, site and site improvements are based on data contained with the PRC and all comparables are chosen with as similar size as possible, while also considering and weighing the other relevant factors.

(5) The cost of said property and the present replacement value of any improvements thereon;
The PAO uses cost data within their CAMA cost/market hybrid model. When applicable, a pure replacement cost new and depreciation factors are also estimated and utilized within a cost approach to value.

(6) The condition of said property;
The PAO considers condition through periodic site inspections, actual age, and information submitted to them by property owners. A % good or % depreciation factor is noted in their subject documentation and/or PRC card and utilized in the CAMA analysis.

(7) The income from said property; and
When applicable, the PAO prepares an income capitalization analysis based on market data contained in their files as well as general market statistics. Actual subject performance is also considered when that information is available.

(8) The net proceeds of the sale of the property, as received by the seller, after deduction of all of the usual and reasonable fees and costs of the sale, including the costs and expenses of financing, and allowance for unconventional or a typical terms of financing arrangements. When the net proceeds of the sale of any property are utilized, directly or indirectly, in the determination of just valuation of realty of the sold parcel or any other parcel under the provisions of this section, the property appraiser, for the purposes of such determination, shall exclude any portion of such net proceeds attributable to payments for household furnishings or other items of personal property."
The PAO considers cost of sales within their CAMA analysis and in reconciliation when performing discrete sales, income or cost analysis. Sales prices of comparable properties are adjusted downward (reportedly) within CAMA, typically at near 15%.

ULTIMATE FINDINGS OF FACT

Florida Statute section 194.301 elaborates the standards of review that the Special Magistrate must apply to any petition to the Value Adjustment Board. The statute states as follows:

> Pursuant to Section 194.301, the Property Appraiser's assessment shall be entitled to a Presumption of Correctness if the Property Appraiser shows, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the Property Appraiser considered each of the eight criteria set forth in Section 193.011, the Property Appraiser applied the correct appraisal methodology based upon the characteristics of the property, and the Property Appraiser did not use appraisal practices which are different than the appraisal practices generally applied by the Property Appraiser to comparable property in the same county.

1 In accordance with Rule 12D-10.003(5)(a), it is concluded that the PAO DID NOT establish a presumption of correctness by properly considering the eight criteria described in FS 193.011. Specifically, Criteria 5 (cost) was not properly considered in that land value was an important overall component and was not analyzed at all. Further, it is concluded that the methodology used by the PAO IS NOT appropriate and DOES NOT comply with professionally accepted appraisal practices for the subject property type.

2 The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment was based on an arbitrary appraisal practice different from like property in the same county.

3 The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment is excessive. Thus, the assessed value DOES NOT exceed 100% of the fair market value of the property.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence. See Rule 12D-9.025(1), Florida Administrative Code (FAC). Generally, “relevant evidence” is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. This description means the evidence meets or exceeds the minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. See Rule 12D-9.025(2)(b) FAC.

The Special Magistrate reviewed all evidence presented by all parties. In accordance with DOR guidelines, the Special Magistrate determined that the evidence and testimony was relevant and credible to the valuation at hand. Thus, the evidence as presented was admitted for consideration in relation to the appropriateness of the subject assessment.

The Special Magistrate determined that the testimonial and documentary evidence (combined) meet the test of “relevancy and credibility” and WAS sufficient to reach the “preponderance of the evidence” standard of proof required by Rule 12D-9.027(6) FAC. The Special Magistrate also determined that there IS competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with the criteria of FS 193.011 and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish the assessment.

The Special Magistrate finds that the Petitioner HAS NOT satisfied the "preponderance of the evidence" standard under the facts as testified to that the appraiser's assessment is in excess of just value. After weighting all of the documentary and testimonial evidence it is concluded that the assessment IS reasonable and within market parameters.

RECOMMENDATION

It is recommended by the Special Magistrate that the relief applied for in this petition be denied.

_____
Special Magistrate
Steven L. Nystrom, MAI

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

HERNANDO County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-225	Parcel ID 01266944
Petitioner name TARGET CORPORATION The petitioner is: ☑ taxpayer of record ☐ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain: _____	Property address 4401 Commercial Way, Spring Hill FL

Decision Summary ☑ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0.00	0.00	0.00
4. Taxable value,* required	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact

See attached.

Conclusions of Law

See attached.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

	Steven Nystrom	02/18/2026
Signature, special magistrate	Print name	Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

PETITION NO. 25-227

RECOMMENDATION OF SPECIAL MAGISTRATE
VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
HERNANDO COUNTY, FLORIDA

IN RE: THE PETITION OF: BROOKSVILLE ASSOCIATES
PARCEL KEY NO: 00359506 (Petition 227)
01134454 (Petition 228)

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

1 The Petitioner, SYDNEY CIMINI of FLANAGAN BILTON LLC for BROOKSVILLE ASSOCIATES, did appear before the Special Magistrate telephonically to give testimony. The Property Appraiser was represented by DANIEL SCOTT. All parties present were put under sworn oath.

2 Petitions 227 and 228 have a related highest and best use. They are adjacent vacant land parcels that are likely to be developed with a property that will be one economic unit. The Petitioner produced one package for both parcels combined and one overall value conclusion. The PAO supplied 2 valuation packages and produced separate value conclusions for each. Because the highest and best uses are related, the Special Magistrate will discuss both parcels herein and make separate value recommendations for each.

3 For Petition 227, the Property Appraiser shows a just value of $1,721,740 ($66,221/dry usable acre), an assessed or capped value of $859,778, and a taxable value of $859,778.

4 3 For Petition 228, the Property Appraiser shows a just value of $638,500 ($66,510/dry usable acre), an assessed or capped value of $320,696, and a taxable value of $320,696.

5 The Petitioner estimated just value to be $998,174 for both parcels combined.

6 Subject Property Type: The subject includes a 26 dry usable acre (31.6 acres gross) (Petition 227) and a 9.6 dry usable acre (9.6 acres gross) (Petition 228) multi-family zoned land parcel(s). The petitioned property is located on Wiscon Rd. & Barnett Rd., Brooksville FL.

7 The PAO evidence consists of hearing notices and correspondence, valuation package, PRC, photographs, maps, sales comparison approach, and verbal testimony.

8 The Petitioners' evidence consists of a petition, correspondence, subject data, PRC, pictures, maps, sales comparison approach, subject sale analysis, cost of sales support, and verbal testimony.

9 Per testimony, the evidence exchange complied with statutory time-frame requirements. No objections were made by any party present as it relates to data submittal noted above (unless specifically noted). All the evidence noted above is considered admissible (unless specifically noted as inadmissible).

10 Overall, there is sufficient, relevant, and credible information available, from which a reliable estimate of just, assessed, and taxable value can be estimated.

BASIC AND UNDERLYING FINDINGS OF FACT

11 The PAO relied primarily upon the sales comparison approach, placed no weight on the income approach and no weight on the cost approach to value. This is considered appropriate methodology for mass appraisal by the Special Magistrate.

12 The subject parcels are wooded and within the City of Brooksville. The PAO confirmed that there are large impact fees to be applied to new developments in the City of Brooksville (water/storm related costs), and that approvals are required for development. A proposed multi-family or manufactured home park built on the subject site would be affected by this. None of the land sales supplied by the PAO are in the City of Brooksville, no analysis of this factor was made, and as such, those sales are not affected by this development cost (making them all superior to the subject in this respect).

13 The PAO supplied 3 land sales for Petition 227 and 3 land sales for Petition 228. None of these sales are located in the City of Brooksville and a 20% downward adjustment for expected impact or development fee issue has been applied to all of the PAO land comparables. Sale 3 for Petition 228 is too small and zoned C-2. This sale is dissimilar and will not be weighted. Sale 2 for Petition 228 is an outlier on the high end and will also not be weighted. The PAO performed quantitative analysis, and the Special Magistrate will also perform quantitative analysis on the land sales. The sales were adjusted lightly for improving market conditions, location, size/scale, shape, zoning, topography, expected impact fees, and a subject specific and appropriate COS factor of 6%. After adjustment, the sales support a range of $63,705/acre to $82,620/acre (median $68,241/acre) (dry and usable acres). The PAO land sales credibly and reliably support that the subject is not over assessed.

14 The Petitioner stated that there was a sale of the subject with the contract entered into in March 2024. They supplied a settlement statement dated December 2025, which noted a sale price of $1,295,000 ($36,376/dry usable acre). The subject sale agreement credibly and reliably supports that the subject is over assessed.

15 The Petitioner supplied limited detail regarding 5 land sales in the City of Brooksville. The PRC's, dry/wet breakdown, maps, topography, zoning, qualification and other detail was not supplied to the VAB. Their chart incorrectly shows "acreage not classified" that they call "zoning" but is not in fact the zoning category. Ownership very likely had an appraisal and chose not to supply it. The PAO notes that the Petitioner comparables are likely for residential single-family use/zoning and not commercial / multi-family allowed (i.e. inferior zoning is likely but was not fully verified). All of the Petitioner supplied sales are 5 acre to 12.8 acres in size. The Special Magistrate adjusted the Petitioner sales (focusing on the one 2024 sale specifically) for improving market conditions, size/shape, zoning/HBU (30%), and 6% for COS. No adjustment could be made for location, and the reliability of this analysis is low due to a lack of detailed data. After adjustment, Petitioner Sale 2 very marginally supports a just value of $29,681/dry usable acre for the subject property.

16 The Special Magistrate notes that the PAO does not have strong land sales data in that they differ very significantly in zoning, location (specifically due to development fees in the City of Brooksville), and likely highest and best use. The Petitioner supplied a subject sale agreement, which was pending on the lien date. While only a single transaction, this agreement will be weighted heavily herein. The Petitioner supplied local sales data (also in Brooksville) but supplied this information with such little detail that its reliability is low and it will only be weighted lightly. The Special Magistrate weighted the PAO land sales data 40% ($68,241/acre), the subject sale transaction/pending 50% ($36,376/acre), and the Petitioner land sales 10% ($29,681/acre). After adjustment, the evidence marginally credibly and reliably supports a just value of $44,815/dry usable acre ($1,165,187 for Petition 227, and $430,223 for Petition 228) and that the subject is over assessed.

17 The PAO considered cost of sales in their reconciliation process. Proper consideration of the 1st and 8th criteria for the subject property would be approximately 5-7% (cost of sales adjustment; estimated to be brokerage cost of 4-5%, personal property 0%, and financing costs of 1-2%, properly considered for the subject). The Special Magistrate will consider this when weighting the appropriateness of each parties' conclusions and the assessment level. Intangible value of approximately 0% is appropriate for the subject property (goodwill, assembled workforce, long term leases, user specific improvements, etc.).

18 The DOR utilize 15% cost of sales in their oversight function for all property in aggregate. The Magistrate has considered the specific subject property in relation to cost of sales factors as follows (certain scale and property types will vary significantly if cost of sales is to be performed according to statute).

19 Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., requires proper consideration of the "net proceeds of sale," regardless of whether an actual sale of the property has occurred. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001). However, the statute does not require the property appraiser to select the value generated by the application of Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., and apply it in a blanket fashion to all assessments. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001).

20 All property is to be assessed at 100% of just value Walter v. Schuler 176 So.2d 81 (Fla 1965). The terms "just value" "fair market value' and "full cash value" are legally synonymous. Id.

21 The 1st and 8th criteria were introduced by the legislature after this ruling, suggesting that the legislature wishes real estate to be taxed net of typical sales costs. This implies that “just value” is in fact equal to “market value net of typical sales costs”. The Special Magistrate training material for the current year also consistently and strongly advises a deduction for 1st and 8th criteria.

22 The PAO testified to documentation that pertains to the DOR treatment of the eight criteria required under FS 193.011. The PAO testified to and has documented how each of the criteria was considered and addressed to the property at issue, as part of the development of the assessment. The PAO addressed the requirements of FS 193.011 as follows:

“Factors to consider in deriving just valuation*. – In arriving at just valuation as required under s. 4, Art. VII of the State Constitution, the property appraiser shall take into consideration the following factors:*

(1) The present cash value of the property, which is the amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arm's length;
The sale of similar properties is considered within the PAO CAMA system, as well as within their direct application of sales comparison analysis. An adjustment is made for cost of sales as noted under Criteria 8 in their CAMA analysis and in reconciliation as applicable.

(2) The highest and best use…,(shortened)
Land use and building codes were considered along with the character of any existing site improvements, as noted on the submitted subject property data. Comparable data was chosen based on this information.

(3) The location of said property;
The subject property is assigned a location code within the PAO database related to its specific location. Comparable data is chosen with as similar a location as is possible, while also considering the other relevant factors.

(4) The quantity or size of said property;
The size of building, site and site improvements are based on data contained with the PRC and all comparables are chosen with as similar size as possible, while also considering and weighing the other relevant factors.

(5) The cost of said property and the present replacement value of any improvements thereon;

The PAO uses cost data within their CAMA cost/market hybrid model. When applicable, a pure replacement cost new and depreciation factors are also estimated and utilized within a cost approach to value.

(6) The condition of said property;
The PAO considers condition through periodic site inspections, actual age, and information submitted to them by property owners. A % good or % depreciation factor is noted in their subject documentation and/or PRC card and utilized in the CAMA analysis.

(7) The income from said property; and
When applicable, the PAO prepares an income capitalization analysis based on market data contained in their files as well as general market statistics. Actual subject performance is also considered when that information is available.

(8) The net proceeds of the sale of the property, as received by the seller, after deduction of all of the usual and reasonable fees and costs of the sale, including the costs and expenses of financing, and allowance for unconventional or a typical terms of financing arrangements. When the net proceeds of the sale of any property are utilized, directly or indirectly, in the determination of just valuation of realty of the sold parcel or any other parcel under the provisions of this section, the property appraiser, for the purposes of such determination, shall exclude any portion of such net proceeds attributable to payments for household furnishings or other items of personal property."
The PAO considers cost of sales within their CAMA analysis and in reconciliation when performing discrete sales, income or cost analysis. Sales prices of comparable properties are adjusted downward (reportedly) within CAMA, typically at near 15%.

ULTIMATE FINDINGS OF FACT

Florida Statute section 194.301 elaborates the standards of review that the Special Magistrate must apply to any petition to the Value Adjustment Board. The statute states as follows:

> Pursuant to Section 194.301, the Property Appraiser's assessment shall be entitled to a Presumption of Correctness if the Property Appraiser shows, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the Property Appraiser considered each of the eight criteria set forth in Section 193.011, the Property Appraiser applied the correct appraisal methodology based upon the characteristics of the property, and the Property Appraiser did not use appraisal practices which are different than the appraisal practices generally applied by the Property Appraiser to comparable property in the same county.

1 In accordance with Rule 12D-10.003(5)(a), it is concluded that the PAO DID NOT establish a presumption of correctness by properly considering the eight criteria described in FS 193.011. Specifically, Criteria's 1, 2, 3, 6, & 8 (sales, HBU, location and condition) were not properly considered in that a negative factor significantly affecting value was not considered, nor implied within their dataset. Further, it is concluded that the methodology used by the PAO IS NOT appropriate and DOES NOT comply with professionally accepted appraisal practices for the subject property type.

2 The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment was based on an arbitrary appraisal practice different from like property in the same county.

3 The Petitioner HAS shown by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment is excessive. Thus, the assessed value DOES exceed 100% of the fair market value of the property.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence. See Rule 12D-9.025(1), Florida Administrative Code (FAC). Generally, “relevant evidence” is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. This description means the evidence meets or exceeds the minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. See Rule 12D-9.025(2)(b) FAC.

The Special Magistrate reviewed all evidence presented by all parties. In accordance with DOR guidelines, the Special Magistrate determined that the evidence and testimony was relevant and credible to the valuation at hand. Thus, the evidence as presented was admitted for consideration in relation to the appropriateness of the subject assessment.

The Special Magistrate determined that the testimonial and documentary evidence (combined) meet the test of “relevancy and credibility” and WAS sufficient to reach the “preponderance of the evidence” standard of proof required by Rule 12D-9.027(6) FAC. The Special Magistrate also determined that there IS competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with the criteria of FS 193.011 and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish the assessment.

The Special Magistrate finds that the Petitioner HAS satisfied the "preponderance of the evidence" standard under the facts as testified to that the appraiser's assessment is in excess of just value. After weighting all of the documentary and testimonial evidence it is concluded that the assessment IS NOT reasonable and within market parameters.

RECOMMENDATION

It is recommended by the Special Magistrate that the relief applied for in this petition be GRANTED in part with a reduction in the just value to $1,165,187.

Special Magistrate
Steven L. Nystrom, MAI

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

HERNANDO County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-225	Parcel ID 01266944
Petitioner name TARGET CORPORATION The petitioner is: ☑ taxpayer of record ☐ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain: _____	Property address 4401 Commercial Way, Spring Hill FL

Decision Summary ☑ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0.00	0.00	0.00
4. Taxable value,* required	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact

See attached.

Conclusions of Law

See attached.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

	Steven Nystrom	02/18/2026
Signature, special magistrate	Print name	Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

PETITION NO. 25-228

RECOMMENDATION OF SPECIAL MAGISTRATE
VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
HERNANDO COUNTY, FLORIDA

IN RE: THE PETITION OF: BROOKSVILLE ASSOCIATES
PARCEL KEY NO: 00359506 (Petition 227)
01134454 (Petition 228)

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

1 The Petitioner, SYDNEY CIMINI of FLANAGAN BILTON LLC for BROOKSVILLE ASSOCIATES, did appear before the Special Magistrate telephonically to give testimony. The Property Appraiser was represented by DANIEL SCOTT. All parties present were put under sworn oath.

2 Petitions 227 and 228 have a related highest and best use. They are adjacent vacant land parcels that are likely to be developed with a property that will be one economic unit. The Petitioner produced one package for both parcels combined and one overall value conclusion. The PAO supplied 2 valuation packages and produced separate value conclusions for each. Because the highest and best uses are related, the Special Magistrate will discuss both parcels herein and make separate value recommendations for each.

3 For Petition 227, the Property Appraiser shows a just value of $1,721,740 ($66,221/dry usable acre), an assessed or capped value of $859,778, and a taxable value of $859,778.

4 3 For Petition 228, the Property Appraiser shows a just value of $638,500 ($66,510/dry usable acre), an assessed or capped value of $320,696, and a taxable value of $320,696.

5 The Petitioner estimated just value to be $998,174 for both parcels combined.

6 Subject Property Type: The subject includes a 26 dry usable acre (31.6 acres gross) (Petition 227) and a 9.6 dry usable acre (9.6 acres gross) (Petition 228) multi-family zoned land parcel(s). The petitioned property is located on Wiscon Rd. & Barnett Rd., Brooksville FL.

7 The PAO evidence consists of hearing notices and correspondence, valuation package, PRC, photographs, maps, sales comparison approach, and verbal testimony.

8 The Petitioners' evidence consists of a petition, correspondence, subject data, PRC, pictures, maps, sales comparison approach, subject sale analysis, cost of sales support, and verbal testimony.

9 Per testimony, the evidence exchange complied with statutory time-frame requirements. No objections were made by any party present as it relates to data submittal noted above (unless specifically noted). All the evidence noted above is considered admissible (unless specifically noted as inadmissible).

10 Overall, there is sufficient, relevant, and credible information available, from which a reliable estimate of just, assessed, and taxable value can be estimated.

BASIC AND UNDERLYING FINDINGS OF FACT

11 The PAO relied primarily upon the sales comparison approach, placed no weight on the income approach and no weight on the cost approach to value. This is considered appropriate methodology for mass appraisal by the Special Magistrate.

12 The subject parcels are wooded and within the City of Brooksville. The PAO confirmed that there are large impact fees to be applied to new developments in the City of Brooksville (water/storm related costs), and that approvals are required for development. A proposed multi-family or manufactured home park built on the subject site would be affected by this. None of the land sales supplied by the PAO are in the City of Brooksville, no analysis of this factor was made, and as such, those sales are not affected by this development cost (making them all superior to the subject in this respect).

13 The PAO supplied 3 land sales for Petition 227 and 3 land sales for Petition 228. None of these sales are located in the City of Brooksville and a 20% downward adjustment for expected impact or development fee issue has been applied to all of the PAO land comparables. Sale 3 for Petition 228 is too small and zoned C-2. This sale is dissimilar and will not be weighted. Sale 2 for Petition 228 is an outlier on the high end and will also not be weighted. The PAO performed quantitative analysis, and the Special Magistrate will also perform quantitative analysis on the land sales. The sales were adjusted lightly for improving market conditions, location, size/scale, shape, zoning, topography, expected impact fees, and a subject specific and appropriate COS factor of 6%. After adjustment, the sales support a range of $63,705/acre to $82,620/acre (median $68,241/acre) (dry and usable acres). The PAO land sales credibly and reliably support that the subject is not over assessed.

14 The Petitioner stated that there was a sale of the subject with the contract entered into in March 2024. They supplied a settlement statement dated December 2025, which noted a sale price of $1,295,000 ($36,376/dry usable acre). The subject sale agreement credibly and reliably supports that the subject is over assessed.

15 The Petitioner supplied limited detail regarding 5 land sales in the City of Brooksville. The PRC's, dry/wet breakdown, maps, topography, zoning, qualification and other detail was not supplied to the VAB. Their chart incorrectly shows "acreage not classified" that they call "zoning" but is not in fact the zoning category. Ownership very likely had an appraisal and chose not to supply it. The PAO notes that the Petitioner comparables are likely for residential single-family use/zoning and not commercial / multi-family allowed (i.e. inferior zoning is likely but was not fully verified). All of the Petitioner supplied sales are 5 acre to 12.8 acres in size. The Special Magistrate adjusted the Petitioner sales (focusing on the one 2024 sale specifically) for improving market conditions, size/shape, zoning/HBU (30%), and 6% for COS. No adjustment could be made for location, and the reliability of this analysis is low due to a lack of detailed data. After adjustment, Petitioner Sale 2 very marginally supports a just value of $29,681/dry usable acre for the subject property.

16 The Special Magistrate notes that the PAO does not have strong land sales data in that they differ very significantly in zoning, location (specifically due to development fees in the City of Brooksville), and likely highest and best use. The Petitioner supplied a subject sale agreement, which was pending on the lien date. While only a single transaction, this agreement will be weighted heavily herein. The Petitioner supplied local sales data (also in Brooksville) but supplied this information with such little detail that its reliability is low and it will only be weighted lightly. The Special Magistrate weighted the PAO land sales data 40% ($68,241/acre), the subject sale transaction/pending 50% ($36,376/acre), and the Petitioner land sales 10% ($29,681/acre). After adjustment, the evidence marginally credibly and reliably supports a just value of $44,815/dry usable acre ($1,165,187 for Petition 227, and $430,223 for Petition 228) and that the subject is over assessed.

17 The PAO considered cost of sales in their reconciliation process. Proper consideration of the 1st and 8th criteria for the subject property would be approximately 5-7% (cost of sales adjustment; estimated to be brokerage cost of 4-5%, personal property 0%, and financing costs of 1-2%, properly considered for the subject). The Special Magistrate will consider this when weighting the appropriateness of each parties' conclusions and the assessment level. Intangible value of approximately 0% is appropriate for the subject property (goodwill, assembled workforce, long term leases, user specific improvements, etc.).

18 The DOR utilize 15% cost of sales in their oversight function for all property in aggregate. The Magistrate has considered the specific subject property in relation to cost of sales factors as follows (certain scale and property types will vary significantly if cost of sales is to be performed according to statute).

19 Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., requires proper consideration of the "net proceeds of sale," regardless of whether an actual sale of the property has occurred. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001). However, the statute does not require the property appraiser to select the value generated by the application of Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., and apply it in a blanket fashion to all assessments. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001).

20 All property is to be assessed at 100% of just value Walter v. Schuler 176 So.2d 81 (Fla 1965). The terms "just value" "fair market value' and "full cash value" are legally synonymous. Id.

21 The 1st and 8th criteria were introduced by the legislature after this ruling, suggesting that the legislature wishes real estate to be taxed net of typical sales costs. This implies that “just value” is in fact equal to “market value net of typical sales costs”. The Special Magistrate training material for the current year also consistently and strongly advises a deduction for 1st and 8th criteria.

22 The PAO testified to documentation that pertains to the DOR treatment of the eight criteria required under FS 193.011. The PAO testified to and has documented how each of the criteria was considered and addressed to the property at issue, as part of the development of the assessment. The PAO addressed the requirements of FS 193.011 as follows:

“Factors to consider in deriving just valuation*. – In arriving at just valuation as required under s. 4, Art. VII of the State Constitution, the property appraiser shall take into consideration the following factors:*

(1) The present cash value of the property, which is the amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arm's length;
The sale of similar properties is considered within the PAO CAMA system, as well as within their direct application of sales comparison analysis. An adjustment is made for cost of sales as noted under Criteria 8 in their CAMA analysis and in reconciliation as applicable.

(2) The highest and best use…,(shortened)
Land use and building codes were considered along with the character of any existing site improvements, as noted on the submitted subject property data. Comparable data was chosen based on this information.

(3) The location of said property;
The subject property is assigned a location code within the PAO database related to its specific location. Comparable data is chosen with as similar a location as is possible, while also considering the other relevant factors.

(4) The quantity or size of said property;
The size of building, site and site improvements are based on data contained with the PRC and all comparables are chosen with as similar size as possible, while also considering and weighing the other relevant factors.

(5) The cost of said property and the present replacement value of any improvements thereon;

The PAO uses cost data within their CAMA cost/market hybrid model. When applicable, a pure replacement cost new and depreciation factors are also estimated and utilized within a cost approach to value.

(6) The condition of said property;
The PAO considers condition through periodic site inspections, actual age, and information submitted to them by property owners. A % good or % depreciation factor is noted in their subject documentation and/or PRC card and utilized in the CAMA analysis.

(7) The income from said property; and
When applicable, the PAO prepares an income capitalization analysis based on market data contained in their files as well as general market statistics. Actual subject performance is also considered when that information is available.

(8) The net proceeds of the sale of the property, as received by the seller, after deduction of all of the usual and reasonable fees and costs of the sale, including the costs and expenses of financing, and allowance for unconventional or a typical terms of financing arrangements. When the net proceeds of the sale of any property are utilized, directly or indirectly, in the determination of just valuation of realty of the sold parcel or any other parcel under the provisions of this section, the property appraiser, for the purposes of such determination, shall exclude any portion of such net proceeds attributable to payments for household furnishings or other items of personal property."
The PAO considers cost of sales within their CAMA analysis and in reconciliation when performing discrete sales, income or cost analysis. Sales prices of comparable properties are adjusted downward (reportedly) within CAMA, typically at near 15%.

ULTIMATE FINDINGS OF FACT

Florida Statute section 194.301 elaborates the standards of review that the Special Magistrate must apply to any petition to the Value Adjustment Board. The statute states as follows:

> Pursuant to Section 194.301, the Property Appraiser's assessment shall be entitled to a Presumption of Correctness if the Property Appraiser shows, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the Property Appraiser considered each of the eight criteria set forth in Section 193.011, the Property Appraiser applied the correct appraisal methodology based upon the characteristics of the property, and the Property Appraiser did not use appraisal practices which are different than the appraisal practices generally applied by the Property Appraiser to comparable property in the same county.

1 In accordance with Rule 12D-10.003(5)(a), it is concluded that the PAO DID NOT establish a presumption of correctness by properly considering the eight criteria described in FS 193.011. Specifically, Criteria's 1, 2, 3, 6, & 8 (sales, HBU, location and condition) were not properly considered in that a negative factor significantly affecting value was not considered, nor implied within their dataset. Further, it is concluded that the methodology used by the PAO IS NOT appropriate and DOES NOT comply with professionally accepted appraisal practices for the subject property type.

2 The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment was based on an arbitrary appraisal practice different from like property in the same county.

3 The Petitioner HAS shown by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment is excessive. Thus, the assessed value DOES exceed 100% of the fair market value of the property.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence. See Rule 12D-9.025(1), Florida Administrative Code (FAC). Generally, “relevant evidence” is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. This description means the evidence meets or exceeds the minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. See Rule 12D-9.025(2)(b) FAC.

The Special Magistrate reviewed all evidence presented by all parties. In accordance with DOR guidelines, the Special Magistrate determined that the evidence and testimony was relevant and credible to the valuation at hand. Thus, the evidence as presented was admitted for consideration in relation to the appropriateness of the subject assessment.

The Special Magistrate determined that the testimonial and documentary evidence (combined) meet the test of “relevancy and credibility” and WAS sufficient to reach the “preponderance of the evidence” standard of proof required by Rule 12D-9.027(6) FAC. The Special Magistrate also determined that there IS competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with the criteria of FS 193.011 and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish the assessment.

The Special Magistrate finds that the Petitioner HAS satisfied the "preponderance of the evidence" standard under the facts as testified to that the appraiser's assessment is in excess of just value. After weighting all of the documentary and testimonial evidence it is concluded that the assessment IS NOT reasonable and within market parameters.

RECOMMENDATION

It is recommended by the Special Magistrate that the relief applied for in this petition be GRANTED in part with a reduction in the just value to $430,223.

_____
Special Magistrate
Steven L. Nystrom, MAI

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

Hernando County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff.11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☒ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition #	25-231	Parcel ID	R22-222-19-3420-0000-0013
Petitioner name The petitioner is: ☐ taxpayer of record ☒ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	FIRSTPOINTE ADVISORS, INC.	Property address	651-693 SOUTH BROAD STREET BROOKSVILLE, FLORIDA

Decision Summary ☒ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just Value, required	$2,754,164	$2,754,164	$2,754,164
2. Assessed or classified use value, * if applicable	$2,754,164	$2,754,164	$2,754,164
3. Exempt value, * enter "0" if none	$0	$0	$0
4. Taxable value, * required	$2,754,164	$2,754,164	$2,754,164

*All values entered should be county taxable values, School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision

Findings of Fact

DUE TO SPACE LIMITATIONS, FINDINGS OF FACT ARE SET FORTH IN THE ATTACHED ADDENDA, WHICH IS MADE PART OF THIS RECOMMENDATION REPORT.

Conclusions of Law

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW ARE PROVIDED IN THE ATTACHED ADDENDA, INCORPORATED HEREIN BY REFERENCE.

☒ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	Print Name	Date
Robert C. Hicks	ROBERT C. HICKS	JAN 22, 2026
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____.
Address: Hernando County Gov't Center BOCC Chambers, Room 160, 20 North Main Street, Brooksville, Florida 34601.
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered.
To find the information, please call (352) 754-4970, or visit our website at vab@hernandoclerk.org.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print Name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date mailed to parties

Addenda

Findings Of Fact

Petitioner Nicholas L. Mau, CCIM with First Pointe Advisors, Inc. appeared telephonically on behalf of Brooksville Commercial Properties, LLC & Oak Tree Lane, LLC on January 15, 2026 to provide testimonial and documentary evidence pertaining to the 2025 property assessment for real property located in Hernando County, Florida. The Hernando County Property Appraiser's Office was represented at the hearing by Deputy Appraisers Daniel Scott, Commercial Supervisor and Kimberly Hubert. An opening statement regarding the hearing process and rules of procedure was read and all parties were placed under oath.

The subject of this petition is listed on the Hernando County tax roll as Parcel ID R22-222-19-3420-0000-0013. This property is described as a community shopping center. The subject property is located at 651-693 South Broad Street, Brooksville, Hernando County, Florida. According to the property record card, the building improvements consist of 55,974 square feet of net leasable building area on a 309,276-square-foot commercial site. The improvements were constructed in 1965 and are described as average quality in average condition. Based on an inspection of the property, the property appraiser has determined that the building improvements have an effective age of 50 years, considering construction quality and condition. It appears that the subject of this petition has not sold within the 12-months preceding the January 1 valuation date.

The property appraiser confirmed the 2025 just value of $2,754,164, assessed value of $2,754,164 and taxable value of $2,754,164. There have been no changes to the values since the Notice of Proposed Property Taxes (TRIM) was issued. The petitioner is requesting a revision to the 2025 just value, proposing a revision in just value to $2,230,000. This request is supported by market income analysis.

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence, see Florida Administrative Code 12D-9.025(1). Generally, relevant evidence is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. The evidence meets or exceeds a minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. Documentary evidence presented by the property appraiser during the hearing is described and labeled as follows:

- PAO-A (27 pages) - Cover page, table of contents, subject summary page, subject property record card, aerial maps, cost approach summary chart, income analysis, reconciliation, excerpts from Marshall & Swift cost service, structure area adjustments, income and expense request sent to the property owner

Documentary evidence presented by the petitioner during the hearing is described and labeled as follows:

- PET-1 (117 pages) - Cover page, summary of evidence, summary of salient facts, street scenes, aerial maps, leased fee income analysis, owner's profit and loss statement, pro forma analysis, lease up analysis, subject rent roll, lease comparables with location map, grid, photos and lease details for anchor tenants, jr. anchors and in-line spaces, IRR Viewpoint Tampa Retail report, Situs AMC capitalization rate surveys, RealtyRates.com, PwC capitalization rate surveys, Costar Retail Market Report, Florida Real Property Appraisal Guidelines, sales analysis, Costar comparable sale writeups and property record cards for each sale

- PET-2 (113 pages) - Cover page, table of contents, Florida Statutes 194.034 and 193.011, DR-493, 2023 Value Adjustment Board Training Module 6, Advisory Memorandum referencing uniform handling of Cost of Sale deductions, 2020, 2021, 2022 cost of sale deductions reported by County, letter from Edwards Law Firm regarding Cost of Sale adjustments, Property Tax Oversight Bulletin PTO 11-01, FAC 12D-9.020 Exchange of Evidence, Gordon & Thalwitzer memorandum pertaining to cost of sale deductions

The property appraiser has not raised any objections to the timeliness of the evidence presented by the petitioner during the hearing.

The Florida Legislature has enacted eight criteria that the property appraiser must consider when determining just value. In any administrative or judicial action where a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment, the property appraiser's estimate of just value is presumed correct if it is proven that the assessment was made in compliance with the eight criteria outlined in Section 193.011, Florida Statutes and in accordance with professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The only standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence, meaning the greater weight of evidence, or "more likely than not."

Florida courts have consistently held that the property appraiser is only required to consider the eight criteria, and that applying each factor is not mandatory. The courts have further found that if any one criterion does not reflect just value, it should be disregarded by the property appraiser. The special magistrate finds and summarizes the extent to which the property appraiser has considered each of these criteria in the following paragraphs.

(1) Present cash value of the property - The amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arms-length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In short, the price without transaction costs. The buyer typically pays more, and the seller typically receives less than the price indicated by the documentary stamps due to these transaction costs. In mass appraising, the property appraiser considers this criterion by applying or considering the comparable market sales using the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through comparable sales analysis similar to that found in a fee appraisal. No sales comparison analysis has been presented during the hearing due to a lack of comparable sales data for this type of property in this market according to the property appraiser.

(2) Highest & Best Use – This relates to the consideration of the fundamental appraisal concept of highest and best use or best use to which the property can be expected to be put in the immediate future. For improved properties, the highest and best use of the property as if vacant should be considered as well. The four steps establishing highest and best use are consideration of what is physically possible, legally permissible, financially feasible, and maximally productive. The highest and best use as vacant is identified through land use codes which, in part, are based on zoning. The highest and best use as improved is assumed to be the current use unless evidence shows otherwise. The property appraiser's office considers highest and best use by identifying and recording land size, zoning, building size, location and other characteristics. Once all coding is in place, comparable sales and rentals that have similar characteristics are used to value the property. The highest and best use of this property is for multi-tenant retail use. This determination is undisputed by the petitioner and appears to have been appropriately considered by the property appraiser.

(3) Location of the property – The property appraiser assigns a neighborhood code to every property in the county. Sales of properties in the same or similar neighborhoods are typically used to determine locational adjustments. Often, site-specific location adjustments are made to reflect either an enhanced location (such as a water front site or in a golf course community) or an inferior location (such as adjacent to an industrial use or dumpsite). All of the comparable properties presented in support of value are located in the same market area as the subject. The location of the property appears to have been appropriately considered in the determination of just value.

(4) Quantity or size of the property – The property appraiser must consider the quantity or size of the property by determining and recording the correct land size, building size, and extra features sizes and quantities. Land size is based on legal descriptions from recorded plats or metes and bounds. Building sizes and extra features are determined by inspection and measured by deputy property appraisers. The source of land and building sizes used by the property appraiser is the property record card.

(5) The cost of the property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon - An analysis of cost is made in the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System is found on the property record card. The property appraiser considers replacement cost through the use of Marshall & Swift Valuation Service data. These rates are adjusted annually to reflect the costs relevant to January 1 of the given tax year. Marshall & Swift Valuation Cost Service is also used to determine the replacement costs of extra features or site improvements. The property appraiser has summarized the cost approach analysis in support of just value for this appraisal review. The source of direct cost estimates is Marshall & Swift Cost Manual and making various cost adjustments for AC, sprinkler, current, local, perimeter, and story height. The property appraiser has estimated direct costs for 55,974 square feet of leasable building area at $97.01 per square foot, costed as Neighborhood Shopping Center, low cost, Class C. The property appraiser has also estimated direct costs for 5,248 square feet of open porch, finished at $29.10 per square foot. A third building classification being 237 square feet of open porch with aluminum roof at $9.70 per square foot. Indirect, or soft costs include engineering, permitting, appraisals, surveys, interim financing, and impact fees are not included in the Marshall & Swift Cost figures but have been estimated to be an additional 5% added to the direct costs as an indication of the replacement cost new for the subject building improvements. The total replacement cost new including site improvements is $6,077,949. A depreciation rate of 63% has been used based on an effective age/life method indicating a Depreciated Replacement Cost of all improvements of $2,271,021. A typical entrepreneurial incentive of 10% has been included. The $1,181,263 land value is supported in the property appraiser's cost analysis with the land assessment found on the subject's property record card. This cost analysis results in a preliminary value indication of $3,452,284, developed as evidence that the $2,754,164 just value is not overstated.

(6) Condition of the property – The property appraiser considers the condition of properties through periodic property inspections, no less than once every five years as required by Statute. Other events can trigger more frequent site inspections, including the sale of a property, issuance of a building permit, assessment appeal, or at the taxpayer's request. Condition is considered as a factor applied to the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System value calculation for value losses from all sources based upon an age/life depreciation method. Photographs of the subject property have been presented as evidence of condition. Evidence of building permits for renovations and/or significant building repairs has been presented. An effective age of 50 years has been estimated by the property appraiser based on an analysis of chronological age, condition and construction quality. It appears that the property appraiser has appropriately considered this factor.

(7) The income from the property - In considering the value of an improved property, the property appraiser considers the income generating potential. In this case, the property appraiser developed an income capitalization analysis in support of just value for this appraisal review. Market rents are supported in the analysis by confidential income data submitted to the property appraiser's office by other taxpayers. The property appraiser reconciled the subject's 21,393 square feet of anchor tenant space to a rental rate of $7.25 per square foot on a gross rent basis. The property appraiser has further reconciled the subject's 24,947 square feet of jr. anchor tenant space to a rental rate of $11.00 per square foot on a gross basis. The property appraiser also reconciled the subject's 9,634 square feet of in-line tenant space to a rental rate of $16.00 per square foot on a gross basis. The property appraiser has added $111,948 in common area maintenance reimbursements. A stabilized vacancy has been assumed at 9% but no market support was presented. These income assumptions result in an Effective Gross Income of $612,581. An expense ratio of 44% of EGI is used by the property appraiser in consideration of the gross expense structure. Market level expenses are reportedly evidenced by confidential expense data submitted to the property appraiser's office by other taxpayers. The resulting Net Operating Income is $343,046. No market evidence was presented in support of the property appraiser's 10% base capitalization rate which is reportedly loaded for real estate taxes but no breakdown was provided. The capitalized value indicated by this income analysis is $3,430,460. The property appraiser has made a 15% downward adjustment to account for cost of sale resulting in a just value of $2,920,000.

(8) Cost of Sale Adjustment - This criterion deals with the net proceeds from the sale of a property as received by the seller after deduction of all of the usual and reasonable fees and costs and expenses of financing and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms of financing arrangements. A few examples of the applicability of this criterion include: • unconventional or atypical financing arrangements, such as seller financing at favorable terms, which inflated the price, relative to what would have been achieved with a cash or cash-equivalent arrangement, • the inclusion of tangible personal property, which may serve to increase the price above pure real property consideration, • atypically motivated buyers, who may pay a premium relative to that paid by the general market, • atypical closing costs arrangements, such as a seller paying the buyer's closing costs in exchange for a higher sales price. Because these situations may not be discoverable by the mass appraiser relying on raw gross price data, a deduction from the raw gross price is made with the goal being to arrive at 100% of the market value of the real property by eliminating any possible impact of non-real property consideration. This mass appraisal method is found to be acceptable by the Florida Department of Revenue and the Florida Courts. The hearing record indicates that the just value is less than 85% of the preliminary value range supported by the property appraiser's evidence and analysis, suggesting that the cost of sale has been appropriately considered.

It is implicit in mass appraisal that, even when properly specified and calibrated models are employed, some individual value conclusions may not meet standards of reasonableness, consistency, and accuracy. The purpose of this value review is to determine whether the just value reported on the current tax roll represents the just value of the property after consideration of the criteria set forth in Florida Statute §193.011 and generally accepted appraisal principles, including those applicable to mass appraisal. The property appraiser has developed two of the three traditional value methods in support of the assessment. In reviewing the evidence presented by the property appraiser at this hearing, the special magistrate finds that the property appraiser has considered all factors set forth in Florida Statute §193.011; therefore, the presumption of correctness has been established.

By filing this petition, the petitioner asserts that the subject property has been assessed at an amount that exceeds just value. The petitioner bears the responsibility of presenting relevant and credible evidence demonstrating that the property appraiser's determination is incorrect. If the property appraiser establishes the presumption of correctness, the burden then shifts to the petitioner to prove that the assessment does not represent just value. Evidence offered in support of a reduction should be grounded in appraisal considerations consistent with the statutory criteria the property appraiser is required to apply. The following paragraphs summarize how the petitioner has addressed each of the eight statutory criteria.

(1) Present cash value of the property - In support of a revision to just value, the petitioner has presented the following sales:

• PET Sale 1 - 5111 Commercial Way, Spring Hill is described as a 15,228 square foot community shopping center. These improvements were constructed in 1984 and are represented as being in similar condition to the subject. The improvements are situated on a commercial site. This property sold in October 2024 for $1,525,000. Price adjustments were made for differences compared to the subject. Value indications for comparison are $1,296,250 and $85 per sq. ft.

• PET Sale 2 - 1217 Kass Circle, Spring Hill is described as a 12,350 square foot community shopping center. These improvements were constructed in 1984 and are represented as being in similar condition to the subject. The improvements are situated on a commercial site. This property sold in August 2024 for $930,000. Price adjustments were made for differences compared to the subject. Value indications for comparison are $790,500 and $64 per sq. ft.

These sales took place from August 2024 to October 2024. The petitioner has compared these sales on the basis of adjusted per-square-foot price. The petitioner has included 15% downward price adjustments for costs of sale. Although much smaller than the subject, the sales indicate a value range between $64 and $85 with a mean price of and $75. This sales evidence supports a value of $3,929,700. From this stabilized value the petitioner has deducted a lease-up adjustment discussed in greater detail in the income approach section of this recommendation.

(2) Highest and Best Use - The petitioner does not dispute that the highest and best use of the subject property is multi-tenant retail.

(3) Location of the property - The petitioner appears familiar with the location characteristics of the subject property and has not claimed the presence of any atypical or adverse location factors that would materially affect its use or value.

(4) Quantity or size of the property - The petitioner has presented a net leasable building area of 52,396 square feet supported by the rent roll. This is judged to be a more credible source than the property record card. Thus it appears that the property appraiser has overstated the size of the subject improvements and any value indications based on building area. However, even after correcting building area and considering disputed income assumptions, the stabilized indications still exceed the assessment, rendering those discrepancies non-outcome-determinative.

(5) The cost of the property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon - No analysis of cost has been presented by the petitioner in support of a change in just value. The market does not generally rely on depreciated replacement cost on a building of this age and condition.

(6) Condition - The petitioner has not personally inspected the subject property. The petitioner has not presented any credible evidence or asserted that the condition of the property differs from the description provided by the property appraiser during the hearing. Furthermore, no claim was made regarding any significant physical deficiencies that would affect the property's use or value.

(7) The income from the property - The petitioner has developed an income analysis as primary support of a revision to just value. Market rental rates are adequately supported in the petitioner's analysis by rent comparables for each tenant submarket. The petitioner reconciled the subject's 25,000 square feet of anchor tenant space to a rental rate of $8.00 per square foot on a gross rent basis. The petitioner has further reconciled the subject's 18,396 square feet of jr. anchor tenant space to a rental rate of $9.00 per square foot on a gross basis. The petitioner also reconciled the subject's 9,000 square feet of in-line tenant space to a rental rate of $12.00 per square foot on a gross basis. Again these building areas are based on the subject rent roll and are considered to be more accurate than what was used by the property appraiser. A vacancy rate of 7.0% is supported with published vacancy surveys. These income assumptions result in an effective gross income of $563,349. An expense ratio of 27% of EGI is used by the petitioner in consideration of the gross expense structure. This indicates Net Operating Income of $343,046. Market support for the petitioner's selection of 8.0% base capitalization rate is based on numerous capitalization rate surveys published by IRR Viewpoint Tampa Retail report, Situs AMC capitalization rate surveys, RealtyRates.com, PwC capitalization rate surveys, and Costar Market Report. In their analysis, the petitioner adjusted the base capitalization rate by the effective tax rate, resulting in a loaded capitalization rate of 10.08%. This loaded capitalization rate is similar to the rate selected by the property appraiser. The capitalized value indicated by this income analysis is $4,073,361. The two anchor tenants have recently vacated the building leaving a higher than stabilized vacancy in the property as of the January 1 value date. The petitioner has presented valuation analysis that includes discounting the just value to account for less-than-stabilized occupancy at the subject property as of the valuation date. This is commonly referred to as a lease-up discount. A lease-up adjustment is generally not considered appropriate for ad valorem taxation in Florida because ad valorem assessments are intended to reflect the fee simple interest at market value as of January 1, rather than investor-specific or occupancy-driven conditions. Fee simple interest assumes the property is available for use at its highest and best use, irrespective of current occupancy or lease status. Florida courts and property appraisers generally assume market stabilization for fee simple valuation, not transient or atypical vacancies. In Mastroianni v. Barnett Banks, Inc., 664 So. 2d 284 (Fla. 1995), the Florida courts found that the property appraiser was correct in using stabilized occupancy in the just value analysis, even though the actual vacancy was significantly higher. In that case, the Barnett Tower in Jacksonville was in the process of lease-up and was approximately 40% vacant on the valuation date; however, the property appraiser appropriately applied a stabilized vacancy rate of 15%. Furthermore, allowing lease-up discounts in ad valorem valuation could lead to inequitable assessments, where similar properties with identical market value receive different assessments based on temporary lease conditions. This undermines uniformity in taxation across the tax roll. Accordingly, the special magistrate finds that a lease-up discount is not appropriate for ad valorem tax valuation purposes. After cost of sale adjustment the indicated value by the petitioner's analysis is $2,230,000.

(8) Cost of Sale Adjustment - The petitioner has made deductions for cost of sale based on the DR-493 form submitted by the property appraiser to the Florida Department of Revenue in consideration of this criterion.

After careful consideration of all evidence presented at the hearing, the special magistrate finds that the property appraiser has established the presumption of correctness, however, finds that the evidence presented by the petitioner is generally far more supported by market evidence and more credible as a result, except as discussed, the use of a lease-up adjustment, while commonly used in valuing leased fee interest is inappropriate for tax valuation purposes. Eliminating this adjustment from the petitioner's value calculations yields a value by comparable sales of $3,929,700 and value by pro forma income capitalization of $ 3,462,300, neither of which support a reduction in $2,754,164 just value.

Conclusions of Law

According to §194.301, Florida Statutes, in any administrative action in which a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment of value, the property appraiser's assessment is presumed correct if the property appraiser proves by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment was arrived at by complying with §193.011, Florida Statutes, any other applicable statutory requirements, and professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. A taxpayer who challenges an assessment is entitled to a determination by the value adjustment board of the appropriateness of the appraisal methodology used. The value of property must be determined using an appraisal methodology that complies with the criteria of §193.011 and professionally accepted appraisal practices.

Pursuant to §194.301(2), Florida Statutes, the burden of proof rests with the party initiating the challenge. In a challenge to assessed value, the petitioner must prove by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment does not represent just value, does not represent classified use or fractional value where applicable, or is arbitrarily based on appraisal practices that are different from those generally applied by the property appraiser to comparable property within the same county.

If the petitioner satisfies this burden, the presumption of correctness is overcome and the value adjustment board must establish the assessment if the record contains competent, substantial evidence of value that cumulatively complies with §193.011 and professionally accepted appraisal practices. If the presumption of correctness is not overcome, the assessment must be upheld.

In this petition, the special magistrate has followed the sequence of general procedural steps set forth in Rule 12D-9.027, Florida Administrative Code.

First, the special magistrate determined whether the property appraiser established a presumption of correctness and whether the appraisal methodology used to support the just value of the subject property was appropriate. Based upon the evidence admitted into the record, the special magistrate finds that the property appraiser has established the presumption of correctness.

Second, the special magistrate considered whether the petitioner proved by a preponderance of the evidence that the property appraiser's just valuation does not represent just value or is arbitrarily based on appraisal practices applied differently than those used for comparable properties within the county. The special magistrate finds that the petitioner has failed to meet this burden and has not overcome the presumption of correctness.

Where the presumption of correctness is established and not overcome, the assessment must stand. Accordingly, based upon the findings of fact and conclusions of law, it is the recommendation of the special magistrate that the petitioner's request to overturn the property appraiser's 2025 just value determination be DENIED.

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

Hernando County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff.11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☒ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition #	25-232	Parcel ID	R22-222-19-2280-0000-0060
Petitioner name The petitioner is: ☐ other, explain:	FIRSTPOINTE ADVISORS, INC. ☐ taxpayer of record ☒ taxpayer's representative	Property address	460 HALE AVENUE BROOKSVILLE, FLORIDA

Decision Summary ☐ Denied your petition ☒ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just Value, required	$4,126,074	$4,126,074	$3,490,000
2. Assessed or classified use value, * if applicable	$4,126,074	$4,126,074	$3,490,000
3. Exempt value, * enter "0" if none	$0	$0	$0
4. Taxable value, * required	$4,126,074	$4,126,074	$3,490,000

*All values entered should be county taxable values, School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision

Findings of Fact

DUE TO SPACE LIMITATIONS, FINDINGS OF FACT ARE SET FORTH IN THE ATTACHED ADDENDA, WHICH IS MADE PART OF THIS RECOMMENDATION REPORT.

Conclusions of Law

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW ARE PROVIDED IN THE ATTACHED ADDENDA, INCORPORATED HEREIN BY REFERENCE.

☒ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	ROBERT C. HICKS Print Name	JAN 26, 2026 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____.
Address: Hernando County Gov't Center BOCC Chambers, Room 160, 20 North Main Street, Brooksville, Florida 34601.
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered.
To find the information, please call (352) 754-4970, or visit our website at vab@hernandoclerk.org.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print Name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date mailed to parties

Addenda

Findings Of Fact

Petitioner Nicholas L. Mau, CCIM with First Pointe Advisors, Inc. appeared telephonically on behalf of 460 Hale, LLC on January 15, 2026 to provide testimonial and documentary evidence pertaining to the 2025 property assessment for real property located in Hernando County, Florida. The Hernando County Property Appraiser's Office was represented at the hearing by Deputy Appraisers Daniel Scott, Commercial Supervisor and Kimberly Hubert. An opening statement regarding the hearing process and rules of procedure was read and all parties were placed under oath.

The subject of this petition is listed on the Hernando County tax roll as Parcel ID R22-222-19-2280-0000-0060. This property is described as a 1-story, multifamily apartment complex known as Sunny Point Apartments. The subject property is located at 460 Hale Avenue, Brooksville, Hernando County, Florida. The building improvements consist of 50 units with 39,876 square feet of net leasable building area on a 3.83-acre multifamily site zoned R3. The improvements were constructed in 1973 and are described as fair quality in fair condition. It appears that the subject of this petition has not sold within the 12-months preceding the January 1 valuation date.

The property appraiser confirmed the 2025 just value of $4,126,074, assessed value of $4,126,074 and taxable value of $4,126,074. There have been no changes to the values since the Notice of Proposed Property Taxes (TRIM) was issued. The petitioner is requesting a revision to the 2025 just value, proposing a revision in just value to $3,490,000. This request is supported by actual income and expenses and a market income analysis.

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence, see Florida Administrative Code 12D-9.025(1). Generally, relevant evidence is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. The evidence meets or exceeds a minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. Documentary evidence presented by the property appraiser during the hearing is described and labeled as follows:

- PAO-A (28 pages) - Cover page, table of contents, subject summary page, subject property record cards, aerial maps, income approach calculations, letter requesting income and expenses information from the property owner

Documentary evidence presented by the petitioner during the hearing is described and labeled as follows:

- PET-1 (96 pages) - Cover page, summary of evidence, summary of salient facts, exterior photographs, street map, aerial map, leased fee income analysis, owner's profit and loss statement, pro forma analysis, income statement, summary of leases, Costar description of subject, rent comparables with location map and photographs, Costar market report, IRR Viewpoint Market Report, SitusAMC cap rate survey, RealtyRates.com, expense comparables, Cushman & Wakefield Marketbeat Tampa Bay, PwC investor surveys, The Florida Real Property Appraisal Guidelines, Yaniv RR report, subject rent roll, subject property record card

- PET-2 (113 pages) - Cover page, table of contents, Florida Statutes 194.034 and 193.011, DR-493, 2023 Value Adjustment Board Training Module 6, Advisory Memorandum referencing uniform handling of Cost of Sale deductions, 2020, 2021, 2022 cost of sale deductions reported by County, letter from Edwards Law Firm regarding Cost of Sale adjustments, Property Tax Oversight Bulletin PTO 11-01, FAC 12D-9.020 Exchange of Evidence, Gordon & Thalwitzer memorandum pertaining to cost of sale deductions

The property appraiser has not raised any objections to the timeliness of the evidence presented by the petitioner during the hearing.

The Florida Legislature has enacted eight criteria that the property appraiser must consider when determining just value. In any administrative or judicial action where a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment, the property appraiser's estimate of just value is presumed correct if it is proven that the assessment was made in compliance with the eight criteria outlined in Section 193.011, Florida Statutes and in accordance with professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The only standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence, meaning the greater weight of evidence, or "more likely than not."

Florida courts have consistently held that the property appraiser is only required to consider the eight criteria, and that applying each factor is not mandatory. The courts have further found that if any one criterion does not reflect just value, it should be disregarded by the property appraiser. The special magistrate finds and summarizes the extent to which the property appraiser has considered each of these criteria in the following paragraphs.

(1) Present cash value of the property - The amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arms-length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In short, the price without transaction costs. The buyer typically pays more, and the seller typically receives less than the price indicated by the documentary stamps due to these transaction costs. In mass appraising, the property appraiser considers this criterion by applying or considering the comparable market sales using the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through comparable sales analysis similar to that found in a fee appraisal. No sales comparison analysis has been presented during the hearing due to a lack of comparable sales data for this type of property in this market.

(2) Highest & Best Use – This relates to the consideration of the fundamental appraisal concept of highest and best use or best use to which the property can be expected to be put in the immediate future. For improved properties, the highest and best use of the property as if vacant should be considered as well. The four steps establishing highest and best use are consideration of what is physically possible, legally permissible, financially feasible, and maximally productive. The highest and best use as vacant is identified through land use codes which, in part, are based on zoning. The highest and best use as improved is assumed to be the current use unless evidence shows otherwise. The property appraiser's office considers highest and best use by identifying and recording land size, zoning, building size, location and other characteristics. Once all coding is in place, comparable sales and rentals that have similar characteristics are used to value the property. The highest and best use of this property is for multifamily use. This determination is undisputed by the petitioner and appears to have been appropriately considered by the property appraiser.

(3) Location of the property – The property appraiser assigns a neighborhood code to every property in the county. Sales of properties in the same or similar neighborhoods are typically used to determine locational adjustments. Often, site-specific location adjustments are made to reflect either an enhanced location (such as a water front site or in a golf course community) or an inferior location (such as adjacent to an industrial use or dumpsite). All of the comparable properties presented in support of value are located in the same market area as the subject. The location of the property appears to have been appropriately considered in the determination of just value.

(4) Quantity or size of the property – The property appraiser must consider the quantity or size of the property by determining and recording the correct land size, building size, and extra features sizes and quantities. Land size is based on legal descriptions from recorded plats or metes and bounds. Building sizes and extra features are determined by inspection and measured by deputy property appraisers. The source of land and building sizes used by the property appraiser is the property record card.

(5) The cost of the property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon - An analysis of cost is made in the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System is found on the property record card. The property appraiser considers replacement cost through the use of Marshall & Swift Valuation Service data. These rates are adjusted annually to reflect the costs relevant to January 1 of the given tax year. Marshall & Swift Valuation Cost Service is also used to determine the replacement costs of extra features or site improvements. No separate analysis of cost has been presented during the hearing. Buyers in this sector of the real estate market do not typically consider the costs associated with development when valuing properties of this age and type.

(6) Condition of the property – The property appraiser considers the condition of properties through periodic property inspections, no less than once every five years as required by Statute. Other events can trigger more frequent site inspections, including the sale of a property, issuance of a building permit, assessment appeal, or at the taxpayer's request. Condition is considered as a factor applied to the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System value calculation for value losses from all sources based upon an age/life depreciation method. Photographs of the subject property have been presented as evidence of condition. It appears that the property appraiser has appropriately considered this factor.

(7) The income from the property - In considering the value of an improved property, the property appraiser considers the income generating potential. In this case, the property appraiser developed an income capitalization analysis in support of just value for this appraisal review. Market rents are supported in the analysis by confidential income data submitted to the property appraiser's office by other taxpayers. The property appraiser reconciled the subject's 32 - 2bed/1bath units to a monthly rental rate of $1,200 and 18 - 1bed/1bath units to a monthly rental rate of $1,100. A stabilized vacancy has been assumed at 7%. These income assumptions result in an Effective Gross Income of $657,045. An expense ratio of approximately 25% of EGI is used by the property appraiser in consideration of the per month expense structure. Expenses are based on confidential expense data submitted to the property appraiser's office by other taxpayers. The resulting Net Operating Income is $489,241. No market evidence or calculations were presented in support of the property appraiser's 9.6% loaded capitalization rate. The capitalized value indicated by this income analysis is $5,096,260. The property appraiser has made a 15% downward adjustment to account for cost of sale resulting in a just value of $4,330,000. No market evidence of income, expenses or capitalization rates were presented. The property appraiser's evidence includes a letter requesting actual income and expense and stated that none had been received for 2025. The petitioner responded that 2023 income and expense had been sent.

(8) Cost of Sale Adjustment - This criterion deals with the net proceeds from the sale of a property as received by the seller after deduction of all of the usual and reasonable fees and costs and expenses of financing and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms of financing arrangements. A few examples of the applicability of this criterion include: • unconventional or atypical financing arrangements, such as seller financing at favorable terms, which inflated the price, relative to what would have been achieved with a cash or cash-equivalent arrangement, • the inclusion of tangible personal property, which may serve to increase the price above pure real property consideration, • atypically motivated buyers, who may pay a premium relative to that paid by the general market, • atypical closing costs arrangements, such as a seller paying the buyer's closing costs in exchange for a higher sales price. Because these situations may not be discoverable by the mass appraiser relying on raw gross price data, a deduction from the raw gross price is made with the goal being to arrive at 100% of the market value of the real property by eliminating any possible impact of non-real property consideration. This mass appraisal method is found to be acceptable by the Florida Department of Revenue and the Florida Courts. The special magistrate finds that applying a specific cost-of-sale adjustment consistent with the DR-493 form constitutes appropriate consideration of this criterion and complies with the requirements of Chapter 193.011, Florida Statutes.

It is implicit in mass appraisal that, even when properly specified and calibrated models are employed, some individual value conclusions may not meet standards of reasonableness, consistency, and accuracy. The purpose of this value review is to determine whether the just value reported on the current tax roll represents the just value of the property after consideration of the criteria set forth in Florida Statute §193.011 and generally accepted appraisal principles, including those applicable to mass appraisal. In reviewing the evidence presented by the property appraiser at this hearing, the special magistrate finds that the property appraiser failed to provide market evidence in support of sales, costs, income or expense and thus has not appropriately considered the factors set forth in Florida Statute §193.011; therefore, the presumption of correctness has not been established.

The following paragraphs summarize how the petitioner has addressed each of the eight statutory criteria.

(1) Present cash value of the property - No analysis of comparable sales has been presented by the petitioner in support of a change in just value.

(2) Highest and Best Use - The petitioner does not dispute that the highest and best use of the subject property is multifamily.

(3) Location of the property - The petitioner appears familiar with the location characteristics of the subject property and has not claimed the presence of any atypical or adverse location factors that would materially affect its use or value.

(4) Quantity or size of the property - The petitioner does not dispute the size or quantity of the land or improvements reported by the property appraiser during the hearing, nor was any allegation made that these factors were miscalculated or improperly considered in the valuation.

(5) The cost of the property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon – Based on age and condition, no analysis of cost has been presented by the petitioner in support of a change in just value.

(6) Condition - The petitioner has not presented any credible evidence or asserted that the condition of the property differs from the description provided by the property appraiser during the hearing. Furthermore, no claim was made regarding any significant physical deficiencies that would affect the property's use or value.

(7) The income from the property - The petitioner has developed an income analysis in support of a revision to just value. Market rental rates are supported in the petitioner's analysis by recently signed rents for the subject property as well as rental comparables and market survey results. The petitioner reconciled the subject's 32 - 2bed/1bath units to a rental rate of $1,205 and 18 - 1bed/1bath units to a rental rate of $1,332. A vacancy rate of 10% is supported with published vacancy survey reports. These income assumptions result in an effective gross income of $705,318. This income is greater than the income estimated by the property appraiser. The greatest difference in analysis is due to expenses. An expense ratio of 45% of EGI is used by the petitioner. Market level expenses are evidenced by comparable expense ratios ranging between 35% and 49% with a mean and median of 41% and 40%. Replacement reserves are included at a rate of 2.0% of EGI. This indicates Net Operating Income of $489,241. Market support for the petitioner's selection of 7.0% base capitalization rate is based on numerous capitalization rate surveys published by Costar market report, IRR Viewpoint Market Report, SitusAMC cap rate survey, RealtyRates.com, expense comparables, Cushman & Wakefield Marketbeat Tampa Bay, PwC investor surveys. The capitalized value indicated by this income analysis is $4,107,646. The petitioner has made a 15% downward adjustment to account for costs of sale to a just value of $3,490,000. This appears to be a well-supported analysis that complies with generally accepted appraisal principles.

(8) Cost of Sale Adjustment - The petitioner has made deductions for cost of sale based on the DR-493 form submitted by the property appraiser to the Florida Department of Revenue in consideration of this criterion.

After careful consideration of all evidence presented at the hearing, the special magistrate finds that the property appraiser has not established the presumption of correctness, however, finds that the record contains competent and substantial evidence of just value that complies with all eight criteria set forth in Florida Statute §193.011 and generally accepted appraisal principles. Accordingly, the special magistrate recommends the following revised value supported in the petitioner's pro forma income analysis.

Conclusions of Law

According to §194.301(1), Florida Statutes, in an administrative action in which a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment of value, the property appraiser's assessment is presumed correct only if the property appraiser proves by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment was arrived at in compliance with §193.011, Florida Statutes, all other applicable statutory requirements, and professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate.

In this proceeding, the special magistrate finds that the property appraiser did not establish the presumption of correctness. The evidence presented by the property appraiser did not demonstrate, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the assessment was supported by market-based analysis sufficient to establish compliance with §193.011, Florida Statutes, and professionally accepted appraisal practices.

Where the presumption of correctness is not established, §194.301(2)(b), Florida Statutes, requires the value adjustment board to establish the assessment if the record contains competent, substantial evidence of value that cumulatively complies with §193.011, Florida Statutes, and professionally accepted appraisal practices.

Based upon the admitted evidence and the findings of fact, the special magistrate finds that the hearing record contains competent, substantial evidence of just value. The petitioner presented a market-supported income capitalization analysis addressing the applicable statutory criteria, and the evidence is determined to be credible, relevant, and sufficient to support a conclusion of value.

In establishing a revised just value, the value adjustment board is not limited to adopting a value advocated by either party but may determine a value supported by the competent, substantial evidence of record. In this case, the special magistrate finds that the petitioner's requested just value is supported by the evidence and represents the just value of the subject property.

Accordingly, pursuant to §194.301, Florida Statutes, and Rule Chapter 12D-9, Florida Administrative Code, it is the recommendation of the special magistrate that the just value of the subject property be revised to the petitioner's requested just value, as reflected in the findings of fact and the evidence contained in the record.

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

Hernando County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff.11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☒ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition #	25-233	Parcel ID	R13-223-18-3589-0000-0010
Petitioner name The petitioner is: ☐ other, explain:	FIRSTPOINTE ADVISORS, INC. ☐ taxpayer of record ☒ taxpayer's representative	Property address	15751 SPRING HILL DRIVE BROOKSVILLE, FLORIDA

Decision Summary ☐ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☒ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just Value, required	$5,847,933	$5,847,933	$4,626,800
2. Assessed or classified use value, * if applicable	$5,847,933	$5,847,933	$4,626,800
3. Exempt value, * enter "0" if none	$0	$0	$0
4. Taxable value, * required	$5,847,933	$5,847,933	$4,626,800

*All values entered should be county taxable values, School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision

Findings of Fact

DUE TO SPACE LIMITATIONS, FINDINGS OF FACT ARE SET FORTH IN THE ATTACHED ADDENDA, WHICH IS MADE PART OF THIS RECOMMENDATION REPORT.

Conclusions of Law

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW ARE PROVIDED IN THE ATTACHED ADDENDA, INCORPORATED HEREIN BY REFERENCE.

☒ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	ROBERT C. HICKS Print Name	FEB 2, 2026 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____.
Address: Hernando County Gov't Center BOCC Chambers, Room 160, 20 North Main Street, Brooksville, Florida 34601.
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered.
To find the information, please call (352) 754-4970, or visit our website at vab@hernandoclerk.org.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print Name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date mailed to parties

Addenda

Findings Of Fact

Petitioner Nicholas L. Mau, CCIM with First Pointe Advisors, Inc. appeared telephonically on behalf of AAA Storage Spring Hill, LLC on January 15, 2026 to provide testimonial and documentary evidence pertaining to the 2025 property assessment for real property located in Hernando County, Florida. The Hernando County Property Appraiser's Office was represented at the hearing by Deputy Appraisers Daniel Scott, Commercial Supervisor and Kimberly Hubert. An opening statement regarding the hearing process and rules of procedure was read and all parties were placed under oath.

The subject of this petition is listed on the Hernando County tax roll as Parcel ID R13-223-18-3589-0000-0010. This property is described as a self storage facility. The subject property is located at 15751 Spring Hill Drive, Brooksville, Hernando County, Florida. According to the property record card, the building improvements consist of 60,702 square feet of gross building area and 57,769 square feet of base area on a 173,653-square-foot commercial site zoned PDP(CG). The improvements were constructed in 2024 and are described as average quality in new condition. Based on an inspection of the property, the property appraiser has determined that the building improvements have an effective age of one year, considering construction quality and condition. It appears that the subject of this petition has not sold within the 12-months preceding the January 1 valuation date.

The property appraiser confirmed the 2025 just value of $5,847,933, assessed value of $5,847,933 and taxable value of $5,847,933. There have been no changes to the values since the Notice of Proposed Property Taxes (TRIM) was issued. The petitioner is requesting a revision to the 2025 just value, proposing a revision in just value to $3,880,000. This request is supported by leased fee analysis, market income analysis and one comparable sale.

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence, see Florida Administrative Code 12D-9.025(1). Generally, relevant evidence is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. The evidence meets or exceeds a minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. Documentary evidence presented by the property appraiser during the hearing is described and labeled as follows:

- PAO-A (47 pages) - Cover page, table of contents, subject summary page, subject property record card, aerial maps, sales comparison approach, sales location map, street photographs of each sale, sales adjustment grid, property record card for each sale

Documentary evidence presented by the petitioner during the hearing is described and labeled as follows:

- PET-1 (58 pages) - Cover page, summary of evidence, summary of salient facts, subject property record card, exterior photographs, street map, aerial map, leased fee income analysis, owner's profit and loss statement, pro forma analysis, lease-up analysis, subject rent roll, rent comparables, Matrix National Self Storage Report, Cushman & Wakefield Market Trends in Self Storage, 2024 Self Storage Expense Guidebook, comparable sale, costar writeup of sale, property record card for sale

- PET-2 (113 pages) - Cover page, table of contents, Florida Statutes 194.034 and 193.011, DR-493, 2023 Value Adjustment Board Training Module 6, Advisory Memorandum referencing uniform handling of Cost of Sale deductions, 2020, 2021, 2022 cost of sale deductions reported by County, letter from Edwards Law Firm regarding Cost of Sale adjustments, Property Tax Oversight Bulletin PTO 11-01, FAC 12D-9.020 Exchange of Evidence, Gordon & Thalwitzer memorandum pertaining to cost of sale deductions

The property appraiser has not raised any objections to the timeliness of the evidence presented by the petitioner during the hearing.

The Florida Legislature has enacted eight criteria that the property appraiser must consider when determining just value. In any administrative or judicial action where a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment, the property appraiser's estimate of just value is presumed correct if it is proven that the assessment was made in compliance with the eight criteria outlined in Section 193.011, Florida Statutes and in accordance with professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The only standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence, meaning the greater weight of evidence, or "more likely than not."

Florida courts have consistently held that the property appraiser is only required to consider the eight criteria, and that applying each factor is not mandatory. The courts have further found that if any one criterion does not reflect just value, it should be disregarded by the property appraiser. The special magistrate finds and summarizes the extent to which the property appraiser has considered each of these criteria in the following paragraphs.

(1) Present cash value of the property - The amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arms-length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In short, the price without transaction costs. The buyer typically pays more, and the seller typically receives less than the price indicated by the documentary stamps due to these transaction costs. In mass appraising, the property appraiser considers this criterion by applying or considering the comparable market sales using the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through comparable sales analysis similar to that found in a fee appraisal. The property appraiser has presented sales evidence in support of the present cash value. Following are brief descriptions of the sales determined by the property appraiser to be most comparable to the subject and representative of value:

• PA Sale 1 - 10198 Atlanta Avenue, Weeki Wachee is described as a 54,000 square foot self storage facility. These improvements were constructed in 2023 and are represented as being in similar condition to the subject. The improvements are situated on a commercial site. This property sold in October 2023 for $5,900,000. Price adjustments were made for differences compared to the subject. Value indications for comparison are $6,106,320 and $113 per sq. ft.

• PA Sale 2 - 2976 County Road 523, Wildwood, Sumter Co. is described as a 61,130 square foot self storage facility. These improvements were constructed in 2019 and are represented as being in inferior construction quality to the subject. The improvements are situated on a commercial site. This property sold in February 2023 for $8,800,000. Price adjustments were made for differences compared to the subject. Value indications for comparison are $8,355,860 and $137 per sq. ft.

• PA Sale 3 - 5322 Commercial Way, Spring Hill is described as a 88,644 square foot self storage facility. These improvements were constructed in 2022 and are represented as being in similar condition to the subject. The improvements are situated on a commercial site. This property sold in March 2022 for $11,729,700. Price adjustments were made for differences compared to the subject. Value indications for comparison are $11,427,984 and $129 per sq. ft.

The sales were selected based on similar location, age, size and utility. Relevant transactions occurred within 34 months preceding the January 1, 2025 value date. Three qualified sales judged to be most comparable to the subject have been presented in support of value. The property appraiser has compared these sales on the basis of adjusted per-square-foot price. The sales indicate a value range between $113 and $137. The mean and median prices are calculated as $126 and $129, respectively. The property appraiser has reconciled to a value of $7,292,181 or $126.23 per square foot, which falls within the indicated range. These sales are presented by the property appraiser as market evidence that the property is not over-assessed, and $5,847,933 or $101 per sq. ft. represents just value for the subject property.

(2) Highest & Best Use – This relates to the consideration of the fundamental appraisal concept of highest and best use or best use to which the property can be expected to be put in the immediate future. For improved properties, the highest and best use of the property as if vacant should be considered as well. The four steps establishing highest and best use are consideration of what is physically possible, legally permissible, financially feasible, and maximally productive. The highest and best use as vacant is identified through land use codes which, in part, are based on zoning. The highest and best use as improved is assumed to be the current use unless evidence shows otherwise. The property appraiser's office considers highest and best use by identifying and recording land size, zoning, building size, location and other characteristics. Once all coding is in place, comparable sales and rentals that have similar characteristics are used to value the property. The highest and best use of this property is for self storage use. This determination is undisputed by the petitioner and appears to have been appropriately considered by the property appraiser.

(3) Location of the property – The property appraiser assigns a neighborhood code to every property in the county. Sales of properties in the same or similar neighborhoods are typically used to determine locational adjustments. Often, site-specific location adjustments are made to reflect either an enhanced location (such as a water front site or in a golf course community) or an inferior location (such as adjacent to an industrial use or dumpsite). All of the comparable properties presented in support of value are located in the same market area as the subject. The location of the property appears to have been appropriately considered in the determination of just value.

(4) Quantity or size of the property – The property appraiser must consider the quantity or size of the property by determining and recording the correct land size, building size, and extra features sizes and quantities. Land size is based on legal descriptions from recorded plats or metes and bounds. Building sizes and extra features are determined by inspection and measured by deputy property appraisers. The source of land and building sizes used by the property appraiser is the property record card.

(5) The cost of the property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon - An analysis of cost is made in the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System is found on the property record card. The property appraiser considers replacement cost through the use of Marshall & Swift Valuation Service data. These rates are adjusted annually to reflect the costs relevant to January 1 of the given tax year. Marshall & Swift Valuation Cost Service is also used to determine the replacement costs of extra features or site improvements. No separate analysis of cost has been presented during the hearing.

(6) Condition of the property – The property appraiser considers the condition of properties through periodic property inspections, no less than once every five years as required by Statute. Other events can trigger more frequent site inspections, including the sale of a property, issuance of a building permit, assessment appeal, or at the taxpayer's request. Condition is considered as a factor applied to the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System value calculation for value losses from all sources based upon an age/life depreciation method. Photographs of the subject property have been presented as evidence of condition. An effective age of 1 year has been estimated by the property appraiser based on an analysis of chronological age, condition and construction quality. It appears that the property appraiser has appropriately considered this factor.

(7) The income from the property - No analysis of income has been presented during the hearing due to a lack of market data pertaining to rental income, expenses and capitalization rates for this type of property. It is the opinion of the magistrate that this lack of an income analysis fails to comply with Criterion 7, Chapter 193.011 of the Florida statutes and generally accepted appraisal practices.

(8) Cost of Sale Adjustment - This criterion deals with the net proceeds from the sale of a property as received by the seller after deduction of all of the usual and reasonable fees and costs and expenses of financing and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms of financing arrangements. A few examples of the applicability of this criterion include: • unconventional or atypical financing arrangements, such as seller financing at favorable terms, which inflated the price, relative to what would have been achieved with a cash or cash-equivalent arrangement, • the inclusion of tangible personal property, which may serve to increase the price above pure real property consideration, • atypically motivated buyers, who may pay a premium relative to that paid by the general market, • atypical closing costs arrangements, such as a seller paying the buyer's closing costs in exchange for a higher sales price. Because these situations may not be discoverable by the mass appraiser relying on raw gross price data, a deduction from the raw gross price is made with the goal being to arrive at 100% of the market value of the real property by eliminating any possible impact of non-real property consideration. This mass appraisal method is found to be acceptable by the Florida Department of Revenue and the Florida Courts. The special magistrate finds that applying a specific cost-of-sale adjustment consistent with the DR-493 form constitutes appropriate consideration of this criterion and complies with the requirements of Chapter 193.011, Florida Statutes.

It is implicit in mass appraisal that, even when properly specified and calibrated models are employed, some individual value conclusions may not meet standards of reasonableness, consistency, and accuracy. The purpose of this value review is to determine whether the just value reported on the current tax roll represents the just value of the property after consideration of the criteria set forth in Florida Statute §193.011 and generally accepted appraisal principles, including those applicable to mass appraisal. The property appraiser has developed one of the three traditional value methods in support of the assessment. In reviewing the evidence presented by the property appraiser at this hearing, the special magistrate finds that the property appraiser did not appropriately consider the factors set forth in Florida Statute §193.011; therefore, the presumption of correctness has not been established.

By filing this petition, the petitioner asserts that the subject property has been assessed at an amount that exceeds just value. The petitioner bears the responsibility of presenting relevant and credible evidence demonstrating that the property appraiser's determination is incorrect. If the property appraiser establishes the presumption of correctness, the burden then shifts to the petitioner to prove that the assessment does not represent just value. Evidence offered in support of a reduction should be grounded in appraisal considerations consistent with the statutory criteria the property appraiser is required to apply. A mere difference of opinion regarding value is insufficient to prevail. The following paragraphs summarize how the petitioner has addressed each of the eight statutory criteria.

(1) Present cash value of the property - In support of a revision to just value, the petitioner has presented the following sales:

• PET Sale 1 - 10198 Atlanta Avenue, Weeki Wachee is described as a 59,800 square foot self storage facility. These improvements were constructed in 2023 and are represented as being in similar condition to the subject. The improvements are situated on a commercial site. This property sold in October 2024 for $5,900,000. A 15% cost of sale adjustment was made resulting in a price of $5,015,000 or $84 per sq. ft. This is the same sale as PA Sale 1.

From the property record card provided in the petitioner's evidence, it appears that the building size is incorrect and thus the per square foot value indication is overstated. The property record card shows a gross building area of 54,320 square feet and a base building area of 54,000, same as reflected in the property appraiser's analysis. This would indicate an adjusted price of $93 per square foot or $5,365,000 for the subject property based on the size listed on the property record card. From this stabilized value the petitioner has deducted a lease-up adjustment discussed in greater detail in the income approach section of this recommendation

(2) Highest and Best Use - The petitioner does not dispute that the highest and best use of the subject property is self storage.

(3) Location of the property - The petitioner appears familiar with the location characteristics of the subject property and has not claimed the presence of any atypical or adverse location factors that would materially affect its use or value.

(4) Quantity or size of the property – A material discrepancy exists between the building area utilized by the property appraiser and that relied upon by the petitioner. The property appraiser's analysis is based on a building area of 57,769 square feet as reflected on the property record card. The petitioner's analysis utilizes a reduced building area of 51,988 square feet. The petitioner did not present testimony or documentary evidence at the hearing to rebut the accuracy of the building size shown on the property record card, nor was any evidence submitted to support the alternative size relied upon by the petitioner. Accordingly, greater weight and credibility are assigned to the building area of 57,769 square feet as documented on the property record card.

(5) The cost of the property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon – Even though the subject property was building one year ago, no analysis of cost has been presented by the petitioner in support of a change in just value.

(6) Condition - The petitioner has not personally inspected the subject property. The petitioner has not presented any credible evidence or asserted that the condition of the property differs from the description provided by the property appraiser during the hearing. Furthermore, no claim was made regarding any significant physical deficiencies that would affect the property's use or value.

(7) The income from the property - The petitioner has developed two income analysis in support of a revision to just value. The first is based on the property owner's profit and loss statement. The Florida Real Property Appraisal Guidelines from the Florida Department of Revenue Property Tax Administration Program and the Appraisal Institute's The Appraisal of Real Estate defines market rent, which is distinct from contract rent, as the most likely rent that an income-producing property would command if offered for lease on the open market, as of the date of appraisal. Unless specified otherwise, fee simple estate is the interest in real property to be appraised for ad valorem tax purposes in the State of Florida. Market rent corresponds to the fee simple estate. Contract rent is the rent due under the terms of an existing lease agreement for real property, and contract rent corresponds to the leased fee estate. Contract rent at the subject property from the prior year bears little relevance to real property appraisal for ad valorem tax purposes in the State of Florida, unless independent support is available indicating that contract rent is equal to market rent Market rent may be less than, equal to, or greater than contract rent. An investor purchasing income producing real estate is essentially trading present dollars for the expectation of receiving future dollars. Leased fee value will reflect current leases and the associated expense structure, while fee simple value starts with an income projection based on market rent. Direct Capitalization typically uses one-year cash flow estimate, usually 12 months from the date of value. Although an appraiser may consider the actual income of the subject property at the time of the appraisal, valuation is based on a projection of future income. A property appraiser should consider the future outlook both in estimating income and expenses and in selecting the appropriate capitalization methodology to use. The consideration of future income is consistent with the principle of anticipation, which holds that value is the present worth of future benefits. Historical income and current income may be representative of market value, but the ultimate concern is the future.

The petitioner has developed a second income analysis in support of a revision to just value. Market rental rates are supported in the petitioner's analysis by rent comparables and industry publications. The petitioner reconciled the subject's 51,988 square feet of building area to a rental rate of $11.26 per square foot with additional utility pass-throughs of $0.79 per square foot. A vacancy rate of 10% is supported with published vacancy surveys. These income assumptions result in an effective gross income of $557,953. An expense ratio of 29% of EGI with 1% in reserves for replacements is used by the petitioner in consideration of the modified gross expense structure. This indicates Net Operating Income of $343,046. Market support for the petitioner's selection of 6.5% base capitalization rate is based on numerous capitalization rate surveys. In their analysis, the petitioner adjusted the base capitalization rate by the effective tax rate, resulting in a loaded capitalization rate of 7.93%. The capitalized value indicated by this income analysis is $4,898,922. The petitioner has presented valuation analysis that includes discounting the just value to account for less-than-stabilized occupancy at the subject property as of the valuation date. This is commonly referred to as a lease-up discount. A lease-up adjustment is generally not considered appropriate for ad valorem taxation in Florida because ad valorem assessments are intended to reflect the fee simple interest at market value as of January 1, rather than investor-specific or occupancy-driven conditions. Fee simple interest assumes the property is available for use at its highest and best use, irrespective of current occupancy or lease status. Florida courts and property appraisers generally assume market stabilization for fee simple valuation, not transient or atypical vacancies. In Mastroianni v. Barnett Banks, Inc., 664 So. 2d 284 (Fla. 1995), the Florida courts found that the property appraiser was correct in using stabilized occupancy in the just value analysis, even though the actual vacancy was significantly higher. In that case, the Barnett Tower in Jacksonville was in the process of lease-up and was approximately 40% vacant on the valuation date; however, the property appraiser appropriately applied a stabilized vacancy rate of 15%. Furthermore, allowing lease-up discounts in ad valorem valuation could lead to inequitable assessments, where similar properties with identical market value receive different assessments based on temporary lease conditions. This undermines uniformity in taxation across the tax roll. Accordingly, the special magistrate finds that a lease-up discount is not appropriate for ad valorem tax valuation purposes. The petitioner's value based on this analysis is $3,880,000 after making an adjustment for cost of sale.

(8) Cost of Sale Adjustment - The petitioner has made deductions for cost of sale based on the DR-493 form submitted by the property appraiser to the Florida Department of Revenue in consideration of this criterion.

After careful consideration of all evidence presented at the hearing, the special magistrate finds that the property appraiser has not established the presumption of correctness, however, finds that the record contains competent and substantial evidence of just value that complies with all eight criteria set forth in Florida Statute §193.011 and generally accepted appraisal principles. Accordingly, the special magistrate recommends the following revised value based on the evidence contained in the record. Self storage facilities are typically valued based on their income-producing potential. As such, greatest weight is accorded to the pro forma income capitalization analysis. The pro forma analysis included in the hearing record was revised by adopting a building area of 57,769 square feet, as supported by the property record card, and by removing the $335,890 lease-up adjustment. These revisions result in the following indicated value conclusions:

Potential Rent	$650,479
Utility Income	$45,534
Total Potential Revenue	$696,012
Concessions (1%)	-$6,960
Vacancy and Collection Loss (10%)	-$69,601
Effective Revenue	$619,451
Operating Expenses ($3 psf)	-$173,307
Non-ad valorem tax	-$5,825
Reserves for Replacements ($0.15 psf)	-$8,665
Net Operating Income	$431,654

Capitalized at 7.93%	$5,443,301
Less: Cost of Sale (15%)	-$816,495
Just Indicated value by Income	$4,626,800

Based on the foregoing, it is the recommendation of the special magistrate that the 2025 just value be revised to $4,626,800, which is supported by the competent, substantial evidence of record and addresses all eight factors set forth in §193.011, Florida Statutes.

Conclusions of Law

Pursuant to §194.301(1), Florida Statutes, in an administrative action challenging an ad valorem tax assessment, the property appraiser's assessment is entitled to a presumption of correctness only if the property appraiser demonstrates, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the assessment was derived in compliance with §193.011, Florida Statutes, and professionally accepted appraisal practices. Based on the Findings of Fact, the property appraiser did not establish this presumption of correctness.

Under §194.301(2), Florida Statutes, the burden of proof rests with the party initiating the challenge. The Findings of Fact reflect that the petitioner presented competent and relevant evidence demonstrating, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the assessed value does not represent the just value of the subject property as of January 1 of the tax year under review.

Because the presumption of correctness was not established, and because the record contains competent, substantial evidence of value that cumulatively satisfies the criteria of §193.011, Florida Statutes, the special magistrate is required to establish a revised just value consistent with the weight of the evidence. Accordingly, the assessment should be revised to the just value supported by the evidence contained in the hearing record.

This conclusion is based solely on the admitted evidence and applicable law and is consistent with the Findings of Fact and the requirements for written decisions set forth in Rule Chapter 12D-9, Florida Administrative Code.

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

Hernando County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff.11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☒ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition #	25-234	Parcel ID	R28-222-18-1576-0000-0030
Petitioner name The petitioner is: ☐ taxpayer of record ☒ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	FIRSTPOINTE ADVISORS, INC.	Property address	13143 CORTEZ BOULEVARD BROOKSVILLE, FLORIDA

Decision Summary ☐ Denied your petition ☒ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just Value, required	$3,300,000	$3,300,000	$2,440,000
2. Assessed or classified use value, * if applicable	$3,300,000	$3,300,000	$2,440,000
3. Exempt value, * enter "0" if none	$0	$0	$0
4. Taxable value, * required	$3,300,000	$3,300,000	$2,440,000

*All values entered should be county taxable values, School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision

Findings of Fact

DUE TO SPACE LIMITATIONS, FINDINGS OF FACT ARE SET FORTH IN THE ATTACHED ADDENDA, WHICH IS MADE PART OF THIS RECOMMENDATION REPORT.

Conclusions of Law

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW ARE PROVIDED IN THE ATTACHED ADDENDA, INCORPORATED HEREIN BY REFERENCE.

☒ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	ROBERT C. HICKS Print Name	FEB 17, 2026 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____.
Address: Hernando County Gov't Center BOCC Chambers, Room 160, 20 North Main Street, Brooksville, Florida 34601.
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered.
To find the information, please call (352) 754-4970, or visit our website at vab@hernandoclerk.org.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print Name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date mailed to parties

Addenda

Findings Of Fact

Petitioner Nicholas L. Mau, CCIM with First Pointe Advisors, Inc. appeared telephonically on behalf of Chick-Fil-A, Inc. on January 15, 2026 to provide testimonial and documentary evidence pertaining to the 2025 property assessment for real property located in Hernando County, Florida. The Hernando County Property Appraiser's Office was represented at the hearing by Deputy Appraisers Daniel Scott, Commercial Supervisor and Kimberly Hubert. An opening statement regarding the hearing process and rules of procedure was read and all parties were placed under oath.

The subject of this petition is listed on the Hernando County tax roll as Parcel ID R28-222-18-1576-0000-0030. This property is described as a quick service restaurant being operated as a Chick-fil-a. The subject property is located at 13143 Cortez Boulevard, Brooksville, Hernando County, Florida. The building improvements consist of 4,901 square feet of net leasable building area with a large canopy area on a 1.24-acre commercial site. The improvements were constructed in 2003 and are described as average quality in average condition. Based on an inspection of the property, the property appraiser has determined that the building improvements have an effective age of 12 years, considering construction quality and condition. It appears that the subject of this petition has not sold within the 12-months preceding the January 1 valuation date.

The property appraiser confirmed the 2025 just value of $3,300,000, assessed value of $3,300,000 and taxable value of $3,300,000. There have been no changes to the values since the Notice of Proposed Property Taxes (TRIM) was issued. The petitioner is requesting a revision to the 2025 just value, proposing a revision in just value to $2,440,000. This request is supported by market income analysis, comparable sales and cost approach.

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence, see Florida Administrative Code 12D-9.025(1). Generally, relevant evidence is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. The evidence meets or exceeds a minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. Documentary evidence presented by the property appraiser during the hearing is described and labeled as follows:

- PAO-A (44 pages) - Cover page, table of contents, subject summary page, subject property record card, aerial maps, sales comparison approach, sales location map, photographs and aerials of each sale, sales adjustment grid, property record cards for each sale, capitalization rate support from Net Lease Advisor

Documentary evidence presented by the petitioner during the hearing is described and labeled as follows:

- PET-1 (102 pages) - Property summary page, summary of evidence, summary of salient backs, subject photographs, map and aerial, subject property record card, cost approach calculations, excerpts from Marshall and Swift cost manual, income analysis calculations, lease comparables, lease comparables write ups with photographs and maps, PWC net lease market survey, the Boulder Group Net Lease market report, IRR Viewpoint retail report, CBRE capitalization rate survey, SitusAMC capitalization rate survey, Realty rates.com, Colliers retail market report, Costar retail market report, excerpts from International Association of Assessing Officers, The Florida Real Property Appraisal Guidelines, list of comparable sales, costar write ups of each sale with photographs and location map, property record card for each sale

- PET-2 (113 pages) - Cover page, table of contents, Florida Statutes 194.034 and 193.011, DR-493, 2023 Value Adjustment Board Training Module 6, Advisory Memorandum referencing uniform handling of Cost of Sale deductions, 2020, 2021, 2022 cost of sale deductions reported by County, letter from Edwards Law Firm regarding Cost of Sale adjustments, Property Tax Oversight Bulletin PTO 11-01, FAC 12D-9.020 Exchange of Evidence, Gordon & Thalwitzer memorandum pertaining to cost of sale deductions

The property appraiser has not raised any objections to the timeliness of the evidence presented by the petitioner during the hearing.

The Florida Legislature has enacted eight criteria that the property appraiser must consider when determining just value. In any administrative or judicial action where a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment, the property appraiser's estimate of just value is presumed correct if it is proven that the assessment was made in compliance with the eight criteria outlined in Section 193.011, Florida Statutes and in accordance with professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The only standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence, meaning the greater weight of evidence, or "more likely than not."

Florida courts have consistently held that the property appraiser is only required to consider the eight criteria, and that applying each factor is not mandatory. The courts have further found that if any one criterion does not reflect just value, it should be disregarded by the property appraiser. The special magistrate finds and summarizes the extent to which the property appraiser has considered each of these criteria in the following paragraphs.

(1) Present cash value of the property - The amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arms-length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In short, the price without transaction costs. The buyer typically pays more, and the seller typically receives less than the price indicated by the documentary stamps due to these transaction costs. In mass appraising, the property appraiser considers this criterion by applying or considering the comparable market sales using the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through comparable sales analysis similar to that found in a fee appraisal. The property appraiser has presented sales evidence in support of the present cash value. Following are brief descriptions of the sales determined by the property appraiser to be most comparable to the subject and representative of value:

• PA Sale 1 - 3391 University Blvd, Winter Park is described as a 4,334 square foot chick-fil-a restaurant. These improvements were constructed in 1999 and are represented as being in similar condition to the subject. The improvements are situated on a commercial site. This property sold in December 2024 for $3,310,000. Price adjustments were made for differences compared to the subject. Value indications for comparison are $1,096,500 and $348 per sq. ft.

• PA Sale 2 - 700 S Orlando Ave, Winter Park is described as a 4,575 square foot chick-fil-a restaurant. These improvements were constructed in 2002 and are represented as being in similar condition to the subject. The improvements are situated on a commercial site. This property sold in May 2023 for $4,000,000. Price adjustments were made for differences compared to the subject. Value indications for comparison are $1,113,500 and $321 per sq. ft.

• PA Sale 3 - 267 High Water Lane, Sanford is described as a 5,166 square foot chick-fil-a restaurant. These improvements were constructed in 2024 and are represented as being in similar condition to the subject. The improvements are situated on a commercial site. This property sold in September 2024 for $4,925,000. Price adjustments were made for differences compared to the subject. Value indications for comparison are $1,379,914 and $422 per sq. ft.

The sales were selected based specifically on Chick-fil-a use. The property appraiser testified that these sales were selected because of the strength of the Chick-fil-a operations compared to competitors in the market. Relevant transactions occurred within 20 months preceding the January 1, 2025 value date. None of these sales are located in Hernando County. Three qualified sales judged to be most comparable to the subject have been presented in support of value. The property appraiser has compared these sales on the basis of adjusted per-square-foot price. Various price adjustments were made to account for differences between the sales and the subject. The sales indicate a value range between $764 and $916. The mean and median prices are calculated as $816 and $768, respectively. The property appraiser has reconciled these sales to a value of $3,999,167 or $816 per square foot, which falls within the indicated range. These sales are presented by the property appraiser as market evidence that the property is not over-assessed, and $3,300,000 or $673 per sq. ft. represents just value for the subject property. During rebuttal, the petitioner claimed that restricting the sales search to quick service restaurant properties leased only to Chick-fil-a introduces the possibility that the sales include some sort of intangible business enterprise value or leased fee interest. The petitioner also claimed that a 5% downward adjustment was not sufficient to account for location differences between Winter Park and Brooksville.

(2) Highest & Best Use – This relates to the consideration of the fundamental appraisal concept of highest and best use or best use to which the property can be expected to be put in the immediate future. For improved properties, the highest and best use of the property as if vacant should be considered as well. The four steps establishing highest and best use are consideration of what is physically possible, legally permissible, financially feasible, and maximally productive. The highest and best use as vacant is identified through land use codes which, in part, are based on zoning. The highest and best use as improved is assumed to be the current use unless evidence shows otherwise. The property appraiser's office considers highest and best use by identifying and recording land size, zoning, building size, location and other characteristics. Once all coding is in place, comparable sales and rentals that have similar characteristics are used to value the property. The highest and best use of this property is for quick service restaurant use. This determination is undisputed by the petitioner and appears to have been appropriately considered by the property appraiser.

(3) Location of the property – The property appraiser assigns a neighborhood code to every property in the county. Sales of properties in the same or similar neighborhoods are typically used to determine locational adjustments. Often, site-specific location adjustments are made to reflect either an enhanced location (such as a water front site or in a golf course community) or an inferior location (such as adjacent to an industrial use or dumpsite). All of the comparable properties presented in support of value are located in the same market area as the subject. The location of the property appears to have been appropriately considered in the determination of just value.

(4) Quantity or size of the property – The property appraiser must consider the quantity or size of the property by determining and recording the correct land size, building size, and extra features sizes and quantities. Land size is based on legal descriptions from recorded plats or metes and bounds. Building sizes and extra features are determined by inspection and measured by deputy property appraisers. The source of land and building sizes used by the property appraiser is the property record card.

(5) The cost of the property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon - An analysis of cost is made in the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System is found on the property record card. The property appraiser considers replacement cost through the use of Marshall & Swift Valuation Service data. These rates are adjusted annually to reflect the costs relevant to January 1 of the given tax year. Marshall & Swift Valuation Cost Service is also used to determine the replacement costs of extra features or site improvements. No separate analysis of cost has been presented during the hearing.

(6) Condition of the property – The property appraiser considers the condition of properties through periodic property inspections, no less than once every five years as required by Statute. Other events can trigger more frequent site inspections, including the sale of a property, issuance of a building permit, assessment appeal, or at the taxpayer's request. Condition is considered as a factor applied to the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System value calculation for value losses from all sources based upon an age/life depreciation method. Photographs of the subject property have been presented as evidence of condition. Evidence of building permits for renovations and/or significant building repairs has been presented. An effective age of 12 years has been estimated by the property appraiser based on an analysis of chronological age, condition and construction quality. It appears that the property appraiser has appropriately considered this factor.

(7) The income from the property – The property appraiser has presented several comparable properties found in Net Lease Advisor to show a trend of lower capitalization rates for Chick-fil-a tenants compared with other quick service operators on a nationwide basis. No income capitalization method was developed in support of the just value of the subject property. It does not appear that this criterion was adequately considered by the property appraiser.

(8) Cost of Sale Adjustment - This criterion deals with the net proceeds from the sale of a property as received by the seller after deduction of all of the usual and reasonable fees and costs and expenses of financing and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms of financing arrangements. A few examples of the applicability of this criterion include: • unconventional or atypical financing arrangements, such as seller financing at favorable terms, which inflated the price, relative to what would have been achieved with a cash or cash-equivalent arrangement, • the inclusion of tangible personal property, which may serve to increase the price above pure real property consideration, • atypically motivated buyers, who may pay a premium relative to that paid by the general market, • atypical closing costs arrangements, such as a seller paying the buyer's closing costs in exchange for a higher sales price. Because these situations may not be discoverable by the mass appraiser relying on raw gross price data, a deduction from the raw gross price is made with the goal being to arrive at 100% of the market value of the real property by eliminating any possible impact of non-real property consideration. This mass appraisal method is found to be acceptable by the Florida Department of Revenue and the Florida Courts. The special magistrate finds that applying a specific cost-of-sale adjustment consistent with the DR-493 form constitutes appropriate consideration of this criterion and complies with the requirements of Chapter 193.011, Florida Statutes.

The property appraiser has developed just one of the three traditional value methods in support of the assessment. Sales from outside the are were presented that were limited to Chick-fil-a operations introducing the possibility of intangible values included in the sale prices including business enterprise value and/or leased fee interest. In reviewing the evidence presented by the property appraiser at this hearing, the special magistrate finds that the property appraiser did not appropriately consider the factors set forth in Florida Statute §193.011; therefore, the presumption of correctness has not been established.

The following paragraphs summarize how the petitioner has addressed each of the eight statutory criteria.

(1) Present cash value of the property - In support of a revision to just value, the petitioner has presented the following sales:

• PET Sale 1 - 7155 S Orange Blossom Trl, Orlando is described as a 3,150 square foot quick service restaurant. These improvements were constructed in 2001 and are represented as being in similar condition to the subject. The improvements are situated on a commercial site. This property sold in December 2024 for $1,290,000. Value indications for comparison are $1,096,500 and $348 per sq. ft.

• PET Sale 2 - 8586 S Orange Blossom Trl, Orlando is described as a 3,469 square foot quick service restaurant. These improvements were constructed in 1985 and are represented as being in similar condition to the subject. The improvements are situated on a commercial site. This property sold in June 2024 for $1,310,000. Value indications for comparison are $1,113,500 and $321 per sq. ft.

• PET Sale 3 - 6503 University Blvd, Winter Park is described as a 3,271 square foot quick service restaurant. These improvements were constructed in 2017 and are represented as being in similar condition to the subject. The improvements are situated on a commercial site. This property sold in April 2024 for $1,623,428. Value indications for comparison are $1,379,914 and $422 per sq. ft.

• PET Sale 4 - 11860 E Colonial Dr, Orlando is described as a 2,874 square foot quick service restaurant. These improvements were constructed in 1987 and are represented as being in similar condition to the subject. The improvements are situated on a commercial site. This property sold in September 2023 for $1,700,000. Value indications for comparison are $1,445,000 and $503 per sq. ft.

• PET Sale 5 - 10414 E Colonial Dr, Orlando is described as a 2,635 square foot quick service restaurant. These improvements were constructed in 1981 and are represented as being in similar condition to the subject. The improvements are situated on a commercial site. This property sold in August 2023 for $1,125,000. Value indications for comparison are $956,250 and $363 per sq. ft.

These sales took place from August 2023 to December 2024. The petitioner has presented five sales that are claimed to be more similar to the subject than the sales relied upon by the property appraiser that do not include business interests. The petitioner has compared these sales on the basis of adjusted per-square-foot price. Cost of sale adjustments were made to each sale price. The sales indicate a value range between $321 and $503. The mean and median prices are calculated as $391 and $363, respectively. The sales were reconciled to $460 per square foot or a value of $2,256,341.

(2) Highest and Best Use - The petitioner does not dispute that the highest and best use of the subject property is quick service restaurant.

(3) Location of the property - The petitioner appears familiar with the location characteristics of the subject property and has not claimed the presence of any atypical or adverse location factors that would materially affect its use or value.

(4) Quantity or size of the property - The petitioner does not dispute the size or quantity of the land or improvements reported by the property appraiser during the hearing, nor was any allegation made that these factors were miscalculated or improperly considered in the valuation.

(5) The cost of the property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon - The petitioner has developed a cost approach analysis in support of a revision to just value. The source of direct cost estimates is Marshall & Swift Cost Manual and making various cost adjustments for AC, sprinkler, current, local, perimeter, and story height. The petitioner has estimated direct costs for 4,901 square feet of leasable building area at $350.94 per square foot, costed as Fastfood Restaurant (349), Very Good Class D. The petitioner has also estimated direct costs for 2,992 square feet of canopy and covered areas at $70.00 per square foot. Soft Costs have been included as an additional 10%. The petitioner's total replacement cost new is $2,276,664. A depreciation rate of 17% has been used based on depreciation tables indicating a Depreciated Replacement Cost of $1,889,632. An entrepreneurial incentive of 8% has been included. Adding a $1,181,263 land value ($17.25 per square foot) the preliminary value indicated by this analysis is $2,821,439. From this figure, the petitioner has deducted 15% for cost of sale in consideration of the DR-493 form submitted to the DOR, resulting in a just value indication of $2,400,000 based on cost.

(6) Condition - The petitioner has not personally inspected the subject property. The petitioner has not presented any credible evidence or asserted that the condition of the property differs from the description provided by the property appraiser during the hearing. Furthermore, no claim was made regarding any significant physical deficiencies that would affect the property's use or value.

(7) The income from the property - The petitioner has developed an income analysis in support of a revision to just value. Market rental rates are supported in the petitioner's analysis by rent comparables.

- PT Rent 1 - 27320 Wesley Chapel in Wesley Chapel is described as a 2,141 square foot quick service restaurant leased to Chick 'n fun!. The building was constructed in 2015 and is represented as similar in condition to the subject. The indicated starting rental rate is $45.00 per square foot on a triple net expense basis on Dec-2023.

- PT Rent 2 - 4520 S. Florida Ave. in Lakeland is described as a 2,706 square foot quick service restaurant leased to Fresh kitchen. The building was constructed in 2023 and is represented as similar in condition to the subject. The indicated starting rental rate is $42.00 per square foot on a triple net expense basis on Dec-2023.

- PT Rent 3 - 3524 Lakeland Highlands Rd. in Lakeland is described as a 2,332 square foot quick service restaurant leased to Arby's. The building was constructed in 2023 and is represented as similar in condition to the subject. The indicated starting rental rate is $44.00 per square foot on a triple net expense basis on Dec-2023.

- PT Rent 4 - 2600 Dardanielle Dr. in Orlando is described as a 4,242 square foot quick service restaurant leased to ANF Gyros and Grill. The building was constructed in 1989 and is represented as similar in condition to the subject. The indicated starting rental rate is $31.00 per square foot on a triple net expense basis on Dec-2023.

- PT Rent 5 - 4201 E. Colonial Drive in Orlando is described as a 3,064 square foot quick service restaurant leased to Boston market. The building was constructed in 1995 and is represented as similar in condition to the subject. The indicated starting rental rate is $49.00 per square foot on a triple net expense basis on Dec-2023.

- PT Rent 6 - 18996 US Highway 441 in Mount Dora is described as a 4,578 square foot quick service restaurant leased to Culvers. The building was constructed in 2023 and is represented as similar in condition to the subject. The indicated starting rental rate is $26.00 per square foot on a triple net expense basis on Dec-2023.

- PT Rent 7 - 3516 US Highway 19 in Holiday is described as a 2,714 square foot quick service restaurant. The building was constructed in 1986 and is represented as similar in condition to the subject. The indicated starting rental rate is $23.00 per square foot on a triple net expense basis on Dec-2023.

- PT Rent 8 - 826 W. University Ave. in Gainesville is described as a 108 square foot quick service restaurant leased to Taco Bell. The building was constructed in 1996 and is represented as similar in condition to the subject. The indicated starting rental rate is $38.00 per square foot on a triple net expense basis on Dec-2023.

- PT Rent 9 - 13776 Saint Augustine Road in Jacksonville is described as a 3,771 square foot quick service restaurant leased to Starbucks. The building was constructed in 2014 and is represented as similar in condition to the subject. The indicated starting rental rate is $43.00 per square foot on a triple net expense basis on Dec-2023.

- PT Rent 10 - 9406 US Highway 19 in Port Richie is described as a 2,554 square foot quick service restaurant leased to KFC. The building was constructed in 1984 and is represented as similar in condition to the subject. The indicated starting rental rate is $39.00 per square foot on a triple net expense basis on Dec-2023.

• PT Rent 11 - 2317 Gunn Highway in Odessa is described as a 5,613 square foot quick service restaurant leased to Chick-fil-A. The building is represented as similar in condition to the subject. The indicated starting rental rate is $35.00 per square foot on a triple net expense basis on Dec-2023.

Based on this rental study, the petitioner reconciled the subject's 4,901 square feet of anchor tenant space to a rental rate of $40.00 per square foot on a triple net basis. A vacancy rate of 5% is supported with published vacancy surveys. These income assumptions result in an effective gross income of $186,238. An expense ratio of 7.0% of EGI is used by the petitioner in consideration of the triple net expense structure. Market level expenses are evidenced by nominal triple net expenses. Replacement reserves are included at a rate of 1.0% of EGI. This indicates Net Operating Income of $343,046. Market support for the petitioner's selection of 6.0% base capitalization rate is based on numerous capitalization rate surveys published by PWC net lease market survey, the Boulder Group Net Lease market report, IRR Viewpoint retail report, CBRE capitalization rate survey, SitusAMC capitalization rate survey, Realty rates.com, Colliers retail market report, Costar retail market report. The capitalized value indicated by this income analysis is $2,866,267. The petitioner has made a 15% downward adjustment to account for costs of sale resulting in a just value indication of $2,440,000.

(8) Cost of Sale Adjustment - The petitioner has made deductions for cost of sale based on the DR-493 form submitted by the property appraiser to the Florida Department of Revenue in consideration of this criterion.

The petitioner has developed all three traditional value methods in support of their reduction in just value. The property appraiser has presented only one method which is not sufficient to establish the presumption of correctness. After careful consideration of all evidence presented at the hearing, the special magistrate finds that the property appraiser has not established the presumption of correctness, however, finds that the record contains competent and substantial evidence of just value that complies with all eight criteria set forth in Florida Statute §193.011 and generally accepted appraisal principles. Accordingly, the special magistrate recommends the following revised value based on the evidence contained in the hearing record. It is the recommendation of this special magistrate that the 2025 just value be revised to $2,440,000 supported by sales, income and cost and addresses all eight factors of §193.011, Florida Statutes and generally accepted appraisal principles.

Conclusions of Law

According to §194.301(1), Florida Statutes, in an administrative action challenging an ad valorem tax assessment of value, the property appraiser's assessment is presumed correct only if the property appraiser proves by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment was arrived at in compliance with §193.011, Florida Statutes, all other applicable statutory requirements, and professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate.

In this proceeding, the property appraiser did not establish the presumption of correctness. The evidence presented did not demonstrate, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the appraisal methodology used to support the just value of the subject property complied with all eight criteria set forth in §193.011 or with professionally accepted appraisal practices. Accordingly, no presumption of correctness attaches to the property appraiser's assessment.

Where the property appraiser fails to establish the presumption of correctness, the value adjustment board, through its special magistrate, must review the record to determine whether there is competent, substantial evidence of just value that cumulatively complies with §193.011 and professionally accepted appraisal practices, as required by §194.301(2)(b), Florida Statutes.

Based upon the admitted evidence and the findings of fact, the record contains competent, substantial evidence sufficient to establish a revised just value.

If the record contains competent, substantial evidence of just value, the value adjustment board is required to establish a revised assessment based upon that evidence, and the special magistrate is not limited to adopting a value advocated by either party.

If the record does not contain competent, substantial evidence of just value, the value adjustment board must remand the assessment to the property appraiser with appropriate directions, as provided in §194.301(2)(b), Florida Statutes.

Based upon the foregoing, and in accordance with §194.301, Florida Statutes, and Rule Chapter 12D-9, Florida Administrative Code, the special magistrate makes the above conclusions of law and submits this recommendation to the Value Adjustment Board for final action.

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

Hernando County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff.11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☒ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition #	25-235	Parcel ID	R23 422 19 0000 0370 0000
Petitioner name The petitioner is: ☐ other, explain:	FIRSTPOINTE ADVISORS, INC. ☐ taxpayer of record ☒ taxpayer's representative	Property address	181 DRYDEN PLACE BROOKSVILLE, FLORIDA

Decision Summary ☐ Denied your petition ☒ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just Value, required	$5,890,094	$5,890,094	$4,790,000
2. Assessed or classified use value, * if applicable	$2,994,750	$2,994,750	$2,994,750
3. Exempt value, * enter "0" if none	$0	$0	$0
4. Taxable value, * required	$2,994,750	$2,994,750	$2,994,750

*All values entered should be county taxable values, School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision

Findings of Fact

DUE TO SPACE LIMITATIONS, FINDINGS OF FACT ARE SET FORTH IN THE ATTACHED ADDENDA, WHICH IS MADE PART OF THIS RECOMMENDATION REPORT.

Conclusions of Law

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW ARE PROVIDED IN THE ATTACHED ADDENDA, INCORPORATED HEREIN BY REFERENCE.

☒ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	ROBERT C. HICKS Print Name	FEB 2, 2026 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____.
Address: Hernando County Gov't Center BOCC Chambers, Room 160, 20 North Main Street, Brooksville, Florida 34601.
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered.
To find the information, please call (352) 754-4970, or visit our website at vab@hernandoclerk.org.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print Name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date mailed to parties

Addenda

Findings Of Fact

Petitioner Nicholas L. Mau, CCIM with First Pointe Advisors, Inc. appeared telephonically on behalf of Brooksville Residences LLC on January 15, 2026 to provide testimonial and documentary evidence pertaining to the 2025 property assessment for real property located in Hernando County, Florida. The Hernando County Property Appraiser's Office was represented at the hearing by Deputy Appraisers Daniel Scott, Commercial Supervisor and Kimberly Hubert. An opening statement regarding the hearing process and rules of procedure was read and all parties were placed under oath.

The subject of this petition is listed on the Hernando County tax roll as Parcel ID R23 422 19 0000 0370 0000. This property is described as a 1-story, multifamily apartment complex known as Sunny Creek. The subject property is located at 181 Dryden Place, Brooksville, Hernando County, Florida. The building improvements consist of 60 units with 49,986 square feet of net leasable building area on a 14.7-acre multifamily site zoned R3. The improvements were constructed in 1980 and are described as remodeled in average quality in average condition. It appears that the subject of this petition has not sold within the 12-months preceding the January 1 valuation date.

The property appraiser confirmed the 2025 just value of $5,890,094, assessed value of $2,994,750 and taxable value of $2,994,750. There have been no changes to the values since the Notice of Proposed Property Taxes (TRIM) was issued. The petitioner is requesting a revision to the 2025 just value, proposing a revision in just value to $4,790,000. This request is supported by a market income analysis.

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence, see Florida Administrative Code 12D-9.025(1). Generally, relevant evidence is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. The evidence meets or exceeds a minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. Documentary evidence presented by the property appraiser during the hearing is described and labeled as follows:

- PAO-A (21 pages) - Cover page, table of contents, subject summary page, subject property record cards, aerial maps, income approach calculations, letter requesting income and expenses information from the property owner

Documentary evidence presented by the petitioner during the hearing is described and labeled as follows:

- PET-1 (88 pages) - Cover page, summary of evidence, summary of salient facts, exterior photographs, street map, aerial map, pro forma analysis, rent comparables with location map and photographs, Costar market report, IRR Viewpoint Market Report, SitusAMC cap rate survey, RealtyRates.com, expense comparables, Cushman & Wakefield Marketbeat Tampa Bay, PwC investor surveys, The Florida Real Property Appraisal Guidelines, Yaniv RR report, subject rent roll, subject property record card

- PET-2 (113 pages) - Cover page, table of contents, Florida Statutes 194.034 and 193.011, DR-493, 2023 Value Adjustment Board Training Module 6, Advisory Memorandum referencing uniform handling of Cost of Sale deductions, 2020, 2021, 2022 cost of sale deductions reported by County, letter from Edwards Law Firm regarding Cost of Sale adjustments, Property Tax Oversight Bulletin PTO 11-01, FAC 12D-9.020 Exchange of Evidence, Gordon & Thalwitzer memorandum pertaining to cost of sale deductions

The property appraiser has not raised any objections to the timeliness of the evidence presented by the petitioner during the hearing.

The Florida Legislature has enacted eight criteria that the property appraiser must consider when determining just value. In any administrative or judicial action where a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment, the property appraiser's estimate of just value is presumed correct if it is proven that the assessment was made in compliance with the eight criteria outlined in Section 193.011, Florida Statutes and in accordance with professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The only standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence, meaning the greater weight of evidence, or "more likely than not."

Florida courts have consistently held that the property appraiser is only required to consider the eight criteria, and that applying each factor is not mandatory. The courts have further found that if any one criterion does not reflect just value, it should be disregarded by the property appraiser. The special magistrate finds and summarizes the extent to which the property appraiser has considered each of these criteria in the following paragraphs.

(1) Present cash value of the property - The amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arms-length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In short, the price without transaction costs. The buyer typically pays more, and the seller typically receives less than the price indicated by the documentary stamps due to these transaction costs. In mass appraising, the property appraiser considers this criterion by applying or considering the comparable market sales using the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through comparable sales analysis similar to that found in a fee appraisal. No sales comparison analysis has been presented during the hearing due to a lack of comparable sales data for this type of property in this market.

(2) Highest & Best Use – This relates to the consideration of the fundamental appraisal concept of highest and best use or best use to which the property can be expected to be put in the immediate future. For improved properties, the highest and best use of the property as if vacant should be considered as well. The four steps establishing highest and best use are consideration of what is physically possible, legally permissible, financially feasible, and maximally productive. The highest and best use as vacant is identified through land use codes which, in part, are based on zoning. The highest and best use as improved is assumed to be the current use unless evidence shows otherwise. The property appraiser's office considers highest and best use by identifying and recording land size, zoning, building size, location and other characteristics. Once all coding is in place, comparable sales and rentals that have similar characteristics are used to value the property. The highest and best use of this property is for multifamily use. This determination is undisputed by the petitioner and appears to have been appropriately considered by the property appraiser.

(3) Location of the property – The property appraiser assigns a neighborhood code to every property in the county. Sales of properties in the same or similar neighborhoods are typically used to determine locational adjustments. Often, site-specific location adjustments are made to reflect either an enhanced location (such as a water front site or in a golf course community) or an inferior location (such as adjacent to an industrial use or dumpsite). All of the comparable properties presented in support of value are located in the same market area as the subject. The location of the property appears to have been appropriately considered in the determination of just value.

(4) Quantity or size of the property – The property appraiser must consider the quantity or size of the property by determining and recording the correct land size, building size, and extra features sizes and quantities. Land size is based on legal descriptions from recorded plats or metes and bounds. Building sizes and extra features are determined by inspection and measured by deputy property appraisers. The source of land and building sizes used by the property appraiser is the property record card.

(5) The cost of the property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon - An analysis of cost is made in the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System is found on the property record card. The property appraiser considers replacement cost through the use of Marshall & Swift Valuation Service data. These rates are adjusted annually to reflect the costs relevant to January 1 of the given tax year. Marshall & Swift Valuation Cost Service is also used to determine the replacement costs of extra features or site improvements. No separate analysis of cost has been presented during the hearing. Buyers in this sector of the real estate market do not typically consider the costs associated with development when valuing properties of this age and type.

(6) Condition of the property – The property appraiser considers the condition of properties through periodic property inspections, no less than once every five years as required by Statute. Other events can trigger more frequent site inspections, including the sale of a property, issuance of a building permit, assessment appeal, or at the taxpayer's request. Condition is considered as a factor applied to the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System value calculation for value losses from all sources based upon an age/life depreciation method. Photographs of the subject property have been presented as evidence of condition. It appears that the property appraiser has appropriately considered this factor.

(7) The income from the property - In considering the value of an improved property, the property appraiser considers the income generating potential. In this case, the property appraiser developed an income capitalization analysis in support of just value for this appraisal review. Market rents are supported in the analysis by confidential income data submitted to the property appraiser's office by other taxpayers. The property appraiser reconciled the subject's 12 – 3/bed/1.5/bath units to a monthly rental rate of $1,595, and 36 -2bed/1bath units to a monthly rental rate of $1,425 and 12 - 1bed/1bath units to a monthly rental rate of $1,200. A stabilized vacancy has been assumed at 6%. These income assumptions result in an Effective Gross Income of $968,097. An expense ratio of approximately 35% of EGI is used by the property appraiser in consideration of the per month expense structure. Expenses are based on confidential expense data submitted to the property appraiser's office by other taxpayers. The resulting Net Operating Income is $627,722. No market evidence or calculations were presented in support of the property appraiser's 9.0% loaded capitalization rate. The capitalized value indicated by this income analysis is $6,974,684. The property appraiser has made a 15% downward adjustment to account for cost of sale resulting in a just value of $5,928,481. No market evidence of income, expenses or capitalization rates was presented. The property appraiser's evidence includes a letter requesting actual income and expense and stated that none had been received for 2025.

(8) Cost of Sale Adjustment - This criterion deals with the net proceeds from the sale of a property as received by the seller after deduction of all of the usual and reasonable fees and costs and expenses of financing and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms of financing arrangements. A few examples of the applicability of this criterion include: • unconventional or atypical financing arrangements, such as seller financing at favorable terms, which inflated the price, relative to what would have been achieved with a cash or cash-equivalent arrangement, • the inclusion of tangible personal property, which may serve to increase the price above pure real property consideration, • atypically motivated buyers, who may pay a premium relative to that paid by the general market, • atypical closing costs arrangements, such as a seller paying the buyer's closing costs in exchange for a higher sales price. Because these situations may not be discoverable by the mass appraiser relying on raw gross price data, a deduction from the raw gross price is made with the goal being to arrive at 100% of the market value of the real property by eliminating any possible impact of non-real property consideration. This mass appraisal method is found to be acceptable by the Florida Department of Revenue and the Florida Courts. The special magistrate finds that applying a specific cost-of-sale adjustment consistent with the DR-493 form constitutes appropriate consideration of this criterion and complies with the requirements of Chapter 193.011, Florida Statutes.

It is implicit in mass appraisal that, even when properly specified and calibrated models are employed, some individual value conclusions may not meet standards of reasonableness, consistency, and accuracy. The purpose of this value review is to determine whether the just value reported on the current tax roll represents the just value of the property after consideration of the criteria set forth in Florida Statute §193.011 and generally accepted appraisal principles, including those applicable to mass appraisal. In reviewing the evidence presented by the property appraiser at this hearing, the special magistrate finds that the property appraiser failed to provide market evidence in support of sales, costs, income or expense and thus has not appropriately considered the factors set forth in Florida Statute §193.011; therefore, the presumption of correctness has not been established.

The following paragraphs summarize how the petitioner has addressed each of the eight statutory criteria.

(1) Present cash value of the property - No analysis of comparable sales has been presented by the petitioner in support of a change in just value.

(2) Highest and Best Use - The petitioner does not dispute that the highest and best use of the subject property is multifamily.

(3) Location of the property - The petitioner appears familiar with the location characteristics of the subject property and has not claimed the presence of any atypical or adverse location factors that would materially affect its use or value.

(4) Quantity or size of the property - The petitioner does not dispute the size or quantity of the land or improvements reported by the property appraiser during the hearing, nor was any allegation made that these factors were miscalculated or improperly considered in the valuation.

(5) The cost of the property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon – Based on age and condition, no analysis of cost has been presented by the petitioner in support of a change in just value. Buyers in this sector of the real estate market do not typically consider the costs associated with development when valuing properties of this age and type.

(6) Condition - The petitioner has not presented any credible evidence or asserted that the condition of the property differs from the description provided by the property appraiser during the hearing. Furthermore, no claim was made regarding any significant physical deficiencies that would affect the property's use or value.

(7) The income from the property - The petitioner has developed an income analysis in support of a revision to just value. Market rental rates are supported in the petitioner's analysis by recently signed rents for the subject property as well as rental comparables and market survey results. The petitioner reconciled the subject's `12 – 3bed/1.5bath units to a rental rate of 1,578 per month, and 36 - 2bed/1bath units to a rental rate of $1,375 and 18 - 1bed/1bath units to a rental rate of $1,270. A vacancy rate of 10% is supported with published vacancy survey reports. These income assumptions result in an effective gross income of $911,777. An expense ratio of 42% of EGI is used by the petitioner. Market level expenses are evidenced by comparable expense ratios ranging between 35% and 49% with a mean and median of 41% and 40%. Replacement reserves are included at a rate of 2.0% of EGI. This indicates Net Operating Income of $511,705. Market support for the petitioner's selection of 7.0% base capitalization rate is based on numerous capitalization rate surveys published by Costar market report, IRR Viewpoint Market Report, SitusAMC cap rate survey, RealtyRates.com, expense comparables, Cushman & Wakefield Marketbeat Tampa Bay, PwC investor surveys. The capitalized value indicated by this income analysis is $5,637,036. The petitioner has made a 15% downward adjustment to account for costs of sale to a just value of $4,790,000. This appears to be a well-supported analysis that complies with generally accepted appraisal principles.

(8) Cost of Sale Adjustment - The petitioner has made deductions for cost of sale based on the DR-493 form submitted by the property appraiser to the Florida Department of Revenue in consideration of this criterion.

After careful consideration of all evidence presented at the hearing, the special magistrate finds that the property appraiser has not established the presumption of correctness, however, finds that the record contains competent and substantial evidence of just value that complies with all eight criteria set forth in Florida Statute §193.011 and generally accepted appraisal principles. Accordingly, the special magistrate recommends the following revised value supported in the petitioner's pro forma income analysis.

Conclusions of Law

According to §194.301(1), Florida Statutes, in an administrative action in which a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment of value, the property appraiser's assessment is presumed correct only if the property appraiser proves by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment was arrived at in compliance with §193.011, Florida Statutes, all other applicable statutory requirements, and professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate.

In this proceeding, the special magistrate finds that the property appraiser did not establish the presumption of correctness. The evidence presented by the property appraiser did not demonstrate, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the assessment was supported by market-based analysis sufficient to establish compliance with §193.011, Florida Statutes, and professionally accepted appraisal practices.

Where the presumption of correctness is not established, §194.301(2)(b), Florida Statutes, requires the value adjustment board to establish the assessment if the record contains competent, substantial evidence of value that cumulatively complies with §193.011, Florida Statutes, and professionally accepted appraisal practices.

Based upon the admitted evidence and the findings of fact, the special magistrate finds that the hearing record contains competent, substantial evidence of just value. The petitioner presented a market-supported income capitalization analysis addressing the applicable statutory criteria, and the evidence is determined to be credible, relevant, and sufficient to support a conclusion of value.

In establishing a revised just value, the value adjustment board is not limited to adopting a value advocated by either party but may determine a value supported by the competent, substantial evidence of record. In this case, the special magistrate finds that the petitioner's requested just value is supported by the evidence and represents the just value of the subject property.

Accordingly, pursuant to §194.301, Florida Statutes, and Rule Chapter 12D-9, Florida Administrative Code, it is the recommendation of the special magistrate that the just value of the subject property be revised to the petitioner's requested just value, as reflected in the findings of fact and the evidence contained in the record.

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD

VALUE PETITION

Hernando County

DR-485V
R. 01/17
Rule 12D-16.002
F.A.C.
Eff.01/17

The actions below were taken on your petition.

■ These actions are a recommendation only, not final □ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(1), 194.171(2), 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition #:	2025-236	Parcel ID	R34 222 18 3620 0000 0570
Petitioner name:	FIRSTPOINTE ADVISORS, LLC	Property address	14082 CORTEZ BLVD BROOKSVILLE, FLORIDA
The petitioner is: □ taxpayer of record ■ taxpayer's representative
□ other, explain:

Decision Summary ■ Denied your petition □ Granted your petition □ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just Value, required	$7,243,041	$7,243,041	$7,243,041
2. Assessed or classified use value, * if applicable	$4,854,246	$4,854,246	$4,854,246
3. Exempt value, * enter "0" if none	$0	$0	$0
4. Taxable value, * required	$4,854,246	$4,854,246	$4,854,246

*All values entered should be county taxable values, School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision

Findings of Fact

Petitioner was previously scheduled for a hearing and proper notice for the hearing was provided. Petitioner did not appear at the hearing, did not state good cause for Petitioner's failure to appear and did not request that evidence be reviewed and considered in Petitioner's absence.

Conclusions of Law

The relief sought by Petitioner is denied and this decision is being issued pursuant to F.A.C. 12D-9.021 (8) in order that any right the Petitioner may have to bring an action in circuit court is not impaired.

■ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Findings and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	Robert C. Hicks Print Name	Jan. 22, 2026 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____.

Address: Hernando County Gov't Center BOCC Chambers, Room 160, 20 North Main Street, Brooksville, Florida 34601.

If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered.

To find the information, please call (352) 754-4970, or visit our website at vab@hernandoclerk.org.

□ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, value adjustment board	Print Name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date mailed to parties

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD

VALUE PETITION

Hernando County

DR-485V
R. 01/17
Rule 12D-16.002
F.A.C.
Eff.01/17

The actions below were taken on your petition.

■ These actions are a recommendation only, not final □ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(1), 194.171(2), 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition #:	2025-237	Parcel ID	R34 422 18 0000 0440 0000
Petitioner name:	FIRSTPOINTE ADVISORS, LLC	Property address	14112 CORTEZ BLVD BROOKSVILLE, FLORIDA
The petitioner is:	□ taxpayer of record ■ taxpayer's representative
□ other, explain:

Decision Summary ■ Denied your petition □ Granted your petition □ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just Value, required	$6,295,732	$6,295,732	$6,295,732
2. Assessed or classified use value, * if applicable	$3,905,482	$3,905,482	$3,905,482
3. Exempt value, * enter "0" if none	$0	$0	$0
4. Taxable value, * required	$3,905,482	$3,905,482	$3,905,482

*All values entered should be county taxable values, School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision

Findings of Fact

Petitioner was previously scheduled for a hearing and proper notice for the hearing was provided. Petitioner did not appear at the hearing, did not state good cause for Petitioner's failure to appear and did not request that evidence be reviewed and considered in Petitioner's absence.

Conclusions of Law

The relief sought by Petitioner is denied and this decision is being issued pursuant to F.A.C. 12D-9.021 (8) in order that any right the Petitioner may have to bring an action in circuit court is not impaired.

■ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Findings and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	Robert C. Hicks Print Name	Jan. 22, 2026 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____.

Address: Hernando County Gov't Center BOCC Chambers, Room 160, 20 North Main Street, Brooksville, Florida 34601.

If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered.

To find the information, please call (352) 754-4970, or visit our website at vab@hernandoclerk.org.

□ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, value adjustment board	Print Name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date mailed to parties

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD

VALUE PETITION

Hernando County

DR-485V
R. 01/17
Rule 12D-16.002
F.A.C.
Eff.01/17

The actions below were taken on your petition.

■ These actions are a recommendation only, not final □ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(1), 194.171(2), 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition #:	2025-238	Parcel ID	R-Z SCC 18 2393 0000 0720
Petitioner name:	FIRSTPOINTE ADVISORS, LLC	Property address	3100 AERIAL WAY SPRING HILL, FLORIDA
The petitioner is:	□ taxpayer of record ■ taxpayer's representative
□ other, explain:

Decision Summary ■ Denied your petition □ Granted your petition □ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just Value, required	$6,230,889	$6,230,889	$6,230,889
2. Assessed or classified use value, * if applicable	$6,050,000	$6,050,000	$6,050,000
3. Exempt value, * enter "0" if none	$0	$0	$0
4. Taxable value, * required	$6,050,000	$6,050,000	$6,050,000

*All values entered should be county taxable values, School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision

Findings of Fact

Petitioner was previously scheduled for a hearing and proper notice for the hearing was provided. Petitioner did not appear at the hearing, did not state good cause for Petitioner's failure to appear and did not request that evidence be reviewed and considered in Petitioner's absence.

Conclusions of Law

The relief sought by Petitioner is denied and this decision is being issued pursuant to F.A.C. 12D-9.021 (8) in order that any right the Petitioner may have to bring an action in circuit court is not impaired.

■ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Findings and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	Robert C. Hicks Print Name	Jan. 22, 2026 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____.

Address: Hernando County Gov't Center BOCC Chambers, Room 160, 20 North Main Street, Brooksville, Florida 34601.

If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered.

To find the information, please call (352) 754-4970, or visit our website at vab@hernandoclerk.org.

□ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, value adjustment board	Print Name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date mailed to parties

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

HERNANDO County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-245	Parcel ID R22 222 19 2600 0000 0154
Petitioner name EE of Brooksville Holdings LLC The petitioner is: ☐ taxpayer of record ☑ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	Property address 307 Howell Avenue Brooksville, FL 34601

Decision Summary ☑ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	3,073,869.00	3,073,869.00	3,073,869.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	3,073,869.00	3,073,869.00	3,073,869.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0.00	0.00	0.00
4. Taxable value,* required	3,073,869.00	3,073,869.00	3,073,869.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact
See attached.

Conclusions of Law
See attached.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	Colleen E Millett Print name	11/05/2025 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

PETITION NO. 25-245

RECOMMENDATION OF SPECIAL MAGISTRATE

VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD

HERNANDO COUNTY, FLORIDA

IN RE: THE PETITION OF: EE of Brooksville Holdings LLC

PARCEL KEY NO: 00145113

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

The Petitioner, Rob Udell for EE of Brooksville Holdings LLC appeared by phone before the Special Magistrate to give testimony. The Property Appraiser was represented by DANIEL SCOTT and KIMBERLY HERBERT. All present parties were put under sworn oath.

The Property Appraiser verified the values accordingly; a just value of $3,073,869, an assessed or capped value of $3,073,869, and a taxable value of $3,073,869. There was no change in values after the process.

The Petitioner estimated just value at $2,121,301.

Subject Property Type: The subject is a 75,967 SF commercial building utilized as a home for the aged. The building was constructed in 1925 with an effective age of 1983 and an addition constructed in 1984. The parcel is located at 307 Howell Avenue, Brooksville, FL.

The PAO evidence consists of an evidence packet with a summary page, PRC with photos and aerial photos, a cost approach with Marshall Valuation Service supporting documentation, a sales comparison approach and grid with (4) neighborhood sales, PRCs for all comparable sales utilized with photos and aerial location maps for each, as well as verbal testimony.

The Petitioner's evidence consists of a petition, valuation appeal letter, subject PRC with photo and aerial, deed, closing statement from purchase (10/2023), current rent roll, profit and loss statement, income approach, supporting documentation for cap rate, VAB training modules 4 & 6, cost of sale information, and verbal testimony.

Per testimony by the PAO, there was a timely evidence exchange. No objections were made by any party present as it relates to data submittal noted above (unless specifically noted). All the evidence noted above is considered admissible (unless specifically noted as inadmissible).

Overall, the evidence presented meets specific evidence rules (See Rule 12D-9,025(1) and Rule 12D-9.025(2)b, F.A.C) and is considered sufficient, relevant, and credible information available, from which a reliable estimate of just, assessed, and taxable value can be estimated.

BASIC AND UNDERLYING FINDINGS OF FACT

The PAO relied upon both the cost and sales comparison approaches to value, considered CAMA analysis at TRIM and did not provide an income approach as PAO noted the Petitioner was asked to supply income information and did not provide it until after the fact. The approaches utilized are considered appropriate methodologies by the Special Magistrate.

The PAO presented their evidence packet with a cost approach for the subject which is considered a Class C home for the elderly. PAO indicated effective age to be 35 years with a 45-year economic life for the building improvements and 10-year effective age and 15-year economic life for site improvements with supporting depreciation table from Marshall Valuation Service. The cost approach valuation, after COS adjustment of 15% indicated a value of $3,112,051. A sales comparison analysis of 4 comparable sales was also provided which included the prior sale of the subject (10/2023). The adjusted values ranged from $47.40 (subject prior sale) to $189.30 per square foot and PAO concluded at an indicated value of $106.00 per square foot. Adjustments were made, where applicable, for differences in location, age/condition, quality/design, size, land to building ratio and occupancy as well as a market conditions adjustment. A COS adjustment of 15% was indicated and indicated a just value of $4,663,126.

The Petitioner stated that the cost approach utilized by the PAO was unreliable and not relevant due to age of improvements and obsolescence. Petitioner also indicated that all sales utilized by PAO in sales comparison approach were from 2023 and that Petitioner was unaware older sales could be utilized and stated all sales had different factors and were much newer facilities. Petitioner stated that the subject, at time of the prior sale of $2,300,000 in October of 2023, required improvements to increase occupancy as the vacancy rate was at time of purchase was 34%. Petitioner provided a Pro Forma Income Analysis showing the 135 units at $2,100 monthly rent and a stabilized occupancy with 20% vacancy rate as well as additional income of $54,432 for an effective gross income of $2,776,032. Expenses were indicated at $2,439,489 for a net operating income of $336,543. Petitioner utilized a loaded cap rate of 11.79% which included the overall all rate, millage and estimated tax rate with supporting documents provided. A deduction for rent loss was also included in the amount of $358,880 which represented the present value of lease up costs to bring the property to 80% stabilized occupancy. The Petitioner concluded at $2,121,301 as the representation of just value.

The PAO, in rebuttal to the Petitioner's evidence, the PAO provided a copy of the letter provided to the Petitioner requesting the real property income and expenses of the subject property by April 1, 2025, to consider all approaches to value. The PAO stated that no income information was provided by the Petitioner until after the fact. Both parties did agree that the income approach is the preferred method of valuation for the subject property. The PAO also noted that the sales date for the subject property on the PAO sales grid should be amended to October 2023 and not April 2023 as noted in error. The Special Magistrate will properly weigh and consider all evidence provided by all parties.

The Petitioner included real estate taxes in their expenses. For ad valorem purposes under Florida Statute 193.011, the market value represents the fee simple interest. Real estate taxes are a function of value and not an operating expense in determining net operating income. Additionally, in developing a fee simple income approach for ad valorem purposes under Section 193.011, Florida Statutes, the capitalization rate should represent the market's required return before property taxes.

A "loaded" rate was utilized by the Petitioner, which adds the effective tax rate to the overall rate (Ro + ETR), and is applicable only when the income stream being capitalized represents net income after property taxes, such as in a leased-fee or investor-based analysis where the owner bears the tax burden. Because the subject valuation seeks to estimate fee-simple value and the income stream analyzed is before real estate taxes, the use of an un-loaded overall rate is appropriate.

Therefore, in reconciling the income approach, the SM gives greater weight to value indications derived from pre-tax income capitalized by an un-loaded overall rate, as this method best conforms to accepted appraisal practice and the requirements of Florida law. Thus, in reviewing the Petitioner's income approach, the Special Magistrate has excluded property taxes from the expense category as well as the estimated tax rate from the loaded cap rate, and has considered rent loss, which would indicate the just value at $3,149,122 after COS deduction of 15%.

The PAO reported that their internal analysis supports a 15% increase in sale prices from 1/1/2024 to the lien date of 1/1/2025. They also reported that the DOR performed a study across this same period, utilizing qualified sales of like property, and concluded a 15% increase over the same period. The Special Magistrate assumes that the PAO utilized a process of sampling paired sales or some other subset of the available data. The Special Magistrate will equally weigh the DOR study results (15%) utilizing all qualified like property sales, and the PAO conclusion (15%) and utilize 15% herein.

The PAO performed their analysis utilizing leasable SF. This methodology is considered reliable in the valuation industry.

The PAO supplied 4 improved sales of homes for the elderly within the subject's extended market including a recent sale of the subject property. The Special Magistrate has applied a qualitative analysis of the sales submitted by all parties and has also considered the recent sale of the subject property, if applicable. A COS factor of 15%, market conditions adjustment based on 12% annually, age/condition adjustment, land size/value, a factor for adjusted SF or non-heated area as a % of overall space, extra features differences, a SF adjustment, quality and view adjustments were considered.

The Petitioner did not provide any improved sales for comparison. Of the 4 sales provided by the PAO, the most reliable sale is considered to be the subject property with an adjustment made for time/market conditions. All sales provided were adjusted for market conditions as all sales transpired in 2023. The PAO's valuations were indicated to be $3,112,051 for the cost approach and $4,663,126 for the sales comparison approach with the just value indicated at $3,073,869. The Special Magistrate will weigh the appropriateness of each parties' conclusions.

The PAO considered the cost of sales in their reconciliation process. Proper consideration of the 1st and 8th criteria for the subject property would be approximately 7-12% (cost of sales adjustment; estimated to be brokerage cost of 5-7%, personal property 1-2%, and financing costs of 1-3%, properly considered for the subject). The Special Magistrate will consider this when weighing the appropriateness of each parties' conclusions and the assessment level.

Taking all documentation and testimony into consideration, it appears the indicated just value of $3,073,869 does not appear to be in excess.

The DOR utilizes 15% cost of sales in their oversight function for all property in aggregate. The Magistrate has considered the specific subject property in relation to cost of sales factors as follows (certain scale and property types will vary significantly if cost of sales is to be performed according to statute).

Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., requires proper consideration of the "net proceeds of sale," regardless of whether an actual sale of the property has occurred. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001). However, the statute does not require the property appraiser to select the value generated by the application of Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., and apply it in a blanket fashion to all assessments. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001).

All property is to be assessed at 100% of just value Walter v. Schuler 176 So.2d 81 (Fla 1965). The terms "just value" "fair market value' and "full cash value" are legally synonymous. Id.

The 1st and 8th criteria were introduced by the legislature after this ruling, suggesting that the legislature wishes real estate to be taxed net of typical sales costs, implying that "just value" is in fact equal to "market value net of typical sales costs". Based on current training material for Special Magistrates, this consistently and strongly advises a deduction for the 1st and 8th criteria.

The PAO testified to documentation that pertains to the DOR treatment of the eight criteria required under FS 193.011. The PAO testified to and has documented how each of the criteria was considered in their development of the assessment in regard to the property at hand. The PAO addressed the requirements of FS 193.011 as follows:

"Factors to consider in deriving just valuation. – In arriving at just valuation as required under s. 4, Art. VII of the State Constitution, the property appraiser shall take into consideration the following factors:

(1) The present cash value of the property, which is the amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arm's length;

The PAO, within the CAMA system, makes an adjustment for cost of sale within their direct application of the sales comparison analysis. An adjustment is made for cost of sale as noted under Criteria 8 in their CAMA analysis and in the reconciliation process.

(2) The highest and best use...,(shortened) Land use and building codes were considered along with the character of any existing site improvements, the subject is noted to be residential use and was not disputed by either party. Comparable data was selected based on this information.

(3) The location of the property; The subject property is assigned a location or neighborhood code within the PAO database related to its specific location. Comparable data is selected with as similar a location as is possible, while also considering other relevant factors.

(4) The quantity or size of the property; The size of the building, the site size and site improvements are based on data contained within the PRC and all comparable sales are selected with attention to similarity of size, while also considering and weighing the other relevant factors.

(5) The cost of said property and the present replacement value of any improvements thereon; Within the CAMA system, the PAO uses cost data and when applicable, considers a pure replacement cost new and depreciation factors within a cost approach to value.

(6) The condition of said property; The condition of the property, through periodic site inspections, actual age, and information submitted to them by property owners is considered by the PAO. The information is given a % good or % depreciation factor and is noted in their subject documentation and/or PRC card and utilized in the CAMA analysis.

(7) The income from said property; and; When applicable, the PAO prepares an income capitalization analysis based on market data contained in their files, general market statistics, and when available, actual subject performance is considered.

(8) "The net proceeds of the sale of the property, as received by the seller, after deduction of all the usual and reasonable fees and costs of the sale, including the costs and expenses of financing, and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms or financing arrangements. When the net proceeds of the sale of any property are utilized, directly or indirectly, in the determination of just valuation of realty of the sold parcel or any other parcel under the provisions of this section, the property appraiser, for the purposes of such determination, shall exclude any portion of such net proceeds attributable to payments for household furnishings or other items of personal property."

The cost of sales is considered by the PAO within their CAMA analysis and in reconciliation when performing discrete sales, income or cost analysis. Sales prices of comparable properties are adjusted downward (reportedly) within CAMA, typically at near 15%.

ULTIMATE FINDINGS OF FACT

Florida Statute section 194.301 elaborates the standards of review that the Special Magistrate must apply to any petition to the Value Adjustment Board. The statute states as follows:

Pursuant to Section 194.301, the Property Appraiser's assessment shall be entitled to a Presumption of Correctness if the Property Appraiser shows, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the Property Appraiser considered each of the eight criteria set forth in Section 193.011, the Property Appraiser applied the correct appraisal methodology based upon the characteristics of the property, and the Property Appraiser did not use appraisal practices which are different than the appraisal practices generally applied by the Property Appraiser to comparable property in the same county.

In accordance with Rule 12D-10.003(5)(a), it is concluded that the PAO DID establish a presumption of correctness by properly considering the eight criteria described in FS 193.011. Further, it is concluded that the methodology used by the PAO IS appropriate and DOES comply with professionally accepted appraisal practices for the subject property type. The Petitioner DID NOT overcome the presumption of correctness.

The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment was based on an arbitrary appraisal practice different from like property in the same county.

The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment is excessive. Thus, the assessed value DOES NOT exceed 100% of the fair market value of the property.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence. See Rule 12D-9.025(1), Florida Administrative Code (FAC). Generally, "relevant evidence" is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. This description means the evidence meets or exceeds the minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. See Rule 12D-9.025(2)(b) FAC.

The Special Magistrate reviewed all evidence presented by all parties. In accordance with DOR guidelines, the Special Magistrate determined that the evidence and testimony was relevant and credible to the valuation at hand. Thus, the evidence as presented was admitted for consideration in relation to the appropriateness of the subject assessment.

The Special Magistrate has determined that the testimonial and documentary evidence (combined) meet the test of "relevancy and credibility" and WAS sufficient to reach the “preponderance of the evidence” standard of proof required by Rule 12D-9.027(6) FAC.

The Special Magistrate also determined that there IS competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with the criteria of FS 193.011 and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish the assessment.

The Special Magistrate finds that the Petitioner HAS NOT satisfied the "preponderance of the evidence" standard under the facts as testified to, that the appraiser's assessment is in excess of just value. After weighing all the documentary and testimonial evidence it is concluded that the assessment IS reasonable and within market parameters.

RECOMMENDATION

It is recommended by the Special Magistrate that the relief applied for in this petition be denied.

Special Magistrate

Colleen E Millett

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

Hernando County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-250	Parcel ID R24-223-17-2827-0000-0220
Petitioner name Randall Merck The petitioner is: ☑ taxpayer of record ☐ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	Property address 10078 Deer St Spring Hill, FL 34608

Decision Summary ☐ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☑ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	609,896.00	609,896.00	468,927.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	552,852.00	552,852.00	468,927.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	50,722.00	50,722.00	50,722.00
4. Taxable value,* required	502,130.00	502,130.00	418,205.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact
See attached.

Conclusions of Law
See attached.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	Print name	Date
Colleen E Millett	Colleen E Millett	02/04/2026
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

PETITION NO. 25-250

RECOMMENDATION OF SPECIAL MAGISTRATE

VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD

HERNANDO COUNTY, FLORIDA

IN RE: THE PETITION OF: Randall Merck

PARCEL KEY NO: 01581121

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

The Petitioner, Travis Schneider of Ownwell, Inc for Randall Merck, appeared telephonically before the Special Magistrate to give testimony. The Property Appraiser was represented by BRANDON JIMENEZ and DOUG MACK. All present parties were put under sworn oath.

The Property Appraiser verified the values accordingly; a just value of $609,896, an assessed or capped value of $552,852, and a taxable value of $502,130. There was no change in value after the process.

The Petitioner estimated just value at $465,000 and amended it to $480,000.

Subject Property Type: The subject is a 2,924 SF (heated) single family dwelling with 3,798 adjusted SF that was built in 2020. The subject is located at 10078 Deer St, Spring Hill, FL.

The PAO evidence consists of an evidence packet with a case synopsis, PRC with photo and an aerial map of the subject property, a sales analysis report with (3) sales, location map of sales, summary of cost of sale adjustment, PRCs for each sale, and verbal testimony.

The Petitioner's evidence consists of a petition, summary of evidence submission, property photos, evaluation summary, market value analysis grid with (6) sales, location map of sales, photos of comparable sales, and verbal testimony.

Per testimony by the PAO, there was a timely evidence exchange. There were no objections, and all the evidence noted above is considered admissible (unless specifically noted as inadmissible).

Overall, the evidence presented meets specific evidence rules (See Rule 12D-9,025(1) and Rule 12D-9.025(2)b, F.A.C) and is considered sufficient, relevant, and credible information available, from which a reliable estimate of just, assessed, and taxable value can be estimated.

BASIC AND UNDERLYING FINDINGS OF FACT

The PAO relied upon the sales comparison approach to value and considered CAMA analysis at TRIM. The approach utilized is considered an appropriate methodology by the Special Magistrate.

The PAO presented their evidence packet with a sales analysis report utilizing (3) improved sales from the subject market area. The PAO performed their analysis utilizing adjusted SF which is generally considered less reliable than utilizing heated SF however, is often used in mass appraisal. The PAO focused on age and location of the subject, and as such, all comparable sales are within 0.19 miles. All (3) comparables are repaired sinkhole properties and all have pools, the subject is not a repaired sinkhole and does not have a pool.

The Petitioner provided (6) improved sales (including the subject transfer if applicable). Of these sales, (2) were used by the PAO. The Petitioner adjusted for differences in age, heated SF, land size, features, time, and COS. The Petitioner focused on location and as such, all (6) comparable sales were within a 0.53 miles.

The PAO had a rebuttal to the Petitioner's evidence indicating that the subject has 1,370 SF of garage area that makes the subject larger than typical. PAO noted that Petitioner's Sales 2, 3, 5 and 6 are all repaired sinkhole properties and the subject is not. PAO also noted that Sale 6 is not in the Orchard Park area.

In reviewing all evidence, SM recognizes that garage areas that are materially larger than what is typical for the subject market reflect economies of scale like those observed in larger dwellings. While an oversized garage increases overall utility and cost, its contributory value does not increase on a linear, per-square-foot basis when compared to standard garage sizes. Once functional parking and storage needs are met, additional garage square footage generally provides diminishing marginal utility. As a result, oversized garages often contribute value at a lower rate per square foot than standard living area or typical garage space. Accordingly, when analyzing sales with significantly larger or smaller garage areas, reliance on uniform price-per-square-foot calculations may overstate contributory value, and qualitative or supported quantitative adjustments are necessary to reflect market behavior accurately.

Of the sales provided, (0) Petitioner and (0) PAO sales are not considered reliable (dissimilar in age, dissimilar design and/or size, lack of or excessive adjustment due to size discrepancies, sale date out of range). In taking into consideration the larger than typical garage which is more than 800 SF larger than the typical garage, the median of the most reliable Petitioner sales indicates a just value for the subject of $503,354. The median of the most reliable PAO sales indicates a just value for the subject of $434,500. The median of all the most reliable sales from both parties is $468,927, which is a credible and reliable just value for the subject based on the available data. The PAO just value conclusion is $609,896. This data reliably supports that the subject is over assessed.

The PAO reported that their internal analysis supports a 15% increase in sale prices from 1/1/2024 to the lien date of 1/1/2025. They also reported that the DOR performed a study across this same period, utilizing qualified sales of like property, and concluded a 15% increase over the same period. The Special Magistrate assumes that the PAO utilized a process of sampling paired sales or some other subset of the available data. The Special Magistrate will equally weigh the DOR study results (15%) utilizing all qualified property sales, and the PAO conclusion (15%) and utilize 15% herein.

The Special Magistrate has applied a qualitative analysis of the data submitted by all parties and has also considered the recent sale of the subject property, if applicable. A COS factor of 15%, market conditions adjustment based on 12% annually, age/condition adjustment, land size/value, a factor for adjusted SF or non-heated area as a % of overall space, extra features differences, a SF adjustment, quality and view adjustments were considered.

The PAO considered the cost of sales in their reconciliation process. Proper consideration of the 1st and 8th criteria for the subject property would be approximately 7-12% (cost of sales adjustment; estimated to be brokerage cost of 5-7%, personal property 1-2%, and financing costs of 1-3%, properly considered for the subject). The Special Magistrate will consider this when weighing the appropriateness of each parties' conclusions and the assessment level.

The DOR utilizes 15% cost of sales in their oversight function for all property in aggregate. The Magistrate has considered the specific subject property in relation to cost of sales factors as follows (certain scale and property types will vary significantly if cost of sales is to be performed according to statute).

Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., requires proper consideration of the "net proceeds of sale," regardless of whether an actual sale of the property has occurred. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001). However, the statute does not require the property appraiser to select the value generated by the application of Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., and apply it in a blanket fashion to all assessments. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001).

All property is to be assessed at 100% of just value Walter v. Schuler 176 So.2d 81 (Fla 1965). The terms "just value" "fair market value' and "full cash value" are legally synonymous. Id.

The 1st and 8th criteria were introduced by the legislature after this ruling, suggesting that the legislature wishes real estate to be taxed net of typical sales costs, implying that "just value" is in fact equal to "market value net of typical sales costs". Based on current training material for Special Magistrates, this consistently and strongly advises a deduction for the 1st and 8th criteria.

The PAO testified to documentation that pertains to the DOR treatment of the eight criteria required under FS 193.011. The PAO testified to and has documented how each of the criteria was considered in their development of the assessment in regard to the property at hand. The PAO addressed the requirements of FS 193.011 as follows:

"Factors to consider in deriving just valuation. – In arriving at just valuation as required under s. 4, Art. VII of the State Constitution, the property appraiser shall take into consideration the following factors:

(1) The present cash value of the property, which is the amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arm's length;

The PAO, within the CAMA system, makes an adjustment for cost of sale within their direct application of the sales comparison analysis. An adjustment is made for cost of sale as noted under Criteria 8 in their CAMA analysis and in the reconciliation process.

(2) The highest and best use...,(shortened) Land use and building codes were considered along with the character of any existing site improvements, the subject is noted to be residential use and was not disputed by either party. Comparable data was selected based on this information.

(3) The location of the property; The subject property is assigned a location or neighborhood code within the PAO database related to its specific location. Comparable data is selected with as similar a location as is possible, while also considering other relevant factors.

(4) The quantity or size of the property; The size of the building, the site size and site improvements are based on data contained within the PRC and all comparable sales are selected with attention to similarity of size, while also considering and weighing the other relevant factors.

(5) The cost of said property and the present replacement value of any improvements thereon; Within the CAMA system, the PAO uses cost data and when applicable, considers a pure replacement cost new and depreciation factors within a cost approach to value.

(6) The condition of said property; The condition of the property, through periodic site inspections, actual age, and information submitted to them by property owners is considered by the PAO. The information is given a % good or % depreciation factor and is noted in their subject documentation and/or PRC card and utilized in the CAMA analysis.

(7) The income from said property; and; When applicable, the PAO prepares an income capitalization analysis based on market data contained in their files, general market statistics, and when available, actual subject performance is considered.

(8) "The net proceeds of the sale of the property, as received by the seller, after deduction of all the usual and reasonable fees and costs of the sale, including the costs and expenses of financing, and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms or financing arrangements. When the net proceeds of the sale of any property are utilized, directly or indirectly, in the determination of just valuation of realty of the sold parcel or any other parcel under the provisions of this section, the property appraiser, for the purposes of such determination, shall exclude any portion of such net proceeds attributable to payments for household furnishings or other items of personal property."

The cost of sales is considered by the PAO within their CAMA analysis and in reconciliation when performing discrete sales, income or cost analysis. Sales prices of comparable properties are adjusted downward (reportedly) within CAMA, typically at near 15%.

ULTIMATE FINDINGS OF FACT

Florida Statute section 194.301 elaborates the standards of review that the Special Magistrate must apply to any petition to the Value Adjustment Board. The statute states as follows:

Pursuant to Section 194.301, the Property Appraiser's assessment shall be entitled to a Presumption of Correctness if the Property Appraiser shows, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the Property Appraiser considered each of the eight criteria set forth in Section 193.011, the Property Appraiser applied the correct appraisal methodology based upon the characteristics of the property, and the Property Appraiser did not use appraisal practices which are different than the appraisal practices generally applied by the Property Appraiser to comparable property in the same county.

In accordance with Rule 12D-10.003(5)(a), it is concluded that the PAO DID establish a presumption of correctness by properly considering the eight criteria described in FS 193.011. Further, it is concluded that the methodology used by the PAO IS appropriate and DOES comply with professionally accepted appraisal practices for the subject property type. The Petitioner DID overcome the presumption of correctness.

The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment was based on an arbitrary appraisal practice different from like property in the same county.

The Petitioner HAS shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment is excessive. Thus, the assessed value DOES exceed 100% of the fair market value of the property.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence. See Rule 12D-9.025(1), Florida Administrative Code (FAC). Generally, "relevant evidence" is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. This description means the evidence meets or exceeds the minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. See Rule 12D-9.025(2)(b) FAC.

The Special Magistrate reviewed all evidence presented by all parties. In accordance with DOR guidelines, the Special Magistrate determined that the evidence and testimony was relevant and credible to the valuation at hand. Thus, the evidence as presented was admitted for consideration in relation to the appropriateness of the subject assessment.

The Special Magistrate has determined that the testimonial and documentary evidence (combined) meet the test of "relevancy and credibility" and WAS sufficient to reach the "preponderance of the evidence" standard of proof required by Rule 12D-9.027(6) FAC.

The Special Magistrate also determined that there IS competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with the criteria of FS 193.011 and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish the assessment.

The Special Magistrate finds that the Petitioner HAS satisfied the "preponderance of the evidence" standard under the facts as testified to, that the appraiser's assessment is in excess of just value. After weighing all the documentary and testimonial evidence it is concluded that the assessment IS NOT reasonable and within market parameters.

RECOMMENDATION

It is recommended by the Special Magistrate that the relief applied for in this petition be GRANTED in part with a reduction in just value to $468,927.

Special Magistrate

Colleen E Millett

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

Hernando County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-251	Parcel ID R32-323-17-5210-1398-0040
Petitioner name Linda Connell The petitioner is: ☑ taxpayer of record ☐ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	Property address 2151 Cottondale Ave Spring Hill, FL 34608

Decision Summary ☐ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☑ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	319,603.00	319,603.00	314,254.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	319,603.00	319,603.00	314,254.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	50,722.00	50,722.00	50,722.00
4. Taxable value,* required	268,881.00	268,881.00	263,532.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact
See attached.

Conclusions of Law
See attached.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Colleen E Millett	Colleen E Millett	02/04/2026
Signature, special magistrate	Print name	Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

PETITION NO. 25-251

RECOMMENDATION OF SPECIAL MAGISTRATE

VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD

HERNANDO COUNTY, FLORIDA

IN RE: THE PETITION OF: Linda Connell

PARCEL KEY NO: 00306207

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

The Petitioner, Travis Schneider of Ownwell, Inc for Linda Connell, appeared telephonically before the Special Magistrate to give testimony. The Property Appraiser was represented by BRANDON JIMENEZ and DOUG MACK. All present parties were put under sworn oath.

The Property Appraiser verified the values accordingly; a just value of $319,603, an assessed or capped value of $319,603, and a taxable value of $268,881. There was no change in value after the process.

The Petitioner estimated just value at $303,000.

Subject Property Type: The subject is a 1,973 SF (heated) single family dwelling with 2,301 adjusted SF that was built in 2001. The subject is located at 2151 Cottondale Ave, Spring Hill, FL.

The PAO evidence consists of an evidence packet with a case synopsis, PRC with photo and an aerial map of the subject property, a sales analysis report with (3) sales, location map of sales, summary of cost of sale adjustment, PRCs for each sale, and verbal testimony.

The Petitioner's evidence consists of a petition, summary of evidence submission, property photos, evaluation summary, market value analysis grid with (6) sales, location map of sales, photos of comparable sales, and verbal testimony.

Per testimony by the PAO, there was a timely evidence exchange. There were no objections, and all the evidence noted above is considered admissible (unless specifically noted as inadmissible).

Overall, the evidence presented meets specific evidence rules (See Rule 12D-9,025(1) and Rule 12D-9.025(2)b, F.A.C) and is considered sufficient, relevant, and credible information available, from which a reliable estimate of just, assessed, and taxable value can be estimated.

BASIC AND UNDERLYING FINDINGS OF FACT

The PAO relied upon the sales comparison approach to value and considered CAMA analysis at TRIM. The approach utilized is considered an appropriate methodology by the Special Magistrate.

The PAO presented their evidence packet with a sales analysis report utilizing (3) improved sales from the subject market area. The PAO performed their analysis utilizing adjusted SF which is generally considered less reliable than utilizing heated SF however, is often used in mass appraisal. The PAO focused on size of the subject, and as such, all comparable sales are within 3.38 miles.

The Petitioner provided (6) improved sales (including the subject transfer if applicable). Of these sales, (0) were used by the PAO. The Petitioner adjusted for differences in age, heated SF, land size, features, time, and COS. The Petitioner focused on location and as such, all (6) comparable sales were within a 0.53 miles.

The PAO had a rebuttal to the Petitioner's evidence and stated that Sale 2 is inferior in quality and age, Sale 3 was inferior in condition and resold in 2025 for over $100,000 more, Sale 5 is inferior in age, construction and quality.

Of the sales provided, (3) Petitioner and (0) PAO sales are not considered reliable (dissimilar in age, dissimilar design and/or size, lack of or excessive adjustment due to size discrepancies, sale date out of range). The median of the most reliable Petitioner sales indicates a just value for the subject of $331,575. The median of the most reliable PAO sales indicates a just value for the subject of $296,933. The median of all the most reliable sales from both parties is $314,254, which is a credible and reliable just value for the subject based on the available data. The PAO just value conclusion is $319,603. This data reliably supports that the subject is over assessed.

The PAO reported that their internal analysis supports a 15% increase in sale prices from 1/1/2024 to the lien date of 1/1/2025. They also reported that the DOR performed a study across this same period, utilizing qualified sales of like property, and concluded a 15% increase over the same period. The Special Magistrate assumes that the PAO utilized a process of sampling paired sales or some other subset of the available data. The Special Magistrate will equally weigh the DOR study results (15%) utilizing all qualified property sales, and the PAO conclusion (15%) and utilize 15% herein.

The Special Magistrate has applied a qualitative analysis of the data submitted by all parties and has also considered the recent sale of the subject property, if applicable. A COS factor of 15%, market conditions adjustment based on 12% annually, age/condition adjustment, land size/value, a factor for adjusted SF or non-heated area as a % of overall space, extra features differences, a SF adjustment, quality and view adjustments were considered.

The PAO considered the cost of sales in their reconciliation process. Proper consideration of the 1st and 8th criteria for the subject property would be approximately 7-12% (cost of sales adjustment; estimated to be brokerage cost of 5-7%, personal property 1-2%, and financing costs of 1-3%, properly considered for the subject). The Special Magistrate will consider this when weighing the appropriateness of each parties' conclusions and the assessment level.

The DOR utilizes 15% cost of sales in their oversight function for all property in aggregate. The Magistrate has considered the specific subject property in relation to cost of sales factors as follows (certain scale and property types will vary significantly if cost of sales is to be performed according to statute).

Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., requires proper consideration of the "net proceeds of sale," regardless of whether an actual sale of the property has occurred. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001). However, the statute does not require the property appraiser to select the value generated by the application of Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., and apply it in a blanket fashion to all assessments. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001).

All property is to be assessed at 100% of just value Walter v. Schuler 176 So.2d 81 (Fla 1965). The terms "just value" "fair market value' and "full cash value" are legally synonymous. Id.

The 1st and 8th criteria were introduced by the legislature after this ruling, suggesting that the legislature wishes real estate to be taxed net of typical sales costs, implying that "just value" is in fact equal to "market value net of typical sales costs". Based on current training material for Special Magistrates, this consistently and strongly advises a deduction for the 1st and 8th criteria.

The PAO testified to documentation that pertains to the DOR treatment of the eight criteria required under FS 193.011. The PAO testified to and has documented how each of the criteria was considered in their development of the assessment in regard to the property at hand. The PAO addressed the requirements of FS 193.011 as follows:

“Factors to consider in deriving just valuation. – In arriving at just valuation as required under s. 4, Art. VII of the State Constitution, the property appraiser shall take into consideration the following factors:

(1) The present cash value of the property, which is the amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arm's length;

The PAO, within the CAMA system, makes an adjustment for cost of sale within their direct application of the sales comparison analysis. An adjustment is made for cost of sale as noted under Criteria 8 in their CAMA analysis and in the reconciliation process.

(2) The highest and best use...,(shortened) Land use and building codes were considered along with the character of any existing site improvements, the subject is noted to be residential use and was not disputed by either party. Comparable data was selected based on this information.

(3) The location of the property; The subject property is assigned a location or neighborhood code within the PAO database related to its specific location. Comparable data is selected with as similar a location as is possible, while also considering other relevant factors.

(4) The quantity or size of the property; The size of the building, the site size and site improvements are based on data contained within the PRC and all comparable sales are selected with attention to similarity of size, while also considering and weighing the other relevant factors.

(5) The cost of said property and the present replacement value of any improvements thereon; Within the CAMA system, the PAO uses cost data and when applicable, considers a pure replacement cost new and depreciation factors within a cost approach to value.

(6) The condition of said property; The condition of the property, through periodic site inspections, actual age, and information submitted to them by property owners is considered by the PAO. The information is given a % good or % depreciation factor and is noted in their subject documentation and/or PRC card and utilized in the CAMA analysis.

(7) The income from said property; and; When applicable, the PAO prepares an income capitalization analysis based on market data contained in their files, general market statistics, and when available, actual subject performance is considered.

(8) "The net proceeds of the sale of the property, as received by the seller, after deduction of all the usual and reasonable fees and costs of the sale, including the costs and expenses of financing, and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms or financing arrangements. When the net proceeds of the sale of any property are utilized, directly or indirectly, in the determination of just valuation of realty of the sold parcel or any other parcel under the provisions of this section, the property appraiser, for the purposes of such determination, shall exclude any portion of such net proceeds attributable to payments for household furnishings or other items of personal property."

The cost of sales is considered by the PAO within their CAMA analysis and in reconciliation when performing discrete sales, income or cost analysis. Sales prices of comparable properties are adjusted downward (reportedly) within CAMA, typically at near 15%.

ULTIMATE FINDINGS OF FACT

Florida Statute section 194.301 elaborates the standards of review that the Special Magistrate must apply to any petition to the Value Adjustment Board. The statute states as follows:

Pursuant to Section 194.301, the Property Appraiser's assessment shall be entitled to a Presumption of Correctness if the Property Appraiser shows, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the Property Appraiser considered each of the eight criteria set forth in Section 193.011, the Property Appraiser applied the correct appraisal methodology based upon the characteristics of the property, and the Property Appraiser did not use appraisal practices which are different than the appraisal practices generally applied by the Property Appraiser to comparable property in the same county.

In accordance with Rule 12D-10.003(5)(a), it is concluded that the PAO DID establish a presumption of correctness by properly considering the eight criteria described in FS 193.011. Further, it is concluded that the methodology used by the PAO IS appropriate and DOES comply with professionally accepted appraisal practices for the subject property type. The Petitioner DID overcome the presumption of correctness.

The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment was based on an arbitrary appraisal practice different from like property in the same county.

The Petitioner HAS shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment is excessive. Thus, the assessed value DOES exceed 100% of the fair market value of the property.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence. See Rule 12D-9.025(1), Florida Administrative Code (FAC). Generally, “relevant evidence” is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. This description means the evidence meets or exceeds the minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. See Rule 12D-9.025(2)(b) FAC.

The Special Magistrate reviewed all evidence presented by all parties. In accordance with DOR guidelines, the Special Magistrate determined that the evidence and testimony was relevant and credible to the valuation at hand. Thus, the evidence as presented was admitted for consideration in relation to the appropriateness of the subject assessment.

The Special Magistrate has determined that the testimonial and documentary evidence (combined) meet the test of “relevancy and credibility” and WAS sufficient to reach the “preponderance of the evidence” standard of proof required by Rule 12D-9.027(6) FAC.

The Special Magistrate also determined that there IS competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with the criteria of FS 193.011 and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish the assessment.

The Special Magistrate finds that the Petitioner HAS satisfied the "preponderance of the evidence" standard under the facts as testified to, that the appraiser's assessment is in excess of just value. After weighing all the documentary and testimonial evidence it is concluded that the assessment IS NOT reasonable and within market parameters.

RECOMMENDATION

It is recommended by the Special Magistrate that the relief applied for in this petition be GRANTED in part with a reduction in just value to $314,254.

Special Magistrate

Colleen E Millett

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

HERNANDO County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-225	Parcel ID 01266944
Petitioner name TARGET CORPORATION The petitioner is: ☑ taxpayer of record ☐ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain: _____	Property address 4401 Commercial Way, Spring Hill FL

Decision Summary ☑ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0.00	0.00	0.00
4. Taxable value,* required	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact

See attached.

Conclusions of Law

See attached.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

	Steven Nystrom	02/18/2026
Signature, special magistrate	Print name	Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

PETITION NO. 23-253

RECOMMENDATION OF SPECIAL MAGISTRATE
VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
HERNANDO COUNTY, FLORIDA

IN RE: THE PETITION OF: CEMEX CONSTRUCTION MATERIALS FLORIDA
PARCEL KEY NO: 01738864

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

1 The Petitioner, SAM WAN for CEMEX CONSTRUCTION MATERIALS FLORIDA, did appear before the Special Magistrate telephonically and give testimony. The Property Appraiser was represented by DANIEL SCOTT, and AUSTIN MESTRES. All parties present were put under sworn oath.

2 The Property Appraiser shows a just value of $3,900,662, an assessed or capped value of $3,115,325, and a taxable value of $3,115,325.

3 The Petitioner has estimated value to be $2,989,000.

4 Subject Property Type: The subject includes an industrial cement manufacturing facility totaling 112,032 SF of heavy commodity shelter space, a 20,340 SF office facility and a 66,029 SF industrial manufacturing facility that were all constructed in 1987. The facility was occupied and operating on the lien date. The parcel is located at 10311 Cement Plant Rd., Brooksville FL.

5 The PAO evidence consists of hearing notices and correspondence, valuation package, photographs, maps, cost analysis, legal data, and verbal testimony.

6 The Petitioners' evidence consists of a petition, correspondence, and verbal testimony. The Petitioner's written valuation package was in transit and was not timely submitted as of the time of the hearing. The Petitioner chose to go forward with the hearing with verbal testimony.

7 Per testimony, the evidence exchange complied with statutory time-frame requirements. No objections were made by any party present as it relates to data submittal noted above (unless specifically noted). All the evidence noted above is considered admissible (unless specifically noted as inadmissible).

8 Overall, there is sufficient, relevant, and credible information available, from which a reliable estimate of just, assessed, and taxable value can be estimated.

BASIC AND UNDERLYING FINDINGS OF FACT

9 The PAO relied primarily upon the cost approach, considered CAMA analysis at TRIM, and placed no weight on the income or sales comparison approaches to value. This is considered an appropriate methodology by the Special Magistrate.

10 The subject building improvements are valued within this parcel number, and the land area is carried under another parcel number (differing ownership entity) that is not the subject of this petition. As such, this petition includes the building improvement value only.

11 The PAO did not provide PRC's because in 2023 and 2025 the PAO inspections and/or new analyses uncovered inaccuracies. They have been updating errors on the PRC for this parcel. Specifics of these corrections were not made available but the building areas in the past were miscalculated.

12 The PAO cost analysis applied a $24.76/SF (Building 1), $146.96/SF (Building 2), and a $188.34/SF (Building 3) RCN (replacement cost new) for the commodity shelter, office, and light manufacturing respectively (the individual building RCN's, multipliers, quality ranking, and class look generally reasonable for Buildings 1 & 2, and all but the multipliers reasonable for Building 3).

13 For Building 3, the story height multiplier was incorrectly applied. The PAO applied a 90-foot story multiplier for the entire facility (this multiplies base cost by 316.1%). This is correct for 42,755 SF (of the base floor area of 54,392 SF). The balance of the building has 2 floors, a base area of 11,637 SF and a second floor of 11,637 SF. The PAO applied the large multiplier to both sections, which is incorrect (and aggressive). The Special Magistrate does not know the floor height of the two portions but based on the pictures we have assumed 30 feet and 60 feet (totaling 90 feet for most of this space). Additionally, 756 SF of this portion of Building 3 (6.5% of this component) is about 30 feet high and has no 90-foot component or 2nd floor (Seen in the pictures and sketch). The story height multiplier for the 30-foot component is 1.382 (for 11,637 SF). The upper floor space (60-foot) multiplier for 10,881 SF (11,637 SF – 756 SF) is 2.225. This equates to 42,755 SF @ RCN of $188.34 SF, 11,637 SF @ RCN of $82.31/SF and 10,881 SF @ RCN $132.52/SF. This equates to a total RCN before site improvements / features of $10,452,268 for Building 3.

14 The PAO added for site improvements (reasonable), added 5% soft costs and 10% entrepreneurial incentive on building improvements excluding land (reasonable), applied 80% depreciation to Buildings 1 & 3, and 53% to Building 2 (reasonable), and 80% depreciation to the site improvements / features. The PAO added no functional obsolescence. The Special Magistrate considers this appropriate for Buildings 1 & 2. Building 3 has 90 exterior walls and very little of the upper floor space has any known use. A 50% functional obsolescence factor was applied to this building, which essentially makes it more functionally equivalent to a 35-foot-tall building (essentially, the space above that has little value beyond offsetting its cost to maintain. There is no indication that this upper "air" has been utilized substantially in many years.).

15 This PAO cost approach (partially recalculated by the Special Magistrate for Building 3) totals $4,066,446 ($984,544 for Building 1, $1,872,725 for Building 2, $1,209,177 for Building 3) in depreciated improvement value prior to COS (9% is appropriate for the specific subject factors) The PAO cost approach credibly and reliably supports a just value of $3,700,466 ($4,066,446 less 9% COS) and that the subject is over assessed.

16 The Petitioner performed a cost approach and concluded to $2,989,000. However, the Petitioner documentation was not supplied and the Petitioner only discussed it verbally. As presented, the Petitioner cost approach is inconclusive.

17 The PAO considers cost of sales in their reconciliation process. Proper consideration of the 1st and 8th criteria for the subject property would be approximately 7-12% (cost of sales adjustment; estimated to be brokerage cost of 4-5%, personal property 0-1%, and financing costs of 1-2%, properly considered for the subject). The Special Magistrate will consider this when weighting the appropriateness of each parties' conclusions and the assessment level. Intangible value of approximately 2-4% is appropriate for the subject property (user specific improvements and assembled workforce primarily).

18 The DOR utilize 15% cost of sales in their oversight function for all property in aggregate. The Magistrate has considered the specific subject property in relation to cost of sales factors as follows (certain scale and property types will vary significantly if cost of sales is to be performed according to statute).

19 Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., requires proper consideration of the "net proceeds of sale," regardless of whether an actual sale of the property has occurred. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001). However, the statute does not require the property appraiser to select the value generated by the application of Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., and apply it in a blanket fashion to all assessments. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001).

20 All property is to be assessed at 100% of just value Walter v. Schuler 176 So.2d 81 (Fla 1965). The terms "just value" "fair market value' and "full cash value" are legally synonymous. Id.

21 The 1st and 8th criteria were introduced by the legislature after this ruling, suggesting that the legislature wishes real estate to be taxed net of typical sales costs. This implies that “just value” is in fact equal to “market value net of typical sales costs”. The Special Magistrate training material for the current year also consistently and strongly advises a deduction for 1st and 8th criteria.

22 The PAO testified to documentation that pertains to the DOR treatment of the eight criteria required under FS 193.011. The PAO testified to and has documented how each of the criteria was considered and addressed to the property at issue, as part of the development of the assessment. The PAO addressed the requirements of FS 193.011 as follows:

“Factors to consider in deriving just valuation*. – In arriving at just valuation as required under s. 4, Art. VII of the State Constitution, the property appraiser shall take into consideration the following factors:*

(1) The present cash value of the property, which is the amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arm's length;
The sale of similar properties is considered within the PAO CAMA system, as well as within their direct application of sales comparison analysis. An adjustment is made for cost of sales as noted under Criteria 8 in their CAMA analysis and in reconciliation as applicable.

(2) The highest and best use…,(shortened)
Land use and building codes were considered along with the character of any existing site improvements, as noted on the submitted subject property data. Comparable data was chosen based on this information.

(3) The location of said property;
The subject property is assigned a location code within the PAO database related to its specific location. Comparable data is chosen with as similar a location as is possible, while also considering the other relevant factors.

(4) The quantity or size of said property;
The size of building, site and site improvements are based on data contained with the PRC and all comparables are chosen with as similar size as possible, while also considering and weighing the other relevant factors.

(5) The cost of said property and the present replacement value of any improvements thereon;

The PAO uses cost data within their CAMA cost/market hybrid model. When applicable, a pure replacement cost new and depreciation factors are also estimated and utilized within a cost approach to value.

(6) The condition of said property;
The PAO considers condition through periodic site inspections, actual age, and information submitted to them by property owners. A % good or % depreciation factor is noted in their subject documentation and/or PRC card and utilized in the CAMA analysis.

(7) The income from said property; and
When applicable, the PAO prepares an income capitalization analysis based on market data contained in their files as well as general market statistics. Actual subject performance is also considered when that information is available.

(8) The net proceeds of the sale of the property, as received by the seller, after deduction of all of the usual and reasonable fees and costs of the sale, including the costs and expenses of financing, and allowance for unconventional or a typical terms of financing arrangements. When the net proceeds of the sale of any property are utilized, directly or indirectly, in the determination of just valuation of realty of the sold parcel or any other parcel under the provisions of this section, the property appraiser, for the purposes of such determination, shall exclude any portion of such net proceeds attributable to payments for household furnishings or other items of personal property."
The PAO considers cost of sales within their CAMA analysis and in reconciliation when performing discrete sales, income or cost analysis. Sales prices of comparable properties are adjusted downward (reportedly) within CAMA, typically at near 15%.

ULTIMATE FINDINGS OF FACT

Florida Statute section 194.301 elaborates the standards of review that the Special Magistrate must apply to any petition to the Value Adjustment Board. The statute states as follows:

> Pursuant to Section 194.301, the Property Appraiser's assessment shall be entitled to a Presumption of Correctness if the Property Appraiser shows, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the Property Appraiser considered each of the eight criteria set forth in Section 193.011, the Property Appraiser applied the correct appraisal methodology based upon the characteristics of the property, and the Property Appraiser did not use appraisal practices which are different than the appraisal practices generally applied by the Property Appraiser to comparable property in the same county.

1 In accordance with Rule 12D-10.003(5)(a), it is concluded that the PAO DID establish a presumption of correctness by properly considering the eight criteria described in FS 193.011. Further, it is concluded that the methodology used by the PAO IS appropriate and DOES comply with professionally accepted appraisal practices for the subject property type. The Petitioner DID overcome the presumption of correctness.

2 The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment was based on an arbitrary appraisal practice different from like property in the same county.

3 The Petitioner HAS shown by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment is excessive. Thus, the assessed value DOES exceed 100% of the fair market value of the property.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence. See Rule 12D-9.025(1), Florida Administrative Code (FAC). Generally, “relevant evidence” is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. This description means the evidence meets or exceeds the minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. See Rule 12D-9.025(2)(b) FAC.

The Special Magistrate reviewed all evidence presented by all parties. In accordance with DOR guidelines, the Special Magistrate determined that the evidence and testimony was relevant and credible to the valuation at hand. Thus, the evidence as presented was admitted for consideration in relation to the appropriateness of the subject assessment.

The Special Magistrate determined that the testimonial and documentary evidence (combined) meet the test of “relevancy and credibility” and WAS sufficient to reach the “preponderance of the evidence” standard of proof required by Rule 12D-9.027(6) FAC. The Special Magistrate also determined that there IS competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with the criteria of FS 193.011 and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish the assessment.

The Special Magistrate finds that the Petitioner HAS satisfied the "preponderance of the evidence" standard under the facts as testified to that the appraiser's assessment is in excess of just value. After weighting all of the documentary and testimonial evidence it is concluded that the assessment IS NOT reasonable and within market parameters.

RECOMMENDATION

It is recommended by the Special Magistrate that the relief applied for in this petition be GRANTED in part with a reduction in the just value to $3,700,466.

_____
Special Magistrate
Steven L. Nystrom, MAI

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

HERNANDO County

DR-485V
R. 01/17
Rule 12D-16.002
F.A.C.
Eff. 01/17

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-254	Parcel ID R30 223 19 1795 0000 0340
Petitioner name Yahya Kiwan The petitioner is: ☑ taxpayer of record ☐ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	Property address 0 Broad Street Brooksville, FL

Decision Summary ☑ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	157,090.00	157,090.00	157,090.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	89,102.00	89,102.00	89,102.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0.00	0.00	0.00
4. Taxable value,* required	89,102.00	89,102.00	89,102.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact

Petitioner did not appear at the Hearing and did not state Good Cause per 12D-9.021(8)(a).

Conclusions of Law

Petitioner did not appear at the Hearing and did not state Good Cause per 12D-9.021(8)(a). Per 12D-9.021(8)(b), The relief is denied, and this decision is being issued in order that any right the petitioner may have to bring an action in Circuit Court is not impaired.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	Print name	Date
Richard L Steeves Digitally signed by Richard L Steeves Date: 2023.10.16 09:28:05 -04'00'	Richard L Steeves, MAI	10/31/2025
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

HERNANDO County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-225	Parcel ID 01266944
Petitioner name TARGET CORPORATION The petitioner is: ☑ taxpayer of record ☐ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain: _____	Property address 4401 Commercial Way, Spring Hill FL

Decision Summary ☑ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0.00	0.00	0.00
4. Taxable value,* required	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact

See attached.

Conclusions of Law

See attached.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

	Steven Nystrom	02/18/2026
Signature, special magistrate	Print name	Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

PETITION NO. 23-255

RECOMMENDATION OF SPECIAL MAGISTRATE
VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
HERNANDO COUNTY, FLORIDA

IN RE: THE PETITION OF: FLA MINING & MATERIALS CORP
PARCEL KEY NO: 00328620 (Petition 255)
00328611 (Petition 256)

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

1 The Petitioner, SAM WAN for FLA MINING & MATERIALS CORP, did appear before the Special Magistrate telephonically and gave testimony. The Property Appraiser was represented by DANIEL SCOTT, and AUSTIN MESTRES. All parties present were put under sworn oath.

2 The PAO and Petitioner both consider Petions 255 and 256 to be one economic unit, and both parties presented evidence on them in one presentation. The PAO prepared one package for both petitioned parcels with separate value recommendations. The Special Magistrate will discuss both petitioned parcels herein and will make separate value recommendations for each.

3 For Petition 255, the Property Appraiser shows a just value of $10,531,559, an assessed or capped value of $9,597,737, and a taxable value of $9,597,737. All of the building improvements are valued as part of petitioned parcel 255 (Several buildings are physically on petitioned parcel 256. This error will be reportedly corrected for the next tax year.).

4 For Petition 256, the Property Appraiser shows a just value of $723,950, an assessed or capped value of $163,061, and a taxable value of $163,061. None of the building improvements are valued as part of petitioned parcel 256 (Several buildings are physically on petitioned parcel 256. This error will be reportedly corrected for the next tax year.).

5 The PAO stated that their evidence supported value for both Petitions in the “Before Board Action” based on where the buildings “actually are”. This includes 4 buildings (12, 13, 33, & 34) and 4 silos as part of Petition 256. All of the remainder of the buildings and silos are valued within Petition 255. It should be noted clearly that at TRIM, all the buildings and silos were valued on Petitioned parcel 255, and that the Before Board Action value now corrects this error (and is thus the Before Board Action values the buildings differently from what/where improvements were valued at TRIM). The PRC’s will reportedly be corrected next year. The PAO did NOT note a value change

(from TRIM to Before Board Action) despite this change on where the improvements are being recognized.

6 The Petitioner has estimated value to be $9,068,000 for both petitioned parcels combined.

7 Subject Property Type: The subject (both parcels combined) includes an industrial cement manufacturing facility with 34 buildings and 15 silos. The facilities are of various sizes, and ages that will be described in more detail herein (as well as in the PAO package). Petition 255 includes 181.4 acres of land (176 acres dry and usable), and Petition 256 includes 191 acres of land (172 acres dry and usable). The facility was occupied and minimally operating on the lien date. The parcel is located at 16301 Ponce De Leon Blvd., Brooksville FL.

8 The PAO evidence consists of hearing notices and correspondence, valuation package, photographs, maps, cost analysis, land sales, legal data, and verbal testimony.

9 The Petitioners' evidence consists of a petition, correspondence, and verbal testimony. The Petitioner's written valuation package was in transit and was not timely submitted as of the time of the hearing. The Petitioner chose to go forward with the hearing with verbal testimony.

10 Per testimony, the evidence exchange complied with statutory time-frame requirements. No objections were made by any party present as it relates to data submittal noted above (unless specifically noted). All the evidence noted above is considered admissible (unless specifically noted as inadmissible).

11 Overall, there is sufficient, relevant, and credible information available, from which a reliable estimate of just, assessed, and taxable value can be estimated.

BASIC AND UNDERLYING FINDINGS OF FACT

12 The PAO relied primarily upon the cost approach, considered CAMA analysis at TRIM, and placed no weight on the income or sales comparison approaches to value. This is considered an appropriate methodology by the Special Magistrate.

13 The PAO did not provide PRC's because the PAO inspections and/or new analyses uncovered inaccuracies. They have been updating errors on the PRC for this parcel.

14 The subject greater parent property (both parcels combined) is a primarily defunct cement mining and processing plant. This is called the "North Plant" and is only minimally used with the ongoing operation currently focused on the "South Plant" (under the same or related ownership). The "South Plant" is not part of the petitioned parcels at this hearing but are nearby (about 3 miles away) and some of their secondary operations are still performed on the subject site, as well as some 3rd party usage (Petition 255 & 256). Additionally, buildings on the "North Plant" (the subject of this petition) can be utilized when needed by the "South Plant" operation if (and when) needed (some of the facility is still utilized, and other portions of the property "could" be feasibly utilized if (and when) management so desires). Potential and actual current uses of the "North Plant" include material storage, silos, industrial storage, outside leasing of warehouse space, potentially some retrofitting of older manufacturing buildings, and likely extensive use of the vacant land for mining, light industrial use, agriculture, or be sold off separately to an outside entity to utilize.

15 The PAO supplied 3 land sales that are near the subject parcels. Sales 1 & 3 are both agriculturally zoned with Sale 3 also allowing for commercial uses. Sale 2 is located in close proximity to the "South Plant" and was purchased for use as part of the "South Plant" operation (either land to be mined, or some other expansion of the operation). These sales ranged from $10.582/acre to $49,628/acre (median $36,178/acre). These sales transferred over the 2023 to 2024 period, and the $49,628/acre parcel is the one purchased for mining use (40.3 acres, May 2024). This sale is the strongest data point for land that is likely to have mining use and potential. The Special Magistrate will adjust this sale for market conditions, size / scale, location/proximity to the "South Plant", a small adjustment for assemblage value, and a 6% subject specific and appropriate COS. After adjustment, this sale indicates a $31,548/acre land value. Sale 3 will not be specifically adjusted but is considered to generally support the value indicated by this mining land comparable. Sale 1 supports agricultural land value in the area This sale was adjusted for market conditions, size / scale, zoning / use (conservatively), location, and COS. It supports a adjusted value of $11,526/acre for the subject parcels, under the hypothetical assumption that much of the land would revert to agricultural use. The Petition 255 land will be weighted primarily based on Sale 2 and industrial/mining use (even though it might well be partially converted back to agricultural use or a differing light industrial in the future. Engineering studies for mineral wealth are not available to determine this with precision). For Petition 255, the Special Magistrate will also consider that some of the best excavation portions of the site have already been exploited. This data credibly and reliably supports a just value of $2,640,000 (176 dry usable acres (181.4 total acres) @ $15,000/acre) for Petition 255.

16 The Petition 256 land will be weighted primarily based on Sale 1 and agricultural use (even though it might well be mined and excavated in the future. Engineering studies for mineral wealth are not available to determine this with precision). This data credibly and reliably supports a just value of $2,064,000 (172 dry usable acres (191 total acres) @ $12,000/acre). Land value alone credibly and reliably supports that Petitioned parcel 256 is not over assessed.

17 The PAO cost analysis applied a $157/SF (Building 1) base cost for this average quality, class C, office facility. The PAO made an error as this is a Class S (steel) office facility and a $140/SF base cost is noted for this category in the supplied cost pages. The PAO noted that this facility might be storm damaged. They included asphalt and concrete pavement for much of the larger facility on this building's cost sheet. They applied a 49-year effective age, and it has a 49-year actual age. The PAO a 77% depreciation factor on the building improvements and 80% on the site improvements. The PAO also applied a 10% functional (and/or storm damage) obsolescence factor. The Special Magistrate recalculated this building based on Class S ($140/SF base cost). An 80% deprecation factor (class S has a shorter life than class C) was applied, $20/SF in TI's / refurbishment (it needs refurbishment / TI's before it can be used), as well as a 10% functional / external obsolescence factor (on the already depreciated amount, related to its location in a defunct plant location). Building 1 has a $455,777 contributory value to Petition 255.

18 The PAO cost analysis applied a $55.50/SF (Building 2) base cost for this average quality, class S, storage warehouse facility (14-foot ceilings). They applied a 49-year effective age, and it has a 49-year actual age. The PAO used a 80% depreciation factor on the building improvements. The PAO also applied a 0% functional / external obsolescence factor. The Special Magistrate generally concurs (likely the deprecation should be a bit lower, and a small functional / external obsolescence factor should be applied. The two factors are considered offsetting.) Building 2 has a $185,915 contributory value to Petition 255.

19 The PAO cost analysis applied a $27.50/SF (Building 3) base cost for this average quality, class S, light commercial utility facility. They applied a 49-year effective age, and it has a 49-year actual age. The PAO used a 80% depreciation factor on the building improvements. The PAO also applied a 0% functional / external obsolescence factor. The Special Magistrate generally concurs (base cost should be higher, more like storage warehouse, the deprecation should be a bit higher, and a small functional / external obsolescence factor should be applied. The three factors are considered offsetting.) Building 3 has a $13,967 contributory value to Petition 255.

20 The PAO cost analysis applied a $113.00/SF (Building 4) base cost for this low quality, class S, heavy industrial facility. They applied a 49-year effective age, and it has a 49-year actual age. The PAO used a 80% depreciation factor on the building improvements. The PAO also applied a 0% functional / external obsolescence factor. The PAO stated that the facility is “filled” with heavy machinery (grinding equipment supposedly). The Special Magistrate generally concurs but a functional / economic obsolescence should be applied given that the presence of the defunct equipment makes it nearly impossible to use the structure without removing or refurbishing them. The Special Magistrate has applied a 50% obsolescence factor after all other adjustments were applied. Building 4 has a $266,839 contributory value to Petition 255.

21 The PAO cost analysis applied a $117.00/SF (Building 5) base cost for this low quality, class C, heavy industrial facility. They applied a 49-year effective age, and it has a 49-year actual age. The PAO used a 79% depreciation factor on the building improvements. The PAO also applied a 1% functional / external obsolescence factor. The PAO stated that the facility is “filled” with heavy machinery (it looks like it was for batch processing). The Special Magistrate generally concurs but a functional / economic obsolescence should be applied given that the presence of the defunct equipment makes it nearly impossible to use the structure without removing or refurbishing them and removing the processing equipment off the roof. The Special Magistrate has applied a 50% obsolescence factor after all other adjustments were applied. Building 5 has a $179,442 contributory value to Petition 255.

22 The PAO cost analysis applied a $38.75/SF ($70.78/SF after multipliers) (Building 6) base cost for this low quality, class S, storage warehouse facility. This is a materials storage facility. They applied a 49-year effective age, and it has a 49-year actual age. The PAO used a 80% depreciation factor on the building improvements. The PAO also applied a 0% functional / external obsolescence factor. The Special Magistrate generally concurs (base cost should be higher via quality and possibly a different category is more appropriate, the deprecation might be conservative, and a small functional / external obsolescence factor should be applied. The three factors are considered offsetting.) Building 6 has a $773,673 contributory value to Petition 255.

23 The PAO cost analysis applied a $13.92/SF ($18.77/SF after multipliers) (Building 7) base cost for this low quality, class S, light commercial commodity shelter facility. Overall, the PAO chosen category is reasonable. They applied a 41-year effective age, and it has a 41-year actual age. The PAO used a 80% depreciation factor on the building improvements. The PAO also applied a 0% functional / external obsolescence factor. The Special Magistrate applied a 95% depreciation factor to this property (it has little to no value). Building 7 has a $6,727 contributory value to Petition 255.

24 The PAO cost analysis applied a $117.00/SF ($173.51/SF after multipliers) (Building 8) base cost for this low quality, class C, heavy industrial facility. They applied a 43-year effective age, and it has a 43-year actual age. The PAO used a 68% depreciation factor on the building improvements. The PAO also applied a 10% functional / external obsolescence factor (total about 78%). The PAO stated that the facility is "filled" with heavy machinery (it looks like it was for batch processing, grinding, and/or preheating). The Special Magistrate generally concurs but a functional / economic obsolescence should be applied given that the presence of the defunct equipment makes it nearly impossible to use the structure without removing or refurbishing them and removing the processing equipment off the roof. The Special Magistrate has applied a 50% obsolescence factor after all other adjustments were applied. Building 8 has a $192,414 contributory value to Petition 255.

25 The PAO cost analysis applied a $113.00/SF ($275.44/SF after multipliers) (Building 9) base cost for this low quality, class S, heavy industrial facility. They applied a 43-year effective age, and it has a 43-year actual age. The PAO used a 76% depreciation factor on the building improvements. The PAO also applied a 3.5% functional / external obsolescence factor (total about 79.5%). The PAO stated that the facility is "filled" with heavy machinery (it looks like it was for batch processing, and/or preheating). The Special Magistrate generally concurs but a functional / economic obsolescence should be applied given that the presence of the defunct equipment makes it nearly impossible to use the structure without removing or refurbishing them and removing the processing equipment off the roof. The Special Magistrate has applied a 50% obsolescence factor after all other adjustments were applied. Building 9 has a $192,414 contributory value to Petition 255.

26 The PAO cost analysis applied a $13.92/SF ($15.52/SF after multipliers) (Building 10) base cost for this low/average quality, class S, light commercial commodity shelter facility. Overall, the PAO chosen category is reasonable. They applied a 43-year effective age, and it has a 43-year actual age. The PAO used a 80% depreciation factor on the building improvements. The PAO also applied a 0% functional / external obsolescence factor. Building 10 has a $68,329 contributory value to Petition 255.

27 The PAO cost analysis applied a $38.75/SF ($38.92/SF after multipliers) (Building 11) base cost for this average quality, class S, storage warehouse facility. They applied a 43-year effective age, and it has a 43-year actual age. The PAO used a 80% depreciation factor on the building improvements. The PAO also applied a 0% functional / external obsolescence factor. Building 11 has a $78,612 contributory value to Petition 255.

28 Buildings 12 and 13 are on Petitioned parcel 256. Land value alone supports the PAO just value for this parcel.

29 The PAO cost analysis applied a $36.50/SF ($46.38/SF) (Building 14) base cost for this average quality, class C, light commercial utility facility. They applied a 49-year effective age, and it has a 49-year actual age. The PAO used a 80% depreciation factor on the building improvements. The PAO also applied a 0% functional / external obsolescence factor. The Special Magistrate has applied a 50% obsolescence factor after all other adjustments were applied. Building 14 has a $9,843 contributory value to Petition 255.

30 The PAO cost analysis applied a $113.00/SF ($252.56/SF after multipliers) (Building 15) base cost for this low quality, class S, heavy industrial facility. They applied a 41-year effective age, and it has a 41-year actual age. The PAO used a 73% depreciation factor on the building improvements. The PAO also applied a 4% functional / external obsolescence factor (total about 77%). The PAO stated that the facility is “filled” with heavy machinery (it looks like it was for preheating or kilns). The Special Magistrate generally concurs but a functional / economic obsolescence should be applied given that the presence of the defunct equipment makes it nearly impossible to use the structure without removing or refurbishing them and removing the processing equipment off the roof. The Special Magistrate has applied a 50% obsolescence factor after all other adjustments were applied. Building 15 has a $307,710 contributory value to Petition 255.

31 The PAO cost analysis applied a $113.00/SF ($270.30/SF after multipliers) (Building 16) base cost for this low quality, class S, heavy industrial facility. They applied a 49-year effective age, and it has a 49-year actual age. The PAO used a 80% depreciation factor on the building improvements. The PAO also applied a 9% functional / external obsolescence factor (total about 89%). The PAO stated that the facility is “filled” with heavy machinery (it looks like it was for preheating or batch processing). The Special Magistrate generally concurs. Building 16 has a $247,375 contributory value to Petition 255.

32 The PAO cost analysis applied a $27.50/SF ($37.31/SF) (Building 17) base cost for this average quality, class S, light commercial utility facility. They applied a 43-year effective age, and it has a 43-year actual age. The PAO used a 80% depreciation factor on the building improvements. The PAO also applied a 0% functional / external obsolescence factor. The Special Magistrate has applied a 50% obsolescence factor after all other adjustments were applied. Building 17 has a $3,397 contributory value to Petition 255.

33 The PAO cost analysis applied a $36.50/SF ($58.40/SF) (Building 18) base cost for this average quality, class C, light commercial utility facility. They applied a 49-year effective age, and it has a 49-year actual age. The PAO used a 80% depreciation factor on the building improvements. The PAO also applied a 0% functional / external obsolescence factor. Building 18 has a $18,474 contributory value to Petition 255.

34 The PAO cost analysis applied a $36.50/SF ($58.40/SF) (Building 19) base cost for this average quality, class C, light commercial utility facility. They applied a 49-year effective age, and it has a 49-year actual age. The PAO used a 80% depreciation factor on the building improvements. The PAO also applied a 0% functional / external obsolescence factor. Building 19 has a $18,474 contributory value to Petition 255.

35 The PAO cost analysis applied a $36.50/SF ($48.93/SF) (Building 20) base cost for this average quality, class C, light commercial utility facility. They applied a 49-year effective age, and it has a 49-year actual age. The PAO used a 80% depreciation factor on the building improvements. The PAO also applied a 0% functional / external obsolescence factor. The Special Magistrate has applied a 50% obsolescence factor after all other adjustments were applied. Building 20 has a $2,814 contributory value to Petition 255.

36 The PAO cost analysis applied a $27.50/SF ($37.32/SF) (Building 21) base cost for this average quality, class S, light commercial utility facility. They applied a 49-year effective age, and it has a 49-year actual age. The PAO used a 80% depreciation factor on the building improvements. The PAO also applied a 0% functional / external obsolescence factor. The Special Magistrate has applied a 50% obsolescence factor after all other adjustments were applied. Building 21 has a $4,265 contributory value to Petition 255.

37 The PAO cost analysis applied a $113.00/SF ($261.35/SF after multipliers) (Building 22) base cost for this low quality, class S, heavy industrial facility. They applied a 49-year effective age, and it has a 49-year actual age. The PAO used a 80% depreciation factor on the building improvements. The PAO also applied a 0% functional / external obsolescence factor. The PAO stated that the facility is “filled” with heavy machinery (it looks like it was for batch processing or grinding). The Special Magistrate generally concurs but a functional / economic obsolescence should be applied given that the presence of the defunct equipment makes it nearly impossible to use the structure without removing or refurbishing them and removing the processing equipment off the roof. The Special Magistrate has applied a 50% obsolescence factor after all other adjustments were applied. Building 22 has a $373,986 contributory value to Petition 255.

38 The PAO cost analysis applied a $79.50/SF ($81.54/SF after multipliers) (Building 23) base cost for this good quality, class S, storage warehouse facility. They applied a 49-year effective age, and it has a 49-year actual age. The PAO used a 80% depreciation factor on the building improvements. The PAO also applied a 0% functional / external obsolescence factor. The Special Magistrate applied a lower 50% depreciation on this facility as it has been well maintained. Building 23 has a $495,042 contributory value to Petition 255.

39 The PAO cost analysis applied a $68/SF ($87.02/SF after multipliers) (Building 24) base cost for this good quality, class S, storage warehouse facility. They applied a 49-year effective age, and it has a 49-year actual age. The PAO used a 80% depreciation factor on the building improvements. The PAO also applied a 0% functional / external obsolescence factor. Building 24 has a $173,597 contributory value to Petition 255.

40 The PAO cost analysis applied a $43/SF ($52.77/SF after multipliers) (Building 25) base cost for this low quality, class S, storage warehouse facility. They applied a 49-year effective age, and it has a 49-year actual age. The PAO used a 80% depreciation factor on the building improvements. The PAO also applied a 0% functional / external obsolescence factor. Building 25 has a $39,987 contributory value to Petition 255.

41 The PAO cost analysis applied a $36.50/SF ($47.84/SF) (Building 26) base cost for this average quality, class C, light commercial utility facility. They applied a 49-year effective age, and it has a 49-year actual age. The PAO used a 80% depreciation factor on the building improvements. The PAO also applied a 0% functional / external obsolescence factor. Building 26 has a $12,228 contributory value to Petition 255.

42 The PAO cost analysis applied a $13.92/SF ($15.41/SF after multipliers) (Building 27) base cost for this low/average quality, class S, light commercial commodity shelter facility. Overall, the PAO chosen category is reasonable. They applied a 43-year effective age, and it has a 43-year actual age. The PAO used a 80% depreciation factor on the building improvements. The PAO also applied a 0% functional / external obsolescence factor. Building 27 has a $76,039 contributory value to Petition 255.

43 The PAO cost analysis applied a $27.50/SF ($37.01/SF) (Building 28) base cost for this average quality, class S, light commercial utility facility. They applied a 41-year effective age, and it has a 41-year actual age. The PAO used a 80% depreciation factor on the building improvements. The PAO also applied a 0% functional / external obsolescence factor. The special Magistrate has used a lower 50% depreciation factor on this facility. Building 28 has a $11,742 contributory value to Petition 255.

44 The PAO cost analysis applied a $38.75/SF ($47.68/SF after multipliers) (Building 29) base cost for this low quality, class S, storage warehouse facility. They applied a 43-year effective age, and it has a 43-year actual age. The PAO used a 80% depreciation factor on the building improvements. The PAO also applied a 0% functional / external obsolescence factor. The Special Magistrate applied a lower 60% depreciation on this facility as it has been well maintained. Building 29 has a $153,724 contributory value to Petition 255.

45 The PAO cost analysis applied a $41.75/SF ($48.10/SF after multipliers) (Building 30) base cost for this low quality, class S, office shell facility. They applied a 41-year effective age, and it has a 41-year actual age. The PAO used a 80% depreciation factor on the building improvements. The PAO also applied a 0% functional / external obsolescence factor. The Special Magistrate applied a lower 60% depreciation on this facility as it has been well maintained. Building 30 has a $23,958 contributory value to Petition 255.

46 The PAO cost analysis applied a $38.75/SF ($52.71/SF after multipliers) (Building 31) base cost for this low quality, class S, storage warehouse facility. They applied a 41-year effective age, and it has a 41-year actual age. The PAO used a 80% depreciation factor on the building improvements. The PAO also applied a 0% functional / external obsolescence factor. The Special Magistrate applied a lower 70% depreciation on this facility as it has been well maintained. Building 31 has a $22,635 contributory value to Petition 255.

47 The PAO cost analysis applied a $94.50/SF ($149.34/SF after multipliers) (Building 32) base cost for this good quality, class S, service garage facility. They applied a 43-year effective age, and it has a 43-year actual age. The PAO used a 80% depreciation factor on the building improvements. The PAO also applied a 0% functional / external obsolescence factor. The Special Magistrate applied a lower 70% depreciation on this facility as it has been well maintained. Building 32 has a $320,611 contributory value to Petition 255. (the PAO did seem to have an error on their cost page regarding depreciation)

48 Buildings 33 and 34 are on Petitioned parcel 256. Land value alone supports the PAO just value for this parcel.

49 Petition 255 includes 11 silos and Petition 256 includes 4 silos. The usage of a specific silo, the tonnage capacity, and the dimensions were not made available. The PAO converted the silo’s to “bushels” of capacity but there is no worksheet to support how they calculated this amount, from which the accuracy of their estimate can be determined. The PAO placed 27% of their value conclusion on the silos for Petition 255.

50 The PAO analysis for silos excluded the 5% upward factor for single towers (1 is a single tower), and 5% upward for heavy industrial uses, that would apply to all of them. The Special Magistrate is skeptical of the PAO estimated "bushel capacity" for the silos. The PAO notes 3 silos averaging over 200,000 bushels (that would take a 130-foot silo with a 50-foot diameter), and 4 more are noted to be between 135,000 and 150,000 bushels (that would take a 135-foot and 40-foot diameter silo). While it is hard to tell the exact sizes of the silos from the pictures, they do not appear to be that large. As a check of reasonableness, the Special Magistrate has estimated the largest 9 silos to be approximately 100 foot tall with 40-foot diameter (on average; 100,000 bushels), and our estimate of value here is based on that. This equates to an average silo cost of $9.534/bushel for a concrete annex silo ($9.08 x 1.05) or $953,400 x 9 = $8,580,600. Plus, the 2 smaller silos (the PAO capacity figures appear reasonable) ($399,139 x 2) totals $9,378,878. The PAO added 5% in soft and indirect costs and 10% for entrepreneurial profit (reasonable) equates to $10,832,604 RCN. The PAO applied a conservative 80% depreciation (they are 49 years old, on average, individual ages not provided), as well as an additional 8.67% obsolescence (totaling about 89% depreciation). There are reasons why silos located a few miles away from a plant can and might still be utilized (the South Plant is about 3 miles away). There is every reason to think that these silos could in fact be rehabilitated and utilized for material storage. The Special Magistrate has estimated a 70% depreciation factor for the silos, and then another 15% depreciation taken from that figure for functional & economic obsolescence ($10,832,604 x 30% good, x 85% good = $2,762,314).

51 For Petition 255, the total land ($2640,000) and improvement value (excluding the silos) totals $7,444,328 before COS. Including the Special Magistrate recalculation of the silos ($2,762,314), this totals $10,206,642. A subject specific and appropriate COS factor of 6% was applied and the just value (including the silos) is $9,594,243 and this (marginally) credibly and reliably supports that the subject is over assessed. This is in large part due to the buildings improvements the PAO moved to Petitioned parcel 256 for the Before Board Action value conclusions.

52 The Petitioner performed a sales and cost approach and concluded to $9,068,000 for both parcels combined. However, the Petitioner documentation was not supplied and the Petitioner only discussed it verbally. As presented, the Petitioner cost approach is inconclusive.

53 The PAO considers cost of sales in their reconciliation process. Proper consideration of the 1st and 8th criteria for the subject property would be approximately 3-8% (cost of sales adjustment; estimated to be brokerage cost of 2-3%, personal property 0-1%, and financing costs of 0-1%, properly considered for the subject). The Special Magistrate will consider this when weighting the appropriateness of each parties' conclusions and the assessment level. Intangible value of approximately 1-3% is appropriate for the subject property (user specific improvements and assembled workforce primarily).

54 The DOR utilize 15% cost of sales in their oversight function for all property in aggregate. The Magistrate has considered the specific subject property in relation to cost of sales factors as follows (certain scale and property types will vary significantly if cost of sales is to be performed according to statute).

55 Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., requires proper consideration of the "net proceeds of sale," regardless of whether an actual sale of the property has occurred. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001). However, the statute does not require the property appraiser to select the value generated by the application of Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., and apply it in a blanket fashion to all assessments. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001).

56 All property is to be assessed at 100% of just value Walter v. Schuler 176 So.2d 81 (Fla 1965). The terms "just value" "fair market value' and "full cash value" are legally synonymous. Id.

57 The 1st and 8th criteria were introduced by the legislature after this ruling, suggesting that the legislature wishes real estate to be taxed net of typical sales costs. This implies that "just value" is in fact equal to "market value net of typical sales costs". The Special Magistrate training material for the current year also consistently and strongly advises a deduction for 1st and 8th criteria.

58 The PAO testified to documentation that pertains to the DOR treatment of the eight criteria required under FS 193.011. The PAO testified to and has documented how each of the criteria was considered and addressed to the property at issue, as part of the development of the assessment. The PAO addressed the requirements of FS 193.011 as follows:

"Factors to consider in deriving just valuation*. – In arriving at just valuation as required under s. 4, Art. VII of the State Constitution, the property appraiser shall take into consideration the following factors:*

(1) The present cash value of the property, which is the amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arm's length;
The sale of similar properties is considered within the PAO CAMA system, as well as within their direct application of sales comparison analysis. An adjustment is made for cost of sales as noted under Criteria 8 in their CAMA analysis and in reconciliation as applicable.

(2) The highest and best use…,(shortened)
Land use and building codes were considered along with the character of any existing site improvements, as noted on the submitted subject property data. Comparable data was chosen based on this information.

(3) The location of said property;
The subject property is assigned a location code within the PAO database related to its specific location. Comparable data is chosen with as similar a location as is possible, while also considering the other relevant factors.

(4) The quantity or size of said property;
The size of building, site and site improvements are based on data contained with the PRC and all comparables are chosen with as similar size as possible, while also considering and weighing the other relevant factors.

(5) The cost of said property and the present replacement value of any improvements thereon;
The PAO uses cost data within their CAMA cost/market hybrid model. When applicable, a pure replacement cost new and depreciation factors are also estimated and utilized within a cost approach to value.

(6) The condition of said property;
The PAO considers condition through periodic site inspections, actual age, and information submitted to them by property owners. A % good or % depreciation factor is noted in their subject documentation and/or PRC card and utilized in the CAMA analysis.

(7) The income from said property; and
When applicable, the PAO prepares an income capitalization analysis based on market data contained in their files as well as general market statistics. Actual subject performance is also considered when that information is available.

(8) The net proceeds of the sale of the property, as received by the seller, after deduction of all of the usual and reasonable fees and costs of the sale, including the costs and expenses of financing, and allowance for unconventional or a typical terms of financing arrangements. When the net proceeds of the sale of any property are utilized, directly or indirectly, in the determination of just valuation of realty of the sold parcel or any other parcel under the provisions of this section, the property appraiser, for the purposes of such determination, shall exclude any portion of such net proceeds attributable to payments for household furnishings or other items of personal property."

The PAO considers cost of sales within their CAMA analysis and in reconciliation when performing discrete sales, income or cost analysis. Sales prices of comparable properties are adjusted downward (reportedly) within CAMA, typically at near 15%.

ULTIMATE FINDINGS OF FACT

Florida Statute section 194.301 elaborates the standards of review that the Special Magistrate must apply to any petition to the Value Adjustment Board. The statute states as follows:

> Pursuant to Section 194.301, the Property Appraiser's assessment shall be entitled to a Presumption of Correctness if the Property Appraiser shows, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the Property Appraiser considered each of the eight criteria set forth in Section 193.011, the Property Appraiser applied the correct appraisal methodology based upon the characteristics of the property, and the Property Appraiser did not use appraisal practices which are different than the appraisal practices generally applied by the Property Appraiser to comparable property in the same county.

1 In accordance with Rule 12D-10.003(5)(a), it is concluded that the PAO DID NOT establish a presumption of correctness by properly considering the eight criteria described in FS 193.011. Specifically, Criteria 4 (quantity) was not properly considered due to a lack of support for the sizes and ages of the silos (27% of your value conclusion). Further, it is concluded that the methodology used by the PAO IS NOT appropriate and DOES NOT comply with professionally accepted appraisal practices for the subject property type.

2 The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment was based on an arbitrary appraisal practice different from like property in the same county.

3 The Petitioner HAS shown by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment is excessive. Thus, the assessed value DOES exceed 100% of the fair market value of the property.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence. See Rule 12D-9.025(1), Florida Administrative Code (FAC). Generally, “relevant evidence” is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. This description means the evidence meets or exceeds the minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. See Rule 12D-9.025(2)(b) FAC.

The Special Magistrate reviewed all evidence presented by all parties. In accordance with DOR guidelines, the Special Magistrate determined that the evidence and testimony was relevant and credible to the valuation at hand. Thus, the evidence as presented was admitted for consideration in relation to the appropriateness of the subject assessment.

The Special Magistrate determined that the testimonial and documentary evidence (combined) meet the test of “relevancy and credibility” and WAS sufficient to reach the “preponderance of the evidence” standard of proof required by Rule 12D-9.027(6) FAC. The Special Magistrate also determined that there IS competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with the criteria of FS 193.011 and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish the assessment.

The Special Magistrate finds that the Petitioner HAS satisfied the "preponderance of the evidence" standard under the facts as testified to that the appraiser's assessment is in excess of just value. After weighting all of the documentary and testimonial evidence it is concluded that the assessment IS NOT reasonable and within market parameters.

RECOMMENDATION

It is recommended by the Special Magistrate that the relief applied for in this petition be GRANTED in part with a reduction in the just value to $9,594,243 (Petition 255).

_____
Special Magistrate
Steven L. Nystrom, MAI

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

HERNANDO County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-225	Parcel ID 01266944
Petitioner name TARGET CORPORATION The petitioner is: ☑ taxpayer of record ☐ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain: _____	Property address 4401 Commercial Way, Spring Hill FL

Decision Summary ☑ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0.00	0.00	0.00
4. Taxable value,* required	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact

See attached.

Conclusions of Law

See attached.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

	Steven Nystrom	02/18/2026
Signature, special magistrate	Print name	Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

PETITION NO. 23-256

RECOMMENDATION OF SPECIAL MAGISTRATE
VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
HERNANDO COUNTY, FLORIDA

IN RE: THE PETITION OF: FLA MINING & MATERIALS CORP
PARCEL KEY NO: 00328620 (Petition 255)
00328611 (Petition 256)

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

1 The Petitioner, SAM WAN for FLA MINING & MATERIALS CORP, did appear before the Special Magistrate telephonically and gave testimony. The Property Appraiser was represented by DANIEL SCOTT, and AUSTIN MESTRES. All parties present were put under sworn oath.

2 The PAO and Petitioner both consider Petions 255 and 256 to be one economic unit, and both parties presented evidence on them in one presentation. The PAO prepared one package for both petitioned parcels with separate value recommendations. The Special Magistrate will discuss both petitioned parcels herein and will make separate value recommendations for each.

3 For Petition 255, the Property Appraiser shows a just value of $10,531,559, an assessed or capped value of $9,597,737, and a taxable value of $9,597,737. All of the building improvements are valued as part of petitioned parcel 255 (Several buildings are physically on petitioned parcel 256. This error will be reportedly corrected for the next tax year.).

4 For Petition 256, the Property Appraiser shows a just value of $723,950, an assessed or capped value of $163,061, and a taxable value of $163,061. None of the building improvements are valued as part of petitioned parcel 256 (Several buildings are physically on petitioned parcel 256. This error will be reportedly corrected for the next tax year.).

5 The PAO stated that their evidence supported value for both Petitions in the "Before Board Action" based on where the buildings "actually are". This includes 4 buildings (12, 13, 33, & 34) and 4 silos as part of Petition 256. All of the remainder of the buildings and silos are valued within Petition 255. It should be noted clearly that at TRIM, all the buildings and silos were valued on Petitioned parcel 255, and that the Before Board Action value now corrects this error (and is thus the Before Board Action values the buildings differently from what/where improvements were valued at TRIM). The PRC's will reportedly be corrected next year. The PAO did NOT note a value change

(from TRIM to Before Board Action) despite this change on where the improvements are being recognized.

6 The Petitioner has estimated value to be $9,068,000 for both petitioned parcels combined.

7 Subject Property Type: The subject (both parcels combined) includes an industrial cement manufacturing facility with 34 buildings and 15 silos. The facilities are of various sizes, and ages that will be described in more detail herein (as well as in the PAO package). Petition 255 includes 181.4 acres of land (176 acres dry and usable), and Petition 256 includes 191 acres of land (172 acres dry and usable). The facility was occupied and minimally operating on the lien date. The parcel is located at 16301 Ponce De Leon Blvd., Brooksville FL.

8 The PAO evidence consists of hearing notices and correspondence, valuation package, photographs, maps, cost analysis, land sales, legal data, and verbal testimony.

9 The Petitioners' evidence consists of a petition, correspondence, and verbal testimony. The Petitioner's written valuation package was in transit and was not timely submitted as of the time of the hearing. The Petitioner chose to go forward with the hearing with verbal testimony.

10 Per testimony, the evidence exchange complied with statutory time-frame requirements. No objections were made by any party present as it relates to data submittal noted above (unless specifically noted). All the evidence noted above is considered admissible (unless specifically noted as inadmissible).

11 Overall, there is sufficient, relevant, and credible information available, from which a reliable estimate of just, assessed, and taxable value can be estimated.

BASIC AND UNDERLYING FINDINGS OF FACT

12 The PAO relied primarily upon the cost approach, considered CAMA analysis at TRIM, and placed no weight on the income or sales comparison approaches to value. This is considered an appropriate methodology by the Special Magistrate.

13 The PAO did not provide PRC's because the PAO inspections and/or new analyses uncovered inaccuracies. They have been updating errors on the PRC for this parcel.

14 The subject greater parent property (both parcels combined) is a primarily defunct cement mining and processing plant. This is called the "North Plant" and is only minimally used with the ongoing operation currently focused on the "South Plant" (under the same or related ownership). The "South Plant" is not part of the petitioned parcels at this hearing but are nearby (about 3 miles away) and some of their secondary operations are still performed on the subject site, as well as some 3rd party usage (Petition 255 & 256). Additionally, buildings on the "North Plant" (the subject of this petition) can be utilized when needed by the "South Plant" operation if (and when) needed (some of the facility is still utilized, and other portions of the property "could" be feasibly utilized if (and when) management so desires). Potential and actual current uses of the "North Plant" include material storage, silos, industrial storage, outside leasing of warehouse space, potentially some retrofitting of older manufacturing buildings, and likely extensive use of the vacant land for mining, light industrial use, agriculture, or be sold off separately to an outside entity to utilize.

15 The PAO supplied 3 land sales that are near the subject parcels. Sales 1 & 3 are both agriculturally zoned with Sale 3 also allowing for commercial uses. Sale 2 is located in close proximity to the "South Plant" and was purchased for use as part of the "South Plant" operation (either land to be mined, or some other expansion of the operation). These sales ranged from $10.582/acre to $49,628/acre (median $36,178/acre). These sales transferred over the 2023 to 2024 period, and the $49,628/acre parcel is the one purchased for mining use (40.3 acres, May 2024). This sale is the strongest data point for land that is likely to have mining use and potential. The Special Magistrate will adjust this sale for market conditions, size / scale, location/proximity to the "South Plant", a small adjustment for assemblage value, and a 6% subject specific and appropriate COS. After adjustment, this sale indicates a $31,548/acre land value. Sale 3 will not be specifically adjusted but is considered to generally support the value indicated by this mining land comparable. Sale 1 supports agricultural land value in the area This sale was adjusted for market conditions, size / scale, zoning / use (conservatively), location, and COS. It supports a adjusted value of $11,526/acre for the subject parcels, under the hypothetical assumption that much of the land would revert to agricultural use. The Petition 255 land will be weighted primarily based on Sale 2 and industrial/mining use (even though it might well be partially converted back to agricultural use or a differing light industrial in the future. Engineering studies for mineral wealth are not available to determine this with precision). For Petition 255, the Special Magistrate will also consider that some of the best excavation portions of the site have already been exploited. This data credibly and reliably supports a just value of $2,640,000 (176 dry usable acres (181.4 total acres) @ $15,000/acre) for Petition 255.

16 The Petition 256 land will be weighted primarily based on Sale 1 and agricultural use (even though it might well be mined and excavated in the future. Engineering studies for mineral wealth are not available to determine this with precision). This data credibly and reliably supports a just value of $2,064,000 (172 dry usable acres (191 total acres) @ $12,000/acre). Land value alone credibly and reliably supports that Petitioned parcel 256 is not over assessed.

17 The PAO cost analysis applied a $157/SF (Building 1) base cost for this average quality, class C, office facility. The PAO made an error as this is a Class S (steel) office facility and a $140/SF base cost is noted for this category in the supplied cost pages. The PAO noted that this facility might be storm damaged. They included asphalt and concrete pavement for much of the larger facility on this building's cost sheet. They applied a 49-year effective age, and it has a 49-year actual age. The PAO a 77% depreciation factor on the building improvements and 80% on the site improvements. The PAO also applied a 10% functional (and/or storm damage) obsolescence factor. The Special Magistrate recalculated this building based on Class S ($140/SF base cost). An 80% deprecation factor (class S has a shorter life than class C) was applied, $20/SF in TI's / refurbishment (it needs refurbishment / TI's before it can be used), as well as a 10% functional / external obsolescence factor (on the already depreciated amount, related to its location in a defunct plant location). Building 1 has a $455,777 contributory value to Petition 255.

18 The PAO cost analysis applied a $55.50/SF (Building 2) base cost for this average quality, class S, storage warehouse facility (14-foot ceilings). They applied a 49-year effective age, and it has a 49-year actual age. The PAO used a 80% depreciation factor on the building improvements. The PAO also applied a 0% functional / external obsolescence factor. The Special Magistrate generally concurs (likely the deprecation should be a bit lower, and a small functional / external obsolescence factor should be applied. The two factors are considered offsetting.) Building 2 has a $185,915 contributory value to Petition 255.

19 The PAO cost analysis applied a $27.50/SF (Building 3) base cost for this average quality, class S, light commercial utility facility. They applied a 49-year effective age, and it has a 49-year actual age. The PAO used a 80% depreciation factor on the building improvements. The PAO also applied a 0% functional / external obsolescence factor. The Special Magistrate generally concurs (base cost should be higher, more like storage warehouse, the deprecation should be a bit higher, and a small functional / external obsolescence factor should be applied. The three factors are considered offsetting.) Building 3 has a $13,967 contributory value to Petition 255.

20 The PAO cost analysis applied a $113.00/SF (Building 4) base cost for this low quality, class S, heavy industrial facility. They applied a 49-year effective age, and it has a 49-year actual age. The PAO used a 80% depreciation factor on the building improvements. The PAO also applied a 0% functional / external obsolescence factor. The PAO stated that the facility is “filled” with heavy machinery (grinding equipment supposedly). The Special Magistrate generally concurs but a functional / economic obsolescence should be applied given that the presence of the defunct equipment makes it nearly impossible to use the structure without removing or refurbishing them. The Special Magistrate has applied a 50% obsolescence factor after all other adjustments were applied. Building 4 has a $266,839 contributory value to Petition 255.

21 The PAO cost analysis applied a $117.00/SF (Building 5) base cost for this low quality, class C, heavy industrial facility. They applied a 49-year effective age, and it has a 49-year actual age. The PAO used a 79% depreciation factor on the building improvements. The PAO also applied a 1% functional / external obsolescence factor. The PAO stated that the facility is “filled” with heavy machinery (it looks like it was for batch processing). The Special Magistrate generally concurs but a functional / economic obsolescence should be applied given that the presence of the defunct equipment makes it nearly impossible to use the structure without removing or refurbishing them and removing the processing equipment off the roof. The Special Magistrate has applied a 50% obsolescence factor after all other adjustments were applied. Building 5 has a $179,442 contributory value to Petition 255.

22 The PAO cost analysis applied a $38.75/SF ($70.78/SF after multipliers) (Building 6) base cost for this low quality, class S, storage warehouse facility. This is a materials storage facility. They applied a 49-year effective age, and it has a 49-year actual age. The PAO used a 80% depreciation factor on the building improvements. The PAO also applied a 0% functional / external obsolescence factor. The Special Magistrate generally concurs (base cost should be higher via quality and possibly a different category is more appropriate, the deprecation might be conservative, and a small functional / external obsolescence factor should be applied. The three factors are considered offsetting.) Building 6 has a $773,673 contributory value to Petition 255.

23 The PAO cost analysis applied a $13.92/SF ($18.77/SF after multipliers) (Building 7) base cost for this low quality, class S, light commercial commodity shelter facility. Overall, the PAO chosen category is reasonable. They applied a 41-year effective age, and it has a 41-year actual age. The PAO used a 80% depreciation factor on the building improvements. The PAO also applied a 0% functional / external obsolescence factor. The Special Magistrate applied a 95% depreciation factor to this property (it has little to no value). Building 7 has a $6,727 contributory value to Petition 255.

24 The PAO cost analysis applied a $117.00/SF ($173.51/SF after multipliers) (Building 8) base cost for this low quality, class C, heavy industrial facility. They applied a 43-year effective age, and it has a 43-year actual age. The PAO used a 68% depreciation factor on the building improvements. The PAO also applied a 10% functional / external obsolescence factor (total about 78%). The PAO stated that the facility is "filled" with heavy machinery (it looks like it was for batch processing, grinding, and/or preheating). The Special Magistrate generally concurs but a functional / economic obsolescence should be applied given that the presence of the defunct equipment makes it nearly impossible to use the structure without removing or refurbishing them and removing the processing equipment off the roof. The Special Magistrate has applied a 50% obsolescence factor after all other adjustments were applied. Building 8 has a $192,414 contributory value to Petition 255.

25 The PAO cost analysis applied a $113.00/SF ($275.44/SF after multipliers) (Building 9) base cost for this low quality, class S, heavy industrial facility. They applied a 43-year effective age, and it has a 43-year actual age. The PAO used a 76% depreciation factor on the building improvements. The PAO also applied a 3.5% functional / external obsolescence factor (total about 79.5%). The PAO stated that the facility is "filled" with heavy machinery (it looks like it was for batch processing, and/or preheating). The Special Magistrate generally concurs but a functional / economic obsolescence should be applied given that the presence of the defunct equipment makes it nearly impossible to use the structure without removing or refurbishing them and removing the processing equipment off the roof. The Special Magistrate has applied a 50% obsolescence factor after all other adjustments were applied. Building 9 has a $192,414 contributory value to Petition 255.

26 The PAO cost analysis applied a $13.92/SF ($15.52/SF after multipliers) (Building 10) base cost for this low/average quality, class S, light commercial commodity shelter facility. Overall, the PAO chosen category is reasonable. They applied a 43-year effective age, and it has a 43-year actual age. The PAO used a 80% depreciation factor on the building improvements. The PAO also applied a 0% functional / external obsolescence factor. Building 10 has a $68,329 contributory value to Petition 255.

27 The PAO cost analysis applied a $38.75/SF ($38.92/SF after multipliers) (Building 11) base cost for this average quality, class S, storage warehouse facility. They applied a 43-year effective age, and it has a 43-year actual age. The PAO used a 80% depreciation factor on the building improvements. The PAO also applied a 0% functional / external obsolescence factor. Building 11 has a $78,612 contributory value to Petition 255.

28 Buildings 12 and 13 are on Petitioned parcel 256. Land value alone supports the PAO just value for this parcel.

29 The PAO cost analysis applied a $36.50/SF ($46.38/SF) (Building 14) base cost for this average quality, class C, light commercial utility facility. They applied a 49-year effective age, and it has a 49-year actual age. The PAO used a 80% depreciation factor on the building improvements. The PAO also applied a 0% functional / external obsolescence factor. The Special Magistrate has applied a 50% obsolescence factor after all other adjustments were applied. Building 14 has a $9,843 contributory value to Petition 255.

30 The PAO cost analysis applied a $113.00/SF ($252.56/SF after multipliers) (Building 15) base cost for this low quality, class S, heavy industrial facility. They applied a 41-year effective age, and it has a 41-year actual age. The PAO used a 73% depreciation factor on the building improvements. The PAO also applied a 4% functional / external obsolescence factor (total about 77%). The PAO stated that the facility is “filled” with heavy machinery (it looks like it was for preheating or kilns). The Special Magistrate generally concurs but a functional / economic obsolescence should be applied given that the presence of the defunct equipment makes it nearly impossible to use the structure without removing or refurbishing them and removing the processing equipment off the roof. The Special Magistrate has applied a 50% obsolescence factor after all other adjustments were applied. Building 15 has a $307,710 contributory value to Petition 255.

31 The PAO cost analysis applied a $113.00/SF ($270.30/SF after multipliers) (Building 16) base cost for this low quality, class S, heavy industrial facility. They applied a 49-year effective age, and it has a 49-year actual age. The PAO used a 80% depreciation factor on the building improvements. The PAO also applied a 9% functional / external obsolescence factor (total about 89%). The PAO stated that the facility is “filled” with heavy machinery (it looks like it was for preheating or batch processing). The Special Magistrate generally concurs. Building 16 has a $247,375 contributory value to Petition 255.

32 The PAO cost analysis applied a $27.50/SF ($37.31/SF) (Building 17) base cost for this average quality, class S, light commercial utility facility. They applied a 43-year effective age, and it has a 43-year actual age. The PAO used a 80% depreciation factor on the building improvements. The PAO also applied a 0% functional / external obsolescence factor. The Special Magistrate has applied a 50% obsolescence factor after all other adjustments were applied. Building 17 has a $3,397 contributory value to Petition 255.

33 The PAO cost analysis applied a $36.50/SF ($58.40/SF) (Building 18) base cost for this average quality, class C, light commercial utility facility. They applied a 49-year effective age, and it has a 49-year actual age. The PAO used a 80% depreciation factor on the building improvements. The PAO also applied a 0% functional / external obsolescence factor. Building 18 has a $18,474 contributory value to Petition 255.

34 The PAO cost analysis applied a $36.50/SF ($58.40/SF) (Building 19) base cost for this average quality, class C, light commercial utility facility. They applied a 49-year effective age, and it has a 49-year actual age. The PAO used a 80% depreciation factor on the building improvements. The PAO also applied a 0% functional / external obsolescence factor. Building 19 has a $18,474 contributory value to Petition 255.

35 The PAO cost analysis applied a $36.50/SF ($48.93/SF) (Building 20) base cost for this average quality, class C, light commercial utility facility. They applied a 49-year effective age, and it has a 49-year actual age. The PAO used a 80% depreciation factor on the building improvements. The PAO also applied a 0% functional / external obsolescence factor. The Special Magistrate has applied a 50% obsolescence factor after all other adjustments were applied. Building 20 has a $2,814 contributory value to Petition 255.

36 The PAO cost analysis applied a $27.50/SF ($37.32/SF) (Building 21) base cost for this average quality, class S, light commercial utility facility. They applied a 49-year effective age, and it has a 49-year actual age. The PAO used a 80% depreciation factor on the building improvements. The PAO also applied a 0% functional / external obsolescence factor. The Special Magistrate has applied a 50% obsolescence factor after all other adjustments were applied. Building 21 has a $4,265 contributory value to Petition 255.

37 The PAO cost analysis applied a $113.00/SF ($261.35/SF after multipliers) (Building 22) base cost for this low quality, class S, heavy industrial facility. They applied a 49-year effective age, and it has a 49-year actual age. The PAO used a 80% depreciation factor on the building improvements. The PAO also applied a 0% functional / external obsolescence factor. The PAO stated that the facility is “filled” with heavy machinery (it looks like it was for batch processing or grinding). The Special Magistrate generally concurs but a functional / economic obsolescence should be applied given that the presence of the defunct equipment makes it nearly impossible to use the structure without removing or refurbishing them and removing the processing equipment off the roof. The Special Magistrate has applied a 50% obsolescence factor after all other adjustments were applied. Building 22 has a $373,986 contributory value to Petition 255.

38 The PAO cost analysis applied a $79.50/SF ($81.54/SF after multipliers) (Building 23) base cost for this good quality, class S, storage warehouse facility. They applied a 49-year effective age, and it has a 49-year actual age. The PAO used a 80% depreciation factor on the building improvements. The PAO also applied a 0% functional / external obsolescence factor. The Special Magistrate applied a lower 50% depreciation on this facility as it has been well maintained. Building 23 has a $495,042 contributory value to Petition 255.

39 The PAO cost analysis applied a $68/SF ($87.02/SF after multipliers) (Building 24) base cost for this good quality, class S, storage warehouse facility. They applied a 49-year effective age, and it has a 49-year actual age. The PAO used a 80% depreciation factor on the building improvements. The PAO also applied a 0% functional / external obsolescence factor. Building 24 has a $173,597 contributory value to Petition 255.

40 The PAO cost analysis applied a $43/SF ($52.77/SF after multipliers) (Building 25) base cost for this low quality, class S, storage warehouse facility. They applied a 49-year effective age, and it has a 49-year actual age. The PAO used a 80% depreciation factor on the building improvements. The PAO also applied a 0% functional / external obsolescence factor. Building 25 has a $39,987 contributory value to Petition 255.

41 The PAO cost analysis applied a $36.50/SF ($47.84/SF) (Building 26) base cost for this average quality, class C, light commercial utility facility. They applied a 49-year effective age, and it has a 49-year actual age. The PAO used a 80% depreciation factor on the building improvements. The PAO also applied a 0% functional / external obsolescence factor. Building 26 has a $12,228 contributory value to Petition 255.

42 The PAO cost analysis applied a $13.92/SF ($15.41/SF after multipliers) (Building 27) base cost for this low/average quality, class S, light commercial commodity shelter facility. Overall, the PAO chosen category is reasonable. They applied a 43-year effective age, and it has a 43-year actual age. The PAO used a 80% depreciation factor on the building improvements. The PAO also applied a 0% functional / external obsolescence factor. Building 27 has a $76,039 contributory value to Petition 255.

43 The PAO cost analysis applied a $27.50/SF ($37.01/SF) (Building 28) base cost for this average quality, class S, light commercial utility facility. They applied a 41-year effective age, and it has a 41-year actual age. The PAO used a 80% depreciation factor on the building improvements. The PAO also applied a 0% functional / external obsolescence factor. The special Magistrate has used a lower 50% depreciation factor on this facility. Building 28 has a $11,742 contributory value to Petition 255.

44 The PAO cost analysis applied a $38.75/SF ($47.68/SF after multipliers) (Building 29) base cost for this low quality, class S, storage warehouse facility. They applied a 43-year effective age, and it has a 43-year actual age. The PAO used a 80% depreciation factor on the building improvements. The PAO also applied a 0% functional / external obsolescence factor. The Special Magistrate applied a lower 60% depreciation on this facility as it has been well maintained. Building 29 has a $153,724 contributory value to Petition 255.

45 The PAO cost analysis applied a $41.75/SF ($48.10/SF after multipliers) (Building 30) base cost for this low quality, class S, office shell facility. They applied a 41-year effective age, and it has a 41-year actual age. The PAO used a 80% depreciation factor on the building improvements. The PAO also applied a 0% functional / external obsolescence factor. The Special Magistrate applied a lower 60% depreciation on this facility as it has been well maintained. Building 30 has a $23,958 contributory value to Petition 255.

46 The PAO cost analysis applied a $38.75/SF ($52.71/SF after multipliers) (Building 31) base cost for this low quality, class S, storage warehouse facility. They applied a 41-year effective age, and it has a 41-year actual age. The PAO used a 80% depreciation factor on the building improvements. The PAO also applied a 0% functional / external obsolescence factor. The Special Magistrate applied a lower 70% depreciation on this facility as it has been well maintained. Building 31 has a $22,635 contributory value to Petition 255.

47 The PAO cost analysis applied a $94.50/SF ($149.34/SF after multipliers) (Building 32) base cost for this good quality, class S, service garage facility. They applied a 43-year effective age, and it has a 43-year actual age. The PAO used a 80% depreciation factor on the building improvements. The PAO also applied a 0% functional / external obsolescence factor. The Special Magistrate applied a lower 70% depreciation on this facility as it has been well maintained. Building 32 has a $320,611 contributory value to Petition 255. (the PAO did seem to have an error on their cost page regarding depreciation)

48 Buildings 33 and 34 are on Petitioned parcel 256. Land value alone supports the PAO just value for this parcel.

49 Petition 255 includes 11 silos and Petition 256 includes 4 silos. The usage of a specific silo, the tonnage capacity, and the dimensions were not made available. The PAO converted the silo's to "bushels" of capacity but there is no worksheet to support how they calculated this amount, from which the accuracy of their estimate can be determined. The PAO placed 27% of their value conclusion on the silos for Petition 255.

50 The PAO analysis for silos excluded the 5% upward factor for single towers (1 is a single tower), and 5% upward for heavy industrial uses, that would apply to all of them. The Special Magistrate is skeptical of the PAO estimated "bushel capacity" for the silos. The PAO notes 3 silos averaging over 200,000 bushels (that would take a 130-foot silo with a 50-foot diameter), and 4 more are noted to be between 135,000 and 150,000 bushels (that would take a 135-foot and 40-foot diameter silo). While it is hard to tell the exact sizes of the silos from the pictures, they do not appear to be that large. As a check of reasonableness, the Special Magistrate has estimated the largest 9 silos to be approximately 100 foot tall with 40-foot diameter (on average; 100,000 bushels), and our estimate of value here is based on that. This equates to an average silo cost of $9.534/bushel for a concrete annex silo ($9.08 x 1.05) or $953,400 x 9 = $8,580,600. Plus, the 2 smaller silos (the PAO capacity figures appear reasonable) ($399,139 x 2) totals $9,378,878. The PAO added 5% in soft and indirect costs and 10% for entrepreneurial profit (reasonable) equates to $10,832,604 RCN. The PAO applied a conservative 80% depreciation (they are 49 years old, on average, individual ages not provided), as well as an additional 8.67% obsolescence (totaling about 89% depreciation). There are reasons why silos located a few miles away from a plant can and might still be utilized (the South Plant is about 3 miles away). There is every reason to think that these silos could in fact be rehabilitated and utilized for material storage. The Special Magistrate has estimated a 70% depreciation factor for the silos, and then another 15% depreciation taken from that figure for functional & economic obsolescence ($10,832,604 x 30% good, x 85% good = $2,762,314).

51 For Petition 255, the total land ($2640,000) and improvement value (excluding the silos) totals $7,444,328 before COS. Including the Special Magistrate recalculation of the silos ($2,762,314), this totals $10,206,642. A subject specific and appropriate COS factor of 6% was applied and the just value (including the silos) is $9,594,243 and this (marginally) credibly and reliably supports that the subject is over assessed. This is in large part due to the buildings improvements the PAO moved to Petitioned parcel 256 for the Before Board Action value conclusions.

52 The Petitioner performed a sales and cost approach and concluded to $9,068,000 for both parcels combined. However, the Petitioner documentation was not supplied and the Petitioner only discussed it verbally. As presented, the Petitioner cost approach is inconclusive.

53 The PAO considers cost of sales in their reconciliation process. Proper consideration of the 1st and 8th criteria for the subject property would be approximately 3-8% (cost of sales adjustment; estimated to be brokerage cost of 2-3%, personal property 0-1%, and financing costs of 0-1%, properly considered for the subject). The Special Magistrate will consider this when weighting the appropriateness of each parties' conclusions and the assessment level. Intangible value of approximately 1-3% is appropriate for the subject property (user specific improvements and assembled workforce primarily).

54 The DOR utilize 15% cost of sales in their oversight function for all property in aggregate. The Magistrate has considered the specific subject property in relation to cost of sales factors as follows (certain scale and property types will vary significantly if cost of sales is to be performed according to statute).

55 Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., requires proper consideration of the "net proceeds of sale," regardless of whether an actual sale of the property has occurred. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001). However, the statute does not require the property appraiser to select the value generated by the application of Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., and apply it in a blanket fashion to all assessments. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001).

56 All property is to be assessed at 100% of just value Walter v. Schuler 176 So.2d 81 (Fla 1965). The terms "just value" "fair market value' and "full cash value" are legally synonymous. Id.

57 The 1st and 8th criteria were introduced by the legislature after this ruling, suggesting that the legislature wishes real estate to be taxed net of typical sales costs. This implies that "just value" is in fact equal to "market value net of typical sales costs". The Special Magistrate training material for the current year also consistently and strongly advises a deduction for 1st and 8th criteria.

58 The PAO testified to documentation that pertains to the DOR treatment of the eight criteria required under FS 193.011. The PAO testified to and has documented how each of the criteria was considered and addressed to the property at issue, as part of the development of the assessment. The PAO addressed the requirements of FS 193.011 as follows:

"Factors to consider in deriving just valuation*. – In arriving at just valuation as required under s. 4, Art. VII of the State Constitution, the property appraiser shall take into consideration the following factors:*

(1) The present cash value of the property, which is the amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arm's length;

The sale of similar properties is considered within the PAO CAMA system, as well as within their direct application of sales comparison analysis. An adjustment is made for cost of sales as noted under Criteria 8 in their CAMA analysis and in reconciliation as applicable.

(2) The highest and best use…,(shortened)
Land use and building codes were considered along with the character of any existing site improvements, as noted on the submitted subject property data. Comparable data was chosen based on this information.

(3) The location of said property;
The subject property is assigned a location code within the PAO database related to its specific location. Comparable data is chosen with as similar a location as is possible, while also considering the other relevant factors.

(4) The quantity or size of said property;
The size of building, site and site improvements are based on data contained with the PRC and all comparables are chosen with as similar size as possible, while also considering and weighing the other relevant factors.

(5) The cost of said property and the present replacement value of any improvements thereon;
The PAO uses cost data within their CAMA cost/market hybrid model. When applicable, a pure replacement cost new and depreciation factors are also estimated and utilized within a cost approach to value.

(6) The condition of said property;
The PAO considers condition through periodic site inspections, actual age, and information submitted to them by property owners. A % good or % depreciation factor is noted in their subject documentation and/or PRC card and utilized in the CAMA analysis.

(7) The income from said property; and
When applicable, the PAO prepares an income capitalization analysis based on market data contained in their files as well as general market statistics. Actual subject performance is also considered when that information is available.

(8) The net proceeds of the sale of the property, as received by the seller, after deduction of all of the usual and reasonable fees and costs of the sale, including the costs and expenses of financing, and allowance for unconventional or a typical terms of financing arrangements. When the net proceeds of the sale of any property are utilized, directly or indirectly, in the determination of just valuation of realty of the sold parcel or any other parcel under the provisions of this section, the property appraiser, for the purposes of such determination, shall exclude any portion of such net proceeds attributable to payments for household furnishings or other items of personal property."

The PAO considers cost of sales within their CAMA analysis and in reconciliation when performing discrete sales, income or cost analysis. Sales prices of comparable properties are adjusted downward (reportedly) within CAMA, typically at near 15%.

ULTIMATE FINDINGS OF FACT

Florida Statute section 194.301 elaborates the standards of review that the Special Magistrate must apply to any petition to the Value Adjustment Board. The statute states as follows:

> Pursuant to Section 194.301, the Property Appraiser's assessment shall be entitled to a Presumption of Correctness if the Property Appraiser shows, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the Property Appraiser considered each of the eight criteria set forth in Section 193.011, the Property Appraiser applied the correct appraisal methodology based upon the characteristics of the property, and the Property Appraiser did not use appraisal practices which are different than the appraisal practices generally applied by the Property Appraiser to comparable property in the same county.

1 In accordance with Rule 12D-10.003(5)(a), it is concluded that the PAO DID establish a presumption of correctness by properly considering the eight criteria described in FS 193.011. Further, it is concluded that the methodology used by the PAO IS appropriate and DOES comply with professionally accepted appraisal practices for the subject property type. The Petitioner DID NOT overcome the presumption of correctness.

2 The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment was based on an arbitrary appraisal practice different from like property in the same county.

3 The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment is excessive. Thus, the assessed value DOES NOT exceed 100% of the fair market value of the property.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence. See Rule 12D-9.025(1), Florida Administrative Code (FAC). Generally, “relevant evidence” is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. This description means the evidence meets or exceeds the minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. See Rule 12D-9.025(2)(b) FAC.

The Special Magistrate reviewed all evidence presented by all parties. In accordance with DOR guidelines, the Special Magistrate determined that the evidence and testimony was relevant and credible to the valuation at hand. Thus, the evidence as presented was admitted for consideration in relation to the appropriateness of the subject assessment.

The Special Magistrate determined that the testimonial and documentary evidence (combined) meet the test of “relevancy and credibility” and WAS sufficient to reach the “preponderance of the evidence” standard of proof required by Rule 12D-9.027(6) FAC. The Special Magistrate also determined that there IS competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with the criteria of FS 193.011 and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish the assessment.

The Special Magistrate finds that the Petitioner HAS NOT satisfied the "preponderance of the evidence" standard under the facts as testified to that the appraiser's assessment is in excess of just value. After weighting all of the documentary and testimonial evidence it is concluded that the assessment IS reasonable and within market parameters.

RECOMMENDATION

It is recommended by the Special Magistrate that the relief applied for in this petition be denied.

_____
Special Magistrate
Steven L. Nystrom, MAI

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

HERNANDO County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-225	Parcel ID 01266944
Petitioner name TARGET CORPORATION The petitioner is: ☑ taxpayer of record ☐ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain: _____	Property address 4401 Commercial Way, Spring Hill FL

Decision Summary ☑ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0.00	0.00	0.00
4. Taxable value,* required	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact

See attached.

Conclusions of Law

See attached.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

	Steven Nystrom	02/18/2026
Signature, special magistrate	Print name	Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

PETITION NO. 25-258

RECOMMENDATION OF SPECIAL MAGISTRATE
VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
HERNANDO COUNTY, FLORIDA

IN RE: THE PETITION OF: EXEMPT FROM PUBLIC RECORD
PARCEL KEY NO: 00135936

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

1 The Petitioner, EXEMPT FROM PUBLIC RECORD, did appear before the Special Magistrate to give testimony. The Property Appraiser was represented by DOUG MACK and BRANDON JIMENEZ. All parties present were put under sworn oath.

2 The Property Appraiser shows a just value of $658,242 ($129/SF heated, $102/SF adjusted), an assessed or capped value of $586,729, and a taxable value of $536,007.

3 The Petitioner estimated the just value to be $250,000.

4 Subject Property Type: The subject is a 5,086 heated base SF (6,471 SF adjusted) single family residence. It was constructed in 1950. The parcel is located at 703 Stockton St., Brooksville FL.

5 The PAO evidence consists of verbal testimony, correspondence, PRC, summary pages, CAMA cost legend, sales map, a statistical sales analysis report, PRC legend, and verbal testimony.

6 The Petitioners' evidence consists of a petition, hearing notice, correspondence, written planned statements, legal support, prehearing statement, affidavit, property condition evidence, environmental testing, contractor data, cost to cure estimates, sketch performed by the Petitioner, GLA standard data, procedural history, summary data, closing statement, and verbal testimony.

7 The PAO post marketed their data submittal to the Petitioner January 14. To be delivered timely, the Petitioner would have to receive the data on the following day, January 15. The Petitioner stated that they did not receive the information until January 20, which would be late supplied. The Petitioner requested that the PAO data be given "reduced weight" due to its late delivery. The Special Magistrate considers that to be inappropriate. The remedy for late submittal would be a rescheduling of the hearing if the "a party" had insufficient time to review, and if necessary, confirm, the evidence supplied before the hearing. The Special Magistrate considers post marked 3 days in advance of the due date, via USPS, adequate time for the evidence to be considered timely submitted (if digital submittal is not requested/preferred). The VAB attorney was previously consulted prior to hearing, by the clerk's office, and in her opinion, 1 day for postage was sufficient. The Special Magistrate judges that giving "reduced weight" to the evidence would be both inappropriate and unlawful. The Special Magistrate noted that the Petitioner could now proceed with the hearing or could request that the evidence be considered inadmissible (and the Special Magistrate would rule on that, if that was her choice). If considered inadmissible, a rescheduled date for her to have the legally appropriate time to review the evidence if she wished would be furnished (and the Special Magistrate would carefully and lawfully consider that request if she chose to do so). She chose to proceed with the hearing at this time and waived any request for additional time or inadmissibility of the PAO evidence. Full and appropriate weight will be given to all submitted data.

8 In Hernando County, if the Petitioner is not present at the hearing, then the Petitioner must supply the evidence timely to the PAO and supply a copy of such evidence to the Clerk of Court also. If the Petitioner is present at the hearing, then they must just supply the information in a timely manner to the PAO for a proper evidence exchange. Per testimony, the evidence exchange complied with statutory time-frame requirements. No objections were made by any party present as it relates to data submittal noted above (unless specifically noted). All the evidence noted above is considered admissible (unless specifically noted as inadmissible).

9 Overall, there is sufficient, relevant, and credible information available, from which a reliable estimate of just, assessed, and taxable value can be estimated.

BASIC AND UNDERLYING FINDINGS OF FACT

10 The PAO relied primarily upon the sales comparison approach via a submitted sales analysis report. This implies a heavy weight on CAMA analysis at TRIM, as well as in this hearing. Consideration but no weight was placed on the cost approach, noted in the PRC. No detailed land or cost support was supplied. No weight was placed on the income approach to value. This is considered an appropriate mass appraisal methodology for this property type by the Special Magistrate.

11 The PAO performed their analysis utilizing adjusted SF in their sales analysis report. This methodology is generally considered less reliable than utilizing heated SF in the valuation industry but is often used in mass appraisal.

12 The PAO sales analysis report is a statistical study (a sampling of data used in the CAMA analysis). Market conditions were reported to increase by approximately 4% to 5% in 2024 for single-family homes on average.

13 The subject property transferred for $699,900 in June of 2023 (qualified).

14 The PAO supplied 3 improved sales on their statistical grid (one sold twice). PAO Sale 1 was the subject. PAO Sale 2 was an outlier or was too dissimilar to be reliable (and was not weighted). The subject property has numerous condition factors that will be discussed separately from this analysis (the PAO was unaware and did not adequately consider the subject condition). The Special Magistrate will adjust upwards 4%/year for improving market conditions, slight adjustments for land value, age/condition, size/scale, and downwards 7% for a subject specific and appropriate COS. After adjustment, these sales indicated a range of $101/SF to $110/SF adjusted before extra features (median $106/SF adjusted). The PAO sales, including extra features, indicate a credible and reliable just value for the subject of ($102/SF adjusted) $700,332 “if the property condition was average”. Further Petitioner testimony will describe, the condition is not average. The Special Magistrate will then make a concluding value paragraph.

15 The Petitioner stated that the PAO noted the subject interior walls to be drywall. The Petitioner stated that they were stucco.

16 The Petitioner stated that the PAO notes a fireplace in the home, but no fireplace exists currently.

17 The Petitioner felt that SF categories were incorrect, including the below grade space. She stated that the home is built into a hill with a crawlspace that floods. She stated that the PAO consider all of the SF to be above grade.

18 The Petitioner believed that the porches are “incorrectly measured”.

19 The Petitioner stated that her home is impacted by “mold” which reduces value.

20 The Petitioner stated that the assessment was unlawful (did not follow FS) because the PAO did not perform a complete interior inspection to identify all value affecting factors. The Special Magistrate disagrees. The PAO performing mass appraisal for ad valorem taxation is not required (nor even legally allowed without homeowner permission), nor has either the time or realistic monetary budget to perform annual interior inspections of all or even a substantially large percentage of homes. This is not required of mass valuation. In this hearing, the Petitioner’s expectation of the PAO goes far beyond what even a fee appraiser would typically do in a standard fee appraisal. Appropriate mass valuation standards are different (generally lower) than that of an appropriate fee appraisal, where an inspection is typically expected and possibly required. A VAB hearing is a remedy that a taxpayer can utilize if mass appraisal is not working well for a specific property.

21 The Petitioner supplied legal Nikolits vs. Haney & Gannon May 2017 and stated this this was “controlling”. This District Court of Appeals of the State of Florida Fourth District ruling predominantly addressed the PAO incorrectly changing PAST YEARS assessment caps after a VAB ruling in later years. This case discussed when a PAO can and when they cannot legally change a past assessment amount due to specific types of error corrections. This case is not directly relevant to this VAB hearing (the PAO is not changing a past assessment cap). The Petitioner, in closing, requested/implied that the VAB change not only this year’s assessment but also the prior year’s assessment. The VAB and the Special Magistrate do not have the authority to change a past year’s assessment (nor was there sufficient data presented at hearing for past years). There are other legal avenues the Petitioner can follow to address past year’s assessment. The Petitioner seems to apply this ruling, based on the case’s PAO, in a different county, and in that case the PAO changed caps from YEARS PAST, and the court reversed this. As it relates to this hearing, the PAO cannot increase a valuation based on judgement between TRIM and the VAB hearing (this could be considered punitive and the PAO has no authority to impose penalties). The PAO did not increase value between TRIM and VAB hearing for any reason, judgement or factual physical error to be corrected. There was no change noted at this hearing. The Special Magistrate is aware that he has the duty and authority to make a value recommendation to the VAB that is different than the PAO just value conclusion.

22 The PAO relied upon the subject sale, as well as two other improved sales. The Petitioner felt that the PAO reliance upon the subject sale was inappropriate. The subject sale is one piece of evidence. The Special Magistrate notes that it is appropriate for any appraiser to properly weight all available evidence, including the subject sale, and they did consider and weight two additional transactions. The Petitioner did not supply sales data.

23 The Petitioner stated that the PAO did not use the correct area measurements. The Petitioner supplied (the Petitioner performed this drawing) plans in their documentation. At hearing, the Special Magistrate stated that I was leaning on the Petitioner area measurements, because she did this kind of work professionally. However, upon review of the Petitioner's CAD(?) drawing, the Special Magistrate notes that the Petitioner (IMO) incorrectly considered a fully enclosed & walled area (where the stairs are) as EPF (enclosed porch finished), and some mechanical room(s) as if they were not base area (and probably should be considered base area). These differences address the majority of the potential discrepancy. The Special Magistrate considers the PAO area estimates to be more accurate and generally more consistent with how all other property in the county is measured for ad valorem taxation in this county. The Petitioner analysis, primarily regarding how she calculated the walled staircase area, is not considered as accurate as the PAO data. The PAO area measurements will be utilized herein.

24 The Petitioner purchase and inspections did not uncover the mold and water intrusion problems at the subject site. The Petitioner has already paid for $33,935 for crawl space encapsulation, drains, humidifiers, and sump pumps, $28,000 to replace the mold contaminated AC units, and duct work, and $53,470 for a roof replacement. As of the lien date, these improvements and mitigation has already been accomplished. The Special Magistrate notes that there would be a negative impact / stigma for possible mold issues, but this is not likely large given the extensive repairs already accomplished, as well as the other possible remaining work to be considered in this value recommendations. The Petitioner notes a large stigma factor but does not support it. The New AC units increase the value as of the lien date (they are new now and were not new before). Similarly, there is a new and superior quality roof now as well (it was not new when the home was purchased, it showed repairs and damage). The total listed here is $115,405 spent on improvements / mitigation to the home after purchase. She stated that there is an additional $62,268 in cost to cure remaining (total $177,673 including the other times noted in this paragraph). These other items have not yet been identified beyond a $5,000 beam needed to minimize potential settlement.

25 The Petitioner did not itemize or verbally defend what these additional $62,268 in cost to cure items are, and if they were or were not latent and hidden defects when they purchased the property. It is possible that these are improvements in value (upon completion). Neither the verbal testimony nor documentation clearly identified these potential factors.

26 The Petitioner stated that they were aware of over $20,000 in electrical repairs needed at purchase. These repairs were accounted for in her purchase price and these improvements were made prior to the lien date.

27 The Petitioner considers a 20% to 30% negative mold/water intrusion stigma factor to be appropriate to value. No support for this contention was supplied and a great deal of mitigation has already been accomplished.

28 The Petitioner noted that she has a $5,000 quote for a structural beam to be installed to limit settling. There was a $13,551 quote for foundation repair, and it is unknown if this was completed yet, or if the Petitioner $5,000 figure is another quote for similar but lesser work. This is not yet complete.

29 The Petitioner stated that a repair restores value, it does not create value. The Special Magistrate considers this generally incorrect. As an example, upgrading a kitchen (if done well) can often create more value than cost. The value of a home with a bad and leaking roof is increased when the roof is replaced (it was impaired before, value was lower, and it is not impaired after, value is higher after the repair). Buyers and sellers both consider these factors.

30 The PAO was not aware that some of the building area was below grade prior to hearing.

31 The PAO sales evidence (recalculated by the Special Magistrate) best supports a just value of $700,332 if the property were in average condition. The Petitioner has supplied a great deal of information regarding condition, impairments, and renovations. The Special Magistrate will make adjustments based on these noted factors. The subject may (and may not) still have some mold/water intrusion problems that could cause ongoing costs and might make a future sale more difficult. This negative factor has been estimated to be 5% ($35,017). The Petitioner has installed new HVAC units and an upward adjustment of $15,000 is appropriate as of the lien date (the subject on the lien date has new AC's, superior to the general market). The subject has a new metal roof, superior to the general market on average (upwards $25,000). The Petitioner has updated the electrical system and the initial purchase price was based on the knowledge of extensive electrical problems (upwards $15,000, with the understanding that the subject sale is the most reliable data available). It should be noted that these adjustments are less than the actual cost incurred. This is by design because (with the exception of the electrical) it is based on the difference with what is typical or average and the subject on the lien date that is the key adjustment point, and not total cost. Lastly, the Petitioner noted that she had additional costs remaining but did not clearly identify them beyond some settlement costs to be cured. An adjustment of $25,000 downward will be applied for this factor, even though the Petitioner did not supply sufficient documentation, and this can account for some SF discrepancies as well. The evidence at hearing (marginally) credibly and reliably supports a just value of $ ($700,332 - $35,017 stigma + $15,000 HVAC + $25,000 roof + $15,000 electrical - $25,000 remaining work/SF = $695,315) and that the subject is not over assessed.

32 The PAO considered cost of sales in their reconciliation process. Proper consideration of the 1st and 8th criteria for the subject property would be approximately 6-9% (cost of sales adjustment; estimated to be brokerage cost of 4-6%, personal property 1%, and financing costs of 1-2%, properly considered for the subject). The Special Magistrate will consider this when weighting the appropriateness of each parties' conclusions and the assessment level. Intangible value of approximately 0% is appropriate for the subject property (goodwill, assembled workforce, franchise, etc.).

33 The DOR utilize 15% cost of sales in their oversight function for all property in aggregate. The Magistrate has considered the specific subject property in relation to cost of sales factors as follows (certain scale and property types will vary significantly if cost of sales is to be performed according to statute).

34 Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., requires proper consideration of the "net proceeds of sale," regardless of whether an actual sale of the property has occurred. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001). However, the statute does not require the property appraiser to select the value generated by the application of Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., and apply it in a blanket fashion to all assessments. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001).

35 All property is to be assessed at 100% of just value Walter v. Schuler 176 So.2d 81 (Fla 1965). The terms "just value" "fair market value' and "full cash value" are legally synonymous. Id.

36 The 1st and 8th criteria were introduced by the legislature after this ruling, suggesting that the legislature wishes real estate to be taxed net of typical sales costs. This implies that "just value" is in fact equal to "market value net of typical sales costs". The Special Magistrate training material for the current year also consistently and strongly advises a deduction for 1st and 8th criteria.

37 The PAO testified to documentation that pertains to the DOR treatment of the eight criteria required under FS 193.011. The PAO testified to and has documented how each of the criteria was considered and addressed to the property at issue, as part of the development of the assessment. The PAO addressed the requirements of FS 193.011 as follows:

"Factors to consider in deriving just valuation. – In arriving at just valuation as required under s. 4, Art. VII of the State Constitution, the property appraiser shall take into consideration the following factors:*

(1) The present cash value of the property, which is the amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arm's length;
The sale of similar properties is considered within the PAO CAMA system, as well as within their direct application of sales comparison analysis. An adjustment is made for cost of sales as noted under Criteria 8 in their CAMA analysis and in reconciliation as applicable.

(2) The highest and best use…,(shortened)
Land use and building codes were considered along with the character of any existing site improvements, as noted on the submitted subject property data. Comparable data was chosen based on this information.

(3) The location of said property;
The subject property is assigned a location code within the PAO database related to its specific location. Comparable data is chosen with as similar a location as is possible, while also considering the other relevant factors.

(4) The quantity or size of said property;
The size of building, site and site improvements are based on data contained with the PRC and all comparables are chosen with as similar size as possible, while also considering and weighing the other relevant factors.

(5) The cost of said property and the present replacement value of any improvements thereon;
The PAO uses cost data within their CAMA cost/market hybrid model. When applicable, a pure replacement cost new and depreciation factors are also estimated and utilized within a cost approach to value.

(6) The condition of said property;
The PAO considers condition through periodic site inspections, actual age, and information submitted to them by property owners. A % good or % depreciation factor is noted in their subject documentation and/or PRC card and utilized in the CAMA analysis.

(7) The income from said property; and
When applicable, the PAO prepares an income capitalization analysis based on market data contained in their files as well as general market statistics. Actual subject performance is also considered when that information is available.

(8) The net proceeds of the sale of the property, as received by the seller, after deduction of all of the usual and reasonable fees and costs of the sale, including the costs and expenses of financing, and allowance for unconventional or a typical terms of financing arrangements. When the net proceeds of the sale of any property are utilized, directly or indirectly, in the determination of just valuation of realty of the sold parcel or any other parcel under the provisions of this section, the property appraiser, for the purposes of such determination, shall exclude any portion of such net proceeds attributable to payments for household furnishings or other items of personal property."

The PAO considers cost of sales within their CAMA analysis and in reconciliation when performing discrete sales, income or cost analysis. Sales prices of comparable properties are adjusted downward (reportedly) within CAMA, typically at near 15%.

ULTIMATE FINDINGS OF FACT

Florida Statute section 194.301 elaborates the standards of review that the Special Magistrate must apply to any petition to the Value Adjustment Board. The statute states as follows:

> Pursuant to Section 194.301, the Property Appraiser's assessment shall be entitled to a Presumption of Correctness if the Property Appraiser shows, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the Property Appraiser considered each of the eight criteria set forth in Section 193.011, the Property Appraiser applied the correct appraisal methodology based upon the characteristics of the property, and the Property Appraiser did not use appraisal practices which are different than the appraisal practices generally applied by the Property Appraiser to comparable property in the same county.

1 In accordance with Rule 12D-10.003(5)(a), it is concluded that the PAO DID NOT establish a presumption of correctness by properly considering the eight criteria described in FS 193.011. Specifically, Criteria 6 (condition) was not properly considered in that there were important factors (mold primarily) that they were not aware of. The Petitioner also noted weaknesses in the dataset due to the property being unusual as well as other factors that are very difficult to value via mass appraisal at the subject property. Further, it is concluded that the methodology used by the PAO IS NOT appropriate and DOES NOT comply with professionally accepted appraisal practices for the subject property type.

2 The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment was based on an arbitrary appraisal practice different from like property in the same county.

3 The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment is excessive. Thus, the assessed value DOES NOT exceed 100% of the fair market value of the property.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence. See Rule 12D-9.025(1), Florida Administrative Code (FAC). Generally, “relevant evidence” is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. This description means the evidence meets or exceeds the minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. See Rule 12D-9.025(2)(b) FAC.

The Special Magistrate reviewed all evidence presented by all parties. In accordance with DOR guidelines, the Special Magistrate determined that the evidence and testimony was relevant and credible to the valuation at hand. Thus, the evidence as presented was admitted for consideration in relation to the appropriateness of the subject assessment.

The Special Magistrate determined that the testimonial and documentary evidence (combined) meet the test of “relevancy and credibility” and WAS sufficient to reach the “preponderance of the evidence” standard of proof required by Rule 12D-9.027(6) FAC. The Special Magistrate also determined that there IS competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with the criteria of FS 193.011 and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish the assessment.

The Special Magistrate finds that the Petitioner HAS NOT satisfied the "preponderance of the evidence" standard under the facts as testified to that the appraiser's assessment is in excess of just value. After weighting all of the documentary and testimonial evidence it is concluded that the assessment IS reasonable and within market parameters.

RECOMMENDATION

It is recommended by the Special Magistrate that the relief applied for in this petition be denied.

_____
Special Magistrate
Steven L. Nystrom, MAI

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

HERNANDO County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-225	Parcel ID 01266944
Petitioner name TARGET CORPORATION The petitioner is: ☑ taxpayer of record ☐ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain: _____	Property address 4401 Commercial Way, Spring Hill FL

Decision Summary ☑ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0.00	0.00	0.00
4. Taxable value,* required	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact

See attached.

Conclusions of Law

See attached.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

	Steven Nystrom	02/18/2026
Signature, special magistrate	Print name	Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

HERNANDO County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-225	Parcel ID 01266944
Petitioner name TARGET CORPORATION The petitioner is: ☑ taxpayer of record ☐ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain: _____	Property address 4401 Commercial Way, Spring Hill FL

Decision Summary ☑ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0.00	0.00	0.00
4. Taxable value,* required	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00	5,359,827.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact

See attached.

Conclusions of Law

See attached.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

	Steven Nystrom	02/18/2026
Signature, special magistrate	Print name	Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
EXEMPTION, CLASSIFICATION, ASSESSMENT DIFFERENCE TRANSFER, CHANGE OF OWNERSHIP OR CONTROL, OR QUALIFYING IMPROVEMENT PETITION

DR-485XC
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002
F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition in HERNANDO ☑ County.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final. ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB.

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-263	Parcel ID R01 221 17 3360 0691 0040
Petitioner name SFR20252 BORROWER LLC The petitioner is: ☑ taxpayer of record ☐ representative ☐ other, explain: 193.1555	Property address 16094 FIELD LARK RD

Decision Summary ☑ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Value before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	Value after Board Action
1. Just value, required	248,325.00	248,325.00	248,325.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	248,325.00	248,325.00	248,325.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0.00	0.00	0.00
4. Taxable value,* required	248,325.00	248,325.00	248,325.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reason for Petition

☐ Homestead ☐ Widow/er ☐ Blind ☐ Totally and permanently disabled veteran
☐ Low-income senior ☐ Disabled ☐ Disabled veteran ☐ Use classification, specify _____
☐ Parent/grandparent assessment reduction ☐ Deployed military ☐ Use exemption, specify _____
☐ Transfer of homestead assessment difference ☐ Qualifying improvement
☐ Change of ownership or control ☑ Other, specify 193.1555

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact
THE PETITIONER DID NOT APPEAR AND DID NOT STATE GOOD CAUSE.

Conclusions of Law
THE RELIEF IS DENIED. THIS DECISION IS BEING ISSUE IN ORDER THAT ANY RIGHT THE PETITIONER MAY HAVE TO BRING AN ACTION IN THE CIRCUIT COURT IS NOT IMPAIRED.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate The finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	JOSEPH HAYNES DAVIS, ESQ. Print name	02/20/2026 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____ ☐ AM ☐ PM.
Address _____
If the line above is blank, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
EXEMPTION, CLASSIFICATION, ASSESSMENT DIFFERENCE TRANSFER, CHANGE OF OWNERSHIP OR CONTROL, OR QUALIFYING IMPROVEMENT PETITION

DR-485XC
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002
F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition in HERNANDO ☑ County.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final. ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB.

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-264	Parcel ID R22 222 18 3599 0000 4950
Petitioner name FYR SFR TRS LLC The petitioner is: ☑ taxpayer of record ☐ representative ☐ other, explain: 193.1555	Property address 9464 SOUTHERN CHARM CIR

Decision Summary ☑ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Value before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	Value after Board Action
1. Just value, required	239,365.00	239,365.00	239,365.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	239,365.00	239,365.00	239,365.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0.00	0.00	0.00
4. Taxable value,* required	239,365.00	239,365.00	239,365.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reason for Petition

☐ Homestead ☐ Widow/er ☐ Blind ☐ Totally and permanently disabled veteran
☐ Low-income senior ☐ Disabled ☐ Disabled veteran ☐ Use classification, specify _____
☐ Parent/grandparent assessment reduction ☐ Deployed military ☐ Use exemption, specify _____
☐ Transfer of homestead assessment difference ☐ Qualifying improvement
☐ Change of ownership or control ☑ Other, specify 193.1555

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact
THE PETITIONER DID NOT APPEAR AND DID NOT STATE GOOD CAUSE.

Conclusions of Law
THE RELIEF IS DENIED. THIS DECISION IS BEING ISSUE IN ORDER THAT ANY RIGHT THE PETITIONER MAY HAVE TO BRING AN ACTION IN THE CIRCUIT COURT IS NOT IMPAIRED.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate The finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	JOSEPH HAYNES DAVIS, ESQ. Print name	02/20/2026 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____ ☐ AM ☐ PM.
Address _____
If the line above is blank, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

HERNANDO County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-269	Parcel ID R32 323 17 5200 1280 0040
Petitioner name Alto Asset Company 1 LLC The petitioner is: ☐ taxpayer of record ☑ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	Property address 11248 Topaz St. Spring Hill

Decision Summary ☑ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	$255,100	$255,100	$255,100
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	$194,989	$194,989	$194,989
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0	0	0
4. Taxable value,* required	$194,989	$194,989	$194,989

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact

Please See Attached

Conclusions of Law

Please See Attached

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	Robert Sutte MAI, SRA Print name	2-26-26 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

Hernando Petition 2025-269

Findings of Fact:

This virtual hearing was conducted on November 6,2025. Doug Mack, Residential Supervisor and Brandon Jimenez, CFE represented the Hernando County Property Appraiser the Honorable Randy Mazourek. Ms. Stephanie Garcia with Ryan, LLC was the petitioner-owners representative. These witnesses were sworn to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth so help them God by Special Magistrate Robert Sutte, CRE,MAI,SRA.

This hearing included a total of 15 subject properties. They were all detached, site built single family residences at various locations in Hernando County.

For this hearing the property appraiser identified the subject parcel by tax identification number and provided the January 1, 2025 values. Information about the subject including location, building size, lot size, property features and highest and best use was provided.

The most meaningful and most appropriate measure of value for residential property like the subject is the sales comparison approach. It was relied upon by both sides. The cost and income approaches to value were not considered applicable and were not used.

Both the property appraiser and the petitioner presented tabular descriptions of the subject property and comparable sales. Exhibits included photographs of the subject property, the area-location and maps showing the subject and sale locations.

When possible, and most often, both the PAs and the PETs selected sales were in the subject neighborhood or adjoining areas. Most, if not all, of the selected sold properties were year 2024. The prices paid were comparatively considered. Applicable significant physical and locational differences were considered.

The property appraiser(PA) compared 3 comparable sale prices and just values to show that the subjects estimated just values were significantly to substantially less than market value in compliance with the law. The petitioner (PET)compared 3 to 6 sale prices and presented comparative adjustments to the sales prices to indicate a value for the subject. Also, a 15% line item deduction in price was made to compensate for owner selling expenses.

The purpose of the property appraisers appraisal is to estimate the market value of the subject property as of January 1, 2025.They are to demonstrate that their market value complies with Florida law and is not more than just value. This effort is to establishment of the presumption of correctness.

The purpose of the petitioners appraisal is to prove that their opinion of market value is correct and shows that the property appraisers just value is in excess of market value. If successful, it can be concluded that they have overcome the PAs presumption of correctness and are legally entitled to a reduction in value.

The special magistrates purpose is to examine all evidence presented and decide which testimony was significantly more reliable, complete, sufficient and acceptable. Simply stated, the magistrate believes that the greater weight of the evidence must be provided by the petitioner to overcome the property appraisers established presumption of correctness.

For this Hernando VAB analysis, an important magistrate focus is the range in total sale prices of the selected comparable sales. For example, one appraisal could include an examination of 3 unadjusted sale prices from a low of $123,000 and a high of $196,000 which indicates a range in price paid of $73,000. The other appraisal of the same property including consideration of 3 prices paid from $109,000 to $204,000. This larger-greater difference in value or price paid of $95,000 indicates that the selected sales, in this ladder example, are a significantly less reliable measure of market value. The appraisal ideal, is to compare sales of extremely similar sold properties to the subject to arrive at the most reliable estimated value.

If the property appraiser establishes a presumption of correctness and the petitioner does not overcome the presumption, the assessment stands. A decision,that relief is denied, however does mean that any rights the petitioner may have to bring action in circuit court are not impaired.

Brief descriptions of the appraisal process used by both parties are considered important. The Property Appraiser is required by Florida law to inspect each new tax parcel and reinspect same every five years. Their professional goal is to choose timely sales of very similar comparable properties that are located within the subject neighborhood. If there is not a sufficient number of similar sales there, they use their "In the field, on the job" experience and learned judgment to select similar sales in adjoining neighborhoods, or if necessary, in similar neighborhoods somewhat removed.

Next, the most similar sales are researched and verified to ensure that they are qualified and acceptable. An individual PA will personally compare the sales to the subject, and make value considerations for changes in market conditions, if applicable, location, and physical and functional property characteristics.

The Ryan, LLC valuation witnesses serve as real estate tax representatives to a wide variety of clients throughout the United States. Reportedly, for all single-family residential appraisals, they have a support group of about 400 employees who work in India. There are some US research employees also. These workers select the sales for value comparisons. Parameters for the selection process including dates of sale, distances from a subject property and physical characteristics are entered into computer programs to determine what sales should be used. Building size, date constructed, effective age, and other physical characteristic information which is obtained from the Florida Department of Revenue website is used for this purpose. Also, as noted earlier, a uniform reduction in sale price of 15% is made to compensate for sellers cost of sale.

A major reduction in the quality of estimated value is that no Ryan representative ever inspects a subject property or its location. The residential value of a location, the physical condition and functional features of the residence are not personally inspected and measured. Regarding property physical conditions, the petitioner assumes average condition for both the subject and the sold property.

For 269,the property appraiser noteds that this residence is located at 11248 Topaz St., Spring Hill. It was built in 1987 with 1428 square feet of finished living area. The selected three sales were constructed between 1987 and 1985 with 1954 to 2373 finished square feet. The three sales prices were from $309,000 to $352,912 which is a range of $46,000. The sale prices totaled $1,010,500 and the average price s totaled $336,833 This analysis indicates three things. First, the subjects just value of $255,100 is not more than market value. Second, the estimated just value is 24.3% below estimated market value which compensates for seller cost of sale, and the property appraiser has established the presumption of correctness.

.

For 269, the petitioner selected six sales which were constructed between 1981 and 2003 with 1276 to 1442 square feet of finished building area. The sale prices were between $190,000 to $335,000. After comparative adjustments, including a deduction of 15% for seller expenses, the indicated market values were from $175,000 to $277,000. The petitioners opinion of value was the mean or average of $238,610. It is noted that the range in value before reduction was $145,000 and the range after comparative adjustments was still substantial at $102,000. This indicates that the PET's sold homes were less reliable for use as a basis for their estimated value conclusion.

Based upon consideration of all information provided, it is the special magistrate's opinion that the petitioners sales comparison approach is significantly insufficient to overcome the presumption of correctness established by the Property Appraiser. This magistrate also concluded that insufficient evidence was presented by the petitioner to justify a reduction in value. The property appraisers estimated value was not proven to be incorrect.

Conclusions of Law:2025-269

In accordance with section 194.301 F.S., it was determined that there is competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with criteria of 193.011 and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish an appropriate assessment for the subject property. It is the professional opinion of the Special Magistrate, that the property appraiser's evidence was reliable and sufficient. The property appraiser proved by a preponderance of the evidence that their estimation of value does not exceed just value. Therefore, it is recommended that the property appraiser's value be upheld. This decision, that relief is denied, means that any right the petitioner may have to bring action in circuit court is not impaired.

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

HERNANDO County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-270	Parcel ID R 32 323 17 5200 1339 0030
Petitioner name Safari Two Asset Company LLC The petitioner is: ☐ taxpayer of record ☑ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	Property address 13336 Brewster Road Spring Hill

Decision Summary ☑ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	$313,582	$313,582	$313,582
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	$271,074	$271,074	$271,074
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0	0	0
4. Taxable value,* required	$271,074	$271,074	$271,074

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact

See Attached

Conclusions of Law

See Attached

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	Robert Sutte MAI, SRA Print name	2-26-26 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

Hernando Petition 2025-270

Findings of Fact:

This virtual hearing was conducted on November 6,2025. Doug Mack, Residential Supervisor and Brandon Jimenez, CFE represented the Hernando County Property Appraiser the Honorable Randy Mazourek. Ms. Stephanie Garcia with Ryan, LLC was the petitioner-owners representative. These witnesses were sworn to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth so help them God by Special Magistrate Robert Sutte, CRE,MAI,SRA.

This hearing included a total of 15 subject properties. They were all detached, site built single family residences at various locations in Hernando County.

For this hearing the property appraiser identified the subject parcel by tax identification number and provided the January 1, 2025 values. Information about the subject including location, building size, lot size, property features and highest and best use was provided.

The most meaningful and most appropriate measure of value for residential property like the subject is the sales comparison approach. It was relied upon by both sides. The cost and income approaches to value were not considered applicable and were not used.

Both the property appraiser and the petitioner presented tabular descriptions of the subject property and comparable sales. Exhibits included photographs of the subject property, the area-location and maps showing the subject and sale locations.

When possible, and most often, both the PAs and the PETs selected sales were in the subject neighborhood or adjoining areas. Most, if not all, of the selected sold properties were year 2024. The prices paid were comparatively considered. Applicable significant physical and locational differences were considered.

The property appraiser(PA) compared 3 comparable sale prices and just values to show that the subjects estimated just

values were significantly to substantially less than market value in compliance with the law. The petitioner (PET)compared 3 to 6 sale prices and presented comparative adjustments to the sales prices to indicate a value for the subject. Also, a 15% line item deduction in price was made to compensate for owner selling expenses.

The purpose of the property appraisers appraisal is to estimate the market value of the subject property as of January 1, 2025.They are to demonstrate that their market value complies with Florida law and is not more than just value. This effort is to establishment of the presumption of correctness.

The purpose of the petitioners appraisal is to prove that their opinion of market value is correct and shows that the property appraisers just value is in excess of market value. If successful, it can be concluded that they have overcome the PAs presumption of correctness and are legally entitled to a reduction in value.

The special magistrates purpose is to examine all evidence presented and decide which testimony was significantly more reliable, complete, sufficient and acceptable. Simply stated, the magistrate believes that the greater weight of the evidence must be provided by the petitioner to overcome the property appraisers established presumption of correctness.

For this Hernando VAB analysis, an important magistrate focus is the range in total sale prices of the selected comparable sales. For example, one appraisal could include an examination of 3 unadjusted sale prices from a low of $123,000 and a high of $196,000 which indicates a range in price paid of $73,000. The other appraisal of the same property including consideration of 3 prices paid from $109,000 to $204,000. This larger-greater difference in value or price paid of $95,000 indicates that the selected sales, in this ladder example, are a significantly less reliable measure of market value. The appraisal ideal, is to compare sales of extremely similar sold properties to the subject to arrive at the most reliable estimated value.

If the property appraiser establishes a presumption of correctness and the petitioner does not overcome the presumption, the assessment stands. A decision,that relief is denied, however does mean that any rights the petitioner may have to bring action in circuit court are not impaired.

Brief descriptions of the appraisal process used by both parties are considered important. The Property Appraiser is required by Florida law to inspect each new tax parcel and reinspect same every five years. Their professional goal is to choose timely sales of very similar comparable properties that are located within the subject neighborhood. If there is not a sufficient number of similar sales there, they use their "In the field, on the job" experience and learned judgment to select similar sales in adjoining neighborhoods, or if necessary, in similar neighborhoods somewhat removed.

Next, the most similar sales are researched and verified to ensure that they are qualified and acceptable. An individual PA will personally compare the sales to the subject, and make value considerations for changes in market conditions, if applicable, location, and physical and functional property characteristics.

The Ryan, LLC valuation witnesses serve as real estate tax representatives to a wide variety of clients throughout the United States. Reportedly, for all single-family residential appraisals, they have a support group of about 400 employees who work in India. There are some US research employees also. These workers select the sales for value comparisons. Parameters for the selection process including dates of sale, distances from a subject property and physical characteristics are entered into computer programs to determine what sales should be used. Building size, date constructed, effective age, and other physical characteristic information which is obtained from the Florida Department of Revenue website is used for this purpose. Also, as noted earlier, a uniform reduction in sale price of 15% is made to compensate for sellers cost of sale.

A major reduction in the quality of estimated value is that no Ryan representative ever inspects a subject property or its location. The residential value of a location, the physical condition and functional features of the residence are not personally inspected and measured. Regarding property physical conditions, the petitioner assumes average condition for both the subject and the sold property.

For 270,the property appraiser notes that this residence is located at 13336 Brewster Rd., Spring Hill. It was built in 2005 with 2212 square feet of finished living area. The selected three sales were constructed from 2002 to 2006 with 2433 to 2684 finished square feet. The three sales prices were from $330,000 to $407,500 which is a range of $77,500. The average price was $365,000. This analysis indicates two important things. First, the subjects just value of $313,582 is not more than market value which compensates for the sellers closing costs. Second, the property appraiser has established the presumption of correctness.

.

For 270, the petitioner selected six sales which were constructed from 2002 to 2007 with 1787 to 2612 square feet of finished building area. The sale prices were from $265,900 to $405,000 which is a difference of $139,100. After comparative adjustments, including a deduction of 15% for seller expenses, the indicated market values were from $264,515 to $292,000. The petitioners opinion of value was the sale price average of $277,578. It is noted that the range in sale price before comparative adjustments was $139,100. This indicates that the PET's sold homes were less reliable for use as a basis for their estimated value conclusion.

Based upon consideration of all information provided, it is the special magistrate's opinion that the petitioners sales comparison approach is significantly insufficient to overcome the presumption of correctness established by the Property Appraiser. This magistrate also concluded that insufficient evidence was presented by the petitioner to justify a reduction in value. The property appraisers estimated value was not proven to be incorrect.

Conclusions of Law:2025-270

In accordance with section 194.301 F.S., it was determined that there is competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with criteria of 193.011 and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish an appropriate assessment for the subject property. It is the professional opinion of the Special Magistrate, that the property appraiser's evidence was reliable and sufficient. The property appraiser proved by a preponderance of the evidence that their estimation of value does not exceed just value. Therefore, it is recommended that the property appraiser's value be upheld. This decision, that relief is denied, means that any right the petitioner may have to bring action in circuit court is not impaired.

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

HERNANDO County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-271	Parcel ID R 32 323 17 5200 1355 0090
Petitioner name BAF ASSETS 2 LLC The petitioner is: ☐ taxpayer of record ☑ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	Property address 13098 Hanley Dr. Spring Hill

Decision Summary ☑ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	$336,654	$336,654	$336,654
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	$265,735	$265,735	$265,735
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0	0	0
4. Taxable value,* required	$265,735	$265,735	$265,735

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact

Please See Attached

Conclusions of Law

Please See Attached

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	Robert Sutte MAI, SRA Print name	3-2-26 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

Hernando Petition 2025-271

Findings of Fact:

This virtual hearing was conducted on November 6,2025. Doug Mack, Residential Supervisor and Brandon Jimenez, CFE represented the Hernando County Property Appraiser the Honorable Randy Mazourek. Ms. Stephanie Garcia with Ryan, LLC was the petitioner-owners representative. These witnesses were sworn to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth so help them God by Special Magistrate Robert Sutte, CRE,MAI,SRA.

This hearing included a total of 15 subject properties. They were all detached, site built single family residences at various locations in Hernando County.

For this hearing the property appraiser identified the subject parcel by tax identification number and provided the January 1, 2025 values. Information about the subject including location, building size, lot size, property features and highest and best use was provided.

The most meaningful and most appropriate measure of value for residential property like the subject is the sales comparison approach. It was relied upon by both sides. The cost and income approaches to value were not considered applicable and were not used.

Both the property appraiser and the petitioner presented tabular descriptions of the subject property and comparable sales. Exhibits included photographs of the subject property, the area-location and maps showing the subject and sale locations.

When possible, and most often, both the PAs and the PETs selected sales were in the subject neighborhood or adjoining areas. Most, if not all, of the selected sold properties were year 2024. The prices paid were comparatively considered. Applicable significant physical and locational differences were considered.

The property appraiser(PA) compared 3 comparable sale prices and just values to show that the subjects estimated just

values were significantly to substantially less than market value in compliance with the law. The petitioner (PET)compared 3 to 6 sale prices and presented comparative adjustments to the sales prices to indicate a value for the subject. Also, a 15% line item deduction in price was made to compensate for owner selling expenses.

The purpose of the property appraisers appraisal is to estimate the market value of the subject property as of January 1, 2025.They are to demonstrate that their market value complies with Florida law and is not more than just value. This effort is to establishment of the presumption of correctness.

The purpose of the petitioners appraisal is to prove that their opinion of market value is correct and shows that the property appraisers just value is in excess of market value. If successful, it can be concluded that they have overcome the PAs presumption of correctness and are legally entitled to a reduction in value.

The special magistrates purpose is to examine all evidence presented and decide which testimony was significantly more reliable, complete, sufficient and acceptable. Simply stated, the magistrate believes that the greater weight of the evidence must be provided by the petitioner to overcome the property appraisers established presumption of correctness.

For this Hernando VAB analysis, an important magistrate focus is the range in total sale prices of the selected comparable sales. For example, one appraisal could include an examination of 3 unadjusted sale prices from a low of $123,000 and a high of $196,000 which indicates a range in price paid of $73,000. The other appraisal of the same property including consideration of 3 prices paid from $109,000 to $204,000. This larger-greater difference in value or price paid of $95,000 indicates that the selected sales, in this ladder example, are a significantly less reliable measure of market value. The appraisal ideal, is to compare sales of extremely similar sold properties to the subject to arrive at the most reliable estimated value.

If the property appraiser establishes a presumption of correctness and the petitioner does not overcome the presumption, the assessment stands. A decision,that relief is denied, however does mean that any rights the petitioner may have to bring action in circuit court are not impaired.

Brief descriptions of the appraisal process used by both parties are considered important. The Property Appraiser is required by Florida law to inspect each new tax parcel and reinspect same every five years. Their professional goal is to choose timely sales of very similar comparable properties that are located within the subject neighborhood. If there is not a sufficient number of similar sales there, they use their "In the field, on the job" experience and learned judgment to select similar sales in adjoining neighborhoods, or if necessary, in similar neighborhoods somewhat removed.

Next, the most similar sales are researched and verified to ensure that they are qualified and acceptable. An individual PA will personally compare the sales to the subject, and make value considerations for changes in market conditions, if applicable, location, and physical and functional property characteristics.

The Ryan, LLC valuation witnesses serve as real estate tax representatives to a wide variety of clients throughout the United States. Reportedly, for all single-family residential appraisals, they have a support group of about 400 employees who work in India. There are some US research employees also. These workers select the sales for value comparisons. Parameters for the selection process including dates of sale, distances from a subject property and physical characteristics are entered into computer programs to determine what sales should be used. Building size, date constructed, effective age, and other physical characteristic information which is obtained from the Florida Department of Revenue website is used for this purpose. Also, as noted earlier, a uniform reduction in sale price of 15% is made to compensate for sellers cost of sale.

A major reduction in the quality of estimated value is that no Ryan representative ever inspects a subject property or its location. The residential value of a location, the physical condition and functional features of the residence are not personally inspected and measured. Regarding property physical conditions, the petitioner assumes average condition for both the subject and the sold property.

For 271,the property appraiser notes that this residence is located at 13098 Hanley Dr., Spring Hill. It was built in 2005 with 2236 square feet of finished living area. The selected three sales were constructed from 2002 to 2004 with 2279 to 2510 finished square feet. The three sales prices were from $360,000 to $389,900 which is a range of $29,900. The average price was $363,333. This analysis indicates two important things. First, the subjects just value of $336,654 is not more than market value which compensates for the sellers closing costs. Second, the property appraiser has established the presumption of correctness.

.

For 271, the petitioner selected six sales which were constructed from 1988 to 2007 with 1944 to 2612 square feet of finished building area. The sale prices were from $298,500 to $405,000, which is a difference or range of $106,500. After comparative adjustments, including a deduction of 15% for seller expenses, the indicated market values were from $284,625 to $405,000 The difference of $120,375 is unacceptably greater than the unadjusted range. The petitioners opinion of value was the sale price average of $301,367. This indicates that the PET's sold homes were substantially less reliable for use as a basis for their estimated value.

Based upon consideration of all information provided, it is the special magistrate's opinion that the petitioners sales comparison approach is significantly insufficient to overcome the presumption of correctness established by the Property Appraiser. This magistrate also concluded that insufficient quality comparable evidence was presented by the petitioner to justify a reduction in value. The property appraisers estimated value was not proven to be incorrect.

Conclusions of Law:2025-271

In accordance with section 194.301 F.S., it was determined that there is competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with criteria of 193.011 and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish an appropriate assessment for the subject property. It is the professional opinion of the Special Magistrate, that the property appraiser's evidence was reliable and sufficient. The property appraiser proved by a preponderance of the evidence that their estimation of value does not exceed just value. Therefore, it is recommended that the property appraiser's value be upheld. This decision, that relief is denied, means that any right the petitioner may have to bring action in circuit court is not impaired.

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

HERNANDO County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-272	Parcel ID R 32 323 17 5210 1448 0160
Petitioner name BAF ASSETS 4 LLC The petitioner is: ☐ taxpayer of record ☑ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	Property address 3191 Deltona Blvd.. Spring Hill

Decision Summary ☑ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	$232,389	$232,389	$232,389
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	$190,083	$190,083	$190,083
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0	0	0
4. Taxable value,* required	$190,083	$190,083	$190,083

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact

Please See Attached

Conclusions of Law

Please See Attached

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	Robert Sutte MAI, SRA Print name	2-2-26 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

Hernando Petition 2025-272

Findings of Fact:

This virtual hearing was conducted on November 6,2025. Doug Mack, Residential Supervisor and Brandon Jimenez, CFE represented the Hernando County Property Appraiser the Honorable Randy Mazourek. Ms. Stephanie Garcia with Ryan, LLC was the petitioner-owners representative. These witnesses were sworn to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth so help them God by Special Magistrate Robert Sutte, CRE,MAI,SRA.

This hearing included a total of 15 subject properties. They were all detached, site built single family residences at various locations in Hernando County.

For this hearing the property appraiser identified the subject parcel by tax identification number and provided the January 1, 2025 values. Information about the subject including location, building size, lot size, property features and highest and best use was provided.

The most meaningful and most appropriate measure of value for residential property like the subject is the sales comparison approach. It was relied upon by both sides. The cost and income approaches to value were not considered applicable and were not used.

Both the property appraiser and the petitioner presented tabular descriptions of the subject property and comparable sales. Exhibits included photographs of the subject property, the area-location and maps showing the subject and sale locations.

When possible, and most often, both the PAs and the PETs selected sales were in the subject neighborhood or adjoining areas. Most, if not all, of the selected sold properties were year 2024. The prices paid were comparatively considered. Applicable significant physical and locational differences were considered.

The property appraiser(PA) compared 3 comparable sale prices and just values to show that the subjects estimated just

values were significantly to substantially less than market value in compliance with the law. The petitioner (PET)compared 3 to 6 sale prices and presented comparative adjustments to the sales prices to indicate a value for the subject. Also, a 15% line item deduction in price was made to compensate for owner selling expenses.

The purpose of the property appraisers appraisal is to estimate the market value of the subject property as of January 1, 2025.They are to demonstrate that their market value complies with Florida law and is not more than just value. This effort is to establishment of the presumption of correctness.

The purpose of the petitioners appraisal is to prove that their opinion of market value is correct and shows that the property appraisers just value is in excess of market value. If successful, it can be concluded that they have overcome the PAs presumption of correctness and are legally entitled to a reduction in value.

The special magistrates purpose is to examine all evidence presented and decide which testimony was significantly more reliable, complete, sufficient and acceptable. Simply stated, the magistrate believes that the greater weight of the evidence must be provided by the petitioner to overcome the property appraisers established presumption of correctness.

For this Hernando VAB analysis, an important magistrate focus is the range in total sale prices of the selected comparable sales. For example, one appraisal could include an examination of 3 unadjusted sale prices from a low of $123,000 and a high of $196,000 which indicates a range in price paid of $73,000. The other appraisal of the same property including consideration of 3 prices paid from $109,000 to $204,000. This larger-greater difference in value or price paid of $95,000 indicates that the selected sales, in this ladder example, are a significantly less reliable measure of market value. The appraisal ideal, is to compare sales of extremely similar sold properties to the subject to arrive at the most reliable estimated value.

If the property appraiser establishes a presumption of correctness and the petitioner does not overcome the presumption, the assessment stands. A decision,that relief is denied, however does mean that any rights the petitioner may have to bring action in circuit court are not impaired.

Brief descriptions of the appraisal process used by both parties are considered important. The Property Appraiser is required by Florida law to inspect each new tax parcel and reinspect same every five years. Their professional goal is to choose timely sales of very similar comparable properties that are located within the subject neighborhood. If there is not a sufficient number of similar sales there, they use their "In the field, on the job" experience and learned judgment to select similar sales in adjoining neighborhoods, or if necessary, in similar neighborhoods somewhat removed.

Next, the most similar sales are researched and verified to ensure that they are qualified and acceptable. An individual PA will personally compare the sales to the subject, and make value considerations for changes in market conditions, if applicable, location, and physical and functional property characteristics.

The Ryan, LLC valuation witnesses serve as real estate tax representatives to a wide variety of clients throughout the United States. Reportedly, for all single-family residential appraisals, they have a support group of about 400 employees who work in India. There are some US research employees also. These workers select the sales for value comparisons. Parameters for the selection process including dates of sale, distances from a subject property and physical characteristics are entered into computer programs to determine what sales should be used. Building size, date constructed, effective age, and other physical characteristic information which is obtained from the Florida Department of Revenue website is used for this purpose. Also, as noted earlier, a uniform reduction in sale price of 15% is made to compensate for sellers cost of sale.

A major reduction in the quality of estimated value is that no Ryan representative ever inspects a subject property or its location. The residential value of a location, the physical condition and functional features of the residence are not personally inspected and measured. Regarding property physical conditions, the petitioner assumes average condition for both the subject and the sold property.

For 272,the property appraiser notes that this residence is located at 3191 Deltona Blvd., Spring Hill. It was built in 1997 with 1366 square feet of finished living area. The selected three sales were constructed from 1998 to 2010 with 1597 to 1758 finished square feet. The three sales prices were from $289,000 to $331,000 which is a range of $29,900. The average price was $305,000. This analysis indicates two important things. First, the subjects just value of $232,389 is substantially less than market value which compensates for the sellers closing costs. Second, the property appraiser has established the presumption of correctness.

.

For 272, the petitioner selected three sales which were constructed in 1983, 1988 and 2004 with 1374 to 1470 square feet of finished building area. The sale prices were from $100,000 to $ $280,000 which is a range of $180,000 After comparative adjustments, including a deduction of 15% for seller expenses, the indicated market values were from $73,000 to $245,150. The difference of $172,950 is almost the same as the range before adjustment which indicate the selected comparable sales and this appraisal are unacceptable. The petitioners opinion of value was the sale price average of $182,550.

Based upon consideration of all information provided, it is the special magistrate's opinion that the petitioners sales comparison approach and estimated value are not acceptable.

Conclusions of Law:2025-272

In accordance with section 194.301 F.S., it was determined that there is competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with criteria of 193.011 and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish an appropriate assessment for the subject property. It is the professional opinion of the Special Magistrate, that the property appraiser's evidence was reliable and sufficient. The property appraiser proved by a preponderance of the evidence that their estimation of value does not exceed just value. Therefore, it is recommended that the property appraiser's value be upheld. This decision, that relief is denied, means that any right the petitioner may have to bring action in circuit court is not impaired.

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

HERNANDO County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-273	Parcel ID R 32 323 17 5220 1510 0100
Petitioner name CPI Amherst SFR Program Owner LLC The petitioner is: ☐ taxpayer of record ☑ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	Property address 5459 Hornaway Ave. Spring Hill

Decision Summary ☑ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	$243,255	$243,255	$243,255
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	$214,330	$214,330	$214,330
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0	0	0
4. Taxable value,* required	$214,330	$214,330	$214,330

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact

Please See Attached

Conclusions of Law

Please See Attached

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	Robert Sutte MAI, SRA Print name	2-26-26 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

Hernando Petition 2025-273

Findings of Fact:

This virtual hearing was conducted on November 6,2025. Doug Mack, Residential Supervisor and Brandon Jimenez, CFE represented the Hernando County Property Appraiser the Honorable Randy Mazourek. Ms. Stephanie Garcia with Ryan, LLC was the petitioner-owners representative. These witnesses were sworn to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth so help them God by Special Magistrate Robert Sutte, CRE,MAI,SRA.

This hearing included a total of 15 subject properties. They were all detached, site built single family residences at various locations in Hernando County.

For this hearing the property appraiser identified the subject parcel by tax identification number and provided the January 1, 2025 values. Information about the subject including location, building size, lot size, property features and highest and best use was provided.

The most meaningful and most appropriate measure of value for residential property like the subject is the sales comparison approach. It was relied upon by both sides. The cost and income approaches to value were not considered applicable and were not used.

Both the property appraiser and the petitioner presented tabular descriptions of the subject property and comparable sales. Exhibits included photographs of the subject property, the area-location and maps showing the subject and sale locations.

When possible, and most often, both the PAs and the PETs selected sales were in the subject neighborhood or adjoining areas. Most, if not all, of the selected sold properties were year 2024. The prices paid were comparatively considered. Applicable significant physical and locational differences were considered.

The property appraiser(PA) compared 3 comparable sale prices and just values to show that the subjects estimated just

values were significantly to substantially less than market value in compliance with the law. The petitioner (PET)compared 3 to 6 sale prices and presented comparative adjustments to the sales prices to indicate a value for the subject. Also, a 15% line item deduction in price was made to compensate for owner selling expenses.

The purpose of the property appraisers appraisal is to estimate the market value of the subject property as of January 1, 2025.They are to demonstrate that their market value complies with Florida law and is not more than just value. This effort is to establishment of the presumption of correctness.

The purpose of the petitioners appraisal is to prove that their opinion of market value is correct and shows that the property appraisers just value is in excess of market value. If successful, it can be concluded that they have overcome the PAs presumption of correctness and are legally entitled to a reduction in value.

The special magistrates purpose is to examine all evidence presented and decide which testimony was significantly more reliable, complete, sufficient and acceptable. Simply stated, the magistrate believes that the greater weight of the evidence must be provided by the petitioner to overcome the property appraisers established presumption of correctness.

For this Hernando VAB analysis, an important magistrate focus is the range in total sale prices of the selected comparable sales. For example, one appraisal could include an examination of 3 unadjusted sale prices from a low of $123,000 and a high of $196,000 which indicates a range in price paid of $73,000. The other appraisal of the same property including consideration of 3 prices paid from $109,000 to $204,000. This larger-greater difference in value or price paid of $95,000 indicates that the selected sales, in this ladder example, are a significantly less reliable measure of market value. The appraisal ideal, is to compare sales of extremely similar sold properties to the subject to arrive at the most reliable estimated value.

If the property appraiser establishes a presumption of correctness and the petitioner does not overcome the presumption, the assessment stands. A decision,that relief is denied, however does mean that any rights the petitioner may have to bring action in circuit court are not impaired.

Brief descriptions of the appraisal process used by both parties are considered important. The Property Appraiser is required by Florida law to inspect each new tax parcel and reinspect same every five years. Their professional goal is to choose timely sales of very similar comparable properties that are located within the subject neighborhood. If there is not a sufficient number of similar sales there, they use their "In the field, on the job" experience and learned judgment to select similar sales in adjoining neighborhoods, or if necessary, in similar neighborhoods somewhat removed.

Next, the most similar sales are researched and verified to ensure that they are qualified and acceptable. An individual PA will personally compare the sales to the subject, and make value considerations for changes in market conditions, if applicable, location, and physical and functional property characteristics.

The Ryan, LLC valuation witnesses serve as real estate tax representatives to a wide variety of clients throughout the United States. Reportedly, for all single-family residential appraisals, they have a support group of about 400 employees who work in India. There are some US research employees also. These workers select the sales for value comparisons. Parameters for the selection process including dates of sale, distances from a subject property and physical characteristics are entered into computer programs to determine what sales should be used. Building size, date constructed, effective age, and other physical characteristic information which is obtained from the Florida Department of Revenue website is used for this purpose. Also, as noted earlier, a uniform reduction in sale price of 15% is made to compensate for sellers cost of sale.

A major reduction in the quality of estimated value is that no Ryan representative ever inspects a subject property or its location. The residential value of a location, the physical condition and functional features of the residence are not personally inspected and measured. Regarding property physical conditions, the petitioner assumes average condition for both the subject and the sold property.

For 273, the property appraiser notes that this residence is located at 5459 Hornaway Ave., Spring Hill. It was built in 1988 with 1492 square feet of finished living area. The selected three sales were constructed from 1989 to 1997 with 1841 to 1892 finished square feet. The three sales prices were from $294,804 to $310,8090 which is a difference of only $14,196`. The average price was $307,933. This analysis indicates two important things. First, the subjects just value of $243,255 is not more than market value which compensates for the sellers closing costs. Second, the property appraiser has established the presumption of correctness.

For 273, the petitioner selected six sales which were constructed from 1981 to 1990 with 1261 to 1767 of finished living area. The sale prices were from $125,000 to $359,900, which is a difference or range of $234,900. . After comparative adjustments, including a deduction of 15% for seller expenses, the indicated market values were from $95,750 to $287,915. This difference of $192,200 is almost as substantial as the difference in price before adjustments . This indicates that the selected comparable sales are not reliably comparable and the petitioners comparative adjustments were not reliable. This means that this appraisal is considered not acceptable. The petitioners opinion of value was the sale price average of $221,078.

Based upon consideration of all information provided, it is the special magistrate's opinion that the petitioners sales comparison approach is substantially insufficient and does not overcome the presumption of correctness established by the Property Appraiser. This magistrate also concluded that insufficient quality comparable evidence was presented by the petitioner to justify a reduction in value. The property appraisers estimated value was not proven to be incorrect.

Conclusions of Law:2025-273

In accordance with section 194.301 F.S., it was determined that there is competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with criteria of 193.011 and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish an appropriate assessment for the subject property. It is the professional opinion of the Special Magistrate, that the property appraiser's evidence was reliable and sufficient. The property appraiser proved by a preponderance of the evidence that their estimation of value does not exceed just value. Therefore, it is recommended that the property appraiser's value be upheld. This decision, that relief is denied, means that any right the petitioner may have to bring action in circuit court is not impaired.

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

HERNANDO County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-274	Parcel ID R 32 323 17 5220 1517 0050
Petitioner name ALTO ASSET COMPANY 1 LLC The petitioner is: ☐ taxpayer of record ☑ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	Property address 6135 Lyon Rd. Spring Hill

Decision Summary ☑ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	$243,145	$243,145	$243,145
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	$207,849	$207,849	$207,849
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0	0	0
4. Taxable value,* required	$207,849	$207,849	$207,849

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact

Please See Attached

Conclusions of Law

Please See Attached

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	Robert Sutte MAI, SRA Print name	2-26-26 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

Hernando Petition 2025-274

Findings of Fact:

This virtual hearing was conducted on November 6,2025. Doug Mack, Residential Supervisor and Brandon Jimenez, CFE represented the Hernando County Property Appraiser the Honorable Randy Mazourek. Ms. Stephanie Garcia with Ryan, LLC was the petitioner-owners representative. These witnesses were sworn to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth so help them God by Special Magistrate Robert Sutte, CRE,MAI,SRA.

This hearing included a total of 15 subject properties. They were all detached, site built single family residences at various locations in Hernando County.

For this hearing the property appraiser identified the subject parcel by tax identification number and provided the January 1, 2025 values. Information about the subject including location, building size, lot size, property features and highest and best use was provided.

The most meaningful and most appropriate measure of value for residential property like the subject is the sales comparison approach. It was relied upon by both sides. The cost and income approaches to value were not considered applicable and were not used.

Both the property appraiser and the petitioner presented tabular descriptions of the subject property and comparable sales. Exhibits included photographs of the subject property, the area-location and maps showing the subject and sale locations.

When possible, and most often, both the PAs and the PETs selected sales were in the subject neighborhood or adjoining areas. Most, if not all, of the selected sold properties were year 2024. The prices paid were comparatively considered. Applicable significant physical and locational differences were considered.

The property appraiser(PA) compared 3 comparable sale prices and just values to show that the subjects estimated just

values were significantly to substantially less than market value in compliance with the law. The petitioner (PET) compared 3 to 6 sale prices and presented comparative adjustments to the sales prices to indicate a value for the subject. Also, a 15% line item deduction in price was made to compensate for owner selling expenses.

The purpose of the property appraisers appraisal is to estimate the market value of the subject property as of January 1, 2025. They are to demonstrate that their market value complies with Florida law and is not more than just value. This effort is to establishment of the presumption of correctness.

The purpose of the petitioners appraisal is to prove that their opinion of market value is correct and shows that the property appraisers just value is in excess of market value. If successful, it can be concluded that they have overcome the PAs presumption of correctness and are legally entitled to a reduction in value.

The special magistrates purpose is to examine all evidence presented and decide which testimony was significantly more reliable, complete, sufficient and acceptable. Simply stated, the magistrate believes that the greater weight of the evidence must be provided by the petitioner to overcome the property appraisers established presumption of correctness.

For this Hernando VAB analysis, an important magistrate focus is the range in total sale prices of the selected comparable sales. For example, one appraisal could include an examination of 3 unadjusted sale prices from a low of $123,000 and a high of $196,000 which indicates a range in price paid of $73,000. The other appraisal of the same property including consideration of 3 prices paid from $109,000 to $204,000. This larger-greater difference in value or price paid of $95,000 indicates that the selected sales, in this ladder example, are a significantly less reliable measure of market value. The appraisal ideal, is to compare sales of extremely similar sold properties to the subject to arrive at the most reliable estimated value.

If the property appraiser establishes a presumption of correctness and the petitioner does not overcome the presumption, the assessment stands. A decision, that relief is denied, however does mean that any rights the petitioner may have to bring action in circuit court are not impaired.

Brief descriptions of the appraisal process used by both parties are considered important. The Property Appraiser is required by Florida law to inspect each new tax parcel and reinspect same every five years. Their professional goal is to choose timely sales of very similar comparable properties that are located within the subject neighborhood. If there is not a sufficient number of similar sales there, they use their "In the field, on the job" experience and learned judgment to select similar sales in adjoining neighborhoods, or if necessary, in similar neighborhoods somewhat removed.

Next, the most similar sales are researched and verified to ensure that they are qualified and acceptable. An individual PA will personally compare the sales to the subject, and make value considerations for changes in market conditions, if applicable, location, and physical and functional property characteristics.

The Ryan, LLC valuation witnesses serve as real estate tax representatives to a wide variety of clients throughout the United States. Reportedly, for all single-family residential appraisals, they have a support group of about 400 employees who work in India. There are some US research employees also. These workers select the sales for value comparisons. Parameters for the selection process including dates of sale, distances from a subject property and physical characteristics are entered into computer programs to determine what sales should be used. Building size, date constructed, effective age, and other physical characteristic information which is obtained from the Florida Department of Revenue website is used for this purpose. Also, as noted earlier, a uniform reduction in sale price of 15% is made to compensate for sellers cost of sale.

A major reduction in the quality of estimated value is that no Ryan representative ever inspects a subject property or its location. The residential value of a location, the physical condition and functional features of the residence are not personally inspected and measured. Regarding property physical conditions, the petitioner assumes average condition for both the subject and the sold property.

For 274, the property appraiser notes that this residence is located at 6135 Lyon Rd., Spring Hill. It was built in 1987 with 1320 square feet of finished living area. The selected three sales were constructed from 1980 to 1996 with 1568 to 1660 finished square feet. The three sales prices were from $260,000 to $290,000 which is a difference of only $30,000. The average price was $273,333. This analysis indicates two important things. First, the subjects just value of $243,145 is not more than market value which compensates for the sellers closing costs. Second, the property appraiser has established the presumption of correctness.

.

For 274, the petitioner selected six sales which were constructed from 1981 to 2002 with 1104 to 1582 square feet of finished living area. The sale prices were from $125,00 to $330,000, which is a difference or range of $205,000.After comparative adjustments, including a deduction of 15% for seller expenses, the indicated market values were from $78,750 to $253,225. This difference of $174,475 is almost as substantial as the difference in prices before adjustments . This indicates that the selected comparable sales are not reliably comparable and the petitioners comparative adjustments were not reliable. This means that this appraisal is not acceptable. The petitioners opinion of value was the sale price average of $202,979.

Based upon consideration of all information provided, it is the special magistrate's opinion that the petitioners sales comparison approach is substantially insufficient and does not overcome the presumption of correctness established by the Property Appraiser. This magistrate also concluded that insufficient quality comparable evidence was presented by the petitioner to justify a reduction in value. The property appraisers estimated value was not proven to be incorrect.

Conclusions of Law:2025-274

In accordance with section 194.301 F.S., it was determined that there is competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with criteria of 193.011 and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish an appropriate assessment for the subject property. It is the professional opinion of the Special Magistrate, that the property appraiser's evidence was reliable and sufficient. The property appraiser proved by a preponderance of the evidence that their estimation of value does not exceed just value. Therefore, it is recommended that the property appraiser's value be upheld. This decision, that relief is denied, means that any right the petitioner may have to bring action in circuit court is not impaired.

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

HERNANDO County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-275	Parcel ID R 32 323 17 5160 0993 0100
Petitioner name 1170 Kane Concourse Suite 400 Bay The petitioner is: ☐ taxpayer of record ☑ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	Property address 4132 Landover Blvd.. Spring Hill

Decision Summary ☑ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	$281,420	$281,420	$281,420
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	$281,420	$281,420	$281,420
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0	0	0
4. Taxable value,* required	$281,420	$281,420	$281,420

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact

Please See Attached

Conclusions of Law

Please See Attached

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	Robert Sutte MAI, SRA Print name	2-26-26 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

Hernando Petition 2025-275

Findings of Fact:

This virtual hearing was conducted on November 6,2025. Doug Mack, Residential Supervisor and Brandon Jimenez, CFE represented the Hernando County Property Appraiser the Honorable Randy Mazourek. Ms. Stephanie Garcia with Ryan, LLC was the petitioner-owners representative. These witnesses were sworn to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth so help them God by Special Magistrate Robert Sutte, CRE,MAI,SRA.

This hearing included a total of 15 subject properties. They were all detached, site built single family residences at various locations in Hernando County.

For this hearing the property appraiser identified the subject parcel by tax identification number and provided the January 1, 2025 values. Information about the subject including location, building size, lot size, property features and highest and best use was provided.

The most meaningful and most appropriate measure of value for residential property like the subject is the sales comparison approach. It was relied upon by both sides. The cost and income approaches to value were not considered applicable and were not used.

Both the property appraiser and the petitioner presented tabular descriptions of the subject property and comparable sales. Exhibits included photographs of the subject property, the area-location and maps showing the subject and sale locations.

When possible, and most often, both the PAs and the PETs selected sales were in the subject neighborhood or adjoining areas. Most, if not all, of the selected sold properties were year 2024. The prices paid were comparatively considered. Applicable significant physical and locational differences were considered.

The property appraiser(PA) compared 3 comparable sale prices and just values to show that the subjects estimated just

values were significantly to substantially less than market value in compliance with the law. The petitioner (PET)compared 3 to 6 sale prices and presented comparative adjustments to the sales prices to indicate a value for the subject. Also, a 15% line item deduction in price was made to compensate for owner selling expenses.

The purpose of the property appraisers appraisal is to estimate the market value of the subject property as of January 1, 2025.They are to demonstrate that their market value complies with Florida law and is not more than just value. This effort is to establishment of the presumption of correctness.

The purpose of the petitioners appraisal is to prove that their opinion of market value is correct and shows that the property appraisers just value is in excess of market value. If successful, it can be concluded that they have overcome the PAs presumption of correctness and are legally entitled to a reduction in value.

The special magistrates purpose is to examine all evidence presented and decide which testimony was significantly more reliable, complete, sufficient and acceptable. Simply stated, the magistrate believes that the greater weight of the evidence must be provided by the petitioner to overcome the property appraisers established presumption of correctness.

For this Hernando VAB analysis, an important magistrate focus is the range in total sale prices of the selected comparable sales. For example, one appraisal could include an examination of 3 unadjusted sale prices from a low of $123,000 and a high of $196,000 which indicates a range in price paid of $73,000. The other appraisal of the same property including consideration of 3 prices paid from $109,000 to $204,000. This larger-greater difference in value or price paid of $95,000 indicates that the selected sales, in this ladder example, are a significantly less reliable measure of market value. The appraisal ideal, is to compare sales of extremely similar sold properties to the subject to arrive at the most reliable estimated value.

If the property appraiser establishes a presumption of correctness and the petitioner does not overcome the presumption, the assessment stands. A decision,that relief is denied, however does mean that any rights the petitioner may have to bring action in circuit court are not impaired.

Brief descriptions of the appraisal process used by both parties are considered important. The Property Appraiser is required by Florida law to inspect each new tax parcel and reinspect same every five years. Their professional goal is to choose timely sales of very similar comparable properties that are located within the subject neighborhood. If there is not a sufficient number of similar sales there, they use their "In the field, on the job" experience and learned judgment to select similar sales in adjoining neighborhoods, or if necessary, in similar neighborhoods somewhat removed.

Next, the most similar sales are researched and verified to ensure that they are qualified and acceptable. An individual PA will personally compare the sales to the subject, and make value considerations for changes in market conditions, if applicable, location, and physical and functional property characteristics.

The Ryan, LLC valuation witnesses serve as real estate tax representatives to a wide variety of clients throughout the United States. Reportedly, for all single-family residential appraisals, they have a support group of about 400 employees who work in India. There are some US research employees also. These workers select the sales for value comparisons. Parameters for the selection process including dates of sale, distances from a subject property and physical characteristics are entered into computer programs to determine what sales should be used. Building size, date constructed, effective age, and other physical characteristic information which is obtained from the Florida Department of Revenue website is used for this purpose. Also, as noted earlier, a uniform reduction in sale price of 15% is made to compensate for sellers cost of sale.

A major reduction in the quality of estimated value is that no Ryan representative ever inspects a subject property or its location. The residential value of a location, the physical condition and functional features of the residence are not personally inspected and measured. Regarding property physical conditions, the petitioner assumes average condition for both the subject and the sold property.

For 275,the property appraiser notes that this residence is located at 4132 Landover Blvd., Spring Hill. It was built in 2020 with 1646 square feet of finished living area. The selected three sales were constructed from 2018 to 2024 with 1771 to 1924 finished square feet. The three sales prices were from $305,000 to $335,000 which is a difference of only $30,000. The average price was $316,667. This analysis indicates two important things. First, the subjects just value of $281,420 is not more than market value which also compensates for the sellers costs of sale. Second, the property appraiser has established the presumption of correctness.

.

For 275, the petitioner selected six sales which were all constructed in 2024 so they all are two years newer than the subject home. They contain 1442 to 1874 square feet of finished living area. The sale prices were from $305,000 to $353,000 which is a difference of $48,000.After comparative adjustments, including a deduction of 15% for seller expenses, the indicated market values were from $247,770 to $293,250. This difference of $45,480 is almost the same as the difference in prices before adjustments . This indicates that the comparative adjustments were not meaningful. If they were, the amount of difference would be less. The petitioners opinion of value was the sale price average of $269,758.

Based upon consideration of all information provided, it is the special magistrate's opinion that the petitioners sales comparison approach was insufficient and does not overcome the presumption of correctness established by the Property Appraiser. The property appraisers estimated value was not proven to be incorrect.

Conclusions of Law:2025-275

In accordance with section 194.301 F.S., it was determined that there is competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with criteria of 193.011 and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish an appropriate assessment for the subject property. It is the professional opinion of the Special Magistrate, that the property appraiser's evidence was reliable and sufficient. The property appraiser proved by a preponderance of the evidence that their estimation of value does not exceed just value. Therefore, it is recommended that the property appraiser's value be upheld. This decision, that relief is denied, means that any right the petitioner may have to bring action in circuit court is not impaired.

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

HERNANDO County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-276	Parcel ID R 34 122 20 0441 0020 0210
Petitioner name ET-3,LP The petitioner is: ☐ taxpayer of record ☑ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	Property address 26485 Wakefield Dr. Brooksville

Decision Summary ☑ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	$214,902	$214,902	$214,902
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	$213,208	$213,208	$213,208
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0	0	0
4. Taxable value,* required	$213,208	$213,208	$213,208

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact

Please See Attached

Conclusions of Law

Please See Attached

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	Robert Sutte MAI, SRA Print name	2-26-26 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

Hernando Petition 2025-276

Findings of Fact:

This virtual hearing was conducted on November 6,2025. Doug Mack, Residential Supervisor and Brandon Jimenez, CFE represented the Hernando County Property Appraiser the Honorable Randy Mazourek. Ms. Stephanie Garcia with Ryan, LLC was the petitioner-owners representative. These witnesses were sworn to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth so help them God by Special Magistrate Robert Sutte, CRE,MAI,SRA.

This hearing included a total of 15 subject properties. They were all detached, site built single family residences at various locations in Hernando County.

For this hearing the property appraiser identified the subject parcel by tax identification number and provided the January 1, 2025 values. Information about the subject including location, building size, lot size, property features and highest and best use was provided.

The most meaningful and most appropriate measure of value for residential property like the subject is the sales comparison approach. It was relied upon by both sides. The cost and income approaches to value were not considered applicable and were not used.

Both the property appraiser and the petitioner presented tabular descriptions of the subject property and comparable sales. Exhibits included photographs of the subject property, the area-location and maps showing the subject and sale locations.

When possible, and most often, both the PAs and the PETs selected sales were in the subject neighborhood or adjoining areas. Most, if not all, of the selected sold properties were year 2024. The prices paid were comparatively considered. Applicable significant physical and locational differences were considered.

The property appraiser(PA) compared 3 comparable sale prices and just values to show that the subjects estimated just

values were significantly to substantially less than market value in compliance with the law. The petitioner (PET)compared 3 to 6 sale prices and presented comparative adjustments to the sales prices to indicate a value for the subject. Also, a 15% line item deduction in price was made to compensate for owner selling expenses.

The purpose of the property appraisers appraisal is to estimate the market value of the subject property as of January 1, 2025.They are to demonstrate that their market value complies with Florida law and is not more than just value. This effort is to establishment of the presumption of correctness.

The purpose of the petitioners appraisal is to prove that their opinion of market value is correct and shows that the property appraisers just value is in excess of market value. If successful, it can be concluded that they have overcome the PAs presumption of correctness and are legally entitled to a reduction in value.

The special magistrates purpose is to examine all evidence presented and decide which testimony was significantly more reliable, complete, sufficient and acceptable. Simply stated, the magistrate believes that the greater weight of the evidence must be provided by the petitioner to overcome the property appraisers established presumption of correctness.

For this Hernando VAB analysis, an important magistrate focus is the range in total sale prices of the selected comparable sales. For example, one appraisal could include an examination of 3 unadjusted sale prices from a low of $123,000 and a high of $196,000 which indicates a range in price paid of $73,000. The other appraisal of the same property including consideration of 3 prices paid from $109,000 to $204,000. This larger-greater difference in value or price paid of $95,000 indicates that the selected sales, in this ladder example, are a significantly less reliable measure of market value. The appraisal ideal, is to compare sales of extremely similar sold properties to the subject to arrive at the most reliable estimated value.

If the property appraiser establishes a presumption of correctness and the petitioner does not overcome the presumption, the assessment stands. A decision,that relief is denied, however does mean that any rights the petitioner may have to bring action in circuit court are not impaired.

Brief descriptions of the appraisal process used by both parties are considered important. The Property Appraiser is required by Florida law to inspect each new tax parcel and reinspect same every five years. Their professional goal is to choose timely sales of very similar comparable properties that are located within the subject neighborhood. If there is not a sufficient number of similar sales there, they use their "In the field, on the job" experience and learned judgment to select similar sales in adjoining neighborhoods, or if necessary, in similar neighborhoods somewhat removed.

Next, the most similar sales are researched and verified to ensure that they are qualified and acceptable. An individual PA will personally compare the sales to the subject, and make value considerations for changes in market conditions, if applicable, location, and physical and functional property characteristics.

The Ryan, LLC valuation witnesses serve as real estate tax representatives to a wide variety of clients throughout the United States. Reportedly, for all single-family residential appraisals, they have a support group of about 400 employees who work in India. There are some US research employees also. These workers select the sales for value comparisons. Parameters for the selection process including dates of sale, distances from a subject property and physical characteristics are entered into computer programs to determine what sales should be used. Building size, date constructed, effective age, and other physical characteristic information which is obtained from the Florida Department of Revenue website is used for this purpose. Also, as noted earlier, a uniform reduction in sale price of 15% is made to compensate for sellers cost of sale.

A major reduction in the quality of estimated value is that no Ryan representative ever inspects a subject property or its location. The residential value of a location, the physical condition and functional features of the residence are not personally inspected and measured. Regarding property physical conditions, the petitioner assumes average condition for both the subject and the sold property.

For 276,the property appraiser notes that this residence is located at 26485 Wakefield Dr., Brooksville.,. It was built in 2021 with 1045 square feet of finished living area. The selected three sales were constructed from 2018 and 2019 with 1004 to 1187 finished square feet. The three sales prices were from $234,000 to $247,500 which is a difference of only $17,954. The average price was $316,667. This analysis indicates two important things. First, the subjects just value of $$214,902 is not more than market value which also compensates for the sellers costs of sale. Second, the property appraiser has established the presumption of correctness.

.

For 276, the petitioner selected four sales which were built from 2018 and 2021 and contain constructed from 2018 to 2021 so they all are two from newer than the subject home. They contain 1000 to 1045 square feet of finished living area.

These sale prices were from $210,000 to $247,500 which is a difference of $37,500.After comparative adjustments, including a deduction of 15% for seller expenses, the indicated market values were from $172,500 to $222,375. This difference of $37,500 is the same as the difference in prices before adjustments. This indicates that the comparative adjustments were not meaningful. If they were, the amount of difference would be less. The petitioners opinion of value was the sale price average of $195,610.

Based upon consideration of all information provided, it is the special magistrate's opinion that the petitioners sales comparison approach was insufficient and does not overcome the presumption of correctness established by the Property Appraiser. The property appraisers estimated value was not proven to be incorrect.

Conclusions of Law:2025-276

In accordance with section 194.301 F.S., it was determined that there is competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with criteria of 193.011 and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish an appropriate assessment for the subject property. It is the professional opinion of the Special Magistrate, that the property appraiser's evidence was reliable and sufficient. The property appraiser proved by a preponderance of the evidence that their estimation of value does not exceed just value. Therefore, it is recommended that the property appraiser's value be upheld. This decision, that relief is denied, means that any right the petitioner may have to bring action in circuit court is not impaired.

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

HERNANDO County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-277	Parcel ID R 34 122 20 0441 0020 0230
Petitioner name ET-3.LP The petitioner is: ☐ taxpayer of record ☑ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	Property address 26469 Wakefield Dr. Brooksville

Decision Summary ☑ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	$248,161	$248,161	$248,161
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	$228,715	$228,715	$228,715
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0	0	0
4. Taxable value,* required	$228,715	$228,715	$228,715

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed

Findings of Fact

Findings of Fact:

Please See Attached

Conclusions of Law

Please See Attached

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	Robert Sutte MAI,SRA Print name	3-4-26 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

Hernando Petition 2025-277

Findings of Fact:

This virtual hearing was conducted on November 6,2025. Doug Mack, Residential Supervisor and Brandon Jimenez, CFE represented the Hernando County Property Appraiser the Honorable Randy Mazourek. Ms. Stephanie Garcia with Ryan, LLC was the petitioner-owners representative. These witnesses were sworn to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth so help them God by Special Magistrate Robert Sutte, CRE,MAI,SRA.

This hearing included a total of 15 subject properties. They were all detached, site built single family residences at various locations in Hernando County.

For this hearing the property appraiser identified the subject parcel by tax identification number and provided the January 1, 2025 values. Information about the subject including location, building size, lot size, property features and highest and best use was provided.

The most meaningful and most appropriate measure of value for residential property like the subject is the sales comparison approach. It was relied upon by both sides. The cost and income approaches to value were not considered applicable and were not used.

Both the property appraiser and the petitioner presented tabular descriptions of the subject property and comparable sales. Exhibits included photographs of the subject property, the area-location and maps showing the subject and sale locations.

When possible, and most often, both the PAs and the PETs selected sales were in the subject neighborhood or adjoining areas. Most, if not all, of the selected sold properties were year 2024. The prices paid were comparatively considered. Applicable significant physical and locational differences were considered.

The property appraiser(PA) compared 3 comparable sale prices and just values to show that the subjects estimated just

values were significantly to substantially less than market value in compliance with the law. The petitioner (PET) compared 3 to 6 sale prices and presented comparative adjustments to the sales prices to indicate a value for the subject. Also, a 15% line item deduction in price was made to compensate for owner selling expenses.

The purpose of the property appraisers appraisal is to estimate the market value of the subject property as of January 1, 2025. They are to demonstrate that their market value complies with Florida law and is not more than just value. This effort is to establishment of the presumption of correctness.

The purpose of the petitioners appraisal is to prove that their opinion of market value is correct and shows that the property appraisers just value is in excess of market value. If successful, it can be concluded that they have overcome the PAs presumption of correctness and are legally entitled to a reduction in value.

The special magistrates purpose is to examine all evidence presented and decide which testimony was significantly more reliable, complete, sufficient and acceptable. Simply stated, the magistrate believes that the greater weight of the evidence must be provided by the petitioner to overcome the property appraisers established presumption of correctness.

For this Hernando VAB analysis, an important magistrate focus is the range in total sale prices of the selected comparable sales. For example, one appraisal could include an examination of 3 unadjusted sale prices from a low of $123,000 and a high of $196,000 which indicates a range in price paid of $73,000. The other appraisal of the same property including consideration of 3 prices paid from $109,000 to $204,000. This larger-greater difference in value or price paid of $95,000 indicates that the selected sales, in this ladder example, are a significantly less reliable measure of market value. The appraisal ideal, is to compare sales of extremely similar sold properties to the subject to arrive at the most reliable estimated value.

If the property appraiser establishes a presumption of correctness and the petitioner does not overcome the presumption, the assessment stands. A decision, that relief is denied, however does mean that any rights the petitioner may have to bring action in circuit court are not impaired.

Brief descriptions of the appraisal process used by both parties are considered important. The Property Appraiser is required by Florida law to inspect each new tax parcel and reinspect same every five years. Their professional goal is to choose timely sales of very similar comparable properties that are located within the subject neighborhood. If there is not a sufficient number of similar sales there, they use their "In the field, on the job" experience and learned judgment to select similar sales in adjoining neighborhoods, or if necessary, in similar neighborhoods somewhat removed.

Next, the most similar sales are researched and verified to ensure that they are qualified and acceptable. An individual PA will personally compare the sales to the subject, and make value considerations for changes in market conditions, if applicable, location, and physical and functional property characteristics.

The Ryan, LLC valuation witnesses serve as real estate tax representatives to a wide variety of clients throughout the United States. Reportedly, for all single-family residential appraisals, they have a support group of about 400 employees who work in India. There are some US research employees also. These workers select the sales for value comparisons. Parameters for the selection process including dates of sale, distances from a subject property and physical characteristics are entered into computer programs to determine what sales should be used. Building size, date constructed, effective age, and other physical characteristic information which is obtained from the Florida Department of Revenue website is used for this purpose. Also, as noted earlier, a uniform reduction in sale price of 15% is made to compensate for sellers cost of sale.

A major reduction in the quality of estimated value is that no Ryan representative ever inspects a subject property or its location. The residential value of a location, the physical condition and functional features of the residence are not personally inspected and measured. Regarding property physical conditions, the petitioner assumes average condition for both the subject and the sold property.

For 277, the property appraiser notes that this residence is located at 26489 Wakefield Dr., Brooksville. It was built in 2021 with 1488 square feet of finished living area. The selected three sales were constructed from 2018 and 2019 with 1004 and 1187 square feet of finished living area. The three sales prices were from $234,000 to $247,500 which is a difference of only $13,500. The average price was $238,800. This analysis indicates two important things. First, the subjects just value of $248,161 is not more than market value which compensates for the sellers closing costs. Second, the property appraiser has established the presumption of correctness.

.

For 277, the petitioner testified that she had submitted her evidence in a timely manner. Both the VAB and the Property Appraiser testified that they did not receive it. Legal counsel for the VAB Ms. Holly Crosby reported to Ms. Heidi Prouse, Clerk to the Board, that " The petitioner may provide verbal testimony, and that the special magistrate will provide a recommendation for the Hearing that is held." The special magistrate listened to the information provided by Ms. Stephanie Garcia. The conclusion was that insufficient evidence was provided to overcome the presumption of correctness established by the Property Appraiser. Therefore, tax relief is denied.

Based upon consideration of all information provided, it is the special magistrate's opinion that the petitioners sales comparison approach does not overcome the presumption of correctness established by the Property Appraiser. The property appraisers estimated value was not proven to be incorrect.

Conclusions of Law:2025-287

In accordance with section 194.301 F.S., it was determined that there is competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with criteria of 193.011 and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish an appropriate assessment for the subject property. It is the professional opinion of the Special Magistrate, that the property appraiser's evidence was reliable and sufficient. The property appraiser proved by a preponderance of the evidence that their estimation of value does not exceed just value. Therefore, it is recommended that the property appraiser's value be upheld. This decision, that relief is denied, means that any right the petitioner may have to bring action in circuit court is not impaired.

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

HERNANDO County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-278	Parcel ID R 34 122 20 0441 0030 0200
Petitioner name ET-3,LP The petitioner is: ☐ taxpayer of record ☑ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	Property address 26493 Mott Avenue Brooksville

Decision Summary ☑ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	$214,902	$214,902	$214,902
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	$213,208	$213,208	$213,208
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0	0	0
4. Taxable value,* required	$213,208	$213,208	$213,208

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact

Please See Attached

Conclusions of Law

Please See Attached

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	Robert Sutte MAI, SRA Print name	2-26-26 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

Hernando Petition 2025-278

Findings of Fact:

This virtual hearing was conducted on November 6,2025. Doug Mack, Residential Supervisor and Brandon Jimenez, CFE represented the Hernando County Property Appraiser the Honorable Randy Mazourek. Ms. Stephanie Garcia with Ryan, LLC was the petitioner-owners representative. These witnesses were sworn to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth so help them God by Special Magistrate Robert Sutte, CRE,MAI,SRA.

This hearing included a total of 15 subject properties. They were all detached, site built single family residences at various locations in Hernando County.

For this hearing the property appraiser identified the subject parcel by tax identification number and provided the January 1, 2025 values. Information about the subject including location, building size, lot size, property features and highest and best use was provided.

The most meaningful and most appropriate measure of value for residential property like the subject is the sales comparison approach. It was relied upon by both sides. The cost and income approaches to value were not considered applicable and were not used.

Both the property appraiser and the petitioner presented tabular descriptions of the subject property and comparable sales. Exhibits included photographs of the subject property, the area-location and maps showing the subject and sale locations.

When possible, and most often, both the PAs and the PETs selected sales were in the subject neighborhood or adjoining areas. Most, if not all, of the selected sold properties were year 2024. The prices paid were comparatively considered. Applicable significant physical and locational differences were considered.

The property appraiser(PA) compared 3 comparable sale prices and just values to show that the subjects estimated just

values were significantly to substantially less than market value in compliance with the law. The petitioner (PET)compared 3 to 6 sale prices and presented comparative adjustments to the sales prices to indicate a value for the subject. Also, a 15% line item deduction in price was made to compensate for owner selling expenses.

The purpose of the property appraisers appraisal is to estimate the market value of the subject property as of January 1, 2025.They are to demonstrate that their market value complies with Florida law and is not more than just value. This effort is to establishment of the presumption of correctness.

The purpose of the petitioners appraisal is to prove that their opinion of market value is correct and shows that the property appraisers just value is in excess of market value. If successful, it can be concluded that they have overcome the PAs presumption of correctness and are legally entitled to a reduction in value.

The special magistrates purpose is to examine all evidence presented and decide which testimony was significantly more reliable, complete, sufficient and acceptable. Simply stated, the magistrate believes that the greater weight of the evidence must be provided by the petitioner to overcome the property appraisers established presumption of correctness.

For this Hernando VAB analysis, an important magistrate focus is the range in total sale prices of the selected comparable sales. For example, one appraisal could include an examination of 3 unadjusted sale prices from a low of $123,000 and a high of $196,000 which indicates a range in price paid of $73,000. The other appraisal of the same property including consideration of 3 prices paid from $109,000 to $204,000. This larger-greater difference in value or price paid of $95,000 indicates that the selected sales, in this ladder example, are a significantly less reliable measure of market value. The appraisal ideal, is to compare sales of extremely similar sold properties to the subject to arrive at the most reliable estimated value.

If the property appraiser establishes a presumption of correctness and the petitioner does not overcome the presumption, the assessment stands. A decision, that relief is denied, however does mean that any rights the petitioner may have to bring action in circuit court are not impaired.

Brief descriptions of the appraisal process used by both parties are considered important. The Property Appraiser is required by Florida law to inspect each new tax parcel and reinspect same every five years. Their professional goal is to choose timely sales of very similar comparable properties that are located within the subject neighborhood. If there is not a sufficient number of similar sales there, they use their "In the field, on the job" experience and learned judgment to select similar sales in adjoining neighborhoods, or if necessary, in similar neighborhoods somewhat removed.

Next, the most similar sales are researched and verified to ensure that they are qualified and acceptable. An individual PA will personally compare the sales to the subject, and make value considerations for changes in market conditions, if applicable, location, and physical and functional property characteristics.

The Ryan, LLC valuation witnesses serve as real estate tax representatives to a wide variety of clients throughout the United States. Reportedly, for all single-family residential appraisals, they have a support group of about 400 employees who work in India. There are some US research employees also. These workers select the sales for value comparisons. Parameters for the selection process including dates of sale, distances from a subject property and physical characteristics are entered into computer programs to determine what sales should be used. Building size, date constructed, effective age, and other physical characteristic information which is obtained from the Florida Department of Revenue website is used for this purpose. Also, as noted earlier, a uniform reduction in sale price of 15% is made to compensate for sellers cost of sale.

A major reduction in the quality of estimated value is that no Ryan representative ever inspects a subject property or its location. The residential value of a location, the physical condition and functional features of the residence are not personally inspected and measured. Regarding property physical conditions, the petitioner assumes average condition for both the subject and the sold property.

For 278, the property appraiser notes that this residence is located at 26493 Mott Avenue., Brooksville.,. It was built in 2021 with 1045 square feet of finished living area. The selected three sales were constructed from 2018 and 2019 with 1004 to 1187 finished square feet. The three sales prices were from $234,000 to $247,500 which is a difference of only $17,954. The average price was $238,800. This analysis indicates two important things. First, the subjects just value of $214,902 is not more than market value which also compensates for the sellers costs of sale. Second, the property appraiser has established the presumption of correctness.

For 278, the petitioner selected four sales which were built from 2018 and 2021 and contain constructed from 2018 to 2021 so they all are two from newer than the subject home. They contain 1000 to 1045 square feet of finished living area.

These sale prices were from $210,000 to $247,500 which is a difference of $37,500.After comparative adjustments, including a deduction of 15% for seller expenses, the indicated market values were from $172,500 to $222,375. This difference of $37,500 is the same as the difference in prices before adjustments. This indicates that the comparative adjustments were not meaningful. If they were, the amount of difference would be less. The petitioners opinion of value was the sale price average of $195,610.

Based upon consideration of all information provided, it is the special magistrate's opinion that the petitioners sales comparison approach was insufficient and does not overcome the presumption of correctness established by the Property Appraiser. The property appraisers estimated value was not proven to be incorrect.

Conclusions of Law:2025-278

In accordance with section 194.301 F.S., it was determined that there is competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with criteria of 193.011 and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish an appropriate assessment for the subject property. It is the professional opinion of the Special Magistrate, that the property appraiser's evidence was reliable and sufficient. The property appraiser proved by a preponderance of the evidence that their estimation of value does not exceed just value. Therefore, it is recommended that the property appraiser's value be upheld. This decision, that relief is denied, means that any right the petitioner may have to bring action in circuit court is not impaired.

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

HERNANDO County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-279	Parcel ID R 34 122 20 0441 0040 0040 0200
Petitioner name ET-3,LP The petitioner is: ☐ taxpayer of record ☑ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	Property address 26493 Mary Avenue Brooksville

Decision Summary ☑ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	$214,902	$214,902	$214,902
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	$213,208	$213,208	$213,208
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0	0	0
4. Taxable value,* required	$213,208	$213,208	$213,208

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact

Please See Attached

Conclusions of Law

Please See Attached

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	Robert Sutte MAI, SRA Print name	2.26.26 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

Hernando Petition 2025-279

Findings of Fact:

This virtual hearing was conducted on November 6,2025. Doug Mack, Residential Supervisor and Brandon Jimenez, CFE represented the Hernando County Property Appraiser the Honorable Randy Mazourek. Ms. Stephanie Garcia with Ryan, LLC was the petitioner-owners representative. These witnesses were sworn to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth so help them God by Special Magistrate Robert Sutte, CRE,MAI,SRA.

This hearing included a total of 15 subject properties. They were all detached, site built single family residences at various locations in Hernando County.

For this hearing the property appraiser identified the subject parcel by tax identification number and provided the January 1, 2025 values. Information about the subject including location, building size, lot size, property features and highest and best use was provided.

The most meaningful and most appropriate measure of value for residential property like the subject is the sales comparison approach. It was relied upon by both sides. The cost and income approaches to value were not considered applicable and were not used.

Both the property appraiser and the petitioner presented tabular descriptions of the subject property and comparable sales. Exhibits included photographs of the subject property, the area-location and maps showing the subject and sale locations.

When possible, and most often, both the PAs and the PETs selected sales were in the subject neighborhood or adjoining areas. Most, if not all, of the selected sold properties were year 2024. The prices paid were comparatively considered. Applicable significant physical and locational differences were considered.

The property appraiser(PA) compared 3 comparable sale prices and just values to show that the subjects estimated just

values were significantly to substantially less than market value in compliance with the law. The petitioner (PET)compared 3 to 6 sale prices and presented comparative adjustments to the sales prices to indicate a value for the subject. Also, a 15% line item deduction in price was made to compensate for owner selling expenses.

The purpose of the property appraisers appraisal is to estimate the market value of the subject property as of January 1, 2025.They are to demonstrate that their market value complies with Florida law and is not more than just value. This effort is to establishment of the presumption of correctness.

The purpose of the petitioners appraisal is to prove that their opinion of market value is correct and shows that the property appraisers just value is in excess of market value. If successful, it can be concluded that they have overcome the PAs presumption of correctness and are legally entitled to a reduction in value.

The special magistrates purpose is to examine all evidence presented and decide which testimony was significantly more reliable, complete, sufficient and acceptable. Simply stated, the magistrate believes that the greater weight of the evidence must be provided by the petitioner to overcome the property appraisers established presumption of correctness.

For this Hernando VAB analysis, an important magistrate focus is the range in total sale prices of the selected comparable sales. For example, one appraisal could include an examination of 3 unadjusted sale prices from a low of $123,000 and a high of $196,000 which indicates a range in price paid of $73,000. The other appraisal of the same property including consideration of 3 prices paid from $109,000 to $204,000. This larger-greater difference in value or price paid of $95,000 indicates that the selected sales, in this ladder example, are a significantly less reliable measure of market value. The appraisal ideal, is to compare sales of extremely similar sold properties to the subject to arrive at the most reliable estimated value.

If the property appraiser establishes a presumption of correctness and the petitioner does not overcome the presumption, the assessment stands. A decision,that relief is denied, however does mean that any rights the petitioner may have to bring action in circuit court are not impaired.

Brief descriptions of the appraisal process used by both parties are considered important. The Property Appraiser is required by Florida law to inspect each new tax parcel and reinspect same every five years. Their professional goal is to choose timely sales of very similar comparable properties that are located within the subject neighborhood. If there is not a sufficient number of similar sales there, they use their "In the field, on the job" experience and learned judgment to select similar sales in adjoining neighborhoods, or if necessary, in similar neighborhoods somewhat removed.

Next, the most similar sales are researched and verified to ensure that they are qualified and acceptable. An individual PA will personally compare the sales to the subject, and make value considerations for changes in market conditions, if applicable, location, and physical and functional property characteristics.

The Ryan, LLC valuation witnesses serve as real estate tax representatives to a wide variety of clients throughout the United States. Reportedly, for all single-family residential appraisals, they have a support group of about 400 employees who work in India. There are some US research employees also. These workers select the sales for value comparisons. Parameters for the selection process including dates of sale, distances from a subject property and physical characteristics are entered into computer programs to determine what sales should be used. Building size, date constructed, effective age, and other physical characteristic information which is obtained from the Florida Department of Revenue website is used for this purpose. Also, as noted earlier, a uniform reduction in sale price of 15% is made to compensate for sellers cost of sale.

A major reduction in the quality of estimated value is that no Ryan representative ever inspects a subject property or its location. The residential value of a location, the physical condition and functional features of the residence are not personally inspected and measured. Regarding property physical conditions, the petitioner assumes average condition for both the subject and the sold property.

For 279,the property appraiser notes that this residence is located at 26493 Mary Avenue., Brooksville.,. It was built in 2021 with 1045 square feet of finished living area. The selected three sales were constructed from 2018 and 2019 with 1004 to 1187 finished square feet. The three sales prices were from $234,000 to $247,500 which is a difference of only $17,954. The average price was $238,800. This analysis indicates two important things. First, the subjects just value of $214,902 is not more than market value which also compensates for the sellers costs of sale. Second, the property appraiser has established the presumption of correctness.

For 279, the petitioner selected four sales which were built in 2018 and 2019 and contain 1000 to 1045 square feet of finished living area. These sale prices were from $210,000 to $247,500 which is a difference of $37,500.After comparative adjustments, including a deduction of 15% for seller expenses, the indicated market values were from $172,500 to $222,375. This difference of $37,500 is the same as the difference in prices before adjustments. This indicates that the comparative adjustments were not meaningful. If they were, the amount of difference would be less. The petitioners opinion of value was the sale price average of $195,610.

Based upon consideration of all information provided, it is the special magistrate's opinion that the petitioners sales comparison approach was insufficient and does not overcome the presumption of correctness established by the Property Appraiser. The property appraisers estimated value was not proven to be incorrect.

Conclusions of Law:2025-279

In accordance with section 194.301 F.S., it was determined that there is competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with criteria of 193.011 and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish an appropriate assessment for the subject property. It is the professional opinion of the Special Magistrate, that the property appraiser's evidence was reliable and sufficient. The property appraiser proved by a preponderance of the evidence that their estimation of value does not exceed just value. Therefore, it is recommended that the property appraiser's value be upheld. This decision, that relief is denied, means that any right the petitioner may have to bring action in circuit court is not impaired.

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

HERNANDO County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-281	Parcel ID R 32 323 17 5010 0001 0120
Petitioner name New Residential Borrower 2022 Str 1. I gotta do two more SFR I LIC The petitioner is: ☐ taxpayer of record ☑ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	Property address 6009 Piedmont Dr. Spring Hill

Decision Summary ☑ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	$236,450	$236,450	$236,450
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	$236,450	$236,450	$236,450
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0	0	0
4. Taxable value,* required	$236,450	$236,450	$236,450

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact

Conclusions of Law

Please See Attached

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	Robert Sutte MAI, SRA Print name	1 – 28–26 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

Hernando Petition 2025-281

Findings of Fact:

This virtual hearing was conducted on November 6,2025. Doug Mack, Residential Supervisor and Brandon Jimenez, CFE represented the Hernando County Property Appraiser the Honorable Randy Mazourek. Ms. Stephanie Garcia with Ryan, LLC was the petitioner-owners representative. These witnesses were sworn to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth so help them God by Special Magistrate Robert Sutte, CRE,MAI,SRA.

This hearing included a total of 15 subject properties. They were all detached, site built single family residences at various locations in Hernando County.

For this hearing the property appraiser identified the subject parcel by tax identification number and provided the January 1, 2025 values. Information about the subject including location, building size, lot size, property features and highest and best use was provided.

The most meaningful and most appropriate measure of value for residential property like the subject is the sales comparison approach. It was relied upon by both sides. The cost and income approaches to value were not considered applicable and were not used.

Both the property appraiser and the petitioner presented tabular descriptions of the subject property and comparable sales. Exhibits included photographs of the subject property, the area-location and maps showing the subject and sale locations.

When possible, and most often, both the PAs and the PETs selected sales were in the subject neighborhood or adjoining areas. Most, if not all, of the selected sold properties were year 2024. The prices paid were comparatively considered. Applicable significant physical and locational differences were considered.

The property appraiser(PA) compared 3 comparable sale prices and just values to show that the subjects estimated just

values were significantly to substantially less than market value in compliance with the law. The petitioner (PET) compared 3 to 6 sale prices and presented comparative adjustments to the sales prices to indicate a value for the subject. Also, a 15% line item deduction in price was made to compensate for owner selling expenses.

The purpose of the property appraisers appraisal is to estimate the market value of the subject property as of January 1, 2025. They are to demonstrate that their market value complies with Florida law and is not more than just value. This effort is to establishment of the presumption of correctness.

The purpose of the petitioners appraisal is to prove that their opinion of market value is correct and shows that the property appraisers just value is in excess of market value. If successful, it can be concluded that they have overcome the PAs presumption of correctness and are legally entitled to a reduction in value.

The special magistrates purpose is to examine all evidence presented and decide which testimony was significantly more reliable, complete, sufficient and acceptable. Simply stated, the magistrate believes that the greater weight of the evidence must be provided by the petitioner to overcome the property appraisers established presumption of correctness.

For this Hernando VAB analysis, an important magistrate focus is the range in total sale prices of the selected comparable sales. For example, one appraisal could include an examination of 3 unadjusted sale prices from a low of $123,000 and a high of $196,000 which indicates a range in price paid of $73,000. The other appraisal of the same property including consideration of 3 prices paid from $109,000 to $204,000. This larger-greater difference in value or price paid of $95,000 indicates that the selected sales, in this ladder example, are a significantly less reliable measure of market value. The appraisal ideal, is to compare sales of extremely similar sold properties to the subject to arrive at the most reliable estimated value.

If the property appraiser establishes a presumption of correctness and the petitioner does not overcome the presumption, the assessment stands. A decision, that relief is denied, however does mean that any rights the petitioner may have to bring action in circuit court are not impaired.

Brief descriptions of the appraisal process used by both parties are considered important. The Property Appraiser is required by Florida law to inspect each new tax parcel and reinspect same every five years. Their professional goal is to choose timely sales of very similar comparable properties that are located within the subject neighborhood. If there is not a sufficient number of similar sales there, they use their "In the field, on the job" experience and learned judgment to select similar sales in adjoining neighborhoods, or if necessary, in similar neighborhoods somewhat removed.

Next, the most similar sales are researched and verified to ensure that they are qualified and acceptable. An individual PA will personally compare the sales to the subject, and make value considerations for changes in market conditions, if applicable, location, and physical and functional property characteristics.

The Ryan, LLC valuation witnesses serve as real estate tax representatives to a wide variety of clients throughout the United States. Reportedly, for all single-family residential appraisals, they have a support group of about 400 employees who work in India. There are some US research employees also. These workers select the sales for value comparisons. Parameters for the selection process including dates of sale, distances from a subject property and physical characteristics are entered into computer programs to determine what sales should be used. Building size, date constructed, effective age, and other physical characteristic information which is obtained from the Florida Department of Revenue website is used for this purpose. Also, as noted earlier, a uniform reduction in sale price of 15% is made to compensate for sellers cost of sale.

A major reduction in the quality of estimated value is that no Ryan representative ever inspects a subject property or its location. The residential value of a location, the physical condition and functional features of the residence are not personally inspected and measured. Regarding property physical conditions, the petitioner assumes average condition for both the subject and the sold property.

For 281, the property appraiser notes that this residence is located at 6009 Piedmont Dr., Spring Hill. It was built in 1998 with 1543 square feet of finished living area. The selected three sales were constructed from 1985 to 1987 with 1801 to 1971 finished square feet. The three sales prices were from $299,000 to $349,900 with a difference of $50,900. The average price was $328,633. This analysis indicates two important things. First, the subjects just value of $236,450 is not more than market value which also compensates for the sellers costs of sale. Second, the property appraiser has established the presumption of correctness.

For 281, the petitioner selected six sales which were built 1977 to 1999. They contain 1241 to 1625 square feet of finished living area. The sale prices were from $52,800 to $270,000 which is a difference of $217,200. The petitioners opinion of value was the sale price average of $194,183. This appraisal and developed estimate value is totally unacceptable. Sales 4 and 5 were market outliers with purchase prices of $48,880 and $78,200 which were obvious unacceptable for use in objecting to a PA value of $236,450. This petitioners value analysis made this appraisal process even more unacceptable.

Based upon consideration of all information provided, it is the special magistrate's opinion that the petitioners appraisal process application and resulting indication value was totally unacceptable. No additional comment is appropriate or necessary to conclude that the property appraisers estimated value was not proven to be incorrect.

Conclusions of Law:2025-281

In accordance with section 194.301 F.S., it was determined that there is competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with criteria of 193.011 and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish an appropriate assessment for the subject property. It is the professional opinion of the Special Magistrate, that the property appraiser's evidence was reliable and sufficient. The property appraiser proved by a preponderance of the evidence that their estimation of value does not exceed just value. Therefore, it is recommended that the property appraiser's value be upheld. This decision, that relief is denied, means that any right the petitioner may have to bring action in circuit court is not impaired.

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002
F.A.C.
Eff.11/23

Hernando County

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☒ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-282	Parcel ID R 32 323 17 5150 0942 0070
Petitioner name LPF BLVD AMPA LIC- The petitioner is: ☒ taxpayer of record ☐ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	Property address 11154 Monarch St. Spring Hill

Decision Summary ☑ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	$297,663	$297,663	$297,663
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	$297,663	$297,663	$297,663
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0	0	0
4. Taxable value,* required	$297,663	$297,663	$297,663

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact
Please See Attached

Conclusions of Law
Please See Attachedd

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	Robert Sutte MAI,SRA Print name	2-26-26 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

Hernando Petition 2025-282

Findings of Fact:

This virtual hearing was conducted on November 6,2025. Doug Mack, Residential Supervisor and Brandon Jimenez, CFE represented the Hernando County Property Appraiser the Honorable Randy Mazourek. Ms. Stephanie Garcia with Ryan, LLC was the petitioner-owners representative. These witnesses were sworn to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth so help them God by Special Magistrate Robert Sutte, CRE,MAI,SRA.

This hearing included a total of 15 subject properties. They were all detached, site built single family residences at various locations in Hernando County.

For this hearing the property appraiser identified the subject parcel by tax identification number and provided the January 1, 2025 values. Information about the subject including location, building size, lot size, property features and highest and best use was provided.

The most meaningful and most appropriate measure of value for residential property like the subject is the sales comparison approach. It was relied upon by both sides. The cost and income approaches to value were not considered applicable and were not used.

Both the property appraiser and the petitioner presented tabular descriptions of the subject property and comparable sales. Exhibits included photographs of the subject property, the area-location and maps showing the subject and sale locations.

When possible, and most often, both the PAs and the PETs selected sales were in the subject neighborhood or adjoining areas. Most, if not all, of the selected sold properties were year 2024. The prices paid were comparatively considered. Applicable significant physical and locational differences were considered.

The property appraiser(PA) compared 3 comparable sale prices and just values to show that the subjects estimated just

values were significantly to substantially less than market value in compliance with the law. The petitioner (PET) compared 3 to 6 sale prices and presented comparative adjustments to the sales prices to indicate a value for the subject. Also, a 15% line item deduction in price was made to compensate for owner selling expenses.

The purpose of the property appraisers appraisal is to estimate the market value of the subject property as of January 1, 2025. They are to demonstrate that their market value complies with Florida law and is not more than just value. This effort is to establishment of the presumption of correctness.

The purpose of the petitioners appraisal is to prove that their opinion of market value is correct and shows that the property appraisers just value is in excess of market value. If successful, it can be concluded that they have overcome the PAs presumption of correctness and are legally entitled to a reduction in value.

The special magistrates purpose is to examine all evidence presented and decide which testimony was significantly more reliable, complete, sufficient and acceptable. Simply stated, the magistrate believes that the greater weight of the evidence must be provided by the petitioner to overcome the property appraisers established presumption of correctness.

For this Hernando VAB analysis, an important magistrate focus is the range in total sale prices of the selected comparable sales. For example, one appraisal could include an examination of 3 unadjusted sale prices from a low of $123,000 and a high of $196,000 which indicates a range in price paid of $73,000. The other appraisal of the same property including consideration of 3 prices paid from $109,000 to $204,000. This larger-greater difference in value or price paid of $95,000 indicates that the selected sales, in this ladder example, are a significantly less reliable measure of market value. The appraisal ideal, is to compare sales of extremely similar sold properties to the subject to arrive at the most reliable estimated value.

If the property appraiser establishes a presumption of correctness and the petitioner does not overcome the presumption, the assessment stands. A decision, that relief is denied, however does mean that any rights the petitioner may have to bring action in circuit court are not impaired.

Brief descriptions of the appraisal process used by both parties are considered important. The Property Appraiser is required by Florida law to inspect each new tax parcel and reinspect same every five years. Their professional goal is to choose timely sales of very similar comparable properties that are located within the subject neighborhood. If there is not a sufficient number of similar sales there, they use their "In the field, on the job" experience and learned judgment to select similar sales in adjoining neighborhoods, or if necessary, in similar neighborhoods somewhat removed.

Next, the most similar sales are researched and verified to ensure that they are qualified and acceptable. An individual PA will personally compare the sales to the subject, and make value considerations for changes in market conditions, if applicable, location, and physical and functional property characteristics.

The Ryan, LLC valuation witnesses serve as real estate tax representatives to a wide variety of clients throughout the United States. Reportedly, for all single-family residential appraisals, they have a support group of about 400 employees who work in India. There are some US research employees also. These workers select the sales for value comparisons. Parameters for the selection process including dates of sale, distances from a subject property and physical characteristics are entered into computer programs to determine what sales should be used. Building size, date constructed, effective age, and other physical characteristic information which is obtained from the Florida Department of Revenue website is used for this purpose. Also, as noted earlier, a uniform reduction in sale price of 15% is made to compensate for sellers cost of sale.

A major reduction in the quality of estimated value is that no Ryan representative ever inspects a subject property or its location. The residential value of a location, the physical condition and functional features of the residence are not personally inspected and measured. Regarding property physical conditions, the petitioner assumes average condition for both the subject and the sold property.

For 282, the property appraiser notes that this residence is located at 11154 Monarch St., Spring Hill. It was built in 1988 with 1935 square feet of finished living area. The selected three sales were constructed from 1982 to 1996 with 2205 to 2309 square feet of finished living area. The three sales prices were from $285,000 to $400,000 which is a difference of only $115,000. The average price was $338,333. This analysis indicates two important things. First, the subjects just value of $297,663 is not more than market value which compensates for the sellers closing costs. Second, the property appraiser has established the presumption of correctness.

For 282, the petitioner selected three sales which were constructed from 2002 to 2005 with 1644 to 2035 square feet of finished living area. The sale prices were from $300,000 to $340,0000, which is a difference or range of $40,000. After comparative adjustments, including a deduction of 15% for seller expenses, the indicated market values were from $239,500 to $287,250. This difference of $47,750 is almost the same as before. This indicates that the selected comparable sales were comparatively similar. The petitioners opinion of value was the sale price average of $263,750.

Based upon consideration of all information provided, it is the special magistrate's opinion that the petitioners sales comparison approach does not overcome the presumption of correctness established by the Property Appraiser. The property appraisers estimated value was not proven to be incorrect.

Conclusions of Law:2025-282

In accordance with section 194.301 F.S., it was determined that there is competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with criteria of 193.011 and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish an appropriate assessment for the subject property. It is the professional opinion of the Special Magistrate, that the property appraiser's evidence was reliable and sufficient. The property appraiser proved by a preponderance of the evidence that their estimation of value does not exceed just value. Therefore, it is recommended that the property appraiser's value be upheld. This decision, that relief is denied, means that any right the petitioner may have to bring action in circuit court is not impaired.

FLORIDA

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002
F.A.C.
Eff.11/23

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

Hernando County

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☒ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-283	Parcel ID R 32 323 17 5160 1063 0010
Petitioner name LPF BLVD AMPA LIC- The petitioner is: ☒ taxpayer of record ☐ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	Property address 12139 Villa Rd. Spring Hill

Decision Summary ☒ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	$313,098	$313,098	$313,098
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	$313,098	$313,098	$313,098
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0	0	0
4. Taxable value,* required	$313,098	$313,098	$313,098

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact
Please See Attached

Conclusions of Law
Please See Attachedd

☐ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	Robert Sutte MAI,SRA Print name	3-2-26 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

Hernando Petition 2025-283

Findings of Fact:

This virtual hearing was conducted on November 6,2025. Doug Mack, Residential Supervisor and Brandon Jimenez, CFE represented the Hernando County Property Appraiser the Honorable Randy Mazourek. Ms. Stephanie Garcia with Ryan, LLC was the petitioner-owners representative. These witnesses were sworn to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth so help them God by Special Magistrate Robert Sutte, CRE,MAI,SRA.

This hearing included a total of 15 subject properties. They were all detached, site built single family residences at various locations in Hernando County.

For this hearing the property appraiser identified the subject parcel by tax identification number and provided the January 1, 2025 values. Information about the subject including location, building size, lot size, property features and highest and best use was provided.

The most meaningful and most appropriate measure of value for residential property like the subject is the sales comparison approach. It was relied upon by both sides. The cost and income approaches to value were not considered applicable and were not used.

Both the property appraiser and the petitioner presented tabular descriptions of the subject property and comparable sales. Exhibits included photographs of the subject property, the area-location and maps showing the subject and sale locations.

When possible, and most often, both the PAs and the PETs selected sales were in the subject neighborhood or adjoining areas. Most, if not all, of the selected sold properties were year 2024. The prices paid were comparatively considered. Applicable significant physical and locational differences were considered.

The property appraiser(PA) compared 3 comparable sale prices and just values to show that the subjects estimated just

values were significantly to substantially less than market value in compliance with the law. The petitioner (PET)compared 3 to 6 sale prices and presented comparative adjustments to the sales prices to indicate a value for the subject. Also, a 15% line item deduction in price was made to compensate for owner selling expenses.

The purpose of the property appraisers appraisal is to estimate the market value of the subject property as of January 1, 2025.They are to demonstrate that their market value complies with Florida law and is not more than just value. This effort is to establishment of the presumption of correctness.

The purpose of the petitioners appraisal is to prove that their opinion of market value is correct and shows that the property appraisers just value is in excess of market value. If successful, it can be concluded that they have overcome the PAs presumption of correctness and are legally entitled to a reduction in value.

The special magistrates purpose is to examine all evidence presented and decide which testimony was significantly more reliable, complete, sufficient and acceptable. Simply stated, the magistrate believes that the greater weight of the evidence must be provided by the petitioner to overcome the property appraisers established presumption of correctness.

For this Hernando VAB analysis, an important magistrate focus is the range in total sale prices of the selected comparable sales. For example, one appraisal could include an examination of 3 unadjusted sale prices from a low of $123,000 and a high of $196,000 which indicates a range in price paid of $73,000. The other appraisal of the same property including consideration of 3 prices paid from $109,000 to $204,000. This larger-greater difference in value or price paid of $95,000 indicates that the selected sales, in this ladder example, are a significantly less reliable measure of market value. The appraisal ideal, is to compare sales of extremely similar sold properties to the subject to arrive at the most reliable estimated value.

If the property appraiser establishes a presumption of correctness and the petitioner does not overcome the presumption, the assessment stands. A decision,that relief is denied, however does mean that any rights the petitioner may have to bring action in circuit court are not impaired.

Brief descriptions of the appraisal process used by both parties are considered important. The Property Appraiser is required by Florida law to inspect each new tax parcel and reinspect same every five years. Their professional goal is to choose timely sales of very similar comparable properties that are located within the subject neighborhood. If there is not a sufficient number of similar sales there, they use their "In the field, on the job" experience and learned judgment to select similar sales in adjoining neighborhoods, or if necessary, in similar neighborhoods somewhat removed.

Next, the most similar sales are researched and verified to ensure that they are qualified and acceptable. An individual PA will personally compare the sales to the subject, and make value considerations for changes in market conditions, if applicable, location, and physical and functional property characteristics.

The Ryan, LLC valuation witnesses serve as real estate tax representatives to a wide variety of clients throughout the United States. Reportedly, for all single-family residential appraisals, they have a support group of about 400 employees who work in India. There are some US research employees also. These workers select the sales for value comparisons. Parameters for the selection process including dates of sale, distances from a subject property and physical characteristics are entered into computer programs to determine what sales should be used. Building size, date constructed, effective age, and other physical characteristic information which is obtained from the Florida Department of Revenue website is used for this purpose. Also, as noted earlier, a uniform reduction in sale price of 15% is made to compensate for sellers cost of sale.

A major reduction in the quality of estimated value is that no Ryan representative ever inspects a subject property or its location. The residential value of a location, the physical condition and functional features of the residence are not personally inspected and measured. Regarding property physical conditions, the petitioner assumes average condition for both the subject and the sold property.

For 283,the property appraiser notes that this residence is locate3 at 12139 Villa Rd., Spring Hill. It was built in 2005 with 2222 square feet of finished living area. The selected three sales were constructed from 1987 to 2004 with 2106 to 2373 square feet of finished living area. The three sales prices were from $320,000 to $346,500 which is a difference of only $26,500. The average price was $333,533. This analysis indicates two important things. First, the subjects just value of $$313,089 is not more than market value which compensates for the sellers closing costs. Second, the property appraiser has established the presumption of correctness.

For 283, the petitioner selected six sales which were constructed from 2002 to 2005 with 1609 to 2356 square feet of finished living area. The sale prices were from $215,000 to $407,500 which is a difference or range of $189,500. After comparative adjustments, including a deduction of 15% for seller expenses, the indicated market values were from $223,750 to $318,250. This difference of $94,500. This indicates that the petitioner was comparatively successful in making comparative adjustments to the sales to indicate a subject value. The petitioners opinion of value was the average sale price, which was $276,225.

Based upon consideration of all information provided, it is the special magistrate's opinion that the petitioners sales comparison approach does not overcome the presumption of correctness established by the Property Appraiser. The property appraisers estimated value was not proven to be incorrect.

Conclusions of Law:2025-283

In accordance with section 194.301 F.S., it was determined that there is competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with criteria of 193.011 and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish an appropriate assessment for the subject property. It is the professional opinion of the Special Magistrate, that the property appraiser's evidence was reliable and sufficient. The property appraiser proved by a preponderance of the evidence that their estimation of value does not exceed just value. Therefore, it is recommended that the property appraiser's value be upheld. This decision, that relief is denied, means that any right the petitioner may have to bring action in circuit court is not impaired.

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

HERNANDO County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-284	Parcel ID R 32 323 17 5200 1334 0270
Petitioner name Lpf Blvd Tampa Lic The petitioner is: ☐ taxpayer of record ☑ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	Property address 6359 Covewood Dr. Spring Hill

Decision Summary ☑ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	$383,670	$383,670	$383,670
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	$379,500	$379,500	$379,500
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0	0	0
4. Taxable value,* required	$379,500	$379,500	$379,500

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact

Please See Attached

Conclusions of Law

Please See Attached

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	Robert Sutte MAI, SRA Print name	2-26-26 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

Hernando Petition 2025-284

Findings of Fact:

This virtual hearing was conducted on November 6,2025. Doug Mack, Residential Supervisor and Brandon Jimenez, CFE represented the Hernando County Property Appraiser the Honorable Randy Mazourek. Ms. Stephanie Garcia with Ryan, LLC was the petitioner-owners representative. These witnesses were sworn to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth so help them God by Special Magistrate Robert Sutte, CRE,MAI,SRA.

This hearing included a total of 15 subject properties. They were all detached, site built single family residences at various locations in Hernando County.

For this hearing the property appraiser identified the subject parcel by tax identification number and provided the January 1, 2025 values. Information about the subject including location, building size, lot size, property features and highest and best use was provided.

The most meaningful and most appropriate measure of value for residential property like the subject is the sales comparison approach. It was relied upon by both sides. The cost and income approaches to value were not considered applicable and were not used.

Both the property appraiser and the petitioner presented tabular descriptions of the subject property and comparable sales. Exhibits included photographs of the subject property, the area-location and maps showing the subject and sale locations.

When possible, and most often, both the PAs and the PETs selected sales were in the subject neighborhood or adjoining areas. Most, if not all, of the selected sold properties were year 2024. The prices paid were comparatively considered. Applicable significant physical and locational differences were considered.

The property appraiser(PA) compared 3 comparable sale prices and just values to show that the subjects estimated just

values were significantly to substantially less than market value in compliance with the law. The petitioner (PET)compared 3 to 6 sale prices and presented comparative adjustments to the sales prices to indicate a value for the subject. Also, a 15% line item deduction in price was made to compensate for owner selling expenses.

The purpose of the property appraisers appraisal is to estimate the market value of the subject property as of January 1, 2025.They are to demonstrate that their market value complies with Florida law and is not more than just value. This effort is to establishment of the presumption of correctness.

The purpose of the petitioners appraisal is to prove that their opinion of market value is correct and shows that the property appraisers just value is in excess of market value. If successful, it can be concluded that they have overcome the PAs presumption of correctness and are legally entitled to a reduction in value.

The special magistrates purpose is to examine all evidence presented and decide which testimony was significantly more reliable, complete, sufficient and acceptable. Simply stated, the magistrate believes that the greater weight of the evidence must be provided by the petitioner to overcome the property appraisers established presumption of correctness.

For this Hernando VAB analysis, an important magistrate focus is the range in total sale prices of the selected comparable sales. For example, one appraisal could include an examination of 3 unadjusted sale prices from a low of $123,000 and a high of $196,000 which indicates a range in price paid of $73,000. The other appraisal of the same property including consideration of 3 prices paid from $109,000 to $204,000. This larger-greater difference in value or price paid of $95,000 indicates that the selected sales, in this ladder example, are a significantly less reliable measure of market value. The appraisal ideal, is to compare sales of extremely similar sold properties to the subject to arrive at the most reliable estimated value.

If the property appraiser establishes a presumption of correctness and the petitioner does not overcome the presumption, the assessment stands. A decision,that relief is denied, however does mean that any rights the petitioner may have to bring action in circuit court are not impaired.

Brief descriptions of the appraisal process used by both parties are considered important. The Property Appraiser is required by Florida law to inspect each new tax parcel and reinspect same every five years. Their professional goal is to choose timely sales of very similar comparable properties that are located within the subject neighborhood. If there is not a sufficient number of similar sales there, they use their "In the field, on the job" experience and learned judgment to select similar sales in adjoining neighborhoods, or if necessary, in similar neighborhoods somewhat removed.

Next, the most similar sales are researched and verified to ensure that they are qualified and acceptable. An individual PA will personally compare the sales to the subject, and make value considerations for changes in market conditions, if applicable, location, and physical and functional property characteristics.

The Ryan, LLC valuation witnesses serve as real estate tax representatives to a wide variety of clients throughout the United States. Reportedly, for all single-family residential appraisals, they have a support group of about 400 employees who work in India. There are some US research employees also. These workers select the sales for value comparisons. Parameters for the selection process including dates of sale, distances from a subject property and physical characteristics are entered into computer programs to determine what sales should be used. Building size, date constructed, effective age, and other physical characteristic information which is obtained from the Florida Department of Revenue website is used for this purpose. Also, as noted earlier, a uniform reduction in sale price of 15% is made to compensate for sellers cost of sale.

A major reduction in the quality of estimated value is that no Ryan representative ever inspects a subject property or its location. The residential value of a location, the physical condition and functional features of the residence are not personally inspected and measured. Regarding property physical conditions, the petitioner assumes average condition for both the subject and the sold property.

For 284, the property appraiser notes that this residence is located at 6359 Covewood Drive., Spring Hill. It was built in 1993 with 2016 square feet of finished living area. The selected three sales were constructed from 1988 to 1996 with 2278 to 2309 square feet of finished living area. The three sales prices were from $390,000 to $405,000 which is a difference of only $15,000. The average price was $3398,333. This analysis indicates two important things. First, the subjects just value of $383,670 is not more than market value which compensates for the sellers closing costs. Second, the property appraiser has established the presumption of correctness.

For 284, the petitioner selected four sales which were constructed from 1988 to 2005 with 1614 to 1838 square feet of finished living area. The sale prices were from $300,000 to $340,0000, which is a difference or range of $40,000. After comparative adjustments, including a deduction of 15% for seller expenses, the indicated market values were from $319,000 to $360,750. This difference of $41,750 is almost the same as before. This indicates that the selected comparable sales were comparatively similar. The petitioners opinion of value was the sale price average of $339,850.

Based upon consideration of all information provided, it is the special magistrate's opinion that the petitioners sales comparison approach does not overcome the presumption of correctness established by the Property Appraiser. The property appraisers estimated value was not proven to be incorrect.

Conclusions of Law:2025-284

In accordance with section 194.301 F.S., it was determined that there is competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with criteria of 193.011 and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish an appropriate assessment for the subject property. It is the professional opinion of the Special Magistrate, that the property appraiser's evidence was reliable and sufficient. The property appraiser proved by a preponderance of the evidence that their estimation of value does not exceed just value. Therefore, it is recommended that the property appraiser's value be upheld. This decision, that relief is denied, means that any right the petitioner may have to bring action in circuit court is not impaired.

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

Hernando County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-285	Parcel ID R32 323 17 5210 1406 0170
Petitioner name New Residential Borrower 2022 Sfr2 LLC The petitioner is: ☑ taxpayer of record ☐ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	Property address 2091 Arbuckle Rd Spring Hill, FL

Decision Summary ☐ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☑ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	332,918.00	332,918.00	318,250.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	332,918.00	332,918.00	318,250.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0.00	0.00	0.00
4. Taxable value,* required	332,918.00	332,918.00	318,250.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact
See attached.

Conclusions of Law
See attached.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	Print name	Date
Colleen E Millett	Colleen E Millett	11/17/2025
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

PETITION NO. 25-285

RECOMMENDATION OF SPECIAL MAGISTRATE

VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD

HERNANDO COUNTY, FLORIDA

IN RE: THE PETITION OF: New Residential Borrower 2022 Sfr2 LLC

PARCEL KEY NO: 00427149

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

The Petitioner, Stephanie Garcia of Ryan LLC c/o Robert Hole for New Residential Borrower 2022 Sfr2 LLC, appeared before the Special Magistrate to give testimony. The Property Appraiser was represented by BRANDON JIMENEZ and DOUG MACK. All present parties were put under sworn oath.

The Property Appraiser verified the values accordingly; a just value of $332,918, an assessed or capped value of $332,918, and a taxable value of $332,918. There was no change in values after the process.

The Petitioner estimated just value at $273,358.

Subject Property Type: The subject is a 1,790 SF (heated) single family dwelling with 2,161 adjusted SF that was built in 1986 and has a pool. The subject is located at 2091 Arbuckle Road, Spring Hill, FL.

The PAO evidence consists of an evidence packet with a case synopsis, PRC with photo and an aerial map of the subject property, a sales analysis report with (3) sales, location map of sales, summary of cost of sale adjustment, PRCs for each sale, and verbal testimony.

The Petitioner's evidence consists of a petition, summary of evidence submission, market value analysis grid with (3) sales, location map for subject property, sales location map and verbal testimony.

Per testimony by the PAO, there was a timely evidence exchange. There were no objections, and all the evidence noted above is considered admissible (unless specifically noted as inadmissible).

Overall, the evidence presented meets specific evidence rules (See Rule 12D-9,025(1) and Rule 12D-9.025(2)b, F.A.C) and is considered sufficient, relevant, and credible information available, from which a reliable estimate of just, assessed, and taxable value can be estimated.

BASIC AND UNDERLYING FINDINGS OF FACT

The PAO relied upon the sales comparison approach to value and considered CAMA analysis at TRIM. The approach utilized is considered an appropriate methodology by the Special Magistrate.

The PAO presented their evidence packet with a sales analysis report utilizing (3) improved pool home sales from the subject market area. The PAO performed their analysis utilizing adjusted SF which is generally considered less reliable than utilizing heated SF however, is often used in mass appraisal.

The Petitioner provided (3) improved sales (including the subject transfer if applicable). Of these sales, 0 were used by the PAO. The Petitioner adjusted for differences in age, heated SF, land size, and bedroom and/or bath count. The Petitioner did not provide any information on extra features (i.e. pool) or garages/carports.

The PAO, in rebuttal to the Petitioner's evidence, noted that no adjustment was made for land size on Sale #3 which has a smaller site than the subject as well as the other (2) sales which were adjusted for size difference. The Petitioner had no explanation other than the computer program did the calculations. Thus, no supporting testimony for lack of adjustment was provided.

In reviewing all evidence, the Special Magistrate noted an error on the PAO summary page wherein the Total Sales Price Paid is noted to be $1,150,000 and the Total Just Value of Sales is noted to be $964,836 which are correct however, in the clarification portion, the PAO states the Total Just Value to be $1,280,269 and the Total Sales Price to be $1,375,000 which are incorrectly reported and should be the same as the previously reported numbers. The indicated weighted mean of 84% and Cost of Sale Adjustment at 16% were correctly indicated.

Of the sales provided, (2) Petitioner and 0 PAO sales are not considered reliable (dissimilar in age, lack of adjustments or insufficient support for adjustment, and no details provided on extra features). The PAO provided (3) sales of homes with pools as the subject property is a pool home. The median of the most reliable Petitioner sales indicates a just value for the subject of $314,500. The median of the most reliable PAO sales indicates a just value for the subject of $322,000. The median of all the most reliable sales from both parties is $318,250, which is a credible and reliable just value for the subject based on the available data. The PAO just value conclusion is $332,918. This data reliably supports that the subject is over assessed.

The PAO reported that their internal analysis supports a 15% increase in sale prices from 1/1/2024 to the lien date of 1/1/2025. They also reported that the DOR performed a study across this same period, utilizing qualified sales of like property, and concluded a 15% increase over the same period. The Special Magistrate assumes that the PAO utilized a process of sampling paired sales or some other subset of the available data. The Special Magistrate will equally weigh the DOR study results (15%) utilizing all qualified property sales, and the PAO conclusion (15%) and utilize 15% herein.

The Special Magistrate has applied a qualitative analysis of the data submitted by all parties and has also considered the recent sale of the subject property, if applicable. A COS factor of 15%, market conditions adjustment based on 12% annually, age/condition adjustment, land size/value, a factor for adjusted SF or non-heated area as a % of overall space, extra features differences, a SF adjustment, quality and view adjustments were considered.

The PAO considered the cost of sales in their reconciliation process. Proper consideration of the 1st and 8th criteria for the subject property would be approximately 7-12% (cost of sales adjustment; estimated to be brokerage cost of 5-7%, personal property 1-2%, and financing costs of 1-3%, properly considered for the subject). The Special Magistrate will consider this when weighing the appropriateness of each parties' conclusions and the assessment level.

The DOR utilizes 15% cost of sales in their oversight function for all property in aggregate. The Magistrate has considered the specific subject property in relation to cost of sales factors as follows (certain scale and property types will vary significantly if cost of sales is to be performed according to statute).

Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., requires proper consideration of the "net proceeds of sale," regardless of whether an actual sale of the property has occurred. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001). However, the statute does not require the property appraiser to select the value generated by the application of Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., and apply it in a blanket fashion to all assessments. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001).

All property is to be assessed at 100% of just value Walter v. Schuler 176 So.2d 81 (Fla 1965). The terms "just value" "fair market value' and "full cash value" are legally synonymous. Id.

The 1st and 8th criteria were introduced by the legislature after this ruling, suggesting that the legislature wishes real estate to be taxed net of typical sales costs, implying that “just value” is in fact equal to “market value net of typical sales costs”. Based on current training material for Special Magistrates, this consistently and strongly advises a deduction for the 1st and 8th criteria.

The PAO testified to documentation that pertains to the DOR treatment of the eight criteria required under FS 193.011. The PAO testified to and has documented how each of the criteria was considered in their development of the assessment in regard to the property at hand. The PAO addressed the requirements of FS 193.011 as follows:

“Factors to consider in deriving just valuation. – In arriving at just valuation as required under s. 4, Art. VII of the State Constitution, the property appraiser shall take into consideration the following factors:

(1) The present cash value of the property, which is the amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arm's length;

The PAO, within the CAMA system, makes an adjustment for cost of sale within their direct application of the sales comparison analysis. An adjustment is made for cost of sale as noted under Criteria 8 in their CAMA analysis and in the reconciliation process.

(2) The highest and best use...,(shortened) Land use and building codes were considered along with the character of any existing site improvements, the subject is noted to be residential use and was not disputed by either party. Comparable data was selected based on this information.

(3) The location of the property; The subject property is assigned a location or neighborhood code within the PAO database related to its specific location. Comparable data is selected with as similar a location as is possible, while also considering other relevant factors.

(4) The quantity or size of the property; The size of the building, the site size and site improvements are based on data contained within the PRC and all comparable sales are selected with attention to similarity of size, while also considering and weighing the other relevant factors.

(5) The cost of said property and the present replacement value of any improvements thereon; Within the CAMA system, the PAO uses cost data and when applicable, considers a pure replacement cost new and depreciation factors within a cost approach to value.

(6) The condition of said property; The condition of the property, through periodic site inspections, actual age, and information submitted to them by property owners is considered by the PAO. The information is given a % good or % depreciation factor and is noted in their subject documentation and/or PRC card and utilized in the CAMA analysis.

(7) The income from said property; and; When applicable, the PAO prepares an income capitalization analysis based on market data contained in their files, general market statistics, and when available, actual subject performance is considered.

(8) "The net proceeds of the sale of the property, as received by the seller, after deduction of all the usual and reasonable fees and costs of the sale, including the costs and expenses of financing, and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms or financing arrangements. When the net proceeds of the sale of any property are utilized, directly or indirectly, in the determination of just valuation of realty of the sold parcel or any other parcel under the provisions of this section, the property appraiser, for the purposes of such determination, shall exclude any portion of such net proceeds attributable to payments for household furnishings or other items of personal property."

The cost of sales is considered by the PAO within their CAMA analysis and in reconciliation when performing discrete sales, income or cost analysis. Sales prices of comparable properties are adjusted downward (reportedly) within CAMA, typically at near 15%.

ULTIMATE FINDINGS OF FACT

Florida Statute section 194.301 elaborates the standards of review that the Special Magistrate must apply to any petition to the Value Adjustment Board. The statute states as follows:

Pursuant to Section 194.301, the Property Appraiser's assessment shall be entitled to a Presumption of Correctness if the Property Appraiser shows, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the Property Appraiser considered each of the eight criteria set forth in Section 193.011, the Property Appraiser applied the correct appraisal methodology based upon the characteristics of the property, and the Property Appraiser did not use appraisal practices which are different than the appraisal practices generally applied by the Property Appraiser to comparable property in the same county.

In accordance with Rule 12D-10.003(5)(a), it is concluded that the PAO DID establish a presumption of correctness by properly considering the eight criteria described in FS 193.011. Further, it is concluded that the methodology used by the PAO IS appropriate and DOES comply with professionally accepted appraisal practices for the subject property type. The Petitioner DID overcome the presumption of correctness.

The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment was based on an arbitrary appraisal practice different from like property in the same county.

The Petitioner HAS shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment is excessive. Thus, the assessed value DOES exceed 100% of the fair market value of the property.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence. See Rule 12D-9.025(1), Florida Administrative Code (FAC). Generally, "relevant evidence" is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. This description means the evidence meets or exceeds the minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. See Rule 12D-9.025(2)(b) FAC.

The Special Magistrate reviewed all evidence presented by all parties. In accordance with DOR guidelines, the Special Magistrate determined that the evidence and testimony was relevant and credible to the valuation at hand. Thus, the evidence as presented was admitted for consideration in relation to the appropriateness of the subject assessment.

The Special Magistrate has determined that the testimonial and documentary evidence (combined) meet the test of "relevancy and credibility" and WAS sufficient to reach the "preponderance of the evidence" standard of proof required by Rule 12D-9.027(6) FAC.

The Special Magistrate also determined that there IS competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with the criteria of FS 193.011 and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish the assessment.

The Special Magistrate finds that the Petitioner HAS satisfied the "preponderance of the evidence" standard under the facts as testified to, that the appraiser's assessment is in excess of just value. After weighing all the documentary and testimonial evidence it is concluded that the assessment IS NOT reasonable and within market parameters.

RECOMMENDATION

It is recommended by the Special Magistrate that the relief applied for in this petition be GRANTED in part with a reduction in the just value to $318,250.

Special Magistrate

Colleen E Millett

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

Hernando County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-286	Parcel ID R15 223 18 3231 00E0 0040
Petitioner name Montgomery Street Homes II LLC The petitioner is: ☑ taxpayer of record ☐ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	Property address 4012 St Ives Blvd Spring Hill, FL

Decision Summary ☑ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	313,750.00	313,750.00	313,750.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	313,750.00	313,750.00	313,750.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0.00	0.00	0.00
4. Taxable value,* required	313,750.00	313,750.00	313,750.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact
See attached.

Conclusions of Law
See attached.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	Print name	Date
Colleen E Millett	Colleen E Millett	11/17/2025
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

PETITION NO. 25-286

RECOMMENDATION OF SPECIAL MAGISTRATE

VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD

HERNANDO COUNTY, FLORIDA

IN RE: THE PETITION OF: Montgomery Street Homes II LLC

PARCEL KEY NO: 01191935

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

The Petitioner, Stephanie Garcia of Ryan LLC c/o Robert Hole for Montgomery Street Homes II LLC, appeared before the Special Magistrate to give testimony. The Property Appraiser was represented by BRANDON JIMENEZ and DOUG MACK. All present parties were put under sworn oath.

The Property Appraiser verified the values accordingly; a just value of $313,750, an assessed or capped value of $313,750, and a taxable value of $313,750. There was no change in values after the process.

The Petitioner estimated just value at $306,448.

Subject Property Type: The subject is a 2,019 SF (heated) single family dwelling with 2,452 adjusted SF that was built in 2000, has a pool and has confirmed sinkhole activity. The subject is located at 4012 St Ives Blvd, Spring Hill, FL.

The PAO evidence consists of an evidence packet with a case synopsis, PRC with photo and an aerial map of the subject property, a sales analysis report with (3) sales, location map of sales, summary of cost of sale adjustment, PRCs for each sale, and verbal testimony.

The Petitioner's evidence consists of a petition, summary of evidence submission, market value analysis grid with (4) sales, location map for subject property, sales location map and verbal testimony.

Per testimony by the PAO, there was a timely evidence exchange. There were no objections, and all the evidence noted above is considered admissible (unless specifically noted as inadmissible).

Overall, the evidence presented meets specific evidence rules (See Rule 12D-9,025(1) and Rule 12D-9.025(2)b, F.A.C) and is considered sufficient, relevant, and credible information available, from which a reliable estimate of just, assessed, and taxable value can be estimated.

BASIC AND UNDERLYING FINDINGS OF FACT

The PAO relied upon the sales comparison approach to value and considered CAMA analysis at TRIM. The approach utilized is considered an appropriate methodology by the Special Magistrate.

The PAO presented their evidence packet with a sales analysis report utilizing (3) improved pool home sales, all with confirmed sinkhole activity and from the subject market area. The PAO performed their analysis utilizing adjusted SF which is generally considered less reliable than utilizing heated SF however, is often used in mass appraisal.

The Petitioner provided (4) improved sales (including the subject transfer if applicable). Of these sales, 0 were used by the PAO. The Petitioner adjusted for differences in age, heated SF, land size, and bedroom and/or bath count. The Petitioner did not provide any information on extra features (i.e. pool) or garages/carports. The Special Magistrate asked the Petitioner if any of the sales used were confirmed sinkhole properties and the Petitioner responded, no they were not.

The PAO, in rebuttal to the Petitioner's evidence, noted that land adjustments were either missing or inconsistent with the sales provided. The Petitioner had no explanation other than the computer program did the calculations. Thus, no supporting testimony for lack of adjustment was provided.

Of the sales provided, (1) Petitioner and 0 PAO sales are not considered reliable (dissimilar in age, lack of adjustments or insufficient support for adjustment, and no details provided on extra features). The PAO provided (3) sales of homes with confirmed sinkhole activity and also with pools as the subject property is a pool home with confirmed sinkhole activity. The median of the most reliable Petitioner sales indicates a just value for the subject of $321,430. The median of the most reliable PAO sales indicates a just value for the subject of $320,450. The median of all the most reliable sales from both parties is $320,940, which is a credible and reliable just value for the subject based on the available data. The PAO just value conclusion is $313,750. This data reliably supports that the subject is not over assessed.

The PAO reported that their internal analysis supports a 15% increase in sale prices from 1/1/2024 to the lien date of 1/1/2025. They also reported that the DOR performed a study across this same period, utilizing qualified sales of like property, and concluded a 15% increase over the same period. The Special Magistrate assumes that the PAO utilized a process of sampling paired sales or some other subset of the available data. The Special Magistrate will equally weigh the DOR study results (15%) utilizing all qualified property sales, and the PAO conclusion (15%) and utilize 15% herein.

The Special Magistrate has applied a qualitative analysis of the data submitted by all parties and has also considered the recent sale of the subject property, if applicable. A COS factor of 15%, market conditions adjustment based on 12% annually, age/condition adjustment, land size/value, a factor for adjusted SF or non-heated area as a % of overall space, extra features differences, a SF adjustment, quality and view adjustments were considered.

The PAO considered the cost of sales in their reconciliation process. Proper consideration of the 1st and 8th criteria for the subject property would be approximately 7-12% (cost of sales adjustment; estimated to be brokerage cost of 5-7%, personal property 1-2%, and financing costs of 1-3%, properly considered for the subject). The Special Magistrate will consider this when weighing the appropriateness of each parties' conclusions and the assessment level.

The DOR utilizes 15% cost of sales in their oversight function for all property in aggregate. The Magistrate has considered the specific subject property in relation to cost of sales factors as follows (certain scale and property types will vary significantly if cost of sales is to be performed according to statute).

Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., requires proper consideration of the "net proceeds of sale," regardless of whether an actual sale of the property has occurred. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001). However, the statute does not require the property appraiser to select the value generated by the application of Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., and apply it in a blanket fashion to all assessments. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001).

All property is to be assessed at 100% of just value Walter v. Schuler 176 So.2d 81 (Fla 1965). The terms "just value" "fair market value' and "full cash value" are legally synonymous. Id.

The 1st and 8th criteria were introduced by the legislature after this ruling, suggesting that the legislature wishes real estate to be taxed net of typical sales costs, implying that "just value" is in fact equal to "market value net of typical sales costs". Based on current training material for Special Magistrates, this consistently and strongly advises a deduction for the 1st and 8th criteria.

The PAO testified to documentation that pertains to the DOR treatment of the eight criteria required under FS 193.011. The PAO testified to and has documented how each of the criteria was considered in their development of the assessment in regard to the property at hand. The PAO addressed the requirements of FS 193.011 as follows:

"Factors to consider in deriving just valuation. – In arriving at just valuation as required under s. 4, Art. VII of the State Constitution, the property appraiser shall take into consideration the following factors:

(1) The present cash value of the property, which is the amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arm's length;

The PAO, within the CAMA system, makes an adjustment for cost of sale within their direct application of the sales comparison analysis. An adjustment is made for cost of sale as noted under Criteria 8 in their CAMA analysis and in the reconciliation process.

(2) The highest and best use...,(shortened) Land use and building codes were considered along with the character of any existing site improvements, the subject is noted to be residential use and was not disputed by either party. Comparable data was selected based on this information.

(3) The location of the property; The subject property is assigned a location or neighborhood code within the PAO database related to its specific location. Comparable data is selected with as similar a location as is possible, while also considering other relevant factors.

(4) The quantity or size of the property; The size of the building, the site size and site improvements are based on data contained within the PRC and all comparable sales are selected with attention to similarity of size, while also considering and weighing the other relevant factors.

(5) The cost of said property and the present replacement value of any improvements thereon; Within the CAMA system, the PAO uses cost data and when applicable, considers a pure replacement cost new and depreciation factors within a cost approach to value.

(6) The condition of said property; The condition of the property, through periodic site inspections, actual age, and information submitted to them by property owners is considered by the PAO. The information is given a % good or % depreciation factor and is noted in their subject documentation and/or PRC card and utilized in the CAMA analysis.

(7) The income from said property; and; When applicable, the PAO prepares an income capitalization analysis based on market data contained in their files, general market statistics, and when available, actual subject performance is considered.

(8) "The net proceeds of the sale of the property, as received by the seller, after deduction of all the usual and reasonable fees and costs of the sale, including the costs and expenses of financing, and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms or financing arrangements. When the net proceeds of the sale of any property are utilized, directly or indirectly, in the determination of just valuation of realty of the sold parcel or any other parcel under the provisions of this section, the property appraiser, for the purposes of such determination, shall exclude any portion of such net proceeds attributable to payments for household furnishings or other items of personal property."

The cost of sales is considered by the PAO within their CAMA analysis and in reconciliation when performing discrete sales, income or cost analysis. Sales prices of comparable properties are adjusted downward (reportedly) within CAMA, typically at near 15%.

ULTIMATE FINDINGS OF FACT

Florida Statute section 194.301 elaborates the standards of review that the Special Magistrate must apply to any petition to the Value Adjustment Board. The statute states as follows:

Pursuant to Section 194.301, the Property Appraiser's assessment shall be entitled to a Presumption of Correctness if the Property Appraiser shows, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the Property Appraiser considered each of the eight criteria set forth in Section 193.011, the Property Appraiser applied the correct appraisal methodology based upon the characteristics of the property, and the Property Appraiser did not use appraisal practices which are different than the appraisal practices generally applied by the Property Appraiser to comparable property in the same county.

In accordance with Rule 12D-10.003(5)(a), it is concluded that the PAO DID establish a presumption of correctness by properly considering the eight criteria described in FS 193.011. Further, it is concluded that the methodology used by the PAO IS appropriate and DOES comply with professionally accepted appraisal practices for the subject property type. The Petitioner DID NOT overcome the presumption of correctness.

The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment was based on an arbitrary appraisal practice different from like property in the same county.

The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment is excessive. Thus, the assessed value DOES NOT exceed 100% of the fair market value of the property.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence. See Rule 12D-9.025(1), Florida Administrative Code (FAC). Generally, "relevant evidence" is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. This description means the evidence meets or exceeds the minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. See Rule 12D-9.025(2)(b) FAC.

The Special Magistrate reviewed all evidence presented by all parties. In accordance with DOR guidelines, the Special Magistrate determined that the evidence and testimony was relevant and credible to the valuation at hand. Thus, the evidence as presented was admitted for consideration in relation to the appropriateness of the subject assessment.

The Special Magistrate has determined that the testimonial and documentary evidence (combined) meet the test of "relevancy and credibility" and WAS sufficient to reach the "preponderance of the evidence" standard of proof required by Rule 12D-9.027(6) FAC.

The Special Magistrate also determined that there IS competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with the criteria of FS 193.011 and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish the assessment.

The Special Magistrate finds that the Petitioner HAS NOT satisfied the "preponderance of the evidence" standard under the facts as testified to, that the appraiser's assessment is in excess of just value. After weighing all the documentary and testimonial evidence it is concluded that the assessment IS reasonable and within market parameters.

RECOMMENDATION

It is recommended by the Special Magistrate that the relief applied for in this petition be denied.

Special Magistrate

Colleen E Millett

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

Hernando County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-287	Parcel ID R32 323 17 5170 1087 0120
Petitioner name FKH SFR PROPCO I LP The petitioner is: ☑ taxpayer of record ☐ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	Property address 11442 Beechdale Ave Spring Hill, FL

Decision Summary ☐ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☑ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	329,428.00	328,737.00	274,959.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	329,428.00	328,737.00	274,959.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0.00	0.00	0.00
4. Taxable value,* required	329,428.00	328,737.00	274,959.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact
See attached.

Conclusions of Law
See attached.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	Print name	Date
Colleen E Millett	Colleen E Millett	11/17/2025
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

PETITION NO. 25-287

RECOMMENDATION OF SPECIAL MAGISTRATE

VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD

HERNANDO COUNTY, FLORIDA

IN RE: THE PETITION OF: FKH SFR PROPCO I LP

PARCEL KEY NO: 00602574

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

The Petitioner, Stephanie Garcia of Ryan LLC c/o Robert Hole for FKH SFR PROPCO I LP, appeared before the Special Magistrate to give testimony. The Property Appraiser was represented by BRANDON JIMENEZ and DOUG MACK. All present parties were put under sworn oath.

The Property Appraiser verified the values accordingly; a just value of $328,737, an assessed or capped value of $328,737, and a taxable value of $328,737. There was a change in values after the process to remove a shed $691 thereby prior values were all at $329,428.

The Petitioner estimated just value at $272,716.

Subject Property Type: The subject is a 1,716 SF (heated) single family dwelling with 2,078 adjusted SF that was built in 2005. The subject is located at 11442 Beechdale Ave, Spring Hill, FL.

The PAO evidence consists of an evidence packet with a case synopsis, PRC with photo and an aerial map of the subject property, a sales analysis report with (3) sales, location map of sales, summary of cost of sale adjustment, PRCs for each sale, and verbal testimony.

The Petitioner's evidence consists of a petition, summary of evidence submission, market value analysis grid with (4) sales, location map for subject property, sales location map and verbal testimony.

Per testimony by the PAO, there was a timely evidence exchange. There were no objections, and all the evidence noted above is considered admissible (unless specifically noted as inadmissible).

Overall, the evidence presented meets specific evidence rules (See Rule 12D-9,025(1) and Rule 12D-9.025(2)b, F.A.C) and is considered sufficient, relevant, and credible information available, from which a reliable estimate of just, assessed, and taxable value can be estimated.

BASIC AND UNDERLYING FINDINGS OF FACT

The PAO relied upon the sales comparison approach to value and considered CAMA analysis at TRIM. The approach utilized is considered an appropriate methodology by the Special Magistrate.

The PAO presented their evidence packet with a sales analysis report utilizing (3) improved sales from the subject market area. The PAO performed their analysis utilizing adjusted SF which is generally considered less reliable than utilizing heated SF however, is often used in mass appraisal.

The Petitioner provided (4) improved sales (including the subject transfer if applicable). Of these sales, 2 were used by the PAO. The Petitioner adjusted for differences in age, heated SF, land size, and bedroom and/or bath count. The Petitioner did not provide any information on extra features (i.e. pool) or garages/carports.

The PAO, in rebuttal to the Petitioner's evidence, noted that land adjustments were either missing or inconsistent with the sales provided; Sales 2, 3 and 4 are all smaller in land size, Sale 1 is larger, and only Sales 1 and 2 were adjusted. The Petitioner had no explanation other than the computer program did the calculations. Thus, no supporting testimony for lack of adjustment was provided.

Of the sales provided, (1) Petitioner and (1) PAO sales are not considered reliable (dissimilar in age, lack of adjustments or insufficient support for adjustment, and /or no detail or superior extra features). The median of the most reliable Petitioner sales indicates a just value for the subject of $279,617. The median of the most reliable PAO sales indicates a just value for the subject of $270,300. The median of all the most reliable sales from both parties is $274,959, which is a credible and reliable just value for the subject based on the available data. The PAO just value conclusion is $328,737. This data reliably supports that the subject is over assessed.

The PAO reported that their internal analysis supports a 15% increase in sale prices from 1/1/2024 to the lien date of 1/1/2025. They also reported that the DOR performed a study across this same period, utilizing qualified sales of like property, and concluded a 15% increase over the same period. The Special Magistrate assumes that the PAO utilized a process of sampling paired sales or some other subset of the available data. The Special Magistrate will equally weigh the DOR study results (15%) utilizing all qualified property sales, and the PAO conclusion (15%) and utilize 15% herein.

The Special Magistrate has applied a qualitative analysis of the data submitted by all parties and has also considered the recent sale of the subject property, if applicable. A COS factor of 15%, market conditions adjustment based on 12% annually, age/condition adjustment, land size/value, a factor for adjusted SF or non-heated area as a % of overall space, extra features differences, a SF adjustment, quality and view adjustments were considered.

The PAO considered the cost of sales in their reconciliation process. Proper consideration of the 1st and 8th criteria for the subject property would be approximately 7-12% (cost of sales adjustment; estimated to be brokerage cost of 5-7%, personal property 1-2%, and financing costs of 1-3%, properly considered for the subject). The Special Magistrate will consider this when weighing the appropriateness of each parties' conclusions and the assessment level.

The DOR utilizes 15% cost of sales in their oversight function for all property in aggregate. The Magistrate has considered the specific subject property in relation to cost of sales factors as follows (certain scale and property types will vary significantly if cost of sales is to be performed according to statute).

Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., requires proper consideration of the "net proceeds of sale," regardless of whether an actual sale of the property has occurred. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001). However, the statute does not require the property appraiser to select the value generated by the application of Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., and apply it in a blanket fashion to all assessments. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001).

All property is to be assessed at 100% of just value Walter v. Schuler 176 So.2d 81 (Fla 1965). The terms "just value" "fair market value' and "full cash value" are legally synonymous. Id.

The 1st and 8th criteria were introduced by the legislature after this ruling, suggesting that the legislature wishes real estate to be taxed net of typical sales costs, implying that "just value" is in fact equal to "market value net of typical sales costs". Based on current training material for Special Magistrates, this consistently and strongly advises a deduction for the 1st and 8th criteria.

The PAO testified to documentation that pertains to the DOR treatment of the eight criteria required under FS 193.011. The PAO testified to and has documented how each of the criteria was considered in their development of the assessment in regard to the property at hand. The PAO addressed the requirements of FS 193.011 as follows:

"Factors to consider in deriving just valuation. – In arriving at just valuation as required under s. 4, Art. VII of the State Constitution, the property appraiser shall take into consideration the following factors:

(1) The present cash value of the property, which is the amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arm's length;

The PAO, within the CAMA system, makes an adjustment for cost of sale within their direct application of the sales comparison analysis. An adjustment is made for cost of sale as noted under Criteria 8 in their CAMA analysis and in the reconciliation process.

(2) The highest and best use...,(shortened) Land use and building codes were considered along with the character of any existing site improvements, the subject is noted to be residential use and was not disputed by either party. Comparable data was selected based on this information.

(3) The location of the property; The subject property is assigned a location or neighborhood code within the PAO database related to its specific location. Comparable data is selected with as similar a location as is possible, while also considering other relevant factors.

(4) The quantity or size of the property; The size of the building, the site size and site improvements are based on data contained within the PRC and all comparable sales are selected with attention to similarity of size, while also considering and weighing the other relevant factors.

(5) The cost of said property and the present replacement value of any improvements thereon; Within the CAMA system, the PAO uses cost data and when applicable, considers a pure replacement cost new and depreciation factors within a cost approach to value.

(6) The condition of said property; The condition of the property, through periodic site inspections, actual age, and information submitted to them by property owners is considered by the PAO. The information is given a % good or % depreciation factor and is noted in their subject documentation and/or PRC card and utilized in the CAMA analysis.

(7) The income from said property; and; When applicable, the PAO prepares an income capitalization analysis based on market data contained in their files, general market statistics, and when available, actual subject performance is considered.

(8) "The net proceeds of the sale of the property, as received by the seller, after deduction of all the usual and reasonable fees and costs of the sale, including the costs and expenses of financing, and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms or financing arrangements. When the net proceeds of the sale of any property are utilized, directly or indirectly, in the determination of just valuation of realty of the sold parcel or any other parcel under the provisions of this section, the property appraiser, for the purposes of such determination, shall exclude any portion of such net proceeds attributable to payments for household furnishings or other items of personal property."

The cost of sales is considered by the PAO within their CAMA analysis and in reconciliation when performing discrete sales, income or cost analysis. Sales prices of comparable properties are adjusted downward (reportedly) within CAMA, typically at near 15%.

ULTIMATE FINDINGS OF FACT

Florida Statute section 194.301 elaborates the standards of review that the Special Magistrate must apply to any petition to the Value Adjustment Board. The statute states as follows:

Pursuant to Section 194.301, the Property Appraiser's assessment shall be entitled to a Presumption of Correctness if the Property Appraiser shows, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the Property Appraiser considered each of the eight criteria set forth in Section 193.011, the Property Appraiser applied the correct appraisal methodology based upon the characteristics of the property, and the Property Appraiser did not use appraisal practices which are different than the appraisal practices generally applied by the Property Appraiser to comparable property in the same county.

In accordance with Rule 12D-10.003(5)(a), it is concluded that the PAO DID establish a presumption of correctness by properly considering the eight criteria described in FS 193.011. Further, it is concluded that the methodology used by the PAO IS appropriate and DOES comply with professionally accepted appraisal practices for the subject property type. The Petitioner DID overcome the presumption of correctness.

The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment was based on an arbitrary appraisal practice different from like property in the same county.

The Petitioner HAS shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment is excessive. Thus, the assessed value DOES exceed 100% of the fair market value of the property.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence. See Rule 12D-9.025(1), Florida Administrative Code (FAC). Generally, "relevant evidence" is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. This description means the evidence meets or exceeds the minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. See Rule 12D-9.025(2)(b) FAC.

The Special Magistrate reviewed all evidence presented by all parties. In accordance with DOR guidelines, the Special Magistrate determined that the evidence and testimony was relevant and credible to the valuation at hand. Thus, the evidence as presented was admitted for consideration in relation to the appropriateness of the subject assessment.

The Special Magistrate has determined that the testimonial and documentary evidence (combined) meet the test of "relevancy and credibility" and WAS sufficient to reach the "preponderance of the evidence" standard of proof required by Rule 12D-9.027(6) FAC.

The Special Magistrate also determined that there IS competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with the criteria of FS 193.011 and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish the assessment.

The Special Magistrate finds that the Petitioner HAS satisfied the "preponderance of the evidence" standard under the facts as testified to, that the appraiser's assessment is in excess of just value. After weighing all the documentary and testimonial evidence it is concluded that the assessment IS NOT reasonable and within market parameters.

RECOMMENDATION

It is recommended by the Special Magistrate that the relief applied for in this petition be GRANTED in part with a reduction in the just value to $274,959.

Special Magistrate

Colleen E Millett

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

Hernando County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-288	Parcel ID R32 323 17 5200 1316 0120
Petitioner name FKH SFR PROPCO J LP The petitioner is: ☑ taxpayer of record ☐ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	Property address 13051 Siam Drive Spring Hill, FL

Decision Summary ☐ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☑ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	458,862.00	458,862.00	380,713.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	458,862.00	458,862.00	380,713.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0.00	0.00	0.00
4. Taxable value,* required	458,862.00	458,862.00	380,713.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact
See attached.

Conclusions of Law
See attached.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	Colleen E Millett Print name	11/17/2025 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

PETITION NO. 25-288

RECOMMENDATION OF SPECIAL MAGISTRATE

VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD

HERNANDO COUNTY, FLORIDA

IN RE: THE PETITION OF: FKH SFR PROPCO J LP

PARCEL KEY NO: 00697865

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

The Petitioner, Stephanie Garcia of Ryan LLC c/o Robert Hole for FKH SFR PROPCO J LP, appeared before the Special Magistrate to give testimony. The Property Appraiser was represented by BRANDON JIMENEZ and DOUG MACK. All present parties were put under sworn oath.

The Property Appraiser verified the values accordingly; a just value of $458,862, an assessed or capped value of $458,862, and a taxable value of $458,862. There was no change in values after the process.

The Petitioner estimated just value at $367,843.

Subject Property Type: The subject is a 2,684 SF (heated) single family dwelling with 3,091 adjusted SF, has a pool that was built in 2009. The subject is located at 13051 Siam Drive, Spring Hill, FL.

The PAO evidence consists of an evidence packet with a case synopsis, PRC with photo and an aerial map of the subject property, a sales analysis report with (3) sales, location map of sales, summary of cost of sale adjustment, PRCs for each sale, and verbal testimony.

The Petitioner's evidence consists of a petition, summary of evidence submission, market value analysis grid with (3) sales, location map for subject property, sales location map and verbal testimony.

Per testimony by the PAO, there was a timely evidence exchange. There were no objections, and all the evidence noted above is considered admissible (unless specifically noted as inadmissible).

Overall, the evidence presented meets specific evidence rules (See Rule 12D-9,025(1) and Rule 12D-9.025(2)b, F.A.C) and is considered sufficient, relevant, and credible information available, from which a reliable estimate of just, assessed, and taxable value can be estimated.

BASIC AND UNDERLYING FINDINGS OF FACT

The PAO relied upon the sales comparison approach to value and considered CAMA analysis at TRIM. The approach utilized is considered an appropriate methodology by the Special Magistrate.

The PAO presented their evidence packet with a sales analysis report utilizing (3) improved sales from the subject's extended market area indicating the search area was extended due to size of improvements and pool amenity. The PAO performed their analysis utilizing adjusted SF which is generally considered less reliable than utilizing heated SF however, is often used in mass appraisal.

The Petitioner provided (3) improved sales (including the subject transfer if applicable). Of these sales, (0) were used by the PAO. The Petitioner adjusted for differences in age, heated SF, land size, and bedroom and/or bath count. The Petitioner did not provide any information on extra features (i.e. pool) or garages/carports.

The PAO, in rebuttal to the Petitioner's evidence, noted that land adjustments were either missing or inconsistent.

The Petitioner had a rebuttal to the PAO's evidence noting that the PAO went further in distance while the Petitioner opted to use sales less than one mile from the subject property.

Of the sales provided, (1) Petitioner and (1) PAO sales are not considered reliable (dissimilar in age, lack of adjustments or insufficient support for adjustment, and /or no detail or superior/inferior extra features). The one sale from the PAO that was not considered reliable was that of a duplex property, thus no considered similar as it is an income producing 2-unit property. The median of the most reliable Petitioner sales indicates a just value for the subject of $387,000. The median of the most reliable PAO sales indicates a just value for the subject of $374,425. The median of all the most reliable sales from both parties is $380,713, which is a credible and reliable just value for the subject based on the available data. The PAO just value conclusion is $458,862. This data reliably supports that the subject is over assessed.

The PAO reported that their internal analysis supports a 15% increase in sale prices from 1/1/2024 to the lien date of 1/1/2025. They also reported that the DOR performed a study across this same period, utilizing qualified sales of like property, and concluded a 15% increase over the same period. The Special Magistrate assumes that the PAO utilized a process of sampling paired sales or some other subset of the available data. The Special Magistrate will equally weigh the DOR study results (15%) utilizing all qualified property sales, and the PAO conclusion (15%) and utilize 15% herein.

The Special Magistrate has applied a qualitative analysis of the data submitted by all parties and has also considered the recent sale of the subject property, if applicable. A COS factor of 15%, market conditions adjustment based on 12% annually, age/condition adjustment, land size/value, a factor for adjusted SF or non-heated area as a % of overall space, extra features differences, a SF adjustment, quality and view adjustments were considered.

The PAO considered the cost of sales in their reconciliation process. Proper consideration of the 1st and 8th criteria for the subject property would be approximately 7-12% (cost of sales adjustment; estimated to be brokerage cost of 5-7%, personal property 1-2%, and financing costs of 1-3%, properly considered for the subject). The Special Magistrate will consider this when weighing the appropriateness of each parties' conclusions and the assessment level.

The DOR utilizes 15% cost of sales in their oversight function for all property in aggregate. The Magistrate has considered the specific subject property in relation to cost of sales factors as follows (certain scale and property types will vary significantly if cost of sales is to be performed according to statute).

Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., requires proper consideration of the "net proceeds of sale," regardless of whether an actual sale of the property has occurred. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001). However, the statute does not require the property appraiser to select the value generated by the application of Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., and apply it in a blanket fashion to all assessments. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001).

All property is to be assessed at 100% of just value Walter v. Schuler 176 So.2d 81 (Fla 1965). The terms "just value" "fair market value' and "full cash value" are legally synonymous. Id.

The 1st and 8th criteria were introduced by the legislature after this ruling, suggesting that the legislature wishes real estate to be taxed net of typical sales costs, implying that "just value" is in fact equal to "market value net of typical sales costs". Based on current training material for Special Magistrates, this consistently and strongly advises a deduction for the 1st and 8th criteria.

The PAO testified to documentation that pertains to the DOR treatment of the eight criteria required under FS 193.011. The PAO testified to and has documented how each of the criteria was considered in their development of the assessment in regard to the property at hand. The PAO addressed the requirements of FS 193.011 as follows:

"Factors to consider in deriving just valuation. – In arriving at just valuation as required under s. 4, Art. VII of the State Constitution, the property appraiser shall take into consideration the following factors:

(1) The present cash value of the property, which is the amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arm's length;

The PAO, within the CAMA system, makes an adjustment for cost of sale within their direct application of the sales comparison analysis. An adjustment is made for cost of sale as noted under Criteria 8 in their CAMA analysis and in the reconciliation process.

(2) The highest and best use...,(shortened) Land use and building codes were considered along with the character of any existing site improvements, the subject is noted to be residential use and was not disputed by either party. Comparable data was selected based on this information.

(3) The location of the property; The subject property is assigned a location or neighborhood code within the PAO database related to its specific location. Comparable data is selected with as similar a location as is possible, while also considering other relevant factors.

(4) The quantity or size of the property; The size of the building, the site size and site improvements are based on data contained within the PRC and all comparable sales are selected with attention to similarity of size, while also considering and weighing the other relevant factors.

(5) The cost of said property and the present replacement value of any improvements thereon; Within the CAMA system, the PAO uses cost data and when applicable, considers a pure replacement cost new and depreciation factors within a cost approach to value.

(6) The condition of said property; The condition of the property, through periodic site inspections, actual age, and information submitted to them by property owners is considered by the PAO. The information is given a % good or % depreciation factor and is noted in their subject documentation and/or PRC card and utilized in the CAMA analysis.

(7) The income from said property; and; When applicable, the PAO prepares an income capitalization analysis based on market data contained in their files, general market statistics, and when available, actual subject performance is considered.

(8) "The net proceeds of the sale of the property, as received by the seller, after deduction of all the usual and reasonable fees and costs of the sale, including the costs and expenses of financing, and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms or financing arrangements. When the net proceeds of the sale of any property are utilized, directly or indirectly, in the determination of just valuation of realty of the sold parcel or any other parcel under the provisions of this section, the property appraiser, for the purposes of such determination, shall exclude any portion of such net proceeds attributable to payments for household furnishings or other items of personal property."

The cost of sales is considered by the PAO within their CAMA analysis and in reconciliation when performing discrete sales, income or cost analysis. Sales prices of comparable properties are adjusted downward (reportedly) within CAMA, typically at near 15%.

ULTIMATE FINDINGS OF FACT

Florida Statute section 194.301 elaborates the standards of review that the Special Magistrate must apply to any petition to the Value Adjustment Board. The statute states as follows:

Pursuant to Section 194.301, the Property Appraiser's assessment shall be entitled to a Presumption of Correctness if the Property Appraiser shows, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the Property Appraiser considered each of the eight criteria set forth in Section 193.011, the Property Appraiser applied the correct appraisal methodology based upon the characteristics of the property, and the Property Appraiser did not use appraisal practices which are different than the appraisal practices generally applied by the Property Appraiser to comparable property in the same county.

In accordance with Rule 12D-10.003(5)(a), it is concluded that the PAO DID establish a presumption of correctness by properly considering the eight criteria described in FS

193.011. Further, it is concluded that the methodology used by the PAO IS appropriate and DOES comply with professionally accepted appraisal practices for the subject property type. The Petitioner DID overcome the presumption of correctness.

The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment was based on an arbitrary appraisal practice different from like property in the same county.

The Petitioner HAS shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment is excessive. Thus, the assessed value DOES exceed 100% of the fair market value of the property.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence. See Rule 12D-9.025(1), Florida Administrative Code (FAC). Generally, "relevant evidence" is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. This description means the evidence meets or exceeds the minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. See Rule 12D-9.025(2)(b) FAC.

The Special Magistrate reviewed all evidence presented by all parties. In accordance with DOR guidelines, the Special Magistrate determined that the evidence and testimony was relevant and credible to the valuation at hand. Thus, the evidence as presented was admitted for consideration in relation to the appropriateness of the subject assessment.

The Special Magistrate has determined that the testimonial and documentary evidence (combined) meet the test of "relevancy and credibility" and WAS sufficient to reach the "preponderance of the evidence" standard of proof required by Rule 12D-9.027(6) FAC.

The Special Magistrate also determined that there IS competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with the criteria of FS 193.011 and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish the assessment.

The Special Magistrate finds that the Petitioner HAS satisfied the "preponderance of the evidence" standard under the facts as testified to, that the appraiser's assessment is in excess of just value. After weighing all the documentary and testimonial evidence it is concluded that the assessment IS NOT reasonable and within market parameters.

RECOMMENDATION

It is recommended by the Special Magistrate that the relief applied for in this petition be GRANTED in part with a reduction in the just value to $380,713.

Special Magistrate

Colleen E Millett

FLORIDA Department of Revenue

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

Hernando County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-289	Parcel ID R32 323 18 3742 0000 0960
Petitioner name Invitation Homes 7 LP The petitioner is: ☑ taxpayer of record ☐ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	Property address 11583 Lavender Loop Spring Hill, FL

Decision Summary ☐ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☑ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	336,400.00	336,400.00	325,809.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	336,400.00	336,400.00	325,809.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0.00	0.00	0.00
4. Taxable value,* required	336,400.00	336,400.00	325,809.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact
See attached.

Conclusions of Law
See attached.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	Print name	Date
Colleen E Millett	Colleen E Millett	11/17/2025
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

PETITION NO. 25-289

RECOMMENDATION OF SPECIAL MAGISTRATE

VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD

HERNANDO COUNTY, FLORIDA

IN RE: THE PETITION OF: Invitation Homes 7 LP

PARCEL KEY NO: 01803150

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

The Petitioner, Stephanie Garcia of Ryan LLC c/o Robert Hole for Invitation Homes 7 LP, appeared before the Special Magistrate to give testimony. The Property Appraiser was represented by BRANDON JIMENEZ and DOUG MACK. All present parties were put under sworn oath.

The Property Appraiser verified the values accordingly; a just value of $336,400, an assessed or capped value of $336,400, and a taxable value of $336,400. There was no change in values after the process.

The Petitioner estimated just value at $314,686.

Subject Property Type: The subject is a 2,581 SF (heated) single family dwelling with 2,823 adjusted SF and was built in 2023. The subject is located at 11583 Lavender Loop, Spring Hill, FL.

The PAO evidence consists of an evidence packet with a case synopsis, PRC with photo and an aerial map of the subject property, a sales analysis report with (3) sales, location map of sales, summary of cost of sale adjustment, PRCs for each sale, and verbal testimony.

The Petitioner's evidence consists of a petition, summary of evidence submission, market value analysis grid with (6) sales, location map for subject property, sales location map and verbal testimony.

Per testimony by the PAO, there was a timely evidence exchange. There were no objections, and all the evidence noted above is considered admissible (unless specifically noted as inadmissible).

Overall, the evidence presented meets specific evidence rules (See Rule 12D-9,025(1) and Rule 12D-9.025(2)b, F.A.C) and is considered sufficient, relevant, and credible information available, from which a reliable estimate of just, assessed, and taxable value can be estimated.

BASIC AND UNDERLYING FINDINGS OF FACT

The PAO relied upon the sales comparison approach to value and considered CAMA analysis at TRIM. The approach utilized is considered an appropriate methodology by the Special Magistrate.

The PAO presented their evidence packet with a sales analysis report utilizing (3) improved sales from the subject market area. The PAO performed their analysis utilizing adjusted SF which is generally considered less reliable than utilizing heated SF however, is often used in mass appraisal.

The Petitioner provided (6) improved sales (including the subject transfer if applicable). Of these sales, (0) were used by the PAO. The Petitioner adjusted for differences in age, heated SF, land size, and bedroom and/or bath count. The Petitioner did not provide any information on extra features (i.e. pool) or garages/carports.

The PAO nor Petitioner had rebuttals.

Of the sales provided, (1) Petitioner and (0) PAO sales are not considered reliable (dissimilar in age, number of bedrooms or insufficient support for adjustment, and /or no detail or superior/inferior extra features). The median of the most reliable Petitioner sales indicates a just value for the subject of $320,668. The median of the most reliable PAO sales indicates a just value for the subject of $330,990. The median of all the most reliable sales from both parties is $325,809, which is a credible and reliable just value for the subject based on the available data. The PAO just value conclusion is $336,400. This data reliably supports that the subject is over assessed.

The PAO reported that their internal analysis supports a 15% increase in sale prices from 1/1/2024 to the lien date of 1/1/2025. They also reported that the DOR performed a study across this same period, utilizing qualified sales of like property, and concluded a 15% increase over the same period. The Special Magistrate assumes that the PAO utilized a process of sampling paired sales or some other subset of the available data. The Special Magistrate will equally weigh the DOR study results (15%) utilizing all qualified property sales, and the PAO conclusion (15%) and utilize 15% herein.

The Special Magistrate has applied a qualitative analysis of the data submitted by all parties and has also considered the recent sale of the subject property, if applicable. A COS factor of 15%, market conditions adjustment based on 12% annually, age/condition adjustment, land size/value, a factor for adjusted SF or non-heated area as a % of overall space, extra features differences, a SF adjustment, quality and view adjustments were considered.

The PAO considered the cost of sales in their reconciliation process. Proper consideration of the 1st and 8th criteria for the subject property would be approximately 7-12% (cost of sales adjustment; estimated to be brokerage cost of 5-7%, personal property 1-2%, and financing costs of 1-3%, properly considered for the subject). The Special Magistrate will consider this when weighing the appropriateness of each parties' conclusions and the assessment level.

The DOR utilizes 15% cost of sales in their oversight function for all property in aggregate. The Magistrate has considered the specific subject property in relation to cost of sales factors as follows (certain scale and property types will vary significantly if cost of sales is to be performed according to statute).

Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., requires proper consideration of the "net proceeds of sale," regardless of whether an actual sale of the property has occurred. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001). However, the statute does not require the property appraiser to select the value generated by the application of Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., and apply it in a blanket fashion to all assessments. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001).

All property is to be assessed at 100% of just value Walter v. Schuler 176 So.2d 81 (Fla 1965). The terms "just value" "fair market value' and "full cash value" are legally synonymous. Id.

The 1st and 8th criteria were introduced by the legislature after this ruling, suggesting that the legislature wishes real estate to be taxed net of typical sales costs, implying that "just value" is in fact equal to "market value net of typical sales costs". Based on current training material for Special Magistrates, this consistently and strongly advises a deduction for the 1st and 8th criteria.

The PAO testified to documentation that pertains to the DOR treatment of the eight criteria required under FS 193.011. The PAO testified to and has documented how each of the criteria was considered in their development of the assessment in regard to the property at hand. The PAO addressed the requirements of FS 193.011 as follows:

"Factors to consider in deriving just valuation. – In arriving at just valuation as required under s. 4, Art. VII of the State Constitution, the property appraiser shall take into consideration the following factors:

(1) The present cash value of the property, which is the amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arm's length;

The PAO, within the CAMA system, makes an adjustment for cost of sale within their direct application of the sales comparison analysis. An adjustment is made for cost of sale as noted under Criteria 8 in their CAMA analysis and in the reconciliation process.

(2) The highest and best use...,(shortened) Land use and building codes were considered along with the character of any existing site improvements, the subject is noted to be residential use and was not disputed by either party. Comparable data was selected based on this information.

(3) The location of the property; The subject property is assigned a location or neighborhood code within the PAO database related to its specific location. Comparable data is selected with as similar a location as is possible, while also considering other relevant factors.

(4) The quantity or size of the property; The size of the building, the site size and site improvements are based on data contained within the PRC and all comparable sales are selected with attention to similarity of size, while also considering and weighing the other relevant factors.

(5) The cost of said property and the present replacement value of any improvements thereon; Within the CAMA system, the PAO uses cost data and when applicable, considers a pure replacement cost new and depreciation factors within a cost approach to value.

(6) The condition of said property; The condition of the property, through periodic site inspections, actual age, and information submitted to them by property owners is considered by the PAO. The information is given a % good or % depreciation factor and is noted in their subject documentation and/or PRC card and utilized in the CAMA analysis.

(7) The income from said property; and; When applicable, the PAO prepares an income capitalization analysis based on market data contained in their files, general market statistics, and when available, actual subject performance is considered.

(8) "The net proceeds of the sale of the property, as received by the seller, after deduction of all the usual and reasonable fees and costs of the sale, including the costs and expenses of financing, and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms or financing arrangements. When the net proceeds of the sale of any property are utilized, directly or indirectly, in the determination of just valuation of realty of the sold parcel or any other parcel under the provisions of this section, the property appraiser, for the purposes of such determination, shall exclude any portion of such net proceeds attributable to payments for household furnishings or other items of personal property."

The cost of sales is considered by the PAO within their CAMA analysis and in reconciliation when performing discrete sales, income or cost analysis. Sales prices of comparable properties are adjusted downward (reportedly) within CAMA, typically at near 15%.

ULTIMATE FINDINGS OF FACT

Florida Statute section 194.301 elaborates the standards of review that the Special Magistrate must apply to any petition to the Value Adjustment Board. The statute states as follows:

Pursuant to Section 194.301, the Property Appraiser's assessment shall be entitled to a Presumption of Correctness if the Property Appraiser shows, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the Property Appraiser considered each of the eight criteria set forth in Section 193.011, the Property Appraiser applied the correct appraisal methodology based upon the characteristics of the property, and the Property Appraiser did not use appraisal practices which are different than the appraisal practices generally applied by the Property Appraiser to comparable property in the same county.

In accordance with Rule 12D-10.003(5)(a), it is concluded that the PAO DID establish a presumption of correctness by properly considering the eight criteria described in FS 193.011. Further, it is concluded that the methodology used by the PAO IS appropriate and DOES comply with professionally accepted appraisal practices for the subject property type. The Petitioner DID overcome the presumption of correctness.

The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment was based on an arbitrary appraisal practice different from like property in the same county.

The Petitioner HAS shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment is excessive. Thus, the assessed value DOES exceed 100% of the fair market value of the property.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence. See Rule 12D-9.025(1), Florida Administrative Code (FAC). Generally, “relevant evidence” is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. This description means the evidence meets or exceeds the minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. See Rule 12D-9.025(2)(b) FAC.

The Special Magistrate reviewed all evidence presented by all parties. In accordance with DOR guidelines, the Special Magistrate determined that the evidence and testimony was relevant and credible to the valuation at hand. Thus, the evidence as presented was admitted for consideration in relation to the appropriateness of the subject assessment.

The Special Magistrate has determined that the testimonial and documentary evidence (combined) meet the test of “relevancy and credibility” and WAS sufficient to reach the “preponderance of the evidence” standard of proof required by Rule 12D-9.027(6) FAC.

The Special Magistrate also determined that there IS competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with the criteria of FS 193.011 and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish the assessment.

The Special Magistrate finds that the Petitioner HAS satisfied the "preponderance of the evidence" standard under the facts as testified to, that the appraiser's assessment is in excess of just value. After weighing all the documentary and testimonial evidence it is concluded that the assessment IS NOT reasonable and within market parameters.

RECOMMENDATION

It is recommended by the Special Magistrate that the relief applied for in this petition be GRANTED in part with a reduction in the just value to $325,809.

Special Magistrate

Colleen E Millett

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

Hernando County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-290	Parcel ID R32 323 18 3742 0000 1010
Petitioner name Invitation Homes 7 LP The petitioner is: ☑ taxpayer of record ☐ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	Property address 11551 Lavender Loop Spring Hill, FL

Decision Summary ☐ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☑ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	343,805.00	343,805.00	328,503.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	343,805.00	343,805.00	328,503.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0.00	0.00	0.00
4. Taxable value,* required	343,805.00	343,805.00	328,503.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact
See attached.

Conclusions of Law
See attached.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	Colleen E Millett Print name	11/17/2025 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

PETITION NO. 25-290

RECOMMENDATION OF SPECIAL MAGISTRATE

VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD

HERNANDO COUNTY, FLORIDA

IN RE: THE PETITION OF: Invitation Homes 7 LP

PARCEL KEY NO: 01803203

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

The Petitioner, Stephanie Garcia of Ryan LLC c/o Robert Hole for Invitation Homes 7 LP, appeared before the Special Magistrate to give testimony. The Property Appraiser was represented by BRANDON JIMENEZ and DOUG MACK. All present parties were put under sworn oath.

The Property Appraiser verified the values accordingly; a just value of $343,805, an assessed or capped value of $343,805, and a taxable value of $343,805. There was no change in values after the process.

The Petitioner estimated just value at $318,558.

Subject Property Type: The subject is a 2,619 SF (heated) single family dwelling with 2,861 adjusted SF and was built in 2023. The subject is located at 11551 Lavender Loop, Spring Hill, FL.

The PAO evidence consists of an evidence packet with a case synopsis, PRC with photo and an aerial map of the subject property, a sales analysis report with (3) sales, location map of sales, summary of cost of sale adjustment, PRCs for each sale, and verbal testimony.

The Petitioner's evidence consists of a petition, summary of evidence submission, market value analysis grid with (6) sales, location map for subject property, sales location map and verbal testimony.

Per testimony by the PAO, there was a timely evidence exchange. There were no objections, and all the evidence noted above is considered admissible (unless specifically noted as inadmissible).

Overall, the evidence presented meets specific evidence rules (See Rule 12D-9,025(1) and Rule 12D-9.025(2)b, F.A.C) and is considered sufficient, relevant, and credible information available, from which a reliable estimate of just, assessed, and taxable value can be estimated.

BASIC AND UNDERLYING FINDINGS OF FACT

The PAO relied upon the sales comparison approach to value and considered CAMA analysis at TRIM. The approach utilized is considered an appropriate methodology by the Special Magistrate.

The PAO presented their evidence packet with a sales analysis report utilizing (3) improved sales from the subject market area. The PAO performed their analysis utilizing adjusted SF which is generally considered less reliable than utilizing heated SF however, is often used in mass appraisal.

The Petitioner provided (6) improved sales (including the subject transfer if applicable). Of these sales, (0) were used by the PAO. The Petitioner adjusted for differences in age, heated SF, land size, and bedroom and/or bath count. The Petitioner did not provide any information on extra features (i.e. pool) or garages/carports.

The PAO had a rebuttal to the Petitioner's evidence and noted that all the Petitioner's sales varied in improvement size, and all were smaller whereas the PAO used (3) sales of the same model as the subject.

The Petitioner had no rebuttal.

Of the sales provided, (2) Petitioner and (0) PAO sales are not considered reliable (dissimilar in age, number of bedrooms or insufficient support for adjustment, and /or no detail or superior/inferior extra features). The median of the most reliable Petitioner sales indicates a just value for the subject of $326,015. The median of the most reliable PAO sales indicates a just value for the subject of $330,990. The median of all the most reliable sales from both parties is $328,503, which is a credible and reliable just value for the subject based on the available data. The PAO just value conclusion is $343,805. This data reliably supports that the subject is over assessed.

The PAO reported that their internal analysis supports a 15% increase in sale prices from 1/1/2024 to the lien date of 1/1/2025. They also reported that the DOR performed a study across this same period, utilizing qualified sales of like property, and concluded a 15% increase over the same period. The Special Magistrate assumes that the PAO utilized a process of sampling paired sales or some other subset of the available data. The Special Magistrate will equally weigh the DOR study results (15%) utilizing all qualified property sales, and the PAO conclusion (15%) and utilize 15% herein.

The Special Magistrate has applied a qualitative analysis of the data submitted by all parties and has also considered the recent sale of the subject property, if applicable. A COS factor of 15%, market conditions adjustment based on 12% annually, age/condition adjustment, land size/value, a factor for adjusted SF or non-heated area as a % of overall space, extra features differences, a SF adjustment, quality and view adjustments were considered.

The PAO considered the cost of sales in their reconciliation process. Proper consideration of the 1st and 8th criteria for the subject property would be approximately 7-12% (cost of sales adjustment; estimated to be brokerage cost of 5-7%, personal property 1-2%, and financing costs of 1-3%, properly considered for the subject). The Special Magistrate will consider this when weighing the appropriateness of each parties' conclusions and the assessment level.

The DOR utilizes 15% cost of sales in their oversight function for all property in aggregate. The Magistrate has considered the specific subject property in relation to cost of sales factors as follows (certain scale and property types will vary significantly if cost of sales is to be performed according to statute).

Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., requires proper consideration of the "net proceeds of sale," regardless of whether an actual sale of the property has occurred. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001). However, the statute does not require the property appraiser to select the value generated by the application of Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., and apply it in a blanket fashion to all assessments. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001).

All property is to be assessed at 100% of just value Walter v. Schuler 176 So.2d 81 (Fla 1965). The terms "just value" "fair market value' and "full cash value" are legally synonymous. Id.

The 1st and 8th criteria were introduced by the legislature after this ruling, suggesting that the legislature wishes real estate to be taxed net of typical sales costs, implying that "just value" is in fact equal to "market value net of typical sales costs". Based on current training material for Special Magistrates, this consistently and strongly advises a deduction for the 1st and 8th criteria.

The PAO testified to documentation that pertains to the DOR treatment of the eight criteria required under FS 193.011. The PAO testified to and has documented how each of the criteria was considered in their development of the assessment in regard to the property at hand. The PAO addressed the requirements of FS 193.011 as follows:

"Factors to consider in deriving just valuation. – In arriving at just valuation as required under s. 4, Art. VII of the State Constitution, the property appraiser shall take into consideration the following factors:

(1) The present cash value of the property, which is the amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arm's length;

The PAO, within the CAMA system, makes an adjustment for cost of sale within their direct application of the sales comparison analysis. An adjustment is made for cost of sale as noted under Criteria 8 in their CAMA analysis and in the reconciliation process.

(2) The highest and best use...,(shortened) Land use and building codes were considered along with the character of any existing site improvements, the subject is noted to be residential use and was not disputed by either party. Comparable data was selected based on this information.

(3) The location of the property; The subject property is assigned a location or neighborhood code within the PAO database related to its specific location. Comparable data is selected with as similar a location as is possible, while also considering other relevant factors.

(4) The quantity or size of the property; The size of the building, the site size and site improvements are based on data contained within the PRC and all comparable sales are selected with attention to similarity of size, while also considering and weighing the other relevant factors.

(5) The cost of said property and the present replacement value of any improvements thereon; Within the CAMA system, the PAO uses cost data and when applicable, considers a pure replacement cost new and depreciation factors within a cost approach to value.

(6) The condition of said property; The condition of the property, through periodic site inspections, actual age, and information submitted to them by property owners is considered by the PAO. The information is given a % good or % depreciation factor and is noted in their subject documentation and/or PRC card and utilized in the CAMA analysis.

(7) The income from said property; and; When applicable, the PAO prepares an income capitalization analysis based on market data contained in their files, general market statistics, and when available, actual subject performance is considered.

(8) "The net proceeds of the sale of the property, as received by the seller, after deduction of all the usual and reasonable fees and costs of the sale, including the costs and expenses of financing, and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms or financing arrangements. When the net proceeds of the sale of any property are utilized, directly or indirectly, in the determination of just valuation of realty of the sold parcel or any other parcel under the provisions of this section, the property appraiser, for the purposes of such determination, shall exclude any portion of such net proceeds attributable to payments for household furnishings or other items of personal property."

The cost of sales is considered by the PAO within their CAMA analysis and in reconciliation when performing discrete sales, income or cost analysis. Sales prices of comparable properties are adjusted downward (reportedly) within CAMA, typically at near 15%.

ULTIMATE FINDINGS OF FACT

Florida Statute section 194.301 elaborates the standards of review that the Special Magistrate must apply to any petition to the Value Adjustment Board. The statute states as follows:

Pursuant to Section 194.301, the Property Appraiser's assessment shall be entitled to a Presumption of Correctness if the Property Appraiser shows, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the Property Appraiser considered each of the eight criteria set forth in Section 193.011, the Property Appraiser applied the correct appraisal methodology based upon the characteristics of the property, and the Property Appraiser did not use appraisal practices which are different than the appraisal practices generally applied by the Property Appraiser to comparable property in the same county.

In accordance with Rule 12D-10.003(5)(a), it is concluded that the PAO DID establish a presumption of correctness by properly considering the eight criteria described in FS 193.011. Further, it is concluded that the methodology used by the PAO IS appropriate and DOES comply with professionally accepted appraisal practices for the subject property type. The Petitioner DID overcome the presumption of correctness.

The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment was based on an arbitrary appraisal practice different from like property in the same county.

The Petitioner HAS shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment is excessive. Thus, the assessed value DOES exceed 100% of the fair market value of the property.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence. See Rule 12D-9.025(1), Florida Administrative Code (FAC). Generally, "relevant evidence" is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. This description means the evidence meets or exceeds the minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. See Rule 12D-9.025(2)(b) FAC.

The Special Magistrate reviewed all evidence presented by all parties. In accordance with DOR guidelines, the Special Magistrate determined that the evidence and testimony was relevant and credible to the valuation at hand. Thus, the evidence as presented was admitted for consideration in relation to the appropriateness of the subject assessment.

The Special Magistrate has determined that the testimonial and documentary evidence (combined) meet the test of "relevancy and credibility" and WAS sufficient to reach the "preponderance of the evidence" standard of proof required by Rule 12D-9.027(6) FAC.

The Special Magistrate also determined that there IS competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with the criteria of FS 193.011 and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish the assessment.

The Special Magistrate finds that the Petitioner HAS satisfied the "preponderance of the evidence" standard under the facts as testified to, that the appraiser's assessment is in excess of just value. After weighing all the documentary and testimonial evidence it is concluded that the assessment IS NOT reasonable and within market parameters.

RECOMMENDATION

It is recommended by the Special Magistrate that the relief applied for in this petition be GRANTED in part with a reduction in the just value to $328,503.

Special Magistrate

Colleen E Millett

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

Hernando County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-291	Parcel ID R32 323 18 3742 0000 1020
Petitioner name IH6 Property Florida LP The petitioner is: ☑ taxpayer of record ☐ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	Property address 11545 Lavender Loop Spring Hill, FL

Decision Summary ☑ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	274,461.00	274,461.00	274,461.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	274,461.00	274,461.00	274,461.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0.00	0.00	0.00
4. Taxable value,* required	274,461.00	274,461.00	274,461.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact
See attached.

Conclusions of Law
See attached.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	Print name	Date
Colleen E Millett	Colleen E Millett	11/17/2025
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

PETITION NO. 25-291

RECOMMENDATION OF SPECIAL MAGISTRATE

VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD

HERNANDO COUNTY, FLORIDA

IN RE: THE PETITION OF: IH6 Property Florida LP

PARCEL KEY NO: 01803212

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

The Petitioner, Stephanie Garcia of Ryan LLC c/o Robert Hole for IH6 Property Florida LP, appeared before the Special Magistrate to give testimony. The Property Appraiser was represented by BRANDON JIMENEZ and DOUG MACK. All present parties were put under sworn oath.

The Property Appraiser verified the values accordingly; a just value of $274,461, an assessed or capped value of $274,461, and a taxable value of $274,461. There was no change in values after the process.

The Petitioner estimated just value at $269,369.

Subject Property Type: The subject is a 1,959 SF (heated) single family dwelling with 2,198 adjusted SF and was built in 2023. The subject is located at 11545 Lavender Loop, Spring Hill, FL.

The PAO evidence consists of an evidence packet with a case synopsis, PRC with photo and an aerial map of the subject property, a sales analysis report with (3) sales, location map of sales, summary of cost of sale adjustment, PRCs for each sale, and verbal testimony.

The Petitioner's evidence consists of a petition, summary of evidence submission, market value analysis grid with (6) sales, location map for subject property, sales location map and verbal testimony.

Per testimony by the PAO, there was a timely evidence exchange. There were no objections, and all the evidence noted above is considered admissible (unless specifically noted as inadmissible).

Overall, the evidence presented meets specific evidence rules (See Rule 12D-9,025(1) and Rule 12D-9.025(2)b, F.A.C) and is considered sufficient, relevant, and credible information available, from which a reliable estimate of just, assessed, and taxable value can be estimated.

BASIC AND UNDERLYING FINDINGS OF FACT

The PAO relied upon the sales comparison approach to value and considered CAMA analysis at TRIM. The approach utilized is considered an appropriate methodology by the Special Magistrate.

The PAO presented their evidence packet with a sales analysis report utilizing (3) improved sales from the subject market area. The PAO performed their analysis utilizing adjusted SF which is generally considered less reliable than utilizing heated SF however, is often used in mass appraisal.

The Petitioner provided (6) improved sales (including the subject transfer if applicable). Of these sales, (0) were used by the PAO. The Petitioner adjusted for differences in age, heated SF, land size, and bedroom and/or bath count. The Petitioner did not provide any information on extra features (i.e. pool) or garages/carports.

The PAO had a rebuttal to the Petitioner's evidence and noted that (5) of the Petitioner's sales were similar in size and (1) sale was over 300 sf larger.

The Petitioner stated that it was a good sale due to location.

Of the sales provided, (1) Petitioner and (0) PAO sales are not considered reliable (dissimilar in age, number of bedrooms or insufficient support for adjustment, and /or no detail or superior/inferior extra features). All of the Petitioner's sales had an extra bathroom. The median of the most reliable Petitioner sales indicates a just value for the subject of $275,279. The median of the most reliable PAO sales indicates a just value for the subject of $301,467. The median of all the most reliable sales from both parties is $288,373, which is a credible and reliable just value for the subject based on the available data. The PAO just value conclusion is $274,461. This data reliably supports that the subject is NOT over assessed.

The PAO reported that their internal analysis supports a 15% increase in sale prices from 1/1/2024 to the lien date of 1/1/2025. They also reported that the DOR performed a study across this same period, utilizing qualified sales of like property, and concluded a 15% increase over the same period. The Special Magistrate assumes that the PAO utilized a process of sampling paired sales or some other subset of the available data. The Special Magistrate will equally weigh the DOR study results (15%) utilizing all qualified property sales, and the PAO conclusion (15%) and utilize 15% herein.

The Special Magistrate has applied a qualitative analysis of the data submitted by all parties and has also considered the recent sale of the subject property, if applicable. A COS factor of 15%, market conditions adjustment based on 12% annually, age/condition adjustment, land size/value, a factor for adjusted SF or non-heated area as a % of overall space, extra features differences, a SF adjustment, quality and view adjustments were considered.

The PAO considered the cost of sales in their reconciliation process. Proper consideration of the 1st and 8th criteria for the subject property would be approximately 7-12% (cost of sales adjustment; estimated to be brokerage cost of 5-7%, personal property 1-2%, and financing costs of 1-3%, properly considered for the subject). The Special Magistrate will consider this when weighing the appropriateness of each parties' conclusions and the assessment level.

The DOR utilizes 15% cost of sales in their oversight function for all property in aggregate. The Magistrate has considered the specific subject property in relation to cost of sales factors as follows (certain scale and property types will vary significantly if cost of sales is to be performed according to statute).

Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., requires proper consideration of the "net proceeds of sale," regardless of whether an actual sale of the property has occurred. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001). However, the statute does not require the property appraiser to select the value generated by the application of Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., and apply it in a blanket fashion to all assessments. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001).

All property is to be assessed at 100% of just value Walter v. Schuler 176 So.2d 81 (Fla 1965). The terms "just value" "fair market value' and "full cash value" are legally synonymous. Id.

The 1st and 8th criteria were introduced by the legislature after this ruling, suggesting that the legislature wishes real estate to be taxed net of typical sales costs, implying that "just value" is in fact equal to "market value net of typical sales costs". Based on current training material for Special Magistrates, this consistently and strongly advises a deduction for the 1st and 8th criteria.

The PAO testified to documentation that pertains to the DOR treatment of the eight criteria required under FS 193.011. The PAO testified to and has documented how each of the criteria was considered in their development of the assessment in regard to the property at hand. The PAO addressed the requirements of FS 193.011 as follows:

"Factors to consider in deriving just valuation. – In arriving at just valuation as required under s. 4, Art. VII of the State Constitution, the property appraiser shall take into consideration the following factors:

(1) The present cash value of the property, which is the amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arm's length;

The PAO, within the CAMA system, makes an adjustment for cost of sale within their direct application of the sales comparison analysis. An adjustment is made for cost of sale as noted under Criteria 8 in their CAMA analysis and in the reconciliation process.

(2) The highest and best use...,(shortened) Land use and building codes were considered along with the character of any existing site improvements, the subject is noted to be residential use and was not disputed by either party. Comparable data was selected based on this information.

(3) The location of the property; The subject property is assigned a location or neighborhood code within the PAO database related to its specific location. Comparable data is selected with as similar a location as is possible, while also considering other relevant factors.

(4) The quantity or size of the property; The size of the building, the site size and site improvements are based on data contained within the PRC and all comparable sales are selected with attention to similarity of size, while also considering and weighing the other relevant factors.

(5) The cost of said property and the present replacement value of any improvements thereon; Within the CAMA system, the PAO uses cost data and when applicable, considers a pure replacement cost new and depreciation factors within a cost approach to value.

(6) The condition of said property; The condition of the property, through periodic site inspections, actual age, and information submitted to them by property owners is considered by the PAO. The information is given a % good or % depreciation factor and is noted in their subject documentation and/or PRC card and utilized in the CAMA analysis.

(7) The income from said property; and; When applicable, the PAO prepares an income capitalization analysis based on market data contained in their files, general market statistics, and when available, actual subject performance is considered.

(8) "The net proceeds of the sale of the property, as received by the seller, after deduction of all the usual and reasonable fees and costs of the sale, including the costs and expenses of financing, and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms or financing arrangements. When the net proceeds of the sale of any property are utilized, directly or indirectly, in the determination of just valuation of realty of the sold parcel or any other parcel under the provisions of this section, the property appraiser, for the purposes of such determination, shall exclude any portion of such net proceeds attributable to payments for household furnishings or other items of personal property."

The cost of sales is considered by the PAO within their CAMA analysis and in reconciliation when performing discrete sales, income or cost analysis. Sales prices of comparable properties are adjusted downward (reportedly) within CAMA, typically at near 15%.

ULTIMATE FINDINGS OF FACT

Florida Statute section 194.301 elaborates the standards of review that the Special Magistrate must apply to any petition to the Value Adjustment Board. The statute states as follows:

Pursuant to Section 194.301, the Property Appraiser's assessment shall be entitled to a Presumption of Correctness if the Property Appraiser shows, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the Property Appraiser considered each of the eight criteria set forth in Section 193.011, the Property Appraiser applied the correct appraisal methodology based upon the characteristics of the property, and the Property Appraiser did not use appraisal practices which are different than the appraisal practices generally applied by the Property Appraiser to comparable property in the same county.

In accordance with Rule 12D-10.003(5)(a), it is concluded that the PAO DID establish a presumption of correctness by properly considering the eight criteria described in FS 193.011. Further, it is concluded that the methodology used by the PAO IS appropriate and DOES comply with professionally accepted appraisal practices for the subject property type. The Petitioner DID NOT overcome the presumption of correctness.

The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment was based on an arbitrary appraisal practice different from like property in the same county.

The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment is excessive. Thus, the assessed value DOES NOT exceed 100% of the fair market value of the property.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence. See Rule 12D-9.025(1), Florida Administrative Code (FAC). Generally, "relevant evidence" is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. This description means the evidence meets or exceeds the minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. See Rule 12D-9.025(2)(b) FAC.

The Special Magistrate reviewed all evidence presented by all parties. In accordance with DOR guidelines, the Special Magistrate determined that the evidence and testimony was relevant and credible to the valuation at hand. Thus, the evidence as presented was admitted for consideration in relation to the appropriateness of the subject assessment.

The Special Magistrate has determined that the testimonial and documentary evidence (combined) meet the test of "relevancy and credibility" and WAS sufficient to reach the "preponderance of the evidence" standard of proof required by Rule 12D-9.027(6) FAC.

The Special Magistrate also determined that there IS competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with the criteria of FS 193.011 and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish the assessment.

The Special Magistrate finds that the Petitioner HAS NOT satisfied the "preponderance of the evidence" standard under the facts as testified to, that the appraiser's assessment is in excess of just value. After weighing all the documentary and testimonial evidence it is concluded that the assessment IS reasonable and within market parameters.

RECOMMENDATION

It is recommended by the Special Magistrate that the relief applied for in this petition be DENIED.

Special Magistrate

Colleen E Millett

FLORIDA Department of Revenue

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

Hernando County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-292	Parcel ID R32 323 18 3742 0000 2000
Petitioner name Invitation Homes 7 LP The petitioner is: ☑ taxpayer of record ☐ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	Property address 113 Rose Bud Ln Spring Hill, FL

Decision Summary ☑ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	273,030.00	273,030.00	273,030.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	273,030.00	273,030.00	273,030.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0.00	0.00	0.00
4. Taxable value,* required	273,030.00	273,030.00	273,030.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact
See attached.

Conclusions of Law
See attached.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	Print name	Date
Colleen E Millett	Colleen E Millett	11/17/2025
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

PETITION NO. 25-292

RECOMMENDATION OF SPECIAL MAGISTRATE

VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD

HERNANDO COUNTY, FLORIDA

IN RE: THE PETITION OF: Invitation Homes 7 LP

PARCEL KEY NO: 01803837

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

The Petitioner, Stephanie Garcia of Ryan LLC c/o Robert Hole for Invitation Homes 7 LP, appeared before the Special Magistrate to give testimony. The Property Appraiser was represented by BRANDON JIMENEZ and DOUG MACK. All present parties were put under sworn oath.

The Property Appraiser verified the values accordingly; a just value of $273,030, an assessed or capped value of $273,030, and a taxable value of $273,030. There was no change in values after the process.

The Petitioner estimated just value at $267,226.

Subject Property Type: The subject is a 1,953 SF (heated) single family dwelling with 2,213 adjusted SF and was built in 2023. The subject is located at 113 Rose Bud Ln, Spring Hill, FL.

The PAO evidence consists of an evidence packet with a case synopsis, PRC with photo and an aerial map of the subject property, a sales analysis report with (3) sales, location map of sales, summary of cost of sale adjustment, PRCs for each sale, and verbal testimony.

The Petitioner's evidence consists of a petition, summary of evidence submission, market value analysis grid with (6) sales, location map for subject property, sales location map and verbal testimony.

Per testimony by the PAO, there was a timely evidence exchange. There were no objections, and all the evidence noted above is considered admissible (unless specifically noted as inadmissible).

Overall, the evidence presented meets specific evidence rules (See Rule 12D-9,025(1) and Rule 12D-9.025(2)b, F.A.C) and is considered sufficient, relevant, and credible information available, from which a reliable estimate of just, assessed, and taxable value can be estimated.

BASIC AND UNDERLYING FINDINGS OF FACT

The PAO relied upon the sales comparison approach to value and considered CAMA analysis at TRIM. The approach utilized is considered an appropriate methodology by the Special Magistrate.

The PAO presented their evidence packet with a sales analysis report utilizing (3) improved sales from the subject market area, all are the same size and all are located on the same street as the subject. The PAO performed their analysis utilizing adjusted SF which is generally considered less reliable than utilizing heated SF however, is often used in mass appraisal.

The Petitioner provided (6) improved sales (including the subject transfer if applicable). Of these sales, (1) was used by the PAO. The Petitioner adjusted for differences in age, heated SF, land size, and bedroom and/or bath count. The Petitioner did not provide any information on extra features (i.e. pool) or garages/carports.

The PAO had a rebuttal to the Petitioner's evidence and noted that Sales #2 and #6 were 265 sf larger in size.

The Petitioner stated that it was a good sale as the square footage was within their standards.

Of the sales provided, (2) Petitioner and (0) PAO sales are not considered reliable (dissimilar in age, number of bedrooms or insufficient support for adjustment, and /or no detail or superior/inferior extra features). The median of the most reliable Petitioner sales indicates a just value for the subject of $277,844. The median of the most reliable PAO sales indicates a just value for the subject of $280,245. The median of all the most reliable sales from both parties is $279,045, which is a credible and reliable just value for the subject based on the available data. The PAO just value conclusion is $273,030. This data reliably supports that the subject is NOT over assessed.

The PAO reported that their internal analysis supports a 15% increase in sale prices from 1/1/2024 to the lien date of 1/1/2025. They also reported that the DOR performed a study across this same period, utilizing qualified sales of like property, and concluded a 15% increase over the same period. The Special Magistrate assumes that the PAO utilized a process of sampling paired sales or some other subset of the available data. The Special Magistrate will equally weigh the DOR study results (15%) utilizing all qualified property sales, and the PAO conclusion (15%) and utilize 15% herein.

The Special Magistrate has applied a qualitative analysis of the data submitted by all parties and has also considered the recent sale of the subject property, if applicable. A COS factor of 15%, market conditions adjustment based on 12% annually, age/condition adjustment, land size/value, a factor for adjusted SF or non-heated area as a % of overall space, extra features differences, a SF adjustment, quality and view adjustments were considered.

The PAO considered the cost of sales in their reconciliation process. Proper consideration of the 1st and 8th criteria for the subject property would be approximately 7-12% (cost of sales adjustment; estimated to be brokerage cost of 5-7%, personal property 1-2%, and financing costs of 1-3%, properly considered for the subject). The Special Magistrate will consider this when weighing the appropriateness of each parties' conclusions and the assessment level.

The DOR utilizes 15% cost of sales in their oversight function for all property in aggregate. The Magistrate has considered the specific subject property in relation to cost of sales factors as follows (certain scale and property types will vary significantly if cost of sales is to be performed according to statute).

Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., requires proper consideration of the "net proceeds of sale," regardless of whether an actual sale of the property has occurred. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001). However, the statute does not require the property appraiser to select the value generated by the application of Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., and apply it in a blanket fashion to all assessments. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001).

All property is to be assessed at 100% of just value Walter v. Schuler 176 So.2d 81 (Fla 1965). The terms "just value" "fair market value' and "full cash value" are legally synonymous. Id.

The 1st and 8th criteria were introduced by the legislature after this ruling, suggesting that the legislature wishes real estate to be taxed net of typical sales costs, implying that "just value" is in fact equal to "market value net of typical sales costs". Based on current training material for Special Magistrates, this consistently and strongly advises a deduction for the 1st and 8th criteria.

The PAO testified to documentation that pertains to the DOR treatment of the eight criteria required under FS 193.011. The PAO testified to and has documented how each of the criteria was considered in their development of the assessment in regard to the property at hand. The PAO addressed the requirements of FS 193.011 as follows:

"Factors to consider in deriving just valuation. – In arriving at just valuation as required under s. 4, Art. VII of the State Constitution, the property appraiser shall take into consideration the following factors:

(1) The present cash value of the property, which is the amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arm's length;

The PAO, within the CAMA system, makes an adjustment for cost of sale within their direct application of the sales comparison analysis. An adjustment is made for cost of sale as noted under Criteria 8 in their CAMA analysis and in the reconciliation process.

(2) The highest and best use...,(shortened) Land use and building codes were considered along with the character of any existing site improvements, the subject is noted to be residential use and was not disputed by either party. Comparable data was selected based on this information.

(3) The location of the property; The subject property is assigned a location or neighborhood code within the PAO database related to its specific location. Comparable data is selected with as similar a location as is possible, while also considering other relevant factors.

(4) The quantity or size of the property; The size of the building, the site size and site improvements are based on data contained within the PRC and all comparable sales are selected with attention to similarity of size, while also considering and weighing the other relevant factors.

(5) The cost of said property and the present replacement value of any improvements thereon; Within the CAMA system, the PAO uses cost data and when applicable, considers a pure replacement cost new and depreciation factors within a cost approach to value.

(6) The condition of said property; The condition of the property, through periodic site inspections, actual age, and information submitted to them by property owners is considered by the PAO. The information is given a % good or % depreciation factor and is noted in their subject documentation and/or PRC card and utilized in the CAMA analysis.

(7) The income from said property; and; When applicable, the PAO prepares an income capitalization analysis based on market data contained in their files, general market statistics, and when available, actual subject performance is considered.

(8) "The net proceeds of the sale of the property, as received by the seller, after deduction of all the usual and reasonable fees and costs of the sale, including the costs and expenses of financing, and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms or financing arrangements. When the net proceeds of the sale of any property are utilized, directly or indirectly, in the determination of just valuation of realty of the sold parcel or any other parcel under the provisions of this section, the property appraiser, for the purposes of such determination, shall exclude any portion of such net proceeds attributable to payments for household furnishings or other items of personal property."

The cost of sales is considered by the PAO within their CAMA analysis and in reconciliation when performing discrete sales, income or cost analysis. Sales prices of comparable properties are adjusted downward (reportedly) within CAMA, typically at near 15%.

ULTIMATE FINDINGS OF FACT

Florida Statute section 194.301 elaborates the standards of review that the Special Magistrate must apply to any petition to the Value Adjustment Board. The statute states as follows:

Pursuant to Section 194.301, the Property Appraiser's assessment shall be entitled to a Presumption of Correctness if the Property Appraiser shows, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the Property Appraiser considered each of the eight criteria set forth in Section 193.011, the Property Appraiser applied the correct appraisal methodology based upon the characteristics of the property, and the Property Appraiser did not use appraisal practices which are different than the appraisal practices generally applied by the Property Appraiser to comparable property in the same county.

In accordance with Rule 12D-10.003(5)(a), it is concluded that the PAO DID establish a presumption of correctness by properly considering the eight criteria described in FS 193.011. Further, it is concluded that the methodology used by the PAO IS appropriate and DOES comply with professionally accepted appraisal practices for the subject property type. The Petitioner DID NOT overcome the presumption of correctness.

The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment was based on an arbitrary appraisal practice different from like property in the same county.

The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment is excessive. Thus, the assessed value DOES NOT exceed 100% of the fair market value of the property.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence. See Rule 12D-9.025(1), Florida Administrative Code (FAC). Generally, "relevant evidence" is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. This description means the evidence meets or exceeds the minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. See Rule 12D-9.025(2)(b) FAC.

The Special Magistrate reviewed all evidence presented by all parties. In accordance with DOR guidelines, the Special Magistrate determined that the evidence and testimony was relevant and credible to the valuation at hand. Thus, the evidence as presented was admitted for consideration in relation to the appropriateness of the subject assessment.

The Special Magistrate has determined that the testimonial and documentary evidence (combined) meet the test of "relevancy and credibility" and WAS sufficient to reach the "preponderance of the evidence" standard of proof required by Rule 12D-9.027(6) FAC.

The Special Magistrate also determined that there IS competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with the criteria of FS 193.011 and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish the assessment.

The Special Magistrate finds that the Petitioner HAS NOT satisfied the "preponderance of the evidence" standard under the facts as testified to, that the appraiser's assessment is in excess of just value. After weighing all the documentary and testimonial evidence it is concluded that the assessment IS reasonable and within market parameters.

RECOMMENDATION

It is recommended by the Special Magistrate that the relief applied for in this petition be DENIED.

Special Magistrate

Colleen E Millett

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

Hernando County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-293	Parcel ID R32 323 17 5010 0011 0270
Petitioner name Invitation Homes Inc The petitioner is: ☑ taxpayer of record ☐ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	Property address 1431 Kenlake Ave Spring Hill, FL

Decision Summary ☐ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☑ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	320,557.00	320,557.00	309,837.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	277,343.00	277,343.00	277,343.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0.00	0.00	0.00
4. Taxable value,* required	277,343.00	277,343.00	277,343.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact
See attached.

Conclusions of Law
See attached.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	Print name	Date
Colleen E Millett	Colleen E Millett	12/01/2025
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

PETITION NO. 25-293

RECOMMENDATION OF SPECIAL MAGISTRATE

VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD

HERNANDO COUNTY, FLORIDA

IN RE: THE PETITION OF: Invitation Homes Inc

PARCEL KEY NO: 00206351

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

The Petitioner, Stephanie Garcia of Ryan LLC c/o Robert Hole for Invitation Homes Inc, appeared before the Special Magistrate to give testimony. The Property Appraiser was represented by BRANDON JIMENEZ and DOUG MACK. All present parties were put under sworn oath.

The Property Appraiser verified the values accordingly; a just value of $320,557, an assessed or capped value of $277,343, and a taxable value of $277,343. There was no change in values after the process.

The Petitioner estimated just value at $306,533.

Subject Property Type: The subject is a 1,874 SF (heated) single family dwelling with 2,094 adjusted SF and was built in 2015. The subject is located at 1431 Kenlake Ave, Spring Hill, FL.

The PAO evidence consists of an evidence packet with a case synopsis, PRC with photo and an aerial map of the subject property, a sales analysis report with (3) sales, location map of sales, summary of cost of sale adjustment, PRCs for each sale, and verbal testimony.

The Petitioner's evidence consists of a petition, summary of evidence submission, market value analysis grid with (6) sales, location map for subject property, sales location map and verbal testimony.

Per testimony by the PAO, there was a timely evidence exchange. There were no objections, and all the evidence noted above is considered admissible (unless specifically noted as inadmissible).

Overall, the evidence presented meets specific evidence rules (See Rule 12D-9,025(1) and Rule 12D-9.025(2)b, F.A.C) and is considered sufficient, relevant, and credible information available, from which a reliable estimate of just, assessed, and taxable value can be estimated.

BASIC AND UNDERLYING FINDINGS OF FACT

The PAO relied upon the sales comparison approach to value and considered CAMA analysis at TRIM. The approach utilized is considered an appropriate methodology by the Special Magistrate.

The PAO presented their evidence packet with a sales analysis report utilizing (3) improved sales from the subject market area. The PAO performed their analysis utilizing adjusted SF which is generally considered less reliable than utilizing heated SF however, is often used in mass appraisal.

The Petitioner provided (6) improved sales (including the subject transfer if applicable). Of these sales, (2) were used by the PAO. The Petitioner adjusted for differences in age, heated SF, land size, and bedroom and/or bath count. The Petitioner did not provide any information on extra features (i.e. pool) or garages/carports.

The PAO did not have a rebuttal to the Petitioner's evidence, nor did the Petitioner to the PAO's evidence.

Of the sales provided, (1) Petitioner and (0) PAO sales are not considered reliable (dissimilar in age, number of bedrooms or insufficient support for adjustment, and /or no detail or superior/inferior extra features). The median of the most reliable Petitioner sales indicates a just value for the subject of $318,840. The median of the most reliable PAO sales indicates a just value for the subject of $300,834. The median of all the most reliable sales from both parties is $309,837, which is a credible and reliable just value for the subject based on the available data. The PAO just value conclusion is $320,557. This data reliably supports that the subject is over assessed.

The PAO reported that their internal analysis supports a 15% increase in sale prices from 1/1/2024 to the lien date of 1/1/2025. They also reported that the DOR performed a study across this same period, utilizing qualified sales of like property, and concluded a 15% increase over the same period. The Special Magistrate assumes that the PAO utilized a process of sampling paired sales or some other subset of the available data. The Special Magistrate will equally weigh the DOR study results (15%) utilizing all qualified property sales, and the PAO conclusion (15%) and utilize 15% herein.

The Special Magistrate has applied a qualitative analysis of the data submitted by all parties and has also considered the recent sale of the subject property, if applicable. A COS factor of 15%, market conditions adjustment based on 12% annually, age/condition adjustment, land size/value, a factor for adjusted SF or non-heated area as a % of overall space, extra features differences, a SF adjustment, quality and view adjustments were considered.

The PAO considered the cost of sales in their reconciliation process. Proper consideration of the 1st and 8th criteria for the subject property would be approximately 7-12% (cost of sales adjustment; estimated to be brokerage cost of 5-7%, personal property 1-2%, and financing costs of 1-3%, properly considered for the subject). The Special Magistrate will consider this when weighing the appropriateness of each parties' conclusions and the assessment level.

The DOR utilizes 15% cost of sales in their oversight function for all property in aggregate. The Magistrate has considered the specific subject property in relation to cost of sales factors as follows (certain scale and property types will vary significantly if cost of sales is to be performed according to statute).

Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., requires proper consideration of the "net proceeds of sale," regardless of whether an actual sale of the property has occurred. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001). However, the statute does not require the property appraiser to select the value generated by the application of Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., and apply it in a blanket fashion to all assessments. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001).

All property is to be assessed at 100% of just value Walter v. Schuler 176 So.2d 81 (Fla 1965). The terms "just value" "fair market value' and "full cash value" are legally synonymous. Id.

The 1st and 8th criteria were introduced by the legislature after this ruling, suggesting that the legislature wishes real estate to be taxed net of typical sales costs, implying that "just value" is in fact equal to "market value net of typical sales costs". Based on current training material for Special Magistrates, this consistently and strongly advises a deduction for the 1st and 8th criteria.

The PAO testified to documentation that pertains to the DOR treatment of the eight criteria required under FS 193.011. The PAO testified to and has documented how each of the criteria was considered in their development of the assessment in regard to the property at hand. The PAO addressed the requirements of FS 193.011 as follows:

"Factors to consider in deriving just valuation. – In arriving at just valuation as required under s. 4, Art. VII of the State Constitution, the property appraiser shall take into consideration the following factors:

(1) The present cash value of the property, which is the amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arm's length;

The PAO, within the CAMA system, makes an adjustment for cost of sale within their direct application of the sales comparison analysis. An adjustment is made for cost of sale as noted under Criteria 8 in their CAMA analysis and in the reconciliation process.

(2) The highest and best use...,(shortened) Land use and building codes were considered along with the character of any existing site improvements, the subject is noted to be residential use and was not disputed by either party. Comparable data was selected based on this information.

(3) The location of the property; The subject property is assigned a location or neighborhood code within the PAO database related to its specific location. Comparable data is selected with as similar a location as is possible, while also considering other relevant factors.

(4) The quantity or size of the property; The size of the building, the site size and site improvements are based on data contained within the PRC and all comparable sales are selected with attention to similarity of size, while also considering and weighing the other relevant factors.

(5) The cost of said property and the present replacement value of any improvements thereon; Within the CAMA system, the PAO uses cost data and when applicable, considers a pure replacement cost new and depreciation factors within a cost approach to value.

(6) The condition of said property; The condition of the property, through periodic site inspections, actual age, and information submitted to them by property owners is considered by the PAO. The information is given a % good or % depreciation factor and is noted in their subject documentation and/or PRC card and utilized in the CAMA analysis.

(7) The income from said property; and; When applicable, the PAO prepares an income capitalization analysis based on market data contained in their files, general market statistics, and when available, actual subject performance is considered.

(8) "The net proceeds of the sale of the property, as received by the seller, after deduction of all the usual and reasonable fees and costs of the sale, including the costs and expenses of financing, and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms or financing arrangements. When the net proceeds of the sale of any property are utilized, directly or indirectly, in the determination of just valuation of realty of the sold parcel or any other parcel under the provisions of this section, the property appraiser, for the purposes of such determination, shall exclude any portion of such net proceeds attributable to payments for household furnishings or other items of personal property."

The cost of sales is considered by the PAO within their CAMA analysis and in reconciliation when performing discrete sales, income or cost analysis. Sales prices of comparable properties are adjusted downward (reportedly) within CAMA, typically at near 15%.

ULTIMATE FINDINGS OF FACT

Florida Statute section 194.301 elaborates the standards of review that the Special Magistrate must apply to any petition to the Value Adjustment Board. The statute states as follows:

Pursuant to Section 194.301, the Property Appraiser's assessment shall be entitled to a Presumption of Correctness if the Property Appraiser shows, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the Property Appraiser considered each of the eight criteria set forth in Section 193.011, the Property Appraiser applied the correct appraisal methodology based upon the characteristics of the property, and the Property Appraiser did not use appraisal practices which are different than the appraisal practices generally applied by the Property Appraiser to comparable property in the same county.

In accordance with Rule 12D-10.003(5)(a), it is concluded that the PAO DID establish a presumption of correctness by properly considering the eight criteria described in FS 193.011. Further, it is concluded that the methodology used by the PAO IS appropriate and DOES comply with professionally accepted appraisal practices for the subject property type. The Petitioner DID overcome the presumption of correctness.

The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment was based on an arbitrary appraisal practice different from like property in the same county.

The Petitioner HAS shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment is excessive. Thus, the assessed value DOES exceed 100% of the fair market value of the property.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence. See Rule 12D-9.025(1), Florida Administrative Code (FAC). Generally, “relevant evidence” is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. This description means the evidence meets or exceeds the minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. See Rule 12D-9.025(2)(b) FAC.

The Special Magistrate reviewed all evidence presented by all parties. In accordance with DOR guidelines, the Special Magistrate determined that the evidence and testimony was relevant and credible to the valuation at hand. Thus, the evidence as presented was admitted for consideration in relation to the appropriateness of the subject assessment.

The Special Magistrate has determined that the testimonial and documentary evidence (combined) meet the test of “relevancy and credibility” and WAS sufficient to reach the “preponderance of the evidence” standard of proof required by Rule 12D-9.027(6) FAC.

The Special Magistrate also determined that there IS competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with the criteria of FS 193.011 and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish the assessment.

The Special Magistrate finds that the Petitioner HAS satisfied the "preponderance of the evidence" standard under the facts as testified to, that the appraiser's assessment is in excess of just value. After weighing all the documentary and testimonial evidence it is concluded that the assessment IS NOT reasonable and within market parameters.

RECOMMENDATION

It is recommended by the Special Magistrate that the relief applied for in this petition be GRANTED in part with a reduction in the just value to $309,837.

Special Magistrate

Colleen E Millett

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

Hernando County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-294	Parcel ID R32 323 17 5010 0035 0020
Petitioner name Invitation Homes Inc The petitioner is: ☑ taxpayer of record ☐ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	Property address 6126 Waycross Dr Spring Hill, FL

Decision Summary ☐ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☑ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	315,057.00	315,057.00	309,805.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	274,770.00	274,770.00	274,770.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0.00	0.00	0.00
4. Taxable value,* required	274,770.00	274,770.00	274,770.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact
See attached.

Conclusions of Law
See attached.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	Colleen E Millett Print name	12/01/2025 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

PETITION NO. 25-294

RECOMMENDATION OF SPECIAL MAGISTRATE

VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD

HERNANDO COUNTY, FLORIDA

IN RE: THE PETITION OF: Invitation Homes Inc

PARCEL KEY NO: 00211568

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

The Petitioner, Stephanie Garcia of Ryan LLC c/o Robert Hole for Invitation Homes Inc, appeared before the Special Magistrate to give testimony. The Property Appraiser was represented by BRANDON JIMENEZ and DOUG MACK. All present parties were put under sworn oath.

The Property Appraiser verified the values accordingly; a just value of $315,057, an assessed or capped value of $274,770, and a taxable value of $274,770. There was no change in values after the process.

The Petitioner estimated just value at $306,729.

Subject Property Type: The subject is a 1,874 SF (heated) single family dwelling with 2,094 adjusted SF and was built in 2015. The subject is located at 6126 Waycross Dr, Spring Hill, FL.

The PAO evidence consists of an evidence packet with a case synopsis, PRC with photo and an aerial map of the subject property, a sales analysis report with (3) sales, location map of sales, summary of cost of sale adjustment, PRCs for each sale, and verbal testimony.

The Petitioner's evidence consists of a petition, summary of evidence submission, market value analysis grid with (6) sales, location map for subject property, sales location map and verbal testimony.

Per testimony by the PAO, there was a timely evidence exchange. There were no objections, and all the evidence noted above is considered admissible (unless specifically noted as inadmissible).

Overall, the evidence presented meets specific evidence rules (See Rule 12D-9,025(1) and Rule 12D-9.025(2)b, F.A.C) and is considered sufficient, relevant, and credible information available, from which a reliable estimate of just, assessed, and taxable value can be estimated.

BASIC AND UNDERLYING FINDINGS OF FACT

The PAO relied upon the sales comparison approach to value and considered CAMA analysis at TRIM. The approach utilized is considered an appropriate methodology by the Special Magistrate.

The PAO presented their evidence packet with a sales analysis report utilizing (3) improved sales from the subject market area. The PAO performed their analysis utilizing adjusted SF which is generally considered less reliable than utilizing heated SF however, is often used in mass appraisal.

The Petitioner provided (6) improved sales (including the subject transfer if applicable). Of these sales, (2) were used by the PAO. The Petitioner adjusted for differences in age, heated SF, land size, and bedroom and/or bath count. The Petitioner did not provide any information on extra features (i.e. pool) or garages/carports.

The PAO did not have a rebuttal to the Petitioner's evidence, nor did the Petitioner to the PAO's evidence.

Of the sales provided, (1) Petitioner and (0) PAO sales are not considered reliable (dissimilar in age, number of bedrooms or insufficient support for adjustment, and /or no detail or superior/inferior extra features). The median of the most reliable Petitioner sales indicates a just value for the subject of $318,775. The median of the most reliable PAO sales indicates a just value for the subject of $300,834. The median of all the most reliable sales from both parties is $309,805, which is a credible and reliable just value for the subject based on the available data. The PAO just value conclusion is $315,057. This data reliably supports that the subject is over assessed.

The PAO reported that their internal analysis supports a 15% increase in sale prices from 1/1/2024 to the lien date of 1/1/2025. They also reported that the DOR performed a study across this same period, utilizing qualified sales of like property, and concluded a 15% increase over the same period. The Special Magistrate assumes that the PAO utilized a process of sampling paired sales or some other subset of the available data. The Special Magistrate will equally weigh the DOR study results (15%) utilizing all qualified property sales, and the PAO conclusion (15%) and utilize 15% herein.

The Special Magistrate has applied a qualitative analysis of the data submitted by all parties and has also considered the recent sale of the subject property, if applicable. A COS factor of 15%, market conditions adjustment based on 12% annually, age/condition adjustment, land size/value, a factor for adjusted SF or non-heated area as a % of overall space, extra features differences, a SF adjustment, quality and view adjustments were considered.

The PAO considered the cost of sales in their reconciliation process. Proper consideration of the 1st and 8th criteria for the subject property would be approximately 7-12% (cost of sales adjustment; estimated to be brokerage cost of 5-7%, personal property 1-2%, and financing costs of 1-3%, properly considered for the subject). The Special Magistrate will consider this when weighing the appropriateness of each parties' conclusions and the assessment level.

The DOR utilizes 15% cost of sales in their oversight function for all property in aggregate. The Magistrate has considered the specific subject property in relation to cost of sales factors as follows (certain scale and property types will vary significantly if cost of sales is to be performed according to statute).

Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., requires proper consideration of the "net proceeds of sale," regardless of whether an actual sale of the property has occurred. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001). However, the statute does not require the property appraiser to select the value generated by the application of Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., and apply it in a blanket fashion to all assessments. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001).

All property is to be assessed at 100% of just value Walter v. Schuler 176 So.2d 81 (Fla 1965). The terms "just value" "fair market value' and "full cash value" are legally synonymous. Id.

The 1st and 8th criteria were introduced by the legislature after this ruling, suggesting that the legislature wishes real estate to be taxed net of typical sales costs, implying that "just value" is in fact equal to "market value net of typical sales costs". Based on current training material for Special Magistrates, this consistently and strongly advises a deduction for the 1st and 8th criteria.

The PAO testified to documentation that pertains to the DOR treatment of the eight criteria required under FS 193.011. The PAO testified to and has documented how each of the criteria was considered in their development of the assessment in regard to the property at hand. The PAO addressed the requirements of FS 193.011 as follows:

"Factors to consider in deriving just valuation. – In arriving at just valuation as required under s. 4, Art. VII of the State Constitution, the property appraiser shall take into consideration the following factors:

(1) The present cash value of the property, which is the amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arm's length;

The PAO, within the CAMA system, makes an adjustment for cost of sale within their direct application of the sales comparison analysis. An adjustment is made for cost of sale as noted under Criteria 8 in their CAMA analysis and in the reconciliation process.

(2) The highest and best use...,(shortened) Land use and building codes were considered along with the character of any existing site improvements, the subject is noted to be residential use and was not disputed by either party. Comparable data was selected based on this information.

(3) The location of the property; The subject property is assigned a location or neighborhood code within the PAO database related to its specific location. Comparable data is selected with as similar a location as is possible, while also considering other relevant factors.

(4) The quantity or size of the property; The size of the building, the site size and site improvements are based on data contained within the PRC and all comparable sales are selected with attention to similarity of size, while also considering and weighing the other relevant factors.

(5) The cost of said property and the present replacement value of any improvements thereon; Within the CAMA system, the PAO uses cost data and when applicable, considers a pure replacement cost new and depreciation factors within a cost approach to value.

(6) The condition of said property; The condition of the property, through periodic site inspections, actual age, and information submitted to them by property owners is considered by the PAO. The information is given a % good or % depreciation factor and is noted in their subject documentation and/or PRC card and utilized in the CAMA analysis.

(7) The income from said property; and; When applicable, the PAO prepares an income capitalization analysis based on market data contained in their files, general market statistics, and when available, actual subject performance is considered.

(8) "The net proceeds of the sale of the property, as received by the seller, after deduction of all the usual and reasonable fees and costs of the sale, including the costs and expenses of financing, and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms or financing arrangements. When the net proceeds of the sale of any property are utilized, directly or indirectly, in the determination of just valuation of realty of the sold parcel or any other parcel under the provisions of this section, the property appraiser, for the purposes of such determination, shall exclude any portion of such net proceeds attributable to payments for household furnishings or other items of personal property."

The cost of sales is considered by the PAO within their CAMA analysis and in reconciliation when performing discrete sales, income or cost analysis. Sales prices of comparable properties are adjusted downward (reportedly) within CAMA, typically at near 15%.

ULTIMATE FINDINGS OF FACT

Florida Statute section 194.301 elaborates the standards of review that the Special Magistrate must apply to any petition to the Value Adjustment Board. The statute states as follows:

Pursuant to Section 194.301, the Property Appraiser's assessment shall be entitled to a Presumption of Correctness if the Property Appraiser shows, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the Property Appraiser considered each of the eight criteria set forth in Section 193.011, the Property Appraiser applied the correct appraisal methodology based upon the characteristics of the property, and the Property Appraiser did not use appraisal practices which are different than the appraisal practices generally applied by the Property Appraiser to comparable property in the same county.

In accordance with Rule 12D-10.003(5)(a), it is concluded that the PAO DID establish a presumption of correctness by properly considering the eight criteria described in FS 193.011. Further, it is concluded that the methodology used by the PAO IS appropriate and DOES comply with professionally accepted appraisal practices for the subject property type. The Petitioner DID overcome the presumption of correctness.

The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment was based on an arbitrary appraisal practice different from like property in the same county.

The Petitioner HAS shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment is excessive. Thus, the assessed value DOES exceed 100% of the fair market value of the property.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence. See Rule 12D-9.025(1), Florida Administrative Code (FAC). Generally, “relevant evidence” is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. This description means the evidence meets or exceeds the minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. See Rule 12D-9.025(2)(b) FAC.

The Special Magistrate reviewed all evidence presented by all parties. In accordance with DOR guidelines, the Special Magistrate determined that the evidence and testimony was relevant and credible to the valuation at hand. Thus, the evidence as presented was admitted for consideration in relation to the appropriateness of the subject assessment.

The Special Magistrate has determined that the testimonial and documentary evidence (combined) meet the test of “relevancy and credibility” and WAS sufficient to reach the “preponderance of the evidence” standard of proof required by Rule 12D-9.027(6) FAC.

The Special Magistrate also determined that there IS competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with the criteria of FS 193.011 and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish the assessment.

The Special Magistrate finds that the Petitioner HAS satisfied the "preponderance of the evidence" standard under the facts as testified to, that the appraiser's assessment is in excess of just value. After weighing all the documentary and testimonial evidence it is concluded that the assessment IS NOT reasonable and within market parameters.

RECOMMENDATION

It is recommended by the Special Magistrate that the relief applied for in this petition be GRANTED in part with a reduction in the just value to $309,805.

Special Magistrate

Colleen E Millett

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

Hernando County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-295	Parcel ID R32 323 17 5020 0099 0010
Petitioner name SFR XII NM Tampa Owner 1 LP The petitioner is: ☑ taxpayer of record ☐ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	Property address 1040 Edgehill Ave Spring Hill, FL

Decision Summary ☐ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☑ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	182,302.00	182,302.00	171,419.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	182,302.00	182,302.00	171,419.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0.00	0.00	0.00
4. Taxable value,* required	182,302.00	182,302.00	171,419.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact
See attached.

Conclusions of Law
See attached.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	Colleen E Millett Print name	11/19/2025 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

PETITION NO. 25-295

RECOMMENDATION OF SPECIAL MAGISTRATE

VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD

HERNANDO COUNTY, FLORIDA

IN RE: THE PETITION OF: SFR XII NM Tampa Owner 1 LP

PARCEL KEY NO: 00225795

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

The Petitioner, Stephanie Garcia of Ryan LLC c/o Robert Hole for SFR XII NM Tampa Owner 1 LP, appeared before the Special Magistrate to give testimony. The Property Appraiser was represented by BRANDON JIMENEZ and DOUG MACK. All present parties were put under sworn oath.

The Property Appraiser verified the values accordingly; a just value of $182,302, an assessed or capped value of $182,302, and a taxable value of $182,302. There was no change in values after the process.

The Petitioner estimated just value at $171,391.

Subject Property Type: The subject is an 884 SF (heated) single family dwelling with 1,228 adjusted SF and was built in 1970. The subject is located at 1040 Edgehill Ave, Spring Hill, FL.

The PAO evidence consists of an evidence packet with a case synopsis, PRC with photo and an aerial map of the subject property, a sales analysis report with (4) sales, location map of sales, summary of cost of sale adjustment, PRCs for each sale, and verbal testimony.

The Petitioner's evidence consists of a petition, summary of evidence submission, market value analysis grid with (6) sales, location map for subject property, sales location map and verbal testimony.

Per testimony by the PAO, there was a timely evidence exchange. There were no objections, and all the evidence noted above is considered admissible (unless specifically noted as inadmissible).

Overall, the evidence presented meets specific evidence rules (See Rule 12D-9,025(1) and Rule 12D-9.025(2)b, F.A.C) and is considered sufficient, relevant, and credible information available, from which a reliable estimate of just, assessed, and taxable value can be estimated.

BASIC AND UNDERLYING FINDINGS OF FACT

The PAO relied upon the sales comparison approach to value and considered CAMA analysis at TRIM. The approach utilized is considered an appropriate methodology by the Special Magistrate.

The PAO presented their evidence packet with a sales analysis report utilizing (4) improved sales from the subject market area and noted that one sale had sold twice in 2024 therefore, was represented on the grid twice. The PAO performed their analysis utilizing adjusted SF which is generally considered less reliable than utilizing heated SF however, is often used in mass appraisal.

The Petitioner provided (6) improved sales (including the subject transfer if applicable). Of these sales, (0) were used by the PAO. The Petitioner adjusted for differences in age, heated SF, land size, and bedroom and/or bath count. The Petitioner did not provide any information on extra features (i.e. pool) or garages/carports.

The PAO had a rebuttal to the Petitioner's evidence, stating that adjustments for land size don't match noting that adjustments are negative and should be positive and vice versa and the Petitioner stated that it is a computerized formula that calculates the adjustments.

Of the sales provided, (0) Petitioner and (1) PAO sales are not considered reliable (dissimilar in age or size, number of bedrooms or insufficient support for adjustment, and /or no detail or superior/inferior extra features). The median of the most reliable Petitioner sales indicates a just value for the subject of $171,392. The median of the most reliable PAO sales indicates a just value for the subject of $171,445. The median of all the most reliable sales from both parties is $171,419, which is a credible and reliable just value for the subject based on the available data. The PAO just value conclusion is $182,302. This data reliably supports that the subject is over assessed.

The PAO reported that their internal analysis supports a 15% increase in sale prices from 1/1/2024 to the lien date of 1/1/2025. They also reported that the DOR performed a study across this same period, utilizing qualified sales of like property, and concluded a 15% increase over the same period. The Special Magistrate assumes that the PAO utilized a process of sampling paired sales or some other subset of the available data. The Special

Magistrate will equally weigh the DOR study results (15%) utilizing all qualified property sales, and the PAO conclusion (15%) and utilize 15% herein.

The Special Magistrate has applied a qualitative analysis of the data submitted by all parties and has also considered the recent sale of the subject property, if applicable. A COS factor of 15%, market conditions adjustment based on 12% annually, age/condition adjustment, land size/value, a factor for adjusted SF or non-heated area as a % of overall space, extra features differences, a SF adjustment, quality and view adjustments were considered.

The PAO considered the cost of sales in their reconciliation process. Proper consideration of the 1st and 8th criteria for the subject property would be approximately 7-12% (cost of sales adjustment; estimated to be brokerage cost of 5-7%, personal property 1-2%, and financing costs of 1-3%, properly considered for the subject). The Special Magistrate will consider this when weighing the appropriateness of each parties' conclusions and the assessment level.

The DOR utilizes 15% cost of sales in their oversight function for all property in aggregate. The Magistrate has considered the specific subject property in relation to cost of sales factors as follows (certain scale and property types will vary significantly if cost of sales is to be performed according to statute).

Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., requires proper consideration of the "net proceeds of sale," regardless of whether an actual sale of the property has occurred. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001). However, the statute does not require the property appraiser to select the value generated by the application of Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., and apply it in a blanket fashion to all assessments. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001).

All property is to be assessed at 100% of just value Walter v. Schuler 176 So.2d 81 (Fla 1965). The terms "just value" "fair market value' and "full cash value" are legally synonymous. Id.

The 1st and 8th criteria were introduced by the legislature after this ruling, suggesting that the legislature wishes real estate to be taxed net of typical sales costs, implying that "just value" is in fact equal to "market value net of typical sales costs". Based on current training material for Special Magistrates, this consistently and strongly advises a deduction for the 1st and 8th criteria.

The PAO testified to documentation that pertains to the DOR treatment of the eight criteria

required under FS 193.011. The PAO testified to and has documented how each of the criteria was considered in their development of the assessment in regard to the property at hand. The PAO addressed the requirements of FS 193.011 as follows:

"Factors to consider in deriving just valuation. – In arriving at just valuation as required under s. 4, Art. VII of the State Constitution, the property appraiser shall take into consideration the following factors:

(1) The present cash value of the property, which is the amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arm's length;

The PAO, within the CAMA system, makes an adjustment for cost of sale within their direct application of the sales comparison analysis. An adjustment is made for cost of sale as noted under Criteria 8 in their CAMA analysis and in the reconciliation process.

(2) The highest and best use...,(shortened) Land use and building codes were considered along with the character of any existing site improvements, the subject is noted to be residential use and was not disputed by either party. Comparable data was selected based on this information.

(3) The location of the property; The subject property is assigned a location or neighborhood code within the PAO database related to its specific location. Comparable data is selected with as similar a location as is possible, while also considering other relevant factors.

(4) The quantity or size of the property; The size of the building, the site size and site improvements are based on data contained within the PRC and all comparable sales are selected with attention to similarity of size, while also considering and weighing the other relevant factors.

(5) The cost of said property and the present replacement value of any improvements thereon; Within the CAMA system, the PAO uses cost data and when applicable, considers a pure replacement cost new and depreciation factors within a cost approach to value.

(6) The condition of said property; The condition of the property, through periodic site inspections, actual age, and information submitted to them by property owners is considered by the PAO. The information is given a % good or % depreciation factor and is noted in their subject documentation and/or PRC card and utilized in the CAMA analysis.

(7) The income from said property; and; When applicable, the PAO prepares an income capitalization analysis based on market data contained in their files, general market statistics, and when available, actual subject performance is considered.

(8) "The net proceeds of the sale of the property, as received by the seller, after deduction of all the usual and reasonable fees and costs of the sale, including the costs and expenses of financing, and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms or financing arrangements. When the net proceeds of the sale of any property are utilized, directly or indirectly, in the determination of just valuation of realty of the sold parcel or any other parcel under the provisions of this section, the property appraiser, for the purposes of such determination, shall exclude any portion of such net proceeds attributable to payments for household furnishings or other items of personal property."

The cost of sales is considered by the PAO within their CAMA analysis and in reconciliation when performing discrete sales, income or cost analysis. Sales prices of comparable properties are adjusted downward (reportedly) within CAMA, typically at near 15%.

ULTIMATE FINDINGS OF FACT

Florida Statute section 194.301 elaborates the standards of review that the Special Magistrate must apply to any petition to the Value Adjustment Board. The statute states as follows:

Pursuant to Section 194.301, the Property Appraiser's assessment shall be entitled to a Presumption of Correctness if the Property Appraiser shows, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the Property Appraiser considered each of the eight criteria set forth in Section 193.011, the Property Appraiser applied the correct appraisal methodology based upon the characteristics of the property, and the Property Appraiser did not use appraisal practices which are different than the appraisal practices generally applied by the Property Appraiser to comparable property in the same county.

In accordance with Rule 12D-10.003(5)(a), it is concluded that the PAO DID establish a presumption of correctness by properly considering the eight criteria described in FS 193.011. Further, it is concluded that the methodology used by the PAO IS appropriate and DOES comply with professionally accepted appraisal practices for the subject property type. The Petitioner DID overcome the presumption of correctness.

The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment was based on an arbitrary appraisal practice different from like property in the same county.

The Petitioner HAS shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment is excessive. Thus, the assessed value DOES exceed 100% of the fair market value of the property.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence. See Rule 12D-9.025(1), Florida Administrative Code (FAC). Generally, "relevant evidence" is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. This description means the evidence meets or exceeds the minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. See Rule 12D-9.025(2)(b) FAC.

The Special Magistrate reviewed all evidence presented by all parties. In accordance with DOR guidelines, the Special Magistrate determined that the evidence and testimony was relevant and credible to the valuation at hand. Thus, the evidence as presented was admitted for consideration in relation to the appropriateness of the subject assessment.

The Special Magistrate has determined that the testimonial and documentary evidence (combined) meet the test of "relevancy and credibility" and WAS sufficient to reach the "preponderance of the evidence" standard of proof required by Rule 12D-9.027(6) FAC.

The Special Magistrate also determined that there IS competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with the criteria of FS 193.011 and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish the assessment.

The Special Magistrate finds that the Petitioner HAS satisfied the "preponderance of the evidence" standard under the facts as testified to, that the appraiser's assessment is in excess of just value. After weighing all the documentary and testimonial evidence it is concluded that the assessment IS NOT reasonable and within market parameters.

RECOMMENDATION

It is recommended by the Special Magistrate that the relief applied for in this petition be GRANTED in part with a reduction in the just value to $171,419.

Special Magistrate

Colleen E Millett

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

Hernando County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-296	Parcel ID R32 323 17 5160 0991 0180
Petitioner name Invitation Homes Inc The petitioner is: ☑ taxpayer of record ☐ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	Property address 4214 Landover Blvd Spring Hill, FL

Decision Summary ☐ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☑ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	301,415.00	301,415.00	279,116.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	278,472.00	278,472.00	278,472.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0.00	0.00	0.00
4. Taxable value,* required	278,472.00	278,472.00	278,472.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact
See attached.

Conclusions of Law
See attached.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	Colleen E Millett Print name	12/01/2025 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

PETITION NO. 25-296

RECOMMENDATION OF SPECIAL MAGISTRATE

VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD

HERNANDO COUNTY, FLORIDA

IN RE: THE PETITION OF: Invitation Homes Inc

PARCEL KEY NO: 00561056

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

The Petitioner, Stephanie Garcia of Ryan LLC c/o Robert Hole for Invitation Homes Inc, appeared before the Special Magistrate to give testimony. The Property Appraiser was represented by BRANDON JIMENEZ and DOUG MACK. All present parties were put under sworn oath.

The Property Appraiser verified the values accordingly; a just value of $301,415, an assessed or capped value of $278,472, and a taxable value of $278,472. There was no change in values after the process.

The Petitioner estimated just value at $261,017.

Subject Property Type: The subject is an 1,874 SF (heated) single family dwelling with 2,094 adjusted SF and was built in 2015. The subject is located at 4214 Landover Blvd, Spring Hill, FL.

The PAO evidence consists of an evidence packet with a case synopsis, PRC with photo and an aerial map of the subject property, a sales analysis report with (3) sales, location map of sales, summary of cost of sale adjustment, PRCs for each sale, and verbal testimony.

The Petitioner's evidence consists of a petition, summary of evidence submission, market value analysis grid with (6) sales, location map for subject property, sales location map and verbal testimony.

Per testimony by the PAO, there was a timely evidence exchange. There were no objections, and all the evidence noted above is considered admissible (unless specifically noted as inadmissible).

Overall, the evidence presented meets specific evidence rules (See Rule 12D-9,025(1) and Rule 12D-9.025(2)b, F.A.C) and is considered sufficient, relevant, and credible information available, from which a reliable estimate of just, assessed, and taxable value can be estimated.

BASIC AND UNDERLYING FINDINGS OF FACT

The PAO relied upon the sales comparison approach to value and considered CAMA analysis at TRIM. The approach utilized is considered an appropriate methodology by the Special Magistrate.

The PAO presented their evidence packet with a sales analysis report utilizing (3) improved sales from the subject market area and noted that all sales are within 39 sf of the subject's adjusted SF. The PAO performed their analysis utilizing adjusted SF which is generally considered less reliable than utilizing heated SF however, is often used in mass appraisal.

The Petitioner provided (6) improved sales (including the subject transfer if applicable). Of these sales, (0) were used by the PAO. The Petitioner adjusted for differences in age, heated SF, land size, and bedroom and/or bath count. The Petitioner did not provide any information on extra features (i.e. pool) or garages/carports.

The PAO did not have a rebuttal to the Petitioner's evidence, nor did the Petitioner have a rebuttal to the PAO evidence.

Of the sales provided, (4) Petitioner and (1) PAO sales are not considered reliable (dissimilar in age or size, number of bedrooms or insufficient support for adjustment, and /or no detail or superior/inferior extra features). The median of the most reliable Petitioner sales indicates a just value for the subject of $282,576. The median of the most reliable PAO sales indicates a just value for the subject of $275,655. The median of all the most reliable sales from both parties is $279,116, which is a credible and reliable just value for the subject based on the available data. The PAO just value conclusion is $301,415. This data reliably supports that the subject is over assessed.

The PAO reported that their internal analysis supports a 15% increase in sale prices from 1/1/2024 to the lien date of 1/1/2025. They also reported that the DOR performed a study across this same period, utilizing qualified sales of like property, and concluded a 15% increase over the same period. The Special Magistrate assumes that the PAO utilized a process of sampling paired sales or some other subset of the available data. The Special Magistrate will equally weigh the DOR study results (15%) utilizing all qualified property sales, and the PAO conclusion (15%) and utilize 15% herein.

The Special Magistrate has applied a qualitative analysis of the data submitted by all parties and has also considered the recent sale of the subject property, if applicable. A COS factor of 15%, market conditions adjustment based on 12% annually, age/condition adjustment, land size/value, a factor for adjusted SF or non-heated area as a % of overall space, extra features differences, a SF adjustment, quality and view adjustments were considered.

The PAO considered the cost of sales in their reconciliation process. Proper consideration of the 1st and 8th criteria for the subject property would be approximately 7-12% (cost of sales adjustment; estimated to be brokerage cost of 5-7%, personal property 1-2%, and financing costs of 1-3%, properly considered for the subject). The Special Magistrate will consider this when weighing the appropriateness of each parties' conclusions and the assessment level.

The DOR utilizes 15% cost of sales in their oversight function for all property in aggregate. The Magistrate has considered the specific subject property in relation to cost of sales factors as follows (certain scale and property types will vary significantly if cost of sales is to be performed according to statute).

Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., requires proper consideration of the "net proceeds of sale," regardless of whether an actual sale of the property has occurred. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001). However, the statute does not require the property appraiser to select the value generated by the application of Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., and apply it in a blanket fashion to all assessments. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001).

All property is to be assessed at 100% of just value Walter v. Schuler 176 So.2d 81 (Fla 1965). The terms "just value" "fair market value' and "full cash value" are legally synonymous. Id.

The 1st and 8th criteria were introduced by the legislature after this ruling, suggesting that the legislature wishes real estate to be taxed net of typical sales costs, implying that "just value" is in fact equal to "market value net of typical sales costs". Based on current training material for Special Magistrates, this consistently and strongly advises a deduction for the 1st and 8th criteria.

The PAO testified to documentation that pertains to the DOR treatment of the eight criteria required under FS 193.011. The PAO testified to and has documented how each of the criteria was considered in their development of the assessment in regard to the property at hand. The PAO addressed the requirements of FS 193.011 as follows:

"Factors to consider in deriving just valuation. – In arriving at just valuation as required under s. 4, Art. VII of the State Constitution, the property appraiser shall take into consideration the following factors:

(1) The present cash value of the property, which is the amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arm's length;

The PAO, within the CAMA system, makes an adjustment for cost of sale within their direct application of the sales comparison analysis. An adjustment is made for cost of sale as noted under Criteria 8 in their CAMA analysis and in the reconciliation process.

(2) The highest and best use...,(shortened) Land use and building codes were considered along with the character of any existing site improvements, the subject is noted to be residential use and was not disputed by either party. Comparable data was selected based on this information.

(3) The location of the property; The subject property is assigned a location or neighborhood code within the PAO database related to its specific location. Comparable data is selected with as similar a location as is possible, while also considering other relevant factors.

(4) The quantity or size of the property; The size of the building, the site size and site improvements are based on data contained within the PRC and all comparable sales are selected with attention to similarity of size, while also considering and weighing the other relevant factors.

(5) The cost of said property and the present replacement value of any improvements thereon; Within the CAMA system, the PAO uses cost data and when applicable, considers a pure replacement cost new and depreciation factors within a cost approach to value.

(6) The condition of said property; The condition of the property, through periodic site inspections, actual age, and information submitted to them by property owners is considered by the PAO. The information is given a % good or % depreciation factor and is noted in their subject documentation and/or PRC card and utilized in the CAMA analysis.

(7) The income from said property; and; When applicable, the PAO prepares an income capitalization analysis based on market data contained in their files, general market statistics, and when available, actual subject performance is considered.

(8) "The net proceeds of the sale of the property, as received by the seller, after deduction of all the usual and reasonable fees and costs of the sale, including the costs and expenses of financing, and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms or financing arrangements. When the net proceeds of the sale of any property are utilized, directly or indirectly, in the determination of just valuation of realty of the sold parcel or any other parcel under the provisions of this section, the property appraiser, for the purposes of such determination, shall exclude any portion of such net proceeds attributable to payments for household furnishings or other items of personal property."

The cost of sales is considered by the PAO within their CAMA analysis and in reconciliation when performing discrete sales, income or cost analysis. Sales prices of comparable properties are adjusted downward (reportedly) within CAMA, typically at near 15%.

ULTIMATE FINDINGS OF FACT

Florida Statute section 194.301 elaborates the standards of review that the Special Magistrate must apply to any petition to the Value Adjustment Board. The statute states as follows:

Pursuant to Section 194.301, the Property Appraiser's assessment shall be entitled to a Presumption of Correctness if the Property Appraiser shows, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the Property Appraiser considered each of the eight criteria set forth in Section 193.011, the Property Appraiser applied the correct appraisal methodology based upon the characteristics of the property, and the Property Appraiser did not use appraisal practices which are different than the appraisal practices generally applied by the Property Appraiser to comparable property in the same county.

In accordance with Rule 12D-10.003(5)(a), it is concluded that the PAO DID establish a presumption of correctness by properly considering the eight criteria described in FS 193.011. Further, it is concluded that the methodology used by the PAO IS appropriate and DOES comply with professionally accepted appraisal practices for the subject property type. The Petitioner DID overcome the presumption of correctness.

The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment was based on an arbitrary appraisal practice different from like property in the same county.

The Petitioner HAS shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment is excessive. Thus, the assessed value DOES exceed 100% of the fair market value of the property.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence. See Rule 12D-9.025(1), Florida Administrative Code (FAC). Generally, “relevant evidence” is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. This description means the evidence meets or exceeds the minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. See Rule 12D-9.025(2)(b) FAC.

The Special Magistrate reviewed all evidence presented by all parties. In accordance with DOR guidelines, the Special Magistrate determined that the evidence and testimony was relevant and credible to the valuation at hand. Thus, the evidence as presented was admitted for consideration in relation to the appropriateness of the subject assessment.

The Special Magistrate has determined that the testimonial and documentary evidence (combined) meet the test of “relevancy and credibility” and WAS sufficient to reach the “preponderance of the evidence” standard of proof required by Rule 12D-9.027(6) FAC.

The Special Magistrate also determined that there IS competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with the criteria of FS 193.011 and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish the assessment.

The Special Magistrate finds that the Petitioner HAS satisfied the "preponderance of the evidence" standard under the facts as testified to, that the appraiser's assessment is in excess of just value. After weighing all the documentary and testimonial evidence it is concluded that the assessment IS NOT reasonable and within market parameters.

RECOMMENDATION

It is recommended by the Special Magistrate that the relief applied for in this petition be GRANTED in part with a reduction in the just value to $279,116.

Special Magistrate

Colleen E Millett

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

Hernando County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff.11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☒ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition #	25-297	Parcel ID	R32 323 17 5170 1161 0180
Petitioner name The petitioner is: ☐ taxpayer of record ☒ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	RYAN, INC.	Property address	10419 KEYSTONE STREET SPRING HILL, FLORIDA

Decision Summary ☒ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just Value, required	$279,986	$279,986	$279,986
2. Assessed or classified use value, * if applicable	$279,986	$279,986	$279,986
3. Exempt value, * enter "0" if none	$0	$0	$0
4. Taxable value, * required	$279,986	$279,986	$279,986

*All values entered should be county taxable values, School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision

Findings of Fact

DUE TO SPACE LIMITATIONS, FINDINGS OF FACT ARE SET FORTH IN THE ATTACHED ADDENDA, WHICH IS MADE PART OF THIS RECOMMENDATION REPORT.

Conclusions of Law

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW ARE PROVIDED IN THE ATTACHED ADDENDA, INCORPORATED HEREIN BY REFERENCE.

☒ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	ROBERT C. HICKS Print Name	FEB 6, 2026 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____.
Address: Hernando County Gov't Center BOCC Chambers, Room 160, 20 North Main Street, Brooksville, Florida 34601.
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered.
To find the information, please call (352) 754-4970, or visit our website at vab@hernandoclerk.org.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print Name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date mailed to parties

Addenda

Findings Of Fact

Petitioner Natasha Elliott with Ryan, Inc. appeared telephonically on behalf of TBR SFR TAMPA OWNER 1 LP on January 27, 2026 to provide testimonial and documentary evidence pertaining to the 2025 property assessment for real property located in Hernando County, Florida. The Hernando County Property Appraiser's Office was represented at the hearing by Deputy Appraisers Doug Mack, CFE, Residential Supervisor and Brandon Jimenez, CFE. An opening statement regarding the hearing process and rules of procedure was read and all parties were placed under oath. This petition is one of 22 presented by the petitioner on this hearing date. The specific case numbers are 25-297 through 25-318, inclusive. Any relevant testimony presented during these individual hearings will be incorporated by reference to all hearings to avoid redundancy and expedite the hearing process.

The subject of this petition is listed on the Hernando County tax roll as Parcel ID R32 323 17 5170 1161 0180. This property is described as a single-family residence with a two-car garage and no pool. The subject property is located at 10419 Keystone Street, Spring Hill, Hernando County, Florida. The property consists of 2,387 square feet of adjusted building area with 1,996 square feet of heated living area on a 10,000-square-foot residential lot. The improvements were constructed in 1984. Based on an inspection of the property on September 23, 2025, the property appraiser has determined that the building improvements are of typical construction quality and in average condition. It appears that the subject of this petition has not sold within the 12-month period preceding the January 1 valuation date.

The property appraiser has confirmed the 2025 just value at $279,986, with an assessed value of $279,986 and a taxable value of $279,986. There have been no changes to the values since the Notice of Proposed Property Taxes (TRIM) was issued. The petitioner is requesting a revision to the 2025 just value, proposing a revision in just value to $264,844. This request is supported by sales comparison.

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence, see Florida Administrative Code 12D-9.025(1). Generally, relevant evidence is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. The evidence meets or exceeds a minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. Documentary evidence presented by the property appraiser during the hearing is described and labeled as follows:

- PAO-A (17 pages) - Cover page, case synopsis, subject property record card with building sketch and photograph, sales analysis grid, comparable location map, analysis of sales data, property record card for each sale, list of structure area adjustments

Documentary evidence presented by the petitioner during the hearing is described and labeled as follows:

- PET-1 (9 pages) - Petition, cover page, summary of evidence, sales adjustment grid, adjustment formulas, aerial photograph of subject, street map, location map showing subject and sales

The property appraiser has not raised any objections to the evidence presented by the petitioner during the hearing.

The Florida Legislature has enacted eight criteria that the property appraiser must consider when determining just value. In any administrative or judicial action where a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment, the property appraiser's estimate of just value is presumed correct if it is proven that the assessment was made in compliance with the eight criteria outlined in Section 193.011, Florida Statutes and in accordance with professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The only standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence, meaning the greater weight of evidence, or "more likely than not."

Florida courts have consistently held that the property appraiser is only required to consider the eight criteria, and that applying each factor is not mandatory. The courts have further found that if any one criterion does not reflect just value, it should be disregarded by the property appraiser. The special magistrate finds and summarizes the extent to which the property appraiser has considered each of these criteria in the following paragraphs.

(1) Present cash value of the property - The amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arms-length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In short, the price without transaction costs. The buyer typically pays more, and the seller typically receives less than the price indicated by the documentary stamps due to these transaction costs. In mass appraising, the property appraiser considers this criterion by applying or considering the comparable market sales using the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through comparable sales analysis similar to that found in a fee appraisal. The amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arms-length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In short, the price without transaction costs. The buyer typically pays more, and the seller typically receives less than the price indicated by the documentary stamps due to these transaction costs. In mass appraising, the property appraiser considers this criterion by applying or considering the comparable market sales using the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through

comparable sales analysis similar to that found in a fee appraisal. The property appraiser has presented sales evidence in support of the present cash value. Following are brief descriptions of the sales determined by the property appraiser to be most comparable to the subject and representative of value sourced by property record cards:

PA Sale 1 is located at 11015 Captain Drive and contains 1,909 square feet of heated building area. The residence was constructed in 1989. The property sold in December 2024 for a sale price of $405,000, which reflects a sale price of $212.15 per square foot.

PA Sale 2 is located at 12550 Linden Drive and contains 1,966 square feet of heated building area. The residence was constructed in 1989. The property sold in October 2024 for a sale price of $370,000, which reflects a sale price of $188.20 per square foot.

PA Sale 3 is located at 5236 Harbinger Road and contains 1,918 square feet of heated building area. The residence was constructed in 1981. The property sold in October 2024 for a sale price of $346,500, which reflects a sale price of $180.66 per square foot.

In considering these sales, the property appraiser has compared them based on per adjusted square foot price. Three qualified sales judged to be most comparable to the subject have been presented in support of value. The sales were selected based on similar location, age, size and utility. The property appraiser's approach relies on feature value deductions and weighted "adjusted building area" calculations rather than paired-sales analysis or market-derived adjustments. Florida appraisal standards and case law (e.g., Valencia Center, Inc. v. Bystrom, 543 So. 2d 214 [Fla. 1989]) require that just value determinations be supported by market evidence showing how specific features or characteristics influence sale prices. Deducting fixed feature values from sale prices without verifying their market validity substitutes internal modeling for actual market behavior. While this may be useful for mass appraisal purposes, it does not provide the level of market support required in an individual value review before the Value Adjustment Board. A credible defense of just value in a hearing must demonstrate how specific comparable sales support the subject's assessed value through observable market adjustments. Reliance on internal modeling, without direct evidence of how the market reacts to property differences, fails to establish that the property appraiser's value represents the amount a willing buyer and seller would agree upon under normal conditions. Secondly, the "adjusted building area" metric has no direct market analogue. Buyers and appraisers typically compare residential properties based on heated living area (gross living area per ANSI or Fannie Mae standards). Introducing a proprietary or synthetic size measure distorts the relationship between price and size, undermining the comparability of sales. This means the model may show internal consistency but not external validity in the open market. It is the opinion of the special magistrate that this sales analysis does not follow with generally accepted appraisal practices.

(2) Highest & Best Use – This relates to the consideration of the fundamental appraisal concept of highest and best use or best use to which the property can be expected to be put in the immediate future. For improved properties, the highest and best use of the property as if vacant should be considered as well. The four steps establishing highest and best use are consideration of what is physically possible, legally permissible, financially feasible, and maximally productive. The highest and best use as vacant is identified through land use codes which, in part, are based on zoning. The highest and best use as improved is assumed to be the current use unless evidence shows otherwise. The property appraiser's office considers highest and best use by identifying and recording land size, zoning, building size, location and other characteristics. Once all coding is in place, comparable sales and rentals that have similar characteristics are used to value the property. The highest and best use of this property is for single-family residential use. This determination is undisputed by the petitioner and appears to have been appropriately considered by the property appraiser.

(3) Location of the property – The property appraiser assigns a neighborhood code to every property in the county. Sales of properties in the same or similar neighborhoods are typically used to determine locational adjustments. Often, site-specific location adjustments are made to reflect either an enhanced location (such as a waterfront site or in a golf course community) or an inferior location (such as adjacent to an industrial use or dumpsite). All of the comparable properties presented in support of value are located in the same neighborhood as the subject. The location of the property appears to have been appropriately considered in the determination of just value.

(4) Quantity or size of the property – The property appraiser must consider the quantity or size of the property by determining and recording the correct land size, building size, and extra features sizes and quantities. Land size is based on legal descriptions from recorded plats or metes and bounds. Building sizes and extra features are determined by inspection and measured by deputy property appraisers. From the evidence presented there do not appear to be any notable discrepancies in size or quantity beyond what is previously been discussed. There does not appear to be any discrepancy in heated building area between the parties; however, as discussed, making comparisons based on adjusted building areas after deducting extra features is inconsistent with market standards.

(5) The cost of the property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon - No separate analysis of cost has been presented during the hearing. The property appraiser indicates that typical residential homebuyers do not rely on development costs when valuing residential property. Cost calculations found on the property record card appear to be supportive of just value.

(6) Condition of the property – The property appraiser considers the condition of properties through periodic property inspections, no less than once every five years as required by Statute. Other events can trigger more frequent site inspections, including the sale of a property, issuance of a building permit, assessment appeal, or at the taxpayer's request. Condition is considered as a factor applied to the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System value calculation for value losses from all sources based upon an age/life depreciation method. Photographs of the subject property have been presented as evidence of condition. The property appraiser confirmed that a personal exterior inspection of this property has been made for the purpose of determining extra features and the condition of the property. It appears that the property appraiser has appropriately considered this condition.

(7) The income from the property - Residential properties are typically valued for ad valorem tax purposes using the sales comparison approach, as provided for under Section 193.011, Florida Statutes. Comparable sales are relied upon due to the limited availability of market data on residential rental income, operating expenses, and capitalization rates for properties similar to the subject. In the residential market, buyers and sellers generally do not consider income-generating potential when evaluating a property for purchase. The special magistrate finds that the property appraiser has given adequate consideration to this criterion in the analysis of the property.

(8) Cost of Sale Adjustment - This criterion deals with the net proceeds from the sale of a property as received by the seller after deduction of all of the usual and reasonable fees and costs and expenses of financing and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms of financing arrangements. A few examples of the applicability of this criterion include: • unconventional or atypical financing arrangements, such as seller financing at favorable terms, which inflated the price, relative to what would have been achieved with a cash or case-equivalent arrangement, • the inclusion of tangible personal property, which may serve to increase the price above pure real property consideration, • atypically motivated buyers, who may pay a premium relative to that paid by the general market, • atypical closing costs arrangements, such as a seller paying the buyer's closing costs in exchange for a higher sales price. Because these situations may not be discoverable by the mass appraiser relying on raw gross price data, a deduction from the raw gross price is made with the goal being to arrive at 100% of the market value of the real property by eliminating any possible impact of non-real property consideration. This mass appraisal method is found to be acceptable by the Florida Department of Revenue and the Florida Courts. Applicable law provides for uniform cost of sale deductions in just valuations without regard to whether (1) the subject property was sold, (2) mass appraisal or single property appraisal is used, (3) the appraisal approach used to value the property, (4) the petitioner is seeking an increase or decrease in just value, (5) appraised development or VAB review is involved. There is no legal authority for variation in the application of cost of sale deductions based on any of the preceding conditions. The professionally accepted appraisal practice is for Florida property appraisers to uniformly make cost of sale deductions of for all property within use code groups and then report these deductions on Form DR-493 to the Department of Revenue while, understandably, avoiding the impractical task of supporting these deductions in the absence of sufficiently reliable market data that demonstrates the typical, prevalent, and representative cost of sale deductions for each class of real property. In support of consideration of this criterion, the property appraiser has presented an analysis of the ratio between the aggregate sale price paid for all comparable properties compared with their aggregate just value assessments resulting in an average cost of sale adjustment of 27%. While this calculation may demonstrate a general relationship between assessed values and sale prices within the sample, it does not establish adequate support specific to the subject property for this assessment review.

It is implicit in mass appraisal that, even when properly specified and calibrated models are employed, some individual value conclusions may not meet standards of reasonableness, consistency, and accuracy. The purpose of this value review is to determine whether the just value reported on the current tax roll represents the just value of the property after consideration of the criteria set forth in Florida Statute §193.011 and generally accepted appraisal principles, including those applicable to mass appraisal. In reviewing the evidence presented by the property appraiser at this hearing, the special magistrate finds that the property appraiser did not appropriately consider the factors set forth in Florida Statute §193.011, specifically (1), (4) and (8); and therefore, the presumption of correctness has not been established.

By filing this petition, the petitioner alleges that the property appraiser has assessed the property in excess of just value. According to 12D-9.025(3)(a) of the Florida Administrative Code, the petitioner is responsible for presenting relevant and credible evidence in support of his or her belief that the property appraiser's determination is incorrect. To prevail in an assessment challenge, the taxpayer must prove more than a mere difference of opinion regarding an assessment. The following paragraphs describe how the petitioner has addressed each of the eight criteria of the Statute.

(1) Present cash value of the property - In support of a revision to just value, the petitioner has presented the following sales:

PET Sale 1 is located at 10445 Tassel St and reflects an adjusted building size of 1,740 square feet with a 1985 year built on a 12,125-square-foot site, with pool reported as N. The sale date is 2024-09 and the Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $308,750 ($177.44 per square foot). This adjusted sale price does not support a reduction in assessment.

PET Sale 2 is located at 10524 Thornberry Dr and reflects an adjusted building size of 2,208 square feet with a 2006 year built on an 11,466-square-foot site, with pool reported as N. The sale date is 2024-12 and the Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $258,375 ($117.02 per square foot).

PET Sale 3 is located at 10492 Timbercrest Rd and reflects an adjusted building size of 1,700 square feet with a 1984 year built on a 10,000-square-foot site, with pool reported as N. The sale date is 2024-03 and the Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $289,250 ($170.15 per square foot). This adjusted sale price does not support a reduction in assessment.

PET Sale 4 is located at 5035 Tiburon Ave and reflects an adjusted building size of 1,608 square feet with a 2005 year built on a 10,000-square-foot site, with pool reported as N. The sale date is 2024-11 and the Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $362,415 ($225.38 per square foot). This adjusted sale price does not support a reduction in assessment.

PET Sale 5 is located at 5043 Tiburon Ave and reflects an adjusted building size of 2,020 square feet with a 2005 year built on a 10,000-square-foot site, with pool reported as N. The sale date is 2025-01 and the Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $250,000 ($123.76 per square foot).

PET Sale 6 is located at 10386 Norvell Rd and reflects an adjusted building size of 2,356 square feet with a 2002 year built on a 13,616-square-foot site, with pool reported as N. The sale date is 2024-12 and the Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $120,275 ($51.05 per square foot).

The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Prices range from $120,275 to $362,415, with a mean of $264,844. PET Sale 1, PET Sale 3, and PET Sale 4 have Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price PSF greater than the $140.27 per-square-foot Just Value. The petitioner compares these sales based on total price. The petitioner has presented sales that are claimed to be more similar to the subject than the sales relied upon by the property appraiser. Price adjustments were made to account for differences between the sales and the subject property including a 15% adjustment for cost of sale. The petitioner has presented no rebuttal as to the property appraiser's appraisal methods or chosen sales and has not identified a specific methodological error, factual inaccuracy, or inconsistency in the property appraiser's analysis. The petitioner's analysis is based on unsupported adjustments, many of which are calculated using the assessed values of the sales. The petitioner has not visited the subject or any of the sales and has not appropriately compared condition. The property appraiser's just value falls within the range of adjusted sale prices presented by the petitioner and the per-square-foot just value is supported by one or more of the petitioner's adjusted per-square foot sale prices. An adjusted range between $120,275 and $362,415 suggests that the adjustments are not representative of the market.

(2) Highest and Best Use - The petitioner does not dispute that the highest and best use of the subject property is single-family residential.

(3) Location of the property - The petitioner appears familiar with the location characteristics of the subject property and has not claimed the presence of any atypical or adverse location factors that would materially affect its use or value.

(4) Quantity or size of the property - The petitioner does not dispute the size or quantity of the land or improvements reported by the property appraiser during the hearing, nor was any allegation made that these factors were miscalculated or improperly considered in the valuation.

(5) The cost of the property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon - The petitioner has presented no analysis of land value or depreciated building costs. Cost is rarely used to value this market sector.

(6) Condition - The petitioner has not presented any credible evidence or asserted that the condition of the property differs from the description provided by the property appraiser during the hearing. Furthermore, no claim was made regarding any significant physical deficiencies that would affect the property's use or value.

(7) The income from the property - The petitioner has presented no analysis of income and expense at this hearing, however, as mentioned, this method is also rarely used to value residential properties for ad valorem tax purposes.

(8) Cost of Sale Adjustment - The petitioner has made specific deductions for cost of sale based on the DR-493 form submitted by the property appraiser to the Florida Department of Revenue in consideration of this criterion.

The petitioner has not specifically challenged the market evidence or the analysis conducted by the property appraiser in support of the just value of the subject property. Merely presenting an alternative analysis is not sufficient to warrant a change in assessment. Pursuant to Florida Statute §194.301(1) it is the petitioner's responsibility to demonstrate that the property appraiser's evidence and/or analysis are incorrect, and that the determined value does not represent the just value of the property by a preponderance of the evidence.

After careful consideration of all evidence presented at the hearing, the special magistrate finds that the property appraiser has not established the presumption of correctness. However, the hearing record does contain competent, substantial evidence of just value that complies with the eight criteria set forth in Florida Statute §193.011 and generally accepted appraisal principles. The unadjusted sale prices for the sales contained in the hearing record range from $181,500 to $405,000, although the lower end of this range appears to be an outlier. These sales were identified by both the property appraiser and the petitioner as the most comparable to the subject property. However, because the petitioner's adjustments are not supported by market evidence, they are afforded little weight. Applying a fifteen percent cost-of-sale adjustment results in an indicated value range of $154,275 to $344,250. Because the subject's just value does not exceed this adjusted range, the evidence in the hearing record indicates that the assessment is not overstated. Accordingly, the special magistrate recommends no change in the just value established by the property appraiser.

Conclusions of Law

Pursuant to §194.301(1), Florida Statutes, in any administrative action in which a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment of value, the property appraiser's assessment is presumed correct if the property appraiser proves by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment was arrived at in compliance with §193.011, Florida Statutes, and professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The applicable standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence. Based upon the evidence presented and admitted at the hearing, the special magistrate concludes that the property appraiser did not establish the presumption of correctness. The evidence relied upon by the property appraiser did not sufficiently demonstrate that all applicable statutory criteria were properly considered in a manner consistent with generally accepted appraisal practices for an individual assessment review. Pursuant to §194.301(2)(b), Florida Statutes, when the presumption of correctness is not established, the value adjustment board or special magistrate is required to determine the assessment if there is competent, substantial evidence of just value in the hearing record which cumulatively satisfies the criteria set forth in §193.011, Florida Statutes, and professionally accepted appraisal practices. The special magistrate is not required to adopt the specific value advocated by either party and may establish or affirm a value supported by the competent, substantial evidence in the record. The special magistrate concludes that the hearing record contains competent, substantial evidence of just value. The market evidence presented and admitted at the hearing, when considered in its entirety and in light of the statutory valuation criteria, supports the conclusion that the just value determined by the property appraiser is supported by the evidence and is not shown to be excessive, insufficient, or otherwise incorrect by a preponderance of the evidence. Accordingly, pursuant to §194.301, Florida Statutes, and the applicable provisions of Rule Chapter 12D-9, Florida Administrative Code, the special magistrate recommends that the value adjustment board take no action to change the just value determined by the property appraiser.

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

Hernando County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff.11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☒ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition #	25-298	Parcel ID	R32 323 17 5220 1520 0060
Petitioner name The petitioner is: ☐ taxpayer of record ☒ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	RYAN, INC.	Property address	6207 FREEPORT DRIVE SPRING HILL, FLORIDA

Decision Summary ☒ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just Value, required	$304,412	$304,412	$304,412
2. Assessed or classified use value, * if applicable	$262,735	$262,735	$262,735
3. Exempt value, * enter "0" if none	$0	$0	$0
4. Taxable value, * required	$262,735	$262,735	$262,735

*All values entered should be county taxable values, School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision

Findings of Fact

DUE TO SPACE LIMITATIONS, FINDINGS OF FACT ARE SET FORTH IN THE ATTACHED ADDENDA, WHICH IS MADE PART OF THIS RECOMMENDATION REPORT.

Conclusions of Law

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW ARE PROVIDED IN THE ATTACHED ADDENDA, INCORPORATED HEREIN BY REFERENCE.

☒ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	ROBERT C. HICKS Print Name	FEB 6, 2026 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____.
Address: Hernando County Gov't Center BOCC Chambers, Room 160, 20 North Main Street, Brooksville, Florida 34601.
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered.
To find the information, please call (352) 754-4970, or visit our website at vab@hernandoclerk.org.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print Name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date mailed to parties

Addenda

Findings Of Fact

Petitioner Natasha Elliott with Ryan, Inc. appeared telephonically on behalf of INVITATION HOMES INC. on January 27, 2026 to provide testimonial and documentary evidence pertaining to the 2025 property assessment for real property located in Hernando County, Florida. The Hernando County Property Appraiser's Office was represented at the hearing by Deputy Appraisers Doug Mack, CFE, Residential Supervisor and Brandon Jimenez, CFE. An opening statement regarding the hearing process and rules of procedure was read and all parties were placed under oath. This petition is one of 22 presented by the petitioner on this hearing date. The specific case numbers are 25-297 through 25-318, inclusive. Any relevant testimony presented during these individual hearings will be incorporated by reference to all hearings to avoid redundancy and expedite the hearing process.

The subject of this petition is listed on the Hernando County tax roll as Parcel ID R32 323 17 5220 1520 0060. This property is described as a single-family residence with a two-car garage and no pool. The subject property is located at 6207 Freeport Drive, Spring Hill, Hernando County, Florida. The property consists of 2,094 square feet of adjusted building area with 1,874 square feet of heated living area on a 10,000-square-foot residential lot. The improvements were constructed in 2015. Based on an inspection of the property on September 24, 2025, the property appraiser has determined that the building improvements are of typical construction quality and in average condition. It appears that the subject of this petition has not sold within the 12-month period preceding the January 1 valuation date.

The property appraiser has confirmed the 2025 just value at $304,412, with an assessed value of $262,735 and a taxable value of $262,735. There have been no changes to the values since the Notice of Proposed Property Taxes (TRIM) was issued. The petitioner is requesting a revision to the 2025 just value, proposing a revision in just value to $285,165. This request is supported by sales comparison.

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence, see Florida Administrative Code 12D-9.025(1). Generally, relevant evidence is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. The evidence meets or exceeds a minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. Documentary evidence presented by the property appraiser during the hearing is described and labeled as follows:

- PAO-A (17 pages) - Cover page, case synopsis, subject property record card with building sketch and photograph, sales analysis grid, comparable location map, analysis of sales data, property record card for each sale, list of structure area adjustments

Documentary evidence presented by the petitioner during the hearing is described and labeled as follows:

- PET-1 (9 pages) - Petition, cover page, summary of evidence, sales adjustment grid, adjustment formulas, aerial photograph of subject, street map, location map showing subject and sales

The property appraiser has not raised any objections to the evidence presented by the petitioner during the hearing.

The Florida Legislature has enacted eight criteria that the property appraiser must consider when determining just value. In any administrative or judicial action where a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment, the property appraiser's estimate of just value is presumed correct if it is proven that the assessment was made in compliance with the eight criteria outlined in Section 193.011, Florida Statutes and in accordance with professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The only standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence, meaning the greater weight of evidence, or "more likely than not."

Florida courts have consistently held that the property appraiser is only required to consider the eight criteria, and that applying each factor is not mandatory. The courts have further found that if any one criterion does not reflect just value, it should be disregarded by the property appraiser. The special magistrate finds and summarizes the extent to which the property appraiser has considered each of these criteria in the following paragraphs.

(1) Present cash value of the property - The amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arms-length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In short, the price without transaction costs. The buyer typically pays more, and the seller typically receives less than the price indicated by the documentary stamps due to these transaction costs. In mass appraising, the property appraiser considers this criterion by applying or considering the comparable market sales using the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through comparable sales analysis similar to that found in a fee appraisal. The amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arms-length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In short, the price without transaction costs. The buyer typically pays more, and the seller typically receives less than the price indicated by the documentary stamps due to these transaction costs. In mass appraising, the property appraiser considers this criterion by applying or considering the comparable market sales using the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through

comparable sales analysis similar to that found in a fee appraisal. The property appraiser has presented sales evidence in support of the present cash value. Following are brief descriptions of the sales determined by the property appraiser to be most comparable to the subject and representative of value sourced by property record cards:

PA Sale 1 is located at 2649 Waterfall Dr and reflects 1,639 square feet of heated building area (base) with a 1999 year built. The sale occurred in April 2024 for a price of $377,000, which equates to $230.02 per square foot.

PA Sale 2 is located at 9219 Bay Dr and reflects 1,640 square feet of heated building area (base) with a 1994 year built. The sale occurred in February 2024 for a price of $325,000, which equates to $198.17 per square foot.

PA Sale 3 is located at 10199 Norwick St and reflects 1,974 square feet of heated building area (base) with a 2001 year built. The sale occurred in August 2024 for a price of $460,000, which equates to $233.03 per square foot.

In considering these sales, the property appraiser has compared them based on per adjusted square foot price. Three qualified sales judged to be most comparable to the subject have been presented in support of value. The sales were selected based on similar location, age, size and utility. The property appraiser's approach relies on feature value deductions and weighted "adjusted building area" calculations rather than paired-sales analysis or market-derived adjustments. Florida appraisal standards and case law (e.g., Valencia Center, Inc. v. Bystrom, 543 So. 2d 214 [Fla. 1989]) require that just value determinations be supported by market evidence showing how specific features or characteristics influence sale prices. Deducting fixed feature values from sale prices without verifying their market validity substitutes internal modeling for actual market behavior. While this may be useful for mass appraisal purposes, it does not provide the level of market support required in an individual value review before the Value Adjustment Board. A credible defense of just value in a hearing must demonstrate how specific comparable sales support the subject's assessed value through observable market adjustments. Reliance on internal modeling, without direct evidence of how the market reacts to property differences, fails to establish that the property appraiser's value represents the amount a willing buyer and seller would agree upon under normal conditions. Secondly, the "adjusted building area" metric has no direct market analogue. Buyers and appraisers typically compare residential properties based on heated living area (gross living area per ANSI or Fannie Mae standards). Introducing a proprietary or synthetic size measure distorts the relationship between price and size, undermining the comparability of sales. This means the model may show internal consistency but not external validity in the open market. It is the opinion of the special magistrate that this sales analysis does not follow with generally accepted appraisal practices.

(2) Highest & Best Use – This relates to the consideration of the fundamental appraisal concept of highest and best use or best use to which the property can be expected to be put in the immediate future. For improved properties, the highest and best use of the property as if vacant should be considered as well. The four steps establishing highest and best use are consideration of what is physically possible, legally permissible, financially feasible, and maximally productive. The highest and best use as vacant is identified through land use codes which, in part, are based on zoning. The highest and best use as improved is assumed to be the current use unless evidence shows otherwise. The property appraiser's office considers highest and best use by identifying and recording land size, zoning, building size, location and other characteristics. Once all coding is in place, comparable sales and rentals that have similar characteristics are used to value the property. The highest and best use of this property is for single-family residential use. This determination is undisputed by the petitioner and appears to have been appropriately considered by the property appraiser.

(3) Location of the property – The property appraiser assigns a neighborhood code to every property in the county. Sales of properties in the same or similar neighborhoods are typically used to determine locational adjustments. Often, site-specific location adjustments are made to reflect either an enhanced location (such as a waterfront site or in a golf course community) or an inferior location (such as adjacent to an industrial use or dumpsite). All of the comparable properties presented in support of value are located in the same neighborhood as the subject. The location of the property appears to have been appropriately considered in the determination of just value.

(4) Quantity or size of the property – The property appraiser must consider the quantity or size of the property by determining and recording the correct land size, building size, and extra features sizes and quantities. Land size is based on legal descriptions from recorded plats or metes and bounds. Building sizes and extra features are determined by inspection and measured by deputy property appraisers. From the evidence presented there do not appear to be any notable discrepancies in size or quantity beyond what is previously been discussed. There does not appear to be any discrepancy in heated building area between the parties; however, as discussed, making comparisons based on adjusted building areas after deducting extra features is inconsistent with market standards.

(5) The cost of the property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon - No separate analysis of cost has been presented during the hearing. The property appraiser indicates that typical residential homebuyers do not rely on development costs when valuing residential property. Cost calculations found on the property record card appear to be supportive of just value.

(6) Condition of the property – The property appraiser considers the condition of properties through periodic property inspections, no less than once every five years as required by Statute. Other events can trigger more frequent site inspections, including the sale of a property, issuance of a building permit, assessment appeal, or at the taxpayer's request. Condition is considered as a factor applied to the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System value calculation for value losses from all sources based upon an age/life depreciation method. Photographs of the subject property have been presented as evidence of condition. The property appraiser confirmed that a personal exterior inspection of this property has been made for the purpose of determining extra features and the condition of the property. It appears that the property appraiser has

appropriately considered this condition.

(7) The income from the property - Residential properties are typically valued for ad valorem tax purposes using the sales comparison approach, as provided for under Section 193.011, Florida Statutes. Comparable sales are relied upon due to the limited availability of market data on residential rental income, operating expenses, and capitalization rates for properties similar to the subject. In the residential market, buyers and sellers generally do not consider income-generating potential when evaluating a property for purchase. The special magistrate finds that the property appraiser has given adequate consideration to this criterion in the analysis of the property.

(8) Cost of Sale Adjustment - This criterion deals with the net proceeds from the sale of a property as received by the seller after deduction of all of the usual and reasonable fees and costs and expenses of financing and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms of financing arrangements. A few examples of the applicability of this criterion include: • unconventional or atypical financing arrangements, such as seller financing at favorable terms, which inflated the price, relative to what would have been achieved with a cash or case-equivalent arrangement, • the inclusion of tangible personal property, which may serve to increase the price above pure real property consideration, • atypically motivated buyers, who may pay a premium relative to that paid by the general market, • atypical closing costs arrangements, such as a seller paying the buyer's closing costs in exchange for a higher sales price. Because these situations may not be discoverable by the mass appraiser relying on raw gross price data, a deduction from the raw gross price is made with the goal being to arrive at 100% of the market value of the real property by eliminating any possible impact of non-real property consideration. This mass appraisal method is found to be acceptable by the Florida Department of Revenue and the Florida Courts. Applicable law provides for uniform cost of sale deductions in just valuations without regard to whether (1) the subject property was sold, (2) mass appraisal or single property appraisal is used, (3) the appraisal approach used to value the property, (4) the petitioner is seeking an increase or decrease in just value, (5) appraised development or VAB review is involved. There is no legal authority for variation in the application of cost of sale deductions based on any of the preceding conditions. The professionally accepted appraisal practice is for Florida property appraisers to uniformly make cost of sale deductions of for all property within use code groups and then report these deductions on Form DR-493 to the Department of Revenue while, understandably, avoiding the impractical task of supporting these deductions in the absence of sufficiently reliable market data that demonstrates the typical, prevalent, and representative cost of sale deductions for each class of real property. In support of consideration of this criterion, the property appraiser has presented an analysis of the ratio between the aggregate sale price paid for all comparable properties compared with their aggregate just value assessments resulting in an average cost of sale adjustment of 20%. While this calculation may demonstrate a general relationship between assessed values and sale prices within the sample, it does not establish adequate support specific to the subject property for this assessment review.

It is implicit in mass appraisal that, even when properly specified and calibrated models are employed, some individual value conclusions may not meet standards of reasonableness, consistency, and accuracy. The purpose of this value review is to determine whether the just value reported on the current tax roll represents the just value of the property after consideration of the criteria set forth in Florida Statute §193.011 and generally accepted appraisal principles, including those applicable to mass appraisal. In reviewing the evidence presented by the property appraiser at this hearing, the special magistrate finds that the property appraiser did not appropriately consider the factors set forth in Florida Statute §193.011, specifically (1), (4) and (8); and therefore, the presumption of correctness has not been established.

By filing this petition, the petitioner alleges that the property appraiser has assessed the property in excess of just value. According to 12D-9.025(3)(a) of the Florida Administrative Code, the petitioner is responsible for presenting relevant and credible evidence in support of his or her belief that the property appraiser's determination is incorrect. To prevail in an assessment challenge, the taxpayer must prove more than a mere difference of opinion regarding an assessment. The following paragraphs describe how the petitioner has addressed each of the eight criteria of the Statute.

(1) Present cash value of the property - In support of a revision to just value, the petitioner has presented the following sales:

PET Sale 1 is located at 6178 Nantucket Ln and reflects a building size of 1,808 square feet with a 2024 year built on a 10,000-square-foot site, with pool reported as N. The sale date is May 2024 and the Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $262,250 ($145.05 per square foot).

PET Sale 2 is located at 6073 Shannon Ave and reflects a building size of 1,880 square feet with a 1990 year built on a 14,423-square-foot site, with pool reported as N. The sale date is June 2024 and the Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $330,240 ($175.66 per square foot). This adjusted sale price does not support a reduction in assessment.

PET Sale 3 is located at 6310 Lorraine Ln and reflects a building size of 1,547 square feet with a 2002 year built on a 10,400-square-foot site, with pool reported as N. The sale date is June 2024 and the Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $362,000 ($234.00 per square foot). This adjusted sale price does not support a reduction in assessment.

PET Sale 4 is located at 6012 Deltona Blvd and reflects a building size of 2,238 square feet with a 2006 year built on a 10,132-square-foot site, with pool reported as N. The sale date is December 2024 and the Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $229,000 ($102.32 per square foot).

PET Sale 5 is located at 6419 Freeport Dr and reflects a building size of 2,248 square feet with a 2006 year built on a 15,523-square-foot site, with pool reported as N. The sale date is January 2025 and the Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $277,500 ($123.44 per square foot).

PET Sale 6 is located at 9625 Elgin Blvd and reflects a building size of 1,990 square feet with a 2003 year built on a 10,000-square-foot site, with pool reported as N. The sale date is June 2024 and the Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $250,000 ($125.63 per square foot).

The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Prices range from $229,000 to $362,000, with a mean adjusted sale price of $285,165. PET Sale 2 and PET Sale 3 have Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price PSF greater than the PSF just value. The petitioner compares these sales based on total price. The petitioner has presented sales that are claimed to be more similar to the subject than the sales relied upon by the property appraiser. Price adjustments were made to account for differences between the sales and the subject property including a 15% adjustment for cost of sale. The petitioner has presented no rebuttal as to the property appraiser's appraisal methods or chosen sales and has not identified a specific methodological error, factual inaccuracy, or inconsistency in the property appraiser's analysis. The petitioner's analysis is based on unsupported adjustments, many of which are calculated using the assessed values of the sales. The petitioner has not visited the subject or any of the sales and has not appropriately compared condition. The property appraiser's just value falls within the range of adjusted sale prices presented by the petitioner and the per-square-foot just value is supported by one or more of the petitioner's adjusted per-square foot sale prices.

(2) Highest and Best Use - The petitioner does not dispute that the highest and best use of the subject property is single-family residential.

(3) Location of the property - The petitioner appears familiar with the location characteristics of the subject property and has not claimed the presence of any atypical or adverse location factors that would materially affect its use or value.

(4) Quantity or size of the property - The petitioner does not dispute the size or quantity of the land or improvements reported by the property appraiser during the hearing, nor was any allegation made that these factors were miscalculated or improperly considered in the valuation.

(5) The cost of the property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon - The petitioner has presented no analysis of land value or depreciated building costs. Cost is rarely used to value this market sector.

(6) Condition - The petitioner has not presented any credible evidence or asserted that the condition of the property differs from the description provided by the property appraiser during the hearing. Furthermore, no claim was made regarding any significant physical deficiencies that would affect the property's use or value.

(7) The income from the property - The petitioner has presented no analysis of income and expense at this hearing, however, as mentioned, this method is also rarely used to value residential properties for ad valorem tax purposes.

(8) Cost of Sale Adjustment - The petitioner has made specific deductions for cost of sale based on the DR-493 form submitted by the property appraiser to the Florida Department of Revenue in consideration of this criterion.

The petitioner has not specifically challenged the market evidence or the analysis conducted by the property appraiser in support of the just value of the subject property. Merely presenting an alternative analysis is not sufficient to warrant a change in assessment. Pursuant to Florida Statute §194.301(1) it is the petitioner's responsibility to demonstrate that the property appraiser's evidence and/or analysis are incorrect, and that the determined value does not represent the just value of the property by a preponderance of the evidence.

After careful consideration of all evidence presented at the hearing, the special magistrate finds that the property appraiser has not established the presumption of correctness. However, the hearing record does contain competent, substantial evidence of just value that complies with the eight criteria set forth in Florida Statute §193.011 and generally accepted appraisal principles. The unadjusted sale prices for the sales contained in the hearing record range from $300,000 to $460,000. These sales were identified by both the property appraiser and the petitioner as the most comparable to the subject property. However, because the petitioner's adjustments are not supported by market evidence, they are afforded little weight. Applying a fifteen percent cost-of-sale adjustment results in an indicated value range of $255,000 to $391,000. Because the subject's just value does not exceed this adjusted range, the evidence in the hearing record indicates that the assessment is not overstated. Accordingly, the special magistrate recommends no change in the just value established by the property appraiser.

Conclusions of Law

Pursuant to §194.301(1), Florida Statutes, in any administrative action in which a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment of value, the property appraiser's assessment is presumed correct if the property appraiser proves by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment was arrived at in compliance with §193.011, Florida Statutes, and professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The applicable standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence. Based upon the evidence presented and admitted at the hearing, the special magistrate concludes that the property appraiser did not establish the presumption of correctness. The evidence relied upon by the property appraiser did not sufficiently demonstrate that all applicable statutory criteria were properly considered in a manner consistent with generally accepted appraisal practices for an individual assessment review. Pursuant to §194.301(2)(b), Florida Statutes, when the presumption of correctness is not established, the value adjustment board or special magistrate is required to determine the assessment if there is competent, substantial evidence of just value in the hearing record which cumulatively satisfies the criteria set forth in §193.011, Florida Statutes, and professionally accepted appraisal practices. The special magistrate is not required to adopt the specific value advocated by either party and may establish or affirm a value supported by the competent, substantial evidence in the record. The special magistrate concludes that the hearing record contains competent, substantial evidence of just value. The market evidence presented and admitted at the hearing, when considered in its entirety and in light of the statutory valuation criteria, supports the conclusion that the just value determined by the property appraiser is supported by the evidence and is not shown to be excessive, insufficient, or otherwise incorrect by a preponderance of the evidence. Accordingly, pursuant to §194.301, Florida Statutes, and the applicable provisions of Rule Chapter 12D-9, Florida Administrative Code, the special magistrate recommends that the value adjustment board take no action to change the just value determined by the property appraiser.

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

Hernando County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff.11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☒ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition #	25-299	Parcel ID	R32 122 21 1218 0040 0450
Petitioner name The petitioner is: ☐ other, explain:	RYAN, INC. ☐ taxpayer of record ☒ taxpayer's representative	Property address	31083 SATINLEAF RUN BROOKSVILLE, FLORIDA

Decision Summary ☐ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☒ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just Value, required	$270,787	$270,787	$267,750
2. Assessed or classified use value, * if applicable	$270,787	$270,787	$267,750
3. Exempt value, * enter "0" if none	$0	$0	$0
4. Taxable value, * required	$270,787	$270,787	$267,750

*All values entered should be county taxable values, School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision

Findings of Fact

DUE TO SPACE LIMITATIONS, FINDINGS OF FACT ARE SET FORTH IN THE ATTACHED ADDENDA, WHICH IS MADE PART OF THIS RECOMMENDATION REPORT.

Conclusions of Law

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW ARE PROVIDED IN THE ATTACHED ADDENDA, INCORPORATED HEREIN BY REFERENCE.

☒ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	ROBERT C. HICKS Print Name	FEB 6, 2026 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____.
Address: Hernando County Gov't Center BOCC Chambers, Room 160, 20 North Main Street, Brooksville, Florida 34601.
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered.
To find the information, please call (352) 754-4970, or visit our website at vab@hernandoclerk.org.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print Name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date mailed to parties

Addenda

Findings Of Fact

Petitioner Natasha Elliott with Ryan, Inc. appeared telephonically on behalf of RESIDENTIAL HOME BUYER E TAMPA, LLC on January 27, 2026 to provide testimonial and documentary evidence pertaining to the 2025 property assessment for real property located in Hernando County, Florida. The Hernando County Property Appraiser's Office was represented at the hearing by Deputy Appraisers Doug Mack, CFE, Residential Supervisor and Brandon Jimenez, CFE. An opening statement regarding the hearing process and rules of procedure was read and all parties were placed under oath. This petition is one of 22 presented by the petitioner on this hearing date. The specific case numbers are 25-297 through 25-318, inclusive. Any relevant testimony presented during these individual hearings will be incorporated by reference to all hearings to avoid redundancy and expedite the hearing process.

The subject of this petition is listed on the Hernando County tax roll as Parcel ID R32 122 21 1218 0040 0450. This property is described as a single-family residence with no pool and a two-car garage. The subject property is located at 31083 Satinleaf Run, Brooksville, Hernando County, Florida. The property consists of 2,003 square feet of adjusted building area with 1,666 square feet of heated building area on a 5,801-square-foot residential lot. The improvements were constructed in 2007. Based on an inspection of the property on January 23, 2023, the property appraiser has determined that the building improvements are of typical construction quality and in average condition. It appears that the subject of this petition has not sold within the 12-month period preceding the January 1 valuation date.

The property appraiser has confirmed the 2025 just value at $270,787, with an assessed value of $270,787 and a taxable value of $270,787. There have been no changes to the values since the Notice of Proposed Property Taxes (TRIM) was issued. The petitioner is requesting a revision to the 2025 just value, proposing a revision in just value to $248,600. This request is supported by sales comparison.

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence, see Florida Administrative Code 12D-9.025(1). Generally, relevant evidence is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. The evidence meets or exceeds a minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. Documentary evidence presented by the property appraiser during the hearing is described and labeled as follows:

- PAO-A (15 pages) - Cover page, case synopsis, subject property record card with building sketch and photograph, sales analysis grid, comparable location map, analysis of sales data, property record card for each sale, list of structure area adjustments

Documentary evidence presented by the petitioner during the hearing is described and labeled as follows:

- PET-1 (9 pages) - Petition, cover page, summary of evidence, sales adjustment grid, adjustment formulas, aerial photograph of subject, street map, location map showing subject and sales

The property appraiser has not raised any objections to the evidence presented by the petitioner during the hearing.

The Florida Legislature has enacted eight criteria that the property appraiser must consider when determining just value. In any administrative or judicial action where a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment, the property appraiser's estimate of just value is presumed correct if it is proven that the assessment was made in compliance with the eight criteria outlined in Section 193.011, Florida Statutes and in accordance with professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The only standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence, meaning the greater weight of evidence, or "more likely than not."

Florida courts have consistently held that the property appraiser is only required to consider the eight criteria, and that applying each factor is not mandatory. The courts have further found that if any one criterion does not reflect just value, it should be disregarded by the property appraiser. The special magistrate finds and summarizes the extent to which the property appraiser has considered each of these criteria in the following paragraphs.

(1) Present cash value of the property - The amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arms-length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In short, the price without transaction costs. The buyer typically pays more, and the seller typically receives less than the price indicated by the documentary stamps due to these transaction costs. In mass appraising, the property appraiser considers this criterion by applying or considering the comparable market sales using the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through comparable sales analysis similar to that found in a fee appraisal. The amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arms-length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In short, the price without transaction costs. The buyer typically pays more, and the seller typically receives less than the price indicated by the documentary stamps due to these transaction costs. In mass appraising, the property appraiser considers this criterion by applying or considering the comparable market sales using the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through

comparable sales analysis similar to that found in a fee appraisal. The property appraiser has presented sales evidence in support of the present cash value. Following are brief descriptions of the sales determined by the property appraiser to be most comparable to the subject and representative of value sourced by property record cards:

PA Sale 1. The property located at 30744 Water Lily Drive contains a base building area of 1,537 square feet and was constructed in 2015. The property sold in June 2024 for a sale price of $309,000.

PA Sale 2. The property located at 6902 Wirevine Drive contains a base building area of 1,306 square feet and was constructed in 2010. The property sold in July 2024 for a sale price of $295,000.

PA Sale 3. The property located at 31313 Satinleaf Run contains a base building area of 1,623 square feet and was constructed in 2004. The property sold in March 2024 for a sale price of $315,000.

In considering these sales, the property appraiser has compared them based on per adjusted square foot price. Three qualified sales judged to be most comparable to the subject have been presented in support of value. The sales were selected based on similar location, age, size and utility. The sizes displayed are heated living areas. The property appraiser's approach relies on feature value deductions and weighted "adjusted building area" calculations rather than paired-sales analysis or market-derived adjustments. Florida appraisal standards and case law (e.g., Valencia Center, Inc. v. Bystrom, 543 So. 2d 214 [Fla. 1989]) require that just value determinations be supported by market evidence showing how specific features or characteristics influence sale prices. Deducting fixed feature values from sale prices without verifying their market validity substitutes internal modeling for actual market behavior. While this may be useful for mass appraisal purposes, it does not provide the level of market support required in an individual value review before the Value Adjustment Board. A credible defense of just value in a hearing must demonstrate how specific comparable sales support the subject's assessed value through observable market adjustments. Reliance on internal modeling, without direct evidence of how the market reacts to property differences, fails to establish that the property appraiser's value represents the amount a willing buyer and seller would agree upon under normal conditions. Secondly, the "adjusted building area" metric has no direct market analogue. Buyers and appraisers typically compare residential properties based on heated living area (gross living area per ANSI or Fannie Mae standards). Introducing a proprietary or synthetic size measure distorts the relationship between price and size, undermining the comparability of sales. This means the model may show internal consistency but not external validity in the open market. It is the opinion of the special magistrate that this sales analysis does not follow with generally accepted appraisal practices.

(2) Highest & Best Use – This relates to the consideration of the fundamental appraisal concept of highest and best use or best use to which the property can be expected to be put in the immediate future. For improved properties, the highest and best use of the property as if vacant should be considered as well. The four steps establishing highest and best use are consideration of what is physically possible, legally permissible, financially feasible, and maximally productive. The highest and best use as vacant is identified through land use codes which, in part, are based on zoning. The highest and best use as improved is assumed to be the current use unless evidence shows otherwise. The property appraiser's office considers highest and best use by identifying and recording land size, zoning, building size, location and other characteristics. Once all coding is in place, comparable sales and rentals that have similar characteristics are used to value the property. The highest and best use of this property is for single-family residential use. This determination is undisputed by the petitioner and appears to have been appropriately considered by the property appraiser.

(3) Location of the property – The property appraiser assigns a neighborhood code to every property in the county. Sales of properties in the same or similar neighborhoods are typically used to determine locational adjustments. Often, site-specific location adjustments are made to reflect either an enhanced location (such as a waterfront site or in a golf course community) or an inferior location (such as adjacent to an industrial use or dumpsite). All of the comparable properties presented in support of value are located in the same neighborhood as the subject. The location of the property appears to have been appropriately considered in the determination of just value.

(4) Quantity or size of the property – The property appraiser must consider the quantity or size of the property by determining and recording the correct land size, building size, and extra features sizes and quantities. Land size is based on legal descriptions from recorded plats or metes and bounds. Building sizes and extra features are determined by inspection and measured by deputy property appraisers. From the evidence presented there do not appear to be any notable discrepancies in size or quantity beyond what is previously been discussed. There does not appear to be any discrepancy in heated building area between the parties; however, as discussed, making comparisons based on adjusted building areas after deducting extra features is inconsistent with market standards.

(5) The cost of the property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon - No separate analysis of cost has been presented during the hearing. The property appraiser indicates that typical residential homebuyers do not rely on development costs when valuing residential property. Cost calculations found on the property record card appear to be supportive of just value.

(6) Condition of the property – The property appraiser considers the condition of properties through periodic property inspections, no less than once every five years as required by Statute. Other events can trigger more frequent site inspections, including the sale of a property, issuance of a building permit, assessment appeal, or at the taxpayer's request. Condition is considered as a factor applied to the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System value calculation for value losses from all sources based upon an age/life depreciation method. Photographs of the subject property have been presented as evidence of condition. The property appraiser confirmed that a personal exterior inspection of this property has been made for the purposes of determining extra features and the condition of the property. It appears that the property appraiser has

appropriately considered this condition.

(7) The income from the property - Residential properties are typically valued for ad valorem tax purposes using the sales comparison approach, as provided for under Section 193.011, Florida Statutes. Comparable sales are relied upon due to the limited availability of market data on residential rental income, operating expenses, and capitalization rates for properties similar to the subject. In the residential market, buyers and sellers generally do not consider income-generating potential when evaluating a property for purchase. The special magistrate finds that the property appraiser has given adequate consideration to this criterion in the analysis of the property.

(8) Cost of Sale Adjustment - This criterion deals with the net proceeds from the sale of a property as received by the seller after deduction of all of the usual and reasonable fees and costs and expenses of financing and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms of financing arrangements. A few examples of the applicability of this criterion include: • unconventional or atypical financing arrangements, such as seller financing at favorable terms, which inflated the price, relative to what would have been achieved with a cash or case-equivalent arrangement, • the inclusion of tangible personal property, which may serve to increase the price above pure real property consideration, • atypically motivated buyers, who may pay a premium relative to that paid by the general market, • atypical closing costs arrangements, such as a seller paying the buyer's closing costs in exchange for a higher sales price. Because these situations may not be discoverable by the mass appraiser relying on raw gross price data, a deduction from the raw gross price is made with the goal being to arrive at 100% of the market value of the real property by eliminating any possible impact of non-real property consideration. This mass appraisal method is found to be acceptable by the Florida Department of Revenue and the Florida Courts. Applicable law provides for uniform cost of sale deductions in just valuations without regard to whether (1) the subject property was sold, (2) mass appraisal or single property appraisal is used, (3) the appraisal approach used to value the property, (4) the petitioner is seeking an increase or decrease in just value, (5) appraised development or VAB review is involved. There is no legal authority for variation in the application of cost of sale deductions based on any of the preceding conditions. The professionally accepted appraisal practice is for Florida property appraisers to uniformly make cost of sale deductions of for all property within use code groups and then report these deductions on Form DR-493 to the Department of Revenue while, understandably, avoiding the impractical task of supporting these deductions in the absence of sufficiently reliable market data that demonstrates the typical, prevalent, and representative cost of sale deductions for each class of real property. In support of consideration of this criterion, the property appraiser has presented an analysis of the ratio between the aggregate sale price paid for all comparable properties compared with their aggregate just value assessments resulting in an average cost of sale adjustment of 22%. While this calculation may demonstrate a general relationship between assessed values and sale prices within the sample, it does not establish adequate support specific to the subject property for this assessment review.

It is implicit in mass appraisal that, even when properly specified and calibrated models are employed, some individual value conclusions may not meet standards of reasonableness, consistency, and accuracy. The purpose of this value review is to determine whether the just value reported on the current tax roll represents the just value of the property after consideration of the criteria set forth in Florida Statute §193.011 and generally accepted appraisal principles, including those applicable to mass appraisal. In reviewing the evidence presented by the property appraiser at this hearing, the special magistrate finds that the property appraiser did not appropriately consider the factors set forth in Florida Statute §193.011, specifically (1), (4) and (8); and therefore, the presumption of correctness has not been established.

By filing this petition, the petitioner alleges that the property appraiser has assessed the property in excess of just value. According to 12D-9.025(3)(a) of the Florida Administrative Code, the petitioner is responsible for presenting relevant and credible evidence in support of his or her belief that the property appraiser's determination is incorrect. To prevail in an assessment challenge, the taxpayer must prove more than a mere difference of opinion regarding an assessment. The following paragraphs describe how the petitioner has addressed each of the eight criteria of the Statute.

(1) Present cash value of the property - In support of a revision to just value, the petitioner has presented the following sales:

PET Sale 1 consists of the property located at 31191 Water Lily Drive with a building size of 1,926 square feet, constructed in 2013, situated on a land area of 5,610 square feet. The sale occurred in October 2024. The property does not have a pool. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $275,200, which equates to $206.14 per square foot. This adjusted sale price does not support a reduction in assessment.

PET Sale 2 consists of the property located at 7087 Wirevine Drive with a building size of 1,894 square feet, constructed in 2018, situated on a land area of 5,789 square feet. The sale occurred in January 2025. The property does not have a pool. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $223,750, which equates to $153.89 per square foot.

PET Sale 3 consists of the property located at 30932 Satinleaf Run with a building size of 1,921 square feet, constructed in 2015, situated on a land area of 5,789 square feet. The sale occurred in September 2024. The property does not have a pool. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $247,750, which equates to $176.46 per square foot. This adjusted sale price does not support a reduction in assessment.

PET Sale 4 consists of the property located at 30893 Satinleaf Run with a building size of 2,140 square feet, constructed in 2015, situated on a land area of 6,000 square feet. The sale occurred in April 2024. The property does not have a pool. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $259,250, which equates to $167.69 per square foot. This adjusted sale price does not support a reduction in assessment.

PET Sale 5 consists of the property located at 30844 Satinleaf Run with a building size of 2,190 square feet, constructed in 2015, situated on a land area of 5,689 square feet. The sale occurred in July 2024. The property does not have a pool. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $227,900, which equates to $139.90 per square foot.

PET Sale 6 consists of the property located at 31313 Satinleaf Run with a building size of 2,253 square feet, constructed in 2004, situated on a land area of 6,325 square feet. The sale occurred in March 2024. The property does not have a pool. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $257,750, which equates to $158.81 per square foot.

The final adjusted sale prices range from $223,750 to $275,200, bracketing the just value, with an average adjusted sale price of approximately $248,600. Sales 1, 3, and 4 have Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price per square foot values that exceed the per square foot just value. The petitioner compares these sales based on total price. The petitioner has presented sales that are claimed to be more similar to the subject than the sales relied upon by the property appraiser. Price adjustments were made to account for differences between the sales and the subject property including a 15% adjustment for cost of sale. The petitioner has presented no rebuttal as to the property appraiser's appraisal methods or chosen sales and has not identified a specific methodological error, factual inaccuracy, or inconsistency in the property appraiser's analysis. The petitioner's analysis is based on unsupported adjustments, many of which are calculated using the assessed values of the sales. The petitioner has not visited the subject nor any of the sales and has not appropriately compared condition. The property appraiser's just value falls within the range of adjusted sale prices presented by the petitioner and the per-square-foot just value is supported by one or more of the petitioner's adjusted per-square foot sale prices.

(2) Highest and Best Use - The petitioner does not dispute that the highest and best use of the subject property is single-family residential.

(3) Location of the property - The petitioner appears familiar with the location characteristics of the subject property and has not claimed the presence of any atypical or adverse location factors that would materially affect its use or value.

(4) Quantity or size of the property - The petitioner does not dispute the size or quantity of the land or improvements reported by the property appraiser during the hearing, nor was any allegation made that these factors were miscalculated or improperly considered in the valuation.

(5) The cost of the property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon - The petitioner has presented no analysis of land value or depreciated building costs. Cost is rarely used to value this market sector.

(6) Condition - The petitioner has not presented any credible evidence or asserted that the condition of the property differs from the description provided by the property appraiser during the hearing. Furthermore, no claim was made regarding any significant physical deficiencies that would affect the property's use or value.

(7) The income from the property - The petitioner has presented no analysis of income and expense at this hearing, however, as mentioned, this method is also rarely used to value residential properties for ad valorem tax purposes.

(8) Cost of Sale Adjustment - The petitioner has made specific deductions for cost of sale based on the DR-493 form submitted by the property appraiser to the Florida Department of Revenue in consideration of this criterion.

The petitioner has not specifically challenged the market evidence or the analysis conducted by the property appraiser in support of the just value of the subject property. Merely presenting an alternative analysis is not sufficient to warrant a change in assessment. Pursuant to Florida Statute §194.301(1) it is the petitioner's responsibility to demonstrate that the property appraiser's evidence and/or analysis are incorrect, and that the determined value does not represent the just value of the property by a preponderance of the evidence.

After careful consideration of all evidence presented at the hearing, the special magistrate finds that the property appraiser has not established the presumption of correctness. However, the hearing record does contain competent, substantial evidence of just value that complies with the eight criteria set forth in Florida Statute §193.011 and generally accepted appraisal principles. The unadjusted sale prices for the sales contained in the hearing record range from $265,000 to $315,000. Applying a fifteen percent cost-of-sale adjustment results in an indicated value range of $225,250 to $267,750. Because the subject's just value exceeds this adjusted range, the evidence in the hearing record indicates that the assessment is overstated. Accordingly, the special magistrate recommends that the just value be revised to $267,750.

Conclusions of Law

Pursuant to §194.301(1), Florida Statutes, in an administrative action in which a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment, the property appraiser's assessment is presumed correct if the property appraiser proves by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment was arrived at in compliance with §193.011, Florida Statutes, and professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The burden of proof rests initially with the property appraiser to establish this presumption of correctness.

Based upon the competent, substantial evidence presented at the hearing, the special magistrate concludes that the property appraiser did not establish the presumption of correctness. Specifically, the sales analysis relied upon by the property appraiser did not demonstrate compliance with generally accepted appraisal practices as applied in an individual assessment review, particularly with respect to the consideration of present cash value, the comparison of property size using market-recognized metrics, and the application of cost-of-sale considerations under §193.011(1), (4), and (8), Florida Statutes.

Pursuant to §194.301(2), Florida Statutes, when the presumption of correctness is not established, the value adjustment board or special magistrate is required to determine the assessment if there is competent, substantial evidence of just value in the record that cumulatively meets the criteria of §193.011, Florida Statutes, and professionally accepted appraisal practices. If such evidence exists, the special magistrate is authorized to establish a revised just value based upon that evidence and is not restricted to the specific value advocated by either party.

The special magistrate concludes that the hearing record does contain competent, substantial evidence of just value. The evidence presented demonstrates a supported range of market values derived from comparable sales, adjusted for reasonable and customary costs of sale, consistent with §193.011(8), Florida Statutes, and professionally accepted appraisal principles. This evidence establishes that the subject property's assessed just value exceeds the indicated market-supported range and therefore does not represent just value as of January 1, 2025.

Accordingly, pursuant to §194.301(2)(b), Florida Statutes, and Rule 12D-9.027, Florida Administrative Code, the special magistrate concludes that the assessment should be revised. Based upon the weight of the evidence, the special magistrate recommends that the 2025 just value of the subject property be revised to $267,750, which is supported by the competent, substantial evidence in the hearing record and complies with the statutory requirements governing just valuation.

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

Hernando County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff.11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☒ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition #	25-300	Parcel ID	R32 323 17 5010 0032 0100
Petitioner name The petitioner is: ☐ taxpayer of record ☒ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	RYAN, INC.	Property address	1460 GREENVIEW AVENUE SPRING HILL, FLORIDA

Decision Summary ☒ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just Value, required	$214,407	$205,804	$205,804
2. Assessed or classified use value, * if applicable	$185,436	$185,436	$185,436
3. Exempt value, * enter "0" if none	$0	$0	$0
4. Taxable value, * required	$185,436	$185,436	$185,436

*All values entered should be county taxable values, School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision

Findings of Fact

DUE TO SPACE LIMITATIONS, FINDINGS OF FACT ARE SET FORTH IN THE ATTACHED ADDENDA, WHICH IS MADE PART OF THIS RECOMMENDATION REPORT.

Conclusions of Law

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW ARE PROVIDED IN THE ATTACHED ADDENDA, INCORPORATED HEREIN BY REFERENCE.

☒ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	ROBERT C. HICKS Print Name	FEB 25, 2026 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____.
Address: Hernando County Gov't Center BOCC Chambers, Room 160, 20 North Main Street, Brooksville, Florida 34601.
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered.
To find the information, please call (352) 754-4970, or visit our website at vab@hernandoclerk.org.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print Name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date mailed to parties

Addenda

Findings Of Fact

Petitioner Natasha Elliott with Ryan, Inc. appeared telephonically on behalf of BISMUTH PROPCO SERIES LLC on January 27, 2026 to provide testimonial and documentary evidence pertaining to the 2025 property assessment for real property located in Hernando County, Florida. The Hernando County Property Appraiser's Office was represented at the hearing by Deputy Appraisers Doug Mack, CFE, Residential Supervisor and Brandon Jimenez, CFE. An opening statement regarding the hearing process and rules of procedure was read and all parties were placed under oath. This petition is one of 22 presented by the petitioner on this hearing date. The specific case numbers are 25-297 through 25-318, inclusive. Any relevant testimony presented during these individual hearings will be incorporated by reference to all hearings to avoid redundancy and expedite the hearing process.

The subject of this petition is listed on the Hernando County tax roll as Parcel ID R32 323 17 5010 0032 0100. This property is described as a single-family residence with a one-car garage and no pool. The subject property is located at 1460 Greenview Avenue, Spring Hill, Hernando County, Florida. The property consists of 1,534 square feet of adjusted building area with 1,318 square feet of heated living area on a 10,146-square-foot residential lot. The improvements were constructed in 2004. Based on an inspection of the property on September 25, 2025, the property appraiser has determined that the building improvements are of typical construction quality and in average condition. It appears that the subject of this petition has not sold within the 12-month period preceding the January 1 valuation date.

The property appraiser confirmed the 2025 just value of $205,804, assessed value of $185,436 and taxable value of $185,436. The record indicates that the just value has been revised since the Notice of Proposed Property Taxes (TRIM) was issued. The just, assessed, and taxable values reported on the TRIM Notice were $214,407, $185,436, and $185,436, respectively. The petitioner is requesting a revision to the 2025 just value, proposing a revision in just value to $199,841. This request is supported by sales comparison.

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence, see Florida Administrative Code 12D-9.025(1). Generally, relevant evidence is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. The evidence meets or exceeds a minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. Documentary evidence presented by the property appraiser during the hearing is described and labeled as follows:

- PAO-A (16 pages) - Cover page, case synopsis, subject property record card with building sketch and photograph, sales analysis grid, comparable location map, analysis of sales data, property record card for each sale, list of structure area adjustments

Documentary evidence presented by the petitioner during the hearing is described and labeled as follows:

- PET-1 (10 pages) - Petition, cover page, summary of evidence, sales adjustment grid, adjustment formulas, aerial photograph of subject, street map, location map showing subject and sales

The property appraiser has not raised any objections to the evidence presented by the petitioner during the hearing.

The Florida Legislature has enacted eight criteria that the property appraiser must consider when determining just value. In any administrative or judicial action where a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment, the property appraiser's estimate of just value is presumed correct if it is proven that the assessment was made in compliance with the eight criteria outlined in Section 193.011, Florida Statutes and in accordance with professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The only standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence, meaning the greater weight of evidence, or "more likely than not."

Florida courts have consistently held that the property appraiser is only required to consider the eight criteria, and that applying each factor is not mandatory. The courts have further found that if any one criterion does not reflect just value, it should be disregarded by the property appraiser. The special magistrate finds and summarizes the extent to which the property appraiser has considered each of these criteria in the following paragraphs.

(1) Present cash value of the property - The amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arms-length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In short, the price without transaction costs. The buyer typically pays more, and the seller typically receives less than the price indicated by the documentary stamps due to these transaction costs. In mass appraising, the property appraiser considers this criterion by applying or considering the comparable market sales using the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through comparable sales analysis similar to that found in a fee appraisal. The amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arms-length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In short, the price without transaction costs. The buyer typically pays more, and the seller typically receives less than the price indicated by the documentary stamps due to these transaction costs. In mass appraising, the property appraiser considers this criterion by applying or considering the comparable market sales using the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through comparable sales analysis similar to that found in a fee appraisal. The property appraiser has presented sales evidence in support of the present cash value. Following are brief descriptions of the sales determined by the property appraiser to be most comparable to the subject and representative of value sourced by property record cards:

PA Sale 1 is located at 6249 Piedmont Dr and reflects 1,320 square feet of heated building area (base) with a 1999 year built. The sale occurred in November 2024 for a price of $269,900.

PA Sale 2 is located at 1393 Old Mill Ln and reflects 1,150 square feet of heated building area (base) with a 1969 year built. The sale occurred in June 2024 for a price of $245,000.

PA Sale 3 is located at 221 Tulsa Ave and reflects 1,252 square feet of heated building area (base) with a 1986 year built. The sale occurred in November 2024 for a price of $260,000.

In considering these sales, the property appraiser has compared them based on per adjusted square foot price. Three qualified sales judged to be most comparable to the subject have been presented in support of value. The sales were selected based on similar location, age, size and utility. The property appraiser's approach relies on feature value deductions and weighted "adjusted building area" calculations rather than paired-sales analysis or market-derived adjustments. Florida appraisal standards and case law (e.g., Valencia Center, Inc. v. Bystrom, 543 So. 2d 214 [Fla. 1989]) require that just value determinations be supported by market evidence showing how specific features or characteristics influence sale prices. Deducting fixed feature values from sale prices without verifying their market validity substitutes internal modeling for actual market behavior. While this may be useful for mass appraisal purposes, it does not provide the level of market support required in an individual value review before the Value Adjustment Board. A credible defense of just value in a hearing must demonstrate how specific comparable sales support the subject's assessed value through observable market adjustments. Reliance on internal modeling, without direct evidence of how the market reacts to property differences, fails to establish that the property appraiser's value represents the amount a willing buyer and seller would agree upon under normal conditions. Secondly, the "adjusted building area" metric has no direct market analogue. Buyers and appraisers typically compare residential properties based on heated living area (gross living area per ANSI or Fannie Mae standards). Introducing a proprietary or synthetic size measure distorts the relationship between price and size, undermining the comparability of sales. This means the model may show internal consistency but not external validity in the open market. It is the opinion of the special magistrate that this sales analysis does not follow with generally accepted appraisal practices.

(2) Highest & Best Use – This relates to the consideration of the fundamental appraisal concept of highest and best use or best use to which the property can be expected to be put in the immediate future. For improved properties, the highest and best use of the property as if vacant should be considered as well. The four steps establishing highest and best use are consideration of what is physically possible, legally permissible, financially feasible, and maximally productive. The highest and best use as vacant is identified through land use codes which, in part, are based on zoning. The highest and best use as improved is assumed to be the current use unless evidence shows otherwise. The property appraiser's office considers highest and best use by identifying and recording land size, zoning, building size, location and other characteristics. Once all coding is in place, comparable sales and rentals that have similar characteristics are used to value the property. The highest and best use of this property is for single-family residential use. This determination is undisputed by the petitioner and appears to have been appropriately considered by the property appraiser.

(3) Location of the property – The property appraiser assigns a neighborhood code to every property in the county. Sales of properties in the same or similar neighborhoods are typically used to determine locational adjustments. Often, site-specific location adjustments are made to reflect either an enhanced location (such as a waterfront site or in a golf course community) or an inferior location (such as adjacent to an industrial use or dumpsite). All of the comparable properties presented in support of value are located in the same neighborhood as the subject. The location of the property appears to have been appropriately considered in the determination of just value.

(4) Quantity or size of the property – The property appraiser must consider the quantity or size of the property by determining and recording the correct land size, building size, and extra features sizes and quantities. Land size is based on legal descriptions from recorded plats or metes and bounds. Building sizes and extra features are determined by inspection and measured by deputy property appraisers. From the evidence presented there do not appear to be any notable discrepancies in size or quantity beyond what is previously been discussed. There does not appear to be any discrepancy in heated building area between the parties; however, as discussed, making comparisons based on adjusted building areas after deducting extra features is inconsistent with market standards.

(5) The cost of the property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon - No separate analysis of cost has been presented during the hearing. The property appraiser indicates that typical residential homebuyers do not rely on development costs when valuing residential property. Cost calculations found on the property record card appear to be supportive of just value.

(6) Condition of the property – The property appraiser considers the condition of properties through periodic property inspections, no less than once every five years as required by Statute. Other events can trigger more frequent site inspections, including the sale of a property, issuance of a building permit, assessment appeal, or at the taxpayer's request. Condition is considered as a factor applied to the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System value calculation for value losses from all sources based upon an age/life depreciation method. Photographs of the subject property have been presented as evidence of condition. The property appraiser confirmed that a personal exterior inspection of this property has been made for the purpose of determining extra features and the condition of the property. It appears that the property appraiser has appropriately considered this condition.

(7) The income from the property - Residential properties are typically valued for ad valorem tax purposes using the sales comparison approach, as provided for under Section 193.011, Florida Statutes. Comparable sales are relied upon due to the limited availability of market data on residential rental income, operating expenses, and capitalization rates for properties similar to the subject. In the residential market, buyers and sellers generally do not consider income-generating potential when evaluating a property for purchase. The special magistrate finds that the property appraiser has given adequate consideration to this criterion in the analysis of the property.

(8) Cost of Sale Adjustment - This criterion deals with the net proceeds from the sale of a property as received by the seller after deduction of all of the usual and reasonable fees and costs and expenses of financing and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms of financing arrangements. A few examples of the applicability of this criterion include: • unconventional or atypical financing arrangements, such as seller financing at favorable terms, which inflated the price, relative to what would have been achieved with a cash or case-equivalent arrangement, • the inclusion of tangible personal property, which may serve to increase the price above pure real property consideration, • atypically motivated buyers, who may pay a premium relative to that paid by the general market, • atypical closing costs arrangements, such as a seller paying the buyer's closing costs in exchange for a higher sales price. Because these situations may not be discoverable by the mass appraiser relying on raw gross price data, a deduction from the raw gross price is made with the goal being to arrive at 100% of the market value of the real property by eliminating any possible impact of non-real property consideration. This mass appraisal method is found to be acceptable by the Florida Department of Revenue and the Florida Courts. Applicable law provides for uniform cost of sale deductions in just valuations without regard to whether (1) the subject property was sold, (2) mass appraisal or single property appraisal is used, (3) the appraisal approach used to value the property, (4) the petitioner is seeking an increase or decrease in just value, (5) appraised development or VAB review is involved. There is no legal authority for variation in the application of cost of sale deductions based on any of the preceding conditions. The professionally accepted appraisal practice is for Florida property appraisers to uniformly make cost of sale deductions of for all property within use code groups and then report these deductions on Form DR-493 to the Department of Revenue while, understandably, avoiding the impractical task of supporting these deductions in the absence of sufficiently reliable market data that demonstrates the typical, prevalent, and representative cost of sale deductions for each class of real property. In support of consideration of this criterion, the property appraiser has presented an analysis of the ratio between the aggregate sale price paid for all comparable properties compared with their aggregate just value assessments resulting in an average cost of sale adjustment of 23%. While this calculation may demonstrate a general relationship between assessed values and sale prices within the sample, it does not establish adequate support specific to the subject property for this assessment review.

It is implicit in mass appraisal that, even when properly specified and calibrated models are employed, some individual value conclusions may not meet standards of reasonableness, consistency, and accuracy. The purpose of this value review is to determine whether the just value reported on the current tax roll represents the just value of the property after consideration of the criteria set forth in Florida Statute §193.011 and generally accepted appraisal principles, including those applicable to mass appraisal. In reviewing the evidence presented by the property appraiser at this hearing, the special magistrate finds that the property appraiser did not appropriately consider the factors set forth in Florida Statute §193.011, specifically (1), (4) and (8); and therefore, the presumption of correctness has not been established.

By filing this petition, the petitioner alleges that the property appraiser has assessed the property in excess of just value. According to 12D-9.025(3)(a) of the Florida Administrative Code, the petitioner is responsible for presenting relevant and credible evidence in support of his or her belief that the property appraiser's determination is incorrect. To prevail in an assessment challenge, the taxpayer must prove more than a mere difference of opinion regarding an assessment. The following paragraphs describe how the petitioner has addressed each of the eight criteria of the Statute.

(1) Present cash value of the property - In support of a revision to just value, the petitioner has presented the following sales:

PET Sale 1 is located at 2023 Greenview Ave and reflects a building size of 1,318 square feet with a 1982 year built on an 11,614-square-foot site, with pool reported as N. The sale date is May 2024 and the Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $100,200 ($80.10 per square foot). The property appraiser reports that this is a disqualified sale due to related parties.

PET Sale 2 is located at 6249 Piedmont Dr and reflects a building size of 1,320 square feet with a 1999 year built on a 10,018-square-foot site, with pool reported as N. The sale date is November 2024 and the Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $234,915 ($177.97 per square foot). This adjusted sale price does not support a reduction in assessment.

PET Sale 3 is located at 5434 Alderwood St and reflects a building size of 1,465 square feet with a 1985 year built on a 10,533-square-foot site, with pool reported as N. The sale date is April 2024 and the Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $212,300 ($144.91 per square foot). This adjusted sale price does not support a reduction in assessment.

PET Sale 4 is located at 5378 Ashland Dr and reflects a building size of 1,344 square feet with a 1979 year built on a 10,000-square-foot site, with pool reported as N. The sale date is April 2024 and the Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $251,950 ($187.46 per square foot). This adjusted sale price does not support a reduction in assessment.

The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Prices range from $100,200 to $251,950, with a mean adjusted sale price of $199,841. PET Sale 2 and PET Sale

4 have Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price PSF greater than the PSF just value. The petitioner compares these sales based on total price. The petitioner has presented sales that are claimed to be more similar to the subject than the sales relied upon by the property appraiser. Price adjustments were made to account for differences between the sales and the subject property including a 15% adjustment for cost of sale. The petitioner has presented no rebuttal as to the property appraiser's appraisal methods or chosen sales and has not identified a specific methodological error, factual inaccuracy, or inconsistency in the property appraiser's analysis. The petitioner's analysis is based on unsupported adjustments, many of which are calculated using the assessed values of the sales. The petitioner has not visited the subject or any of the sales and has not appropriately compared condition. The property appraiser's just value falls within the range of adjusted sale prices presented by the petitioner and the per-square-foot just value is supported by one or more of the petitioner's adjusted per-square foot sale prices.

(2) Highest and Best Use - The petitioner does not dispute that the highest and best use of the subject property is single-family residential.

(3) Location of the property - The petitioner appears familiar with the location characteristics of the subject property and has not claimed the presence of any atypical or adverse location factors that would materially affect its use or value.

(4) Quantity or size of the property - The petitioner does not dispute the size or quantity of the land or improvements reported by the property appraiser during the hearing, nor was any allegation made that these factors were miscalculated or improperly considered in the valuation.

(5) The cost of the property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon - The petitioner has presented no analysis of land value or depreciated building costs. Cost is rarely used to value this market sector.

(6) Condition - The petitioner has not presented any credible evidence or asserted that the condition of the property differs from the description provided by the property appraiser during the hearing. Furthermore, no claim was made regarding any significant physical deficiencies that would affect the property's use or value.

(7) The income from the property - The petitioner has presented no analysis of income and expense at this hearing, however, as mentioned, this method is also rarely used to value residential properties for ad valorem tax purposes.

(8) Cost of Sale Adjustment - The petitioner has made specific deductions for cost of sale based on the DR-493 form submitted by the property appraiser to the Florida Department of Revenue in consideration of this criterion.

The petitioner has not specifically challenged the market evidence or the analysis conducted by the property appraiser in support of the just value of the subject property. Merely presenting an alternative analysis is not sufficient to warrant a change in assessment. Pursuant to Florida Statute §194.301(1) it is the petitioner's responsibility to demonstrate that the property appraiser's evidence and/or analysis are incorrect, and that the determined value does not represent the just value of the property by a preponderance of the evidence.

After careful consideration of all evidence presented at the hearing, the special magistrate finds that the property appraiser has not established the presumption of correctness. However, the hearing record does contain competent, substantial evidence of just value that complies with the eight criteria set forth in Florida Statute §193.011 and generally accepted appraisal principles. The unadjusted sale prices for the sales contained in the hearing record range from $245,000 to $269,900. These sales were identified by both the property appraiser and the petitioner as the most comparable to the subject property. However, because the petitioner's adjustments are not supported by market evidence, they are afforded little weight. Applying a fifteen percent cost-of-sale adjustment results in an indicated value range of $208,250 to $229,415. Because the subject's just value does not exceed this adjusted range, the evidence in the hearing record indicates that the assessment is not overstated. Accordingly, the special magistrate recommends no change in the just value established by the property appraiser.

Conclusions of Law

Pursuant to §194.301(1), Florida Statutes, in any administrative action in which a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment of value, the property appraiser's assessment is presumed correct if the property appraiser proves by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment was arrived at in compliance with §193.011, Florida Statutes, and professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The applicable standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence. Based upon the evidence presented and admitted at the hearing, the special magistrate concludes that the property appraiser did not establish the presumption of correctness. The evidence relied upon by the property appraiser did not sufficiently demonstrate that all applicable statutory criteria were properly considered in a manner consistent with generally accepted appraisal practices for an individual assessment review. Pursuant to §194.301(2)(b), Florida Statutes, when the presumption of correctness is not established, the value adjustment board or special magistrate is required to determine the assessment if there is competent, substantial evidence of just value in the hearing record which cumulatively satisfies the criteria set forth in §193.011, Florida Statutes, and professionally accepted appraisal practices. The special magistrate is not required to adopt the specific value advocated by either party and may establish or affirm a value supported by the competent, substantial evidence in the record. The special magistrate concludes that the hearing record contains competent, substantial evidence of just value. The market evidence presented and admitted at the hearing, when considered in its entirety and in light of the statutory valuation criteria, supports the conclusion that the just value determined by the property appraiser is supported by the evidence and is not shown to be excessive, insufficient, or otherwise incorrect by a preponderance of the evidence. Accordingly, pursuant to §194.301, Florida Statutes, and the applicable provisions of Rule Chapter 12D-9, Florida Administrative Code, the special magistrate recommends that the value adjustment board take no action to change the just value determined by the property appraiser.

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

Hernando County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff.11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☒ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition #	25-301	Parcel ID	R32 323 17 5040 0138 0080
Petitioner name The petitioner is: ☐ taxpayer of record ☒ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	RYAN, INC.	Property address	7641 GATES CIRCLE SPRING HILL, FLORIDA

Decision Summary ☒ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just Value, required	$300,719	$300,719	$300,719
2. Assessed or classified use value, * if applicable	$300,719	$300,719	$300,719
3. Exempt value, * enter "0" if none	$0	$0	$0
4. Taxable value, * required	$300,719	$300,719	$300,719

*All values entered should be county taxable values, School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision

Findings of Fact

DUE TO SPACE LIMITATIONS, FINDINGS OF FACT ARE SET FORTH IN THE ATTACHED ADDENDA, WHICH IS MADE PART OF THIS RECOMMENDATION REPORT.

Conclusions of Law

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW ARE PROVIDED IN THE ATTACHED ADDENDA, INCORPORATED HEREIN BY REFERENCE.

☒ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	ROBERT C. HICKS Print Name	FEB 6, 2026 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____.
Address: Hernando County Gov't Center BOCC Chambers, Room 160, 20 North Main Street, Brooksville, Florida 34601.
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered.
To find the information, please call (352) 754-4970, or visit our website at vab@hernandoclerk.org.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print Name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date mailed to parties

Addenda

Findings Of Fact

Petitioner Natasha Elliott with Ryan, Inc. appeared telephonically on behalf of BISMUTH PROPCO SERIES LLC on January 27, 2026 to provide testimonial and documentary evidence pertaining to the 2025 property assessment for real property located in Hernando County, Florida. The Hernando County Property Appraiser's Office was represented at the hearing by Deputy Appraisers Doug Mack, CFE, Residential Supervisor and Brandon Jimenez, CFE. An opening statement regarding the hearing process and rules of procedure was read and all parties were placed under oath. This petition is one of 22 presented by the petitioner on this hearing date. The specific case numbers are 25-297 through 25-318, inclusive. Any relevant testimony presented during these individual hearings will be incorporated by reference to all hearings to avoid redundancy and expedite the hearing process.

The subject of this petition is listed on the Hernando County tax roll as Parcel ID R32 323 17 5040 0138 0080. This property is described as a single-family residence with a two-car garage and no pool. The subject property is located at 7641 Gates Circle, Spring Hill, Hernando County, Florida. The property consists of 2,256 square feet of adjusted building area with 1,861 square feet of heated living area on a 10,620-square-foot residential lot. The improvements were constructed in 1987. Based on an inspection of the property on September 24, 2025, the property appraiser has determined that the building improvements are of typical construction quality and in average condition. It appears that the subject of this petition has not sold within the 12-month period preceding the January 1 valuation date.

The property appraiser has confirmed the 2025 just value at $300,719, with an assessed value of $300,719 and a taxable value of $300,719. There have been no changes to the values since the Notice of Proposed Property Taxes (TRIM) was issued. The petitioner is requesting a revision to the 2025 just value, proposing a revision in just value to $273,990. This request is supported by sales comparison.

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence, see Florida Administrative Code 12D-9.025(1). Generally, relevant evidence is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. The evidence meets or exceeds a minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. Documentary evidence presented by the property appraiser during the hearing is described and labeled as follows:

- PAO-A (18 pages) - Cover page, case synopsis, subject property record card with building sketch and photograph, sales analysis grid, comparable location map, analysis of sales data, property record card for each sale, list of structure area adjustments

Documentary evidence presented by the petitioner during the hearing is described and labeled as follows:

- PET-1 (10 pages) - Petition, cover page, summary of evidence, sales adjustment grid, adjustment formulas, aerial photograph of subject, street map, location map showing subject and sales

The property appraiser has not raised any objections to the evidence presented by the petitioner during the hearing.

The Florida Legislature has enacted eight criteria that the property appraiser must consider when determining just value. In any administrative or judicial action where a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment, the property appraiser's estimate of just value is presumed correct if it is proven that the assessment was made in compliance with the eight criteria outlined in Section 193.011, Florida Statutes and in accordance with professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The only standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence, meaning the greater weight of evidence, or "more likely than not."

Florida courts have consistently held that the property appraiser is only required to consider the eight criteria, and that applying each factor is not mandatory. The courts have further found that if any one criterion does not reflect just value, it should be disregarded by the property appraiser. The special magistrate finds and summarizes the extent to which the property appraiser has considered each of these criteria in the following paragraphs.

(1) Present cash value of the property - The amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arms-length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In short, the price without transaction costs. The buyer typically pays more, and the seller typically receives less than the price indicated by the documentary stamps due to these transaction costs. In mass appraising, the property appraiser considers this criterion by applying or considering the comparable market sales using the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through comparable sales analysis similar to that found in a fee appraisal. The amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arms-length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In short, the price without transaction costs. The buyer typically pays more, and the seller typically receives less than the price indicated by the documentary stamps due to these transaction costs. In mass appraising, the property appraiser considers this criterion by applying or considering the comparable market sales using the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through

comparable sales analysis similar to that found in a fee appraisal. The property appraiser has presented sales evidence in support of the present cash value. Following are brief descriptions of the sales determined by the property appraiser to be most comparable to the subject and representative of value sourced by property record cards:

PA Sale 1 is located at 251 Sawyer Ave and reflects 1,986 square feet of heated building area (base) with a 1987 year built. The sale occurred in June 2024 for a price of $415,000.

PA Sale 2 is located at 479 Fairbanks Rd and reflects 1,719 square feet of heated building area (base) with a 1983 year built. The sale occurred in January 2024 for a price of $414,900.

PA Sale 3 is located at 488 Fieldstone Ln and reflects 1,805 square feet of heated building area (base) with a 1983 year built. The sale occurred in October 2024 for a price of $465,000.

In considering these sales, the property appraiser has compared them based on per adjusted square foot price. Three qualified sales judged to be most comparable to the subject have been presented in support of value. The sales were selected based on similar location, age, size and utility. The property appraiser's approach relies on feature value deductions and weighted "adjusted building area" calculations rather than paired-sales analysis or market-derived adjustments. Florida appraisal standards and case law (e.g., Valencia Center, Inc. v. Bystrom, 543 So. 2d 214 [Fla. 1989]) require that just value determinations be supported by market evidence showing how specific features or characteristics influence sale prices. Deducting fixed feature values from sale prices without verifying their market validity substitutes internal modeling for actual market behavior. While this may be useful for mass appraisal purposes, it does not provide the level of market support required in an individual value review before the Value Adjustment Board. A credible defense of just value in a hearing must demonstrate how specific comparable sales support the subject's assessed value through observable market adjustments. Reliance on internal modeling, without direct evidence of how the market reacts to property differences, fails to establish that the property appraiser's value represents the amount a willing buyer and seller would agree upon under normal conditions. Secondly, the "adjusted building area" metric has no direct market analogue. Buyers and appraisers typically compare residential properties based on heated living area (gross living area per ANSI or Fannie Mae standards). Introducing a proprietary or synthetic size measure distorts the relationship between price and size, undermining the comparability of sales. This means the model may show internal consistency but not external validity in the open market. It is the opinion of the special magistrate that this sales analysis does not follow with generally accepted appraisal practices.

(2) Highest & Best Use – This relates to the consideration of the fundamental appraisal concept of highest and best use or best use to which the property can be expected to be put in the immediate future. For improved properties, the highest and best use of the property as if vacant should be considered as well. The four steps establishing highest and best use are consideration of what is physically possible, legally permissible, financially feasible, and maximally productive. The highest and best use as vacant is identified through land use codes which, in part, are based on zoning. The highest and best use as improved is assumed to be the current use unless evidence shows otherwise. The property appraiser's office considers highest and best use by identifying and recording land size, zoning, building size, location and other characteristics. Once all coding is in place, comparable sales and rentals that have similar characteristics are used to value the property. The highest and best use of this property is for single-family residential use. This determination is undisputed by the petitioner and appears to have been appropriately considered by the property appraiser.

(3) Location of the property – The property appraiser assigns a neighborhood code to every property in the county. Sales of properties in the same or similar neighborhoods are typically used to determine locational adjustments. Often, site-specific location adjustments are made to reflect either an enhanced location (such as a waterfront site or in a golf course community) or an inferior location (such as adjacent to an industrial use or dumpsite). All of the comparable properties presented in support of value are located in the same neighborhood as the subject. The location of the property appears to have been appropriately considered in the determination of just value.

(4) Quantity or size of the property – The property appraiser must consider the quantity or size of the property by determining and recording the correct land size, building size, and extra features sizes and quantities. Land size is based on legal descriptions from recorded plats or metes and bounds. Building sizes and extra features are determined by inspection and measured by deputy property appraisers. From the evidence presented there do not appear to be any notable discrepancies in size or quantity beyond what is previously been discussed. There does not appear to be any discrepancy in heated building area between the parties; however, as discussed, making comparisons based on adjusted building areas after deducting extra features is inconsistent with market standards.

(5) The cost of the property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon - No separate analysis of cost has been presented during the hearing. The property appraiser indicates that typical residential homebuyers do not rely on development costs when valuing residential property. Cost calculations found on the property record card appear to be supportive of just value.

(6) Condition of the property – The property appraiser considers the condition of properties through periodic property inspections, no less than once every five years as required by Statute. Other events can trigger more frequent site inspections, including the sale of a property, issuance of a building permit, assessment appeal, or at the taxpayer's request. Condition is considered as a factor applied to the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System value calculation for value losses from all sources based upon an age/life depreciation method. Photographs of the subject property have been presented as evidence of condition. The property appraiser confirmed that a personal exterior inspection of this property has been made for the purpose of determining extra features and the condition of the property. It appears that the property appraiser has

appropriately considered this condition.

(7) The income from the property - Residential properties are typically valued for ad valorem tax purposes using the sales comparison approach, as provided for under Section 193.011, Florida Statutes. Comparable sales are relied upon due to the limited availability of market data on residential rental income, operating expenses, and capitalization rates for properties similar to the subject. In the residential market, buyers and sellers generally do not consider income-generating potential when evaluating a property for purchase. The special magistrate finds that the property appraiser has given adequate consideration to this criterion in the analysis of the property.

(8) Cost of Sale Adjustment - This criterion deals with the net proceeds from the sale of a property as received by the seller after deduction of all of the usual and reasonable fees and costs and expenses of financing and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms of financing arrangements. A few examples of the applicability of this criterion include: • unconventional or atypical financing arrangements, such as seller financing at favorable terms, which inflated the price, relative to what would have been achieved with a cash or case-equivalent arrangement, • the inclusion of tangible personal property, which may serve to increase the price above pure real property consideration, • atypically motivated buyers, who may pay a premium relative to that paid by the general market, • atypical closing costs arrangements, such as a seller paying the buyer's closing costs in exchange for a higher sales price. Because these situations may not be discoverable by the mass appraiser relying on raw gross price data, a deduction from the raw gross price is made with the goal being to arrive at 100% of the market value of the real property by eliminating any possible impact of non-real property consideration. This mass appraisal method is found to be acceptable by the Florida Department of Revenue and the Florida Courts. Applicable law provides for uniform cost of sale deductions in just valuations without regard to whether (1) the subject property was sold, (2) mass appraisal or single property appraisal is used, (3) the appraisal approach used to value the property, (4) the petitioner is seeking an increase or decrease in just value, (5) appraised development or VAB review is involved. There is no legal authority for variation in the application of cost of sale deductions based on any of the preceding conditions. The professionally accepted appraisal practice is for Florida property appraisers to uniformly make cost of sale deductions of for all property within use code groups and then report these deductions on Form DR-493 to the Department of Revenue while, understandably, avoiding the impractical task of supporting these deductions in the absence of sufficiently reliable market data that demonstrates the typical, prevalent, and representative cost of sale deductions for each class of real property. In support of consideration of this criterion, the property appraiser has presented an analysis of the ratio between the aggregate sale price paid for all comparable properties compared with their aggregate just value assessments resulting in an average cost of sale adjustment of 40%. While this calculation may demonstrate a general relationship between assessed values and sale prices within the sample, it does not establish adequate support specific to the subject property for this assessment review.

It is implicit in mass appraisal that, even when properly specified and calibrated models are employed, some individual value conclusions may not meet standards of reasonableness, consistency, and accuracy. The purpose of this value review is to determine whether the just value reported on the current tax roll represents the just value of the property after consideration of the criteria set forth in Florida Statute §193.011 and generally accepted appraisal principles, including those applicable to mass appraisal. In reviewing the evidence presented by the property appraiser at this hearing, the special magistrate finds that the property appraiser did not appropriately consider the factors set forth in Florida Statute §193.011, specifically (1), (4) and (8); and therefore, the presumption of correctness has not been established.

By filing this petition, the petitioner alleges that the property appraiser has assessed the property in excess of just value. According to 12D-9.025(3)(a) of the Florida Administrative Code, the petitioner is responsible for presenting relevant and credible evidence in support of his or her belief that the property appraiser's determination is incorrect. To prevail in an assessment challenge, the taxpayer must prove more than a mere difference of opinion regarding an assessment. The following paragraphs describe how the petitioner has addressed each of the eight criteria of the Statute.

(1) Present cash value of the property - In support of a revision to just value, the petitioner has presented the following sales:

PET Sale 1 is located at 7561 Gates Cir and reflects a building size of 1,558 square feet with a 1993 year built on a 13,461-square-foot site, with pool reported as N. The sale date is December 2024 and the Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $273,150 ($175.32 per square foot). This adjusted sale price does not support a reduction in assessment.

PET Sale 2 is located at 7390 Gates Cir and reflects a building size of 2,166 square feet with a 1979 year built on an 11,112-square-foot site, with pool reported as N. The sale date is October 2024 and the Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $238,000 ($109.88 per square foot).

PET Sale 3 is located at 7367 Tradewinds Ln and reflects a building size of 1,626 square feet with a 1978 year built on an 11,730-square-foot site, with pool reported as N. The sale date is March 2024 and the Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $300,250 ($184.66 per square foot). This adjusted sale price does not support a reduction in assessment.

PET Sale 4 is located at 7818 Holiday Dr and reflects a building size of 1,624 square feet with a 1985 year built on a 10,000-square-foot site, with pool reported as N. The sale date is March 2024 and the Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $315,415 ($194.22 per square foot). This adjusted sale price does not support a reduction in assessment.

PET Sale 5 is located at 1129 Tryon Cir and reflects a building size of 1,772 square feet with a 1983 year built on a 15,000-square-foot site, with pool reported as N. The sale date is May 2024 and the Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $275,875 ($155.69 per square foot).

PET Sale 6 is located at 7516 Holiday Dr and reflects a building size of 1,886 square feet with a 1988 year built on a 10,000-square-foot site, with pool reported as N. The sale date is March 2024 and the Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $241,250 ($127.92 per square foot).

The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Prices range from $238,000 to $315,415, with a mean adjusted sale price of $273,990. PET Sale 1, PET Sale 3, and PET Sale 4 have Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price PSF greater than the PSF just value. The petitioner compares these sales based on total price. The petitioner has presented sales that are claimed to be more similar to the subject than the sales relied upon by the property appraiser. Price adjustments were made to account for differences between the sales and the subject property including a 15% adjustment for cost of sale. The petitioner has presented no rebuttal as to the property appraiser's appraisal methods or chosen sales and has not identified a specific methodological error, factual inaccuracy, or inconsistency in the property appraiser's analysis. The petitioner's analysis is based on unsupported adjustments, many of which are calculated using the assessed values of the sales. The petitioner has not visited the subject or any of the sales and has not appropriately compared condition. The property appraiser's just value falls within the range of adjusted sale prices presented by the petitioner and the per-square-foot just value is supported by one or more of the petitioner's adjusted per-square foot sale prices.

(2) Highest and Best Use - The petitioner does not dispute that the highest and best use of the subject property is single-family residential.

(3) Location of the property - The petitioner appears familiar with the location characteristics of the subject property and has not claimed the presence of any atypical or adverse location factors that would materially affect its use or value.

(4) Quantity or size of the property - The petitioner does not dispute the size or quantity of the land or improvements reported by the property appraiser during the hearing, nor was any allegation made that these factors were miscalculated or improperly considered in the valuation.

(5) The cost of the property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon - The petitioner has presented no analysis of land value or depreciated building costs. Cost is rarely used to value this market sector.

(6) Condition - The petitioner has not presented any credible evidence or asserted that the condition of the property differs from the description provided by the property appraiser during the hearing. Furthermore, no claim was made regarding any significant physical deficiencies that would affect the property's use or value.

(7) The income from the property - The petitioner has presented no analysis of income and expense at this hearing, however, as mentioned, this method is also rarely used to value residential properties for ad valorem tax purposes.

(8) Cost of Sale Adjustment - The petitioner has made specific deductions for cost of sale based on the DR-493 form submitted by the property appraiser to the Florida Department of Revenue in consideration of this criterion.

The petitioner has not specifically challenged the market evidence or the analysis conducted by the property appraiser in support of the just value of the subject property. Merely presenting an alternative analysis is not sufficient to warrant a change in assessment. Pursuant to Florida Statute §194.301(1) it is the petitioner's responsibility to demonstrate that the property appraiser's evidence and/or analysis are incorrect, and that the determined value does not represent the just value of the property by a preponderance of the evidence.

After careful consideration of all evidence presented at the hearing, the special magistrate finds that the property appraiser has not established the presumption of correctness. However, the hearing record does contain competent, substantial evidence of just value that complies with the eight criteria set forth in Florida Statute §193.011 and generally accepted appraisal principles. The unadjusted sale prices for the sales contained in the hearing record range from $269,000 to $465,000. These sales were identified by both the property appraiser and the petitioner as the most comparable to the subject property. However, because the petitioner's adjustments are not supported by market evidence, they are afforded little weight. Applying a fifteen percent cost-of-sale adjustment results in an indicated value range of $228,650 to $395,250. Because the subject's just value does not exceed this adjusted range, the evidence in the hearing record indicates that the assessment is not overstated. Accordingly, the special magistrate recommends no change in the just value established by the property appraiser.

Conclusions of Law

Pursuant to §194.301(1), Florida Statutes, in any administrative action in which a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment of value, the property appraiser's assessment is presumed correct if the property appraiser proves by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment was arrived at in compliance with §193.011, Florida Statutes, and professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The applicable standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence. Based upon the evidence presented and admitted at the hearing, the special magistrate concludes that the property appraiser did not establish the presumption of correctness. The evidence relied upon by the property appraiser did not sufficiently demonstrate that all applicable statutory criteria were properly considered in a manner consistent with generally accepted appraisal practices for an individual assessment review. Pursuant to §194.301(2)(b), Florida Statutes, when the presumption of correctness is not established, the value adjustment board or special magistrate is required to determine the assessment if there is competent, substantial evidence of just value in the hearing record which cumulatively satisfies the criteria set forth in §193.011, Florida Statutes, and professionally accepted appraisal practices. The special magistrate is not required to adopt the specific value advocated by either party and may establish or affirm a value supported by the competent, substantial evidence in the record. The special magistrate concludes that the hearing record contains competent, substantial evidence of just value. The market evidence presented and admitted at the hearing, when considered in its entirety and in light of the statutory valuation criteria, supports the conclusion that the just value determined by the property appraiser is supported by the evidence and is not shown to be excessive, insufficient, or otherwise incorrect by a preponderance of the evidence. Accordingly, pursuant to §194.301, Florida Statutes, and the applicable provisions of Rule Chapter 12D-9, Florida Administrative Code, the special magistrate recommends that the value adjustment board take no action to change the just value determined by the property appraiser.

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

Hernando County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff.11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☒ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition #	25-302	Parcel ID	R10 223 17 1428 0000 0630
Petitioner name The petitioner is: ☐ taxpayer of record ☒ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	RYAN, INC.	Property address	4415 LAS PALMAS AVENUE SPRING HILL, FLORIDA

Decision Summary ☒ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just Value, required	$409,096	$409,096	$409,096
2. Assessed or classified use value, * if applicable	$365,118	$365,118	$365,118
3. Exempt value, * enter "0" if none	$0	$0	$0
4. Taxable value, * required	$365,118	$365,118	$365,118

*All values entered should be county taxable values, School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision

Findings of Fact

DUE TO SPACE LIMITATIONS, FINDINGS OF FACT ARE SET FORTH IN THE ATTACHED ADDENDA, WHICH IS MADE PART OF THIS RECOMMENDATION REPORT.

Conclusions of Law

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW ARE PROVIDED IN THE ATTACHED ADDENDA, INCORPORATED HEREIN BY REFERENCE.

☒ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	ROBERT C. HICKS Print Name	FEB 6, 2026 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____.
Address: Hernando County Gov't Center BOCC Chambers, Room 160, 20 North Main Street, Brooksville, Florida 34601.
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered.
To find the information, please call (352) 754-4970, or visit our website at vab@hernandoclerk.org.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print Name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date mailed to parties

Addenda

Findings Of Fact

Petitioner Natasha Elliott with Ryan, Inc. appeared telephonically on behalf of PAGAY SMARTRESI F1 FUND PROPERTY OWNER III, LLC on January 27, 2026 to provide testimonial and documentary evidence pertaining to the 2025 property assessment for real property located in Hernando County, Florida. The Hernando County Property Appraiser's Office was represented at the hearing by Deputy Appraisers Doug Mack, CFE, Residential Supervisor and Brandon Jimenez, CFE. An opening statement regarding the hearing process and rules of procedure was read and all parties were placed under oath. This petition is one of 22 presented by the petitioner on this hearing date. The specific case numbers are 25-297 through 25-318, inclusive. Any relevant testimony presented during these individual hearings will be incorporated by reference to all hearings to avoid redundancy and expedite the hearing process.

The subject of this petition is listed on the Hernando County tax roll as Parcel ID R10 223 17 1428 0000 0630. This property is described as a single-family residence with no pool and a two-car garage. The subject property is located at 4415 Las Palmas Avenue, Spring Hill, Hernando County, Florida. The property consists of 3,001 square feet of adjusted building area with 2,778 square feet of heated building area on a 9,598-square-foot residential lot. The improvements were constructed in 1992. Based on an inspection of the property on September 23, 2024, the property appraiser has determined that the building improvements are of typical construction quality and in average condition. It appears that the subject of this petition has not sold within the 12-month period preceding the January 1 valuation date.

The property appraiser has confirmed the 2025 just value at $409,096, with an assessed value of $365,118 and a taxable value of $365,118. There have been no changes to the values since the Notice of Proposed Property Taxes (TRIM) was issued. The petitioner is requesting a revision to the 2025 just value, proposing a revision in just value to $382,875. This request is supported by sales comparison.

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence, see Florida Administrative Code 12D-9.025(1). Generally, relevant evidence is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. The evidence meets or exceeds a minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. Documentary evidence presented by the property appraiser during the hearing is described and labeled as follows:

- PAO-A (18 pages) - Cover page, case synopsis, subject property record card with building sketch and photograph, sales analysis grid, comparable location map, analysis of sales data, property record card for each sale, list of structure area adjustments

Documentary evidence presented by the petitioner during the hearing is described and labeled as follows:

- PET-1 (9 pages) - Petition, cover page, summary of evidence, sales adjustment grid, adjustment formulas, aerial photograph of subject, street map, location map showing subject and sales

The property appraiser has not raised any objections to the evidence presented by the petitioner during the hearing.

The Florida Legislature has enacted eight criteria that the property appraiser must consider when determining just value. In any administrative or judicial action where a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment, the property appraiser's estimate of just value is presumed correct if it is proven that the assessment was made in compliance with the eight criteria outlined in Section 193.011, Florida Statutes and in accordance with professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The only standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence, meaning the greater weight of evidence, or "more likely than not."

Florida courts have consistently held that the property appraiser is only required to consider the eight criteria, and that applying each factor is not mandatory. The courts have further found that if any one criterion does not reflect just value, it should be disregarded by the property appraiser. The special magistrate finds and summarizes the extent to which the property appraiser has considered each of these criteria in the following paragraphs.

(1) Present cash value of the property - The amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arms-length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In short, the price without transaction costs. The buyer typically pays more, and the seller typically receives less than the price indicated by the documentary stamps due to these transaction costs. In mass appraising, the property appraiser considers this criterion by applying or considering the comparable market sales using the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through comparable sales analysis similar to that found in a fee appraisal. The amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arms-length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In short, the price without transaction costs. The buyer typically pays more, and the seller typically receives less than the price indicated by the documentary stamps due to these transaction costs. In mass appraising, the property appraiser considers this criterion by applying or considering the comparable market sales using the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through

comparable sales analysis similar to that found in a fee appraisal. The property appraiser has presented sales evidence in support of the present cash value. Following are brief descriptions of the sales determined by the property appraiser to be most comparable to the subject and representative of value sourced by property record cards:

PA Sale 1 is located at 8115 Tedburn Park and contains 2,262 square feet of heated building area. The residence was constructed in 1993. The property sold in August 2024 for a sale price of $450,000.

PA Sale 2 is located at 8142 Winding Oak Lane and contains 2,116 square feet of heated building area. The residence was constructed in 1992. The property sold in January 2024 for a sale price of $397,500.

PA Sale 3 is located at 4241 Stratford Court and contains 1,739 square feet of heated building area. The residence was constructed in 1992. The property sold in November 2024 for a sale price of $370,000.

In considering these sales, the property appraiser has compared them based on per adjusted square foot price. Three qualified sales judged to be most comparable to the subject have been presented in support of value. The sales were selected based on similar location, age, size and utility. The property appraiser's approach relies on feature value deductions and weighted "adjusted building area" calculations rather than paired-sales analysis or market-derived adjustments. Florida appraisal standards and case law (e.g., Valencia Center, Inc. v. Bystrom, 543 So. 2d 214 [Fla. 1989]) require that just value determinations be supported by market evidence showing how specific features or characteristics influence sale prices. Deducting fixed feature values from sale prices without verifying their market validity substitutes internal modeling for actual market behavior. While this may be useful for mass appraisal purposes, it does not provide the level of market support required in an individual value review before the Value Adjustment Board. A credible defense of just value in a hearing must demonstrate how specific comparable sales support the subject's assessed value through observable market adjustments. Reliance on internal modeling, without direct evidence of how the market reacts to property differences, fails to establish that the property appraiser's value represents the amount a willing buyer and seller would agree upon under normal conditions. Secondly, the "adjusted building area" metric has no direct market analogue. Buyers and appraisers typically compare residential properties based on heated living area (gross living area per ANSI or Fannie Mae standards). Introducing a proprietary or synthetic size measure distorts the relationship between price and size, undermining the comparability of sales. This means the model may show internal consistency but not external validity in the open market. It is the opinion of the special magistrate that this sales analysis does not follow with generally accepted appraisal practices.

(2) Highest & Best Use – This relates to the consideration of the fundamental appraisal concept of highest and best use or best use to which the property can be expected to be put in the immediate future. For improved properties, the highest and best use of the property as if vacant should be considered as well. The four steps establishing highest and best use are consideration of what is physically possible, legally permissible, financially feasible, and maximally productive. The highest and best use as vacant is identified through land use codes which, in part, are based on zoning. The highest and best use as improved is assumed to be the current use unless evidence shows otherwise. The property appraiser's office considers highest and best use by identifying and recording land size, zoning, building size, location and other characteristics. Once all coding is in place, comparable sales and rentals that have similar characteristics are used to value the property. The highest and best use of this property is for single-family residential use. This determination is undisputed by the petitioner and appears to have been appropriately considered by the property appraiser.

(3) Location of the property – The property appraiser assigns a neighborhood code to every property in the county. Sales of properties in the same or similar neighborhoods are typically used to determine locational adjustments. Often, site-specific location adjustments are made to reflect either an enhanced location (such as a waterfront site or in a golf course community) or an inferior location (such as adjacent to an industrial use or dumpsite). All of the comparable properties presented in support of value are located in the same neighborhood as the subject. The location of the property appears to have been appropriately considered in the determination of just value.

(4) Quantity or size of the property – The property appraiser must consider the quantity or size of the property by determining and recording the correct land size, building size, and extra features sizes and quantities. Land size is based on legal descriptions from recorded plats or metes and bounds. Building sizes and extra features are determined by inspection and measured by deputy property appraisers. From the evidence presented there do not appear to be any notable discrepancies in size or quantity beyond what is previously been discussed. There does not appear to be any discrepancy in heated building area between the parties; however, as discussed, making comparisons based on adjusted building areas after deducting extra features is inconsistent with market standards.

(5) The cost of the property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon - No separate analysis of cost has been presented during the hearing. The property appraiser indicates that typical residential homebuyers do not rely on development costs when valuing residential property. Cost calculations found on the property record card appear to be supportive of just value.

(6) Condition of the property – The property appraiser considers the condition of properties through periodic property inspections, no less than once every five years as required by Statute. Other events can trigger more frequent site inspections, including the sale of a property, issuance of a building permit, assessment appeal, or at the taxpayer's request. Condition is considered as a factor applied to the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System value calculation for value losses from all sources based upon an age/life depreciation method. Photographs of the subject property have been presented as evidence of condition. The property appraiser confirmed that a personal exterior inspection of this property has been made for the purpose of determining extra features and the condition of the property. It appears that the property appraiser has

appropriately considered this condition.

(7) The income from the property - Residential properties are typically valued for ad valorem tax purposes using the sales comparison approach, as provided for under Section 193.011, Florida Statutes. Comparable sales are relied upon due to the limited availability of market data on residential rental income, operating expenses, and capitalization rates for properties similar to the subject. In the residential market, buyers and sellers generally do not consider income-generating potential when evaluating a property for purchase. The special magistrate finds that the property appraiser has given adequate consideration to this criterion in the analysis of the property.

(8) Cost of Sale Adjustment - This criterion deals with the net proceeds from the sale of a property as received by the seller after deduction of all of the usual and reasonable fees and costs and expenses of financing and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms of financing arrangements. A few examples of the applicability of this criterion include: • unconventional or atypical financing arrangements, such as seller financing at favorable terms, which inflated the price, relative to what would have been achieved with a cash or case-equivalent arrangement, • the inclusion of tangible personal property, which may serve to increase the price above pure real property consideration, • atypically motivated buyers, who may pay a premium relative to that paid by the general market, • atypical closing costs arrangements, such as a seller paying the buyer's closing costs in exchange for a higher sales price. Because these situations may not be discoverable by the mass appraiser relying on raw gross price data, a deduction from the raw gross price is made with the goal being to arrive at 100% of the market value of the real property by eliminating any possible impact of non-real property consideration. This mass appraisal method is found to be acceptable by the Florida Department of Revenue and the Florida Courts. Applicable law provides for uniform cost of sale deductions in just valuations without regard to whether (1) the subject property was sold, (2) mass appraisal or single property appraisal is used, (3) the appraisal approach used to value the property, (4) the petitioner is seeking an increase or decrease in just value, (5) appraised development or VAB review is involved. There is no legal authority for variation in the application of cost of sale deductions based on any of the preceding conditions. The professionally accepted appraisal practice is for Florida property appraisers to uniformly make cost of sale deductions of for all property within use code groups and then report these deductions on Form DR-493 to the Department of Revenue while, understandably, avoiding the impractical task of supporting these deductions in the absence of sufficiently reliable market data that demonstrates the typical, prevalent, and representative cost of sale deductions for each class of real property. In support of consideration of this criterion, the property appraiser has presented an analysis of the ratio between the aggregate sale price paid for all comparable properties compared with their aggregate just value assessments resulting in an average cost of sale adjustment of 17%. While this calculation may demonstrate a general relationship between assessed values and sale prices within the sample, it does not establish adequate support specific to the subject property for this assessment review.

It is implicit in mass appraisal that, even when properly specified and calibrated models are employed, some individual value conclusions may not meet standards of reasonableness, consistency, and accuracy. The purpose of this value review is to determine whether the just value reported on the current tax roll represents the just value of the property after consideration of the criteria set forth in Florida Statute §193.011 and generally accepted appraisal principles, including those applicable to mass appraisal. In reviewing the evidence presented by the property appraiser at this hearing, the special magistrate finds that the property appraiser did not appropriately consider the factors set forth in Florida Statute §193.011, specifically (1), (4) and (8); and therefore, the presumption of correctness has not been established.

By filing this petition, the petitioner alleges that the property appraiser has assessed the property in excess of just value. According to 12D-9.025(3)(a) of the Florida Administrative Code, the petitioner is responsible for presenting relevant and credible evidence in support of his or her belief that the property appraiser's determination is incorrect. To prevail in an assessment challenge, the taxpayer must prove more than a mere difference of opinion regarding an assessment. The following paragraphs describe how the petitioner has addressed each of the eight criteria of the Statute.

(1) Present cash value of the property - In support of a revision to just value, the petitioner has presented the following sales:

PET Sale 1 is located at 8126 Winding Oak Lane and contains 3,021 square feet of building area, was constructed in 1992, and has a land area of 9,851 square feet. The property does not have a pool. The sale occurred in July 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $363,750, or $158.08 per square foot.

PET Sale 2 is located at 8115 Tedburn Park and contains 3,196 square feet of building area, was constructed in 1993, and has a land area of 10,554 square feet. The property does not have a pool. The sale occurred in August 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $468,000, or $206.90 per square foot. This adjusted sale price does not support a reduction in assessment.

PET Sale 3 is located at 5169 Beachview Drive and contains 3,477 square feet of building area, was constructed in 2006, and has a land area of 14,000 square feet. The property does not have a pool. The sale occurred in March 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $371,250, or $122.57 per square foot.

PET Sale 4 is located at 7291 Flyway Drive and contains 2,979 square feet of building area, was constructed in 1997, and has a land area of 8,250 square feet. The property does not have a pool. The sale occurred in September 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $360,500, or $161.37 per square foot.

PET Sale 5 is located at 5008 Panther Drive and contains 3,446 square feet of building area, was constructed in 1993, and has a land area of 11,681 square feet. The property does not have a pool. The sale occurred in April 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $410,750, or $167.45 per square foot. This adjusted sale price does not support a reduction in assessment.

PET Sale 6 is located at 8369 Maltby Road and contains 3,265 square feet of building area, was constructed in 2006, and has a land area of 10,000 square feet. The property does not have a pool. The sale occurred in June 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $323,000, or $126.87 per square foot.

The final adjusted sale prices range from $323,000 to $468,000 bracketing the just value, with an average adjusted sale price of $382,875. Sales 1, 2, 4, and 5 have Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price per square foot values that exceed the per square foot just value shown at the top of the grid. The petitioner compares these sales based on total price. The petitioner has presented sales that are claimed to be more similar to the subject than the sales relied upon by the property appraiser. Price adjustments were made to account for differences between the sales and the subject property including a 15% adjustment for cost of sale. The petitioner has presented no rebuttal as to the property appraiser's appraisal methods or chosen sales and has not identified a specific methodological error, factual inaccuracy, or inconsistency in the property appraiser's analysis. The petitioner's analysis is based on unsupported adjustments, many of which are calculated using the assessed values of the sales. The petitioner has not visited the subject or any of the sales and has not appropriately compared condition. The property appraiser's just value falls within the range of adjusted sale prices presented by the petitioner and the per-square-foot just value is supported by one or more of the petitioner's adjusted per-square foot sale prices.

(2) Highest and Best Use - The petitioner does not dispute that the highest and best use of the subject property is single-family residential.

(3) Location of the property - The petitioner appears familiar with the location characteristics of the subject property and has not claimed the presence of any atypical or adverse location factors that would materially affect its use or value.

(4) Quantity or size of the property - The petitioner does not dispute the size or quantity of the land or improvements reported by the property appraiser during the hearing, nor was any allegation made that these factors were miscalculated or improperly considered in the valuation.

(5) The cost of the property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon - The petitioner has presented no analysis of land value or depreciated building costs. Cost is rarely used to value this market sector.

(6) Condition - The petitioner has not presented any credible evidence or asserted that the condition of the property differs from the description provided by the property appraiser during the hearing. Furthermore, no claim was made regarding any significant physical deficiencies that would affect the property's use or value.

(7) The income from the property - The petitioner has presented no analysis of income and expense at this hearing, however, as mentioned, this method is also rarely used to value residential properties for ad valorem tax purposes.

(8) Cost of Sale Adjustment - The petitioner has made specific deductions for cost of sale based on the DR-493 form submitted by the property appraiser to the Florida Department of Revenue in consideration of this criterion.

The petitioner has not specifically challenged the market evidence or the analysis conducted by the property appraiser in support of the just value of the subject property. Merely presenting an alternative analysis is not sufficient to warrant a change in assessment. Pursuant to Florida Statute §194.301(1) it is the petitioner's responsibility to demonstrate that the property appraiser's evidence and/or analysis are incorrect, and that the determined value does not represent the just value of the property by a preponderance of the evidence.

After careful consideration of all evidence presented at the hearing, the special magistrate finds that the property appraiser has not established the presumption of correctness. However, the hearing record does contain competent, substantial evidence of just value that complies with the eight criteria set forth in Florida Statute §193.011 and generally accepted appraisal principles. The unadjusted sale prices for the sales contained in the hearing record range from $355,000 to $485,000. These sales were identified by both the property appraiser and the petitioner as the most comparable to the subject property. However, because the petitioner's adjustments are not supported by market evidence, they are afforded little weight. Applying a fifteen percent cost-of-sale adjustment results in an indicated value range of $301,750 to $412,250. Because the subject's just value does not exceed this adjusted range, the evidence in the hearing record indicates that the assessment is not overstated. Accordingly, the special magistrate recommends no change in the just value established by the property appraiser.

Conclusions of Law

Pursuant to §194.301(1), Florida Statutes, in any administrative action in which a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment of value, the property appraiser's assessment is presumed correct if the property appraiser proves by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment was arrived at in compliance with §193.011, Florida Statutes, and professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The applicable standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence. Based upon the evidence presented and admitted at the hearing, the special magistrate concludes that the property appraiser did not establish the presumption of correctness. The evidence relied upon by the property appraiser did not sufficiently demonstrate that all applicable statutory criteria were properly considered in a manner consistent with generally accepted appraisal practices for an individual assessment review. Pursuant to §194.301(2)(b), Florida Statutes, when the presumption of correctness is not established, the value adjustment board or special magistrate is required to determine the assessment if there is competent, substantial evidence of just value in the hearing record which cumulatively satisfies the criteria set forth in §193.011, Florida Statutes, and professionally accepted appraisal practices. The special magistrate is not required to adopt the specific value advocated by either party and may establish or affirm a value supported by the competent, substantial evidence in the record. The special magistrate concludes that the hearing record contains competent, substantial evidence of just value. The market evidence presented and admitted at the hearing, when considered in its entirety and in light of the statutory valuation criteria, supports the conclusion that the just value determined by the property appraiser is supported by the evidence and is not shown to be excessive, insufficient, or otherwise incorrect by a preponderance of the evidence. Accordingly, pursuant to §194.301, Florida Statutes, and the applicable provisions of Rule Chapter 12D-9, Florida Administrative Code, the special magistrate recommends that the value adjustment board take no action to change the just value determined by the property appraiser.

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

Hernando County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff.11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☒ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition #	25-303	Parcel ID	R32 323 17 5011 0045 0370
Petitioner name	RYAN, INC.	Property address	6410 JAMAICA ROAD
The petitioner is:	☐ taxpayer of record ☒ taxpayer's representative		SPRING HILL, FLORIDA
☐ other, explain:

Decision Summary ☒ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just Value, required	$313,248	$313,248	$313,248
2. Assessed or classified use value, * if applicable	$313,248	$313,248	$313,248
3. Exempt value, * enter "0" if none	$0	$0	$0
4. Taxable value, * required	$313,248	$313,248	$313,248

*All values entered should be county taxable values, School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision

Findings of Fact

DUE TO SPACE LIMITATIONS, FINDINGS OF FACT ARE SET FORTH IN THE ATTACHED ADDENDA, WHICH IS MADE PART OF THIS RECOMMENDATION REPORT.

Conclusions of Law

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW ARE PROVIDED IN THE ATTACHED ADDENDA, INCORPORATED HEREIN BY REFERENCE.

☒ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	ROBERT C. HICKS Print Name	FEB 6, 2026 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____.
Address: Hernando County Gov't Center BOCC Chambers, Room 160, 20 North Main Street, Brooksville, Florida 34601.
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered.
To find the information, please call (352) 754-4970, or visit our website at vab@hernandoclerk.org.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print Name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date mailed to parties

Addenda

Findings Of Fact

Petitioner Natasha Elliott with Ryan, Inc. appeared telephonically on behalf of PAGAYA SMARTRESI F1 FUND PROPERTY OWNER on January 27, 2026 to provide testimonial and documentary evidence pertaining to the 2025 property assessment for real property located in Hernando County, Florida. The Hernando County Property Appraiser's Office was represented at the hearing by Deputy Appraisers Doug Mack, CFE, Residential Supervisor and Brandon Jimenez, CFE. An opening statement regarding the hearing process and rules of procedure was read and all parties were placed under oath. This petition is one of 22 presented by the petitioner on this hearing date. The specific case numbers are 25-297 through 25-318, inclusive. Any relevant testimony presented during these individual hearings will be incorporated by reference to all hearings to avoid redundancy and expedite the hearing process.

The subject of this petition is listed on the Hernando County tax roll as Parcel ID R32 323 17 5011 0045 0370. This property is described as a single-family residence with a three-car garage and no pool. The subject property is located at 6410 Jamaica Road, Spring Hill, Hernando County, Florida. The property consists of 2,330 square feet of adjusted building area with 1,816 square feet of heated living area on a 10,000-square-foot residential lot. The improvements were constructed in 2004. Based on an inspection of the property on September 20, 2025, the property appraiser has determined that the building improvements are of typical construction quality and in average condition. It appears that the subject of this petition has not sold within the 12-month period preceding the January 1 valuation date.

The property appraiser has confirmed the 2025 just value at $313,248, with an assessed value of $313,248 and a taxable value of $313,248. There have been no changes to the values since the Notice of Proposed Property Taxes (TRIM) was issued. The petitioner is requesting a revision to the 2025 just value, proposing a revision in just value to $269,625. This request is supported by sales comparison.

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence, see Florida Administrative Code 12D-9.025(1). Generally, relevant evidence is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. The evidence meets or exceeds a minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. Documentary evidence presented by the property appraiser during the hearing is described and labeled as follows:

- PAO-A (18 pages) - Cover page, case synopsis, subject property record card with building sketch and photograph, sales analysis grid, comparable location map, analysis of sales data, property record card for each sale, list of structure area adjustments

Documentary evidence presented by the petitioner during the hearing is described and labeled as follows:

- PET-1 (9 pages) - Petition, cover page, summary of evidence, sales adjustment grid, adjustment formulas, aerial photograph of subject, street map, location map showing subject and sales

The property appraiser has not raised any objections to the evidence presented by the petitioner during the hearing.

The Florida Legislature has enacted eight criteria that the property appraiser must consider when determining just value. In any administrative or judicial action where a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment, the property appraiser's estimate of just value is presumed correct if it is proven that the assessment was made in compliance with the eight criteria outlined in Section 193.011, Florida Statutes and in accordance with professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The only standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence, meaning the greater weight of evidence, or "more likely than not."

Florida courts have consistently held that the property appraiser is only required to consider the eight criteria, and that applying each factor is not mandatory. The courts have further found that if any one criterion does not reflect just value, it should be disregarded by the property appraiser. The special magistrate finds and summarizes the extent to which the property appraiser has considered each of these criteria in the following paragraphs.

(1) Present cash value of the property - The amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arms-length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In short, the price without transaction costs. The buyer typically pays more, and the seller typically receives less than the price indicated by the documentary stamps due to these transaction costs. In mass appraising, the property appraiser considers this criterion by applying or considering the comparable market sales using the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through comparable sales analysis similar to that found in a fee appraisal. The amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arms-length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In short, the price without transaction costs. The buyer typically pays more, and the seller typically receives less than the price indicated by the documentary stamps due to these transaction costs. In mass appraising, the property appraiser considers this criterion by applying or considering the comparable market sales using the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through

comparable sales analysis similar to that found in a fee appraisal. The property appraiser has presented sales evidence in support of the present cash value. Following are brief descriptions of the sales determined by the property appraiser to be most comparable to the subject and representative of value sourced by property record cards:

PA Sale 1 involves the single-family residence located at 423 Trafalgar Ln. The dwelling contains 1,925 square feet of heated building area, was built in 1982, and sold in October 2024 for a reported sale price of $329,000.

PA Sale 2 involves the single-family residence located at 5523 Newmark St. The dwelling contains 1,768 square feet of heated building area, was built in 2006, and sold in August 2024 for a reported sale price of $385,000.

PA Sale 3 involves the single-family residence located at 7191 Skylark Dr. The dwelling contains 1,871 square feet of heated building area, was built in 1997, and sold in October 2024 for a reported sale price of $435,000.

In considering these sales, the property appraiser has compared them based on per adjusted square foot price. Three qualified sales judged to be most comparable to the subject have been presented in support of value. The sales were selected based on similar location, age, size and utility. The property appraiser's approach relies on feature value deductions and weighted "adjusted building area" calculations rather than paired-sales analysis or market-derived adjustments. Florida appraisal standards and case law (e.g., Valencia Center, Inc. v. Bystrom, 543 So. 2d 214 [Fla. 1989]) require that just value determinations be supported by market evidence showing how specific features or characteristics influence sale prices. Deducting fixed feature values from sale prices without verifying their market validity substitutes internal modeling for actual market behavior. While this may be useful for mass appraisal purposes, it does not provide the level of market support required in an individual value review before the Value Adjustment Board. A credible defense of just value in a hearing must demonstrate how specific comparable sales support the subject's assessed value through observable market adjustments. Reliance on internal modeling, without direct evidence of how the market reacts to property differences, fails to establish that the property appraiser's value represents the amount a willing buyer and seller would agree upon under normal conditions. Secondly, the "adjusted building area" metric has no direct market analogue. Buyers and appraisers typically compare residential properties based on heated living area (gross living area per ANSI or Fannie Mae standards). Introducing a proprietary or synthetic size measure distorts the relationship between price and size, undermining the comparability of sales. This means the model may show internal consistency but not external validity in the open market. It is the opinion of the special magistrate that this sales analysis does not follow with generally accepted appraisal practices.

(2) Highest & Best Use – This relates to the consideration of the fundamental appraisal concept of highest and best use or best use to which the property can be expected to be put in the immediate future. For improved properties, the highest and best use of the property as if vacant should be considered as well. The four steps establishing highest and best use are consideration of what is physically possible, legally permissible, financially feasible, and maximally productive. The highest and best use as vacant is identified through land use codes which, in part, are based on zoning. The highest and best use as improved is assumed to be the current use unless evidence shows otherwise. The property appraiser's office considers highest and best use by identifying and recording land size, zoning, building size, location and other characteristics. Once all coding is in place, comparable sales and rentals that have similar characteristics are used to value the property. The highest and best use of this property is for single-family residential use. This determination is undisputed by the petitioner and appears to have been appropriately considered by the property appraiser.

(3) Location of the property – The property appraiser assigns a neighborhood code to every property in the county. Sales of properties in the same or similar neighborhoods are typically used to determine locational adjustments. Often, site-specific location adjustments are made to reflect either an enhanced location (such as a waterfront site or in a golf course community) or an inferior location (such as adjacent to an industrial use or dumpsite). All of the comparable properties presented in support of value are located in the same neighborhood as the subject. The location of the property appears to have been appropriately considered in the determination of just value.

(4) Quantity or size of the property – The property appraiser must consider the quantity or size of the property by determining and recording the correct land size, building size, and extra features sizes and quantities. Land size is based on legal descriptions from recorded plats or metes and bounds. Building sizes and extra features are determined by inspection and measured by deputy property appraisers. There does not appear to be any discrepancy in heated building area between the parties; however, as discussed, making comparisons based on adjusted building areas after deducting extra features is inconsistent with market standards.

(5) The cost of the property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon - No separate analysis of cost has been presented during the hearing. The property appraiser indicates that typical residential homebuyers do not rely on development costs when valuing residential property. Cost calculations found on the property record card appear to be supportive of just value.

(6) Condition of the property – The property appraiser considers the condition of properties through periodic property inspections, no less than once every five years as required by Statute. Other events can trigger more frequent site inspections, including the sale of a property, issuance of a building permit, assessment appeal, or at the taxpayer's request. Condition is considered as a factor applied to the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System value calculation for value losses from all sources based upon an age/life depreciation method. Photographs of the subject property have been presented as evidence of condition. The property appraiser confirmed that a personal exterior inspection of this property has been made for the purpose of determining extra features and the condition of the property. It appears that the property appraiser has appropriately considered this condition.

(7) The income from the property - Residential properties are typically valued for ad valorem tax purposes using the sales comparison approach, as provided for under Section 193.011, Florida Statutes. Comparable sales are relied upon due to the limited availability of market data on residential rental income, operating expenses, and capitalization rates for properties similar to the subject. In the residential market, buyers and sellers generally do not consider income-generating potential when evaluating a property for purchase. The special magistrate finds that the property appraiser has given adequate consideration to this criterion in the analysis of the property.

(8) Cost of Sale Adjustment - This criterion deals with the net proceeds from the sale of a property as received by the seller after deduction of all of the usual and reasonable fees and costs and expenses of financing and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms of financing arrangements. A few examples of the applicability of this criterion include: • unconventional or atypical financing arrangements, such as seller financing at favorable terms, which inflated the price, relative to what would have been achieved with a cash or case-equivalent arrangement, • the inclusion of tangible personal property, which may serve to increase the price above pure real property consideration, • atypically motivated buyers, who may pay a premium relative to that paid by the general market, • atypical closing costs arrangements, such as a seller paying the buyer's closing costs in exchange for a higher sales price. Because these situations may not be discoverable by the mass appraiser relying on raw gross price data, a deduction from the raw gross price is made with the goal being to arrive at 100% of the market value of the real property by eliminating any possible impact of non-real property consideration. This mass appraisal method is found to be acceptable by the Florida Department of Revenue and the Florida Courts. Applicable law provides for uniform cost of sale deductions in just valuations without regard to whether (1) the subject property was sold, (2) mass appraisal or single property appraisal is used, (3) the appraisal approach used to value the property, (4) the petitioner is seeking an increase or decrease in just value, (5) appraised development or VAB review is involved. There is no legal authority for variation in the application of cost of sale deductions based on any of the preceding conditions. The professionally accepted appraisal practice is for Florida property appraisers to uniformly make cost of sale deductions of for all property within use code groups and then report these deductions on Form DR-493 to the Department of Revenue while, understandably, avoiding the impractical task of supporting these deductions in the absence of sufficiently reliable market data that demonstrates the typical, prevalent, and representative cost of sale deductions for each class of real property. In support of consideration of this criterion, the property appraiser has presented an analysis of the ratio between the aggregate sale price paid for all comparable properties compared with their aggregate just value assessments resulting in an average cost of sale adjustment of 11%. While this calculation may demonstrate a general relationship between assessed values and sale prices within the sample, it does not establish adequate support specific to the subject property for this assessment review.

It is implicit in mass appraisal that, even when properly specified and calibrated models are employed, some individual value conclusions may not meet standards of reasonableness, consistency, and accuracy. The purpose of this value review is to determine whether the just value reported on the current tax roll represents the just value of the property after consideration of the criteria set forth in Florida Statute §193.011 and generally accepted appraisal principles, including those applicable to mass appraisal. In reviewing the evidence presented by the property appraiser at this hearing, the special magistrate finds that the property appraiser did not appropriately consider the factors set forth in Florida Statute §193.011, specifically (1), (4) and (8); and therefore, the presumption of correctness has not been established.

By filing this petition, the petitioner alleges that the property appraiser has assessed the property in excess of just value. According to 12D-9.025(3)(a) of the Florida Administrative Code, the petitioner is responsible for presenting relevant and credible evidence in support of his or her belief that the property appraiser's determination is incorrect. To prevail in an assessment challenge, the taxpayer must prove more than a mere difference of opinion regarding an assessment. The following paragraphs describe how the petitioner has addressed each of the eight criteria of the Statute.

(1) Present cash value of the property - In support of a revision to just value, the petitioner has presented the following sales:

PET Sale 1 reflects the sale of the property located at 6207 Hillview Rd. The residence contains 1,888 square feet of building area, was built in 1993, is situated on a site of 10,000 square feet, has no pool, sold in January 2024, and has a Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price of $287,000, or $152.01 per square foot.

PET Sale 2 reflects the sale of the property located at 1321 Ivydale Rd. The residence contains 1,828 square feet of building area, was built in 1984, is situated on a site of 10,000 square feet, has no pool, sold in August 2024, and has a Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price of $255,625, or $139.84 per square foot.

PET Sale 3 reflects the sale of the property located at 6077 Alderwood St. The residence contains 1,980 square feet of building area, was built in 1978, is situated on a site of 10,000 square feet, has no pool, sold in December 2024, and has a Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price of $35,845, or $18.10 per square foot.

PET Sale 4 reflects the sale of the property located at 1271 Tyler Ave. The residence contains 1,730 square feet of building area, was built in 2004, is situated on a site of 10,000 square feet, has no pool, sold in April 2024, and has a Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price of $255,250, or $147.54 per square foot.

PET Sale 5 reflects the sale of the property located at 6049 Airmont Dr. The residence contains 1,952 square feet of building area, was built in 1989, is situated on a site of 11,518 square feet, has no pool, sold in April 2024, and has a Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price of $243,500, or $124.74 per square foot.

PET Sale 6 reflects the sale of the property located at 5523 Newmark St. The residence contains 1,768 square feet of building area, was built in 2006, is situated on a site of 10,000 square feet, has no pool, sold in August 2024, and has a Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price of $306,750, or $173.50 per square foot.

The final adjusted sale prices range from $35,845 to $306,750, with a mean adjusted sale price of approximately $230,662. During the hearing the petitioner stated that PET Sale 3 was included in error and requested to omit this sale and revise the just value to the average without it. PET Sale 6 has a Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price per square foot greater than the per square foot Just Value. The petitioner compares these sales based on total price. The petitioner has presented sales that are claimed to be more similar to the subject than the sales relied upon by the property appraiser. Price adjustments were made to account for differences between the sales and the subject property including a 15% adjustment for cost of sale. The petitioner has presented no rebuttal as to the property appraiser's appraisal methods or chosen sales and has not identified a specific methodological error, factual inaccuracy, or inconsistency in the property appraiser's analysis. The petitioner's analysis is based on unsupported adjustments, many of which are calculated using the assessed values of the sales. The petitioner has not visited the subject or any of the sales and has not appropriately compared condition. The per-square-foot just value is supported by one of the petitioner's adjusted per-square foot sale prices.

(2) Highest and Best Use - The petitioner does not dispute that the highest and best use of the subject property is single-family residential.

(3) Location of the property - The petitioner appears familiar with the location characteristics of the subject property and has not claimed the presence of any atypical or adverse location factors that would materially affect its use or value.

(4) Quantity or size of the property - The petitioner does not dispute the size or quantity of the land or improvements reported by the property appraiser during the hearing, nor was any allegation made that these factors were miscalculated or improperly considered in the valuation.

(5) The cost of the property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon - The petitioner has presented no analysis of land value or depreciated building costs. Cost is rarely used to value this market sector.

(6) Condition - The petitioner has not presented any credible evidence or asserted that the condition of the property differs from the description provided by the property appraiser during the hearing. Furthermore, no claim was made regarding any significant physical deficiencies that would affect the property's use or value.

(7) The income from the property - The petitioner has presented no analysis of income and expense at this hearing, however, as mentioned, this method is also rarely used to value residential properties for ad valorem tax purposes.

(8) Cost of Sale Adjustment - The petitioner has made specific deductions for cost of sale based on the DR-493 form submitted by the property appraiser to the Florida Department of Revenue in consideration of this criterion.

The petitioner has not specifically challenged the market evidence or the analysis conducted by the property appraiser in support of the just value of the subject property. Merely presenting an alternative analysis is not sufficient to warrant a change in assessment. Pursuant to Florida Statute §194.301(1) it is the petitioner's responsibility to demonstrate that the property appraiser's evidence and/or analysis are incorrect, and that the determined value does not represent the just value of the property by a preponderance of the evidence.

After careful consideration of all evidence presented at the hearing, the special magistrate finds that the property appraiser has not established the presumption of correctness. However, the hearing record does contain competent, substantial evidence of just value that complies with the eight criteria set forth in Florida Statute §193.011 and generally accepted appraisal principles. The unadjusted sale prices for the sales contained in the hearing record range from $231,625 to $435,000, omitting Pet Sale 3. These sales were identified by both the property appraiser and the petitioner as the most comparable to the subject property. However, because the petitioner's adjustments are not supported by market evidence, they are afforded little weight. Applying a fifteen percent cost-of-sale adjustment results in an indicated value range of $196,881 to $369,750. Because the subject's just value does not exceed this adjusted range, the evidence in the hearing record indicates that the assessment is not overstated. Accordingly, the special magistrate recommends no change in the just value established by the property appraiser.

Conclusions of Law

Pursuant to §194.301(1), Florida Statutes, in any administrative action in which a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment of value, the property appraiser's assessment is presumed correct if the property appraiser proves by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment was arrived at in compliance with §193.011, Florida Statutes, and professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The applicable standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence. Based upon the evidence presented and admitted at the hearing, the special magistrate concludes that the property appraiser did not establish the presumption of correctness. The evidence relied upon by the property appraiser did not sufficiently demonstrate that all applicable statutory criteria were properly considered in a manner consistent with generally accepted appraisal practices for an individual assessment review. Pursuant to §194.301(2)(b), Florida Statutes, when the presumption of correctness is not established, the value adjustment board or special magistrate is required to determine the assessment if there is competent, substantial evidence of just value in the hearing record which cumulatively satisfies the criteria set forth in §193.011, Florida Statutes, and professionally accepted appraisal practices. The special magistrate is not required to adopt the specific value advocated by either party and may establish or affirm a value supported by the competent, substantial evidence in the record. The special magistrate concludes that the hearing record contains competent, substantial evidence of just value. The market evidence presented and admitted at the hearing, when considered in its entirety and in light of the statutory valuation criteria, supports the conclusion that the just value determined by the property appraiser is supported by the evidence and is not shown to be excessive, insufficient, or otherwise incorrect by a preponderance of the evidence. Accordingly, pursuant to §194.301, Florida Statutes, and the applicable provisions of Rule Chapter 12D-9, Florida Administrative Code, the special magistrate recommends that the value adjustment board take no action to change the just value determined by the property appraiser.

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

Hernando County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff.11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☒ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition #	25-304	Parcel ID	R32 323 17 5130 0864 0070
Petitioner name The petitioner is: ☐ taxpayer of record ☒ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	RYAN, INC.	Property address	2105 ARDENWOOD DRIVE SPRING HILL, FLORIDA

Decision Summary ☒ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just Value, required	$364,726	$364,726	$364,726
2. Assessed or classified use value, * if applicable	$364,726	$364,726	$364,726
3. Exempt value, * enter "0" if none	$0	$0	$0
4. Taxable value, * required	$364,726	$364,726	$364,726

*All values entered should be county taxable values, School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision

Findings of Fact

DUE TO SPACE LIMITATIONS, FINDINGS OF FACT ARE SET FORTH IN THE ATTACHED ADDENDA, WHICH IS MADE PART OF THIS RECOMMENDATION REPORT.

Conclusions of Law

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW ARE PROVIDED IN THE ATTACHED ADDENDA, INCORPORATED HEREIN BY REFERENCE.

☒ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	ROBERT C. HICKS Print Name	FEB 6, 2026 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____.
Address: Hernando County Gov't Center BOCC Chambers, Room 160, 20 North Main Street, Brooksville, Florida 34601.
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered.
To find the information, please call (352) 754-4970, or visit our website at vab@hernandoclerk.org.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print Name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date mailed to parties

Addenda

Findings Of Fact

Petitioner Natasha Elliott with Ryan, Inc. appeared telephonically on behalf of PAGAYA SMARTRESI F1 FUND PROPERTY OWNER II, LLC on January 27, 2026 to provide testimonial and documentary evidence pertaining to the 2025 property assessment for real property located in Hernando County, Florida. The Hernando County Property Appraiser's Office was represented at the hearing by Deputy Appraisers Doug Mack, CFE, Residential Supervisor and Brandon Jimenez, CFE. An opening statement regarding the hearing process and rules of procedure was read and all parties were placed under oath. This petition is one of 22 presented by the petitioner on this hearing date. The specific case numbers are 25-297 through 25-318, inclusive. Any relevant testimony presented during these individual hearings will be incorporated by reference to all hearings to avoid redundancy and expedite the hearing process.

The subject of this petition is listed on the Hernando County tax roll as Parcel ID R32 323 17 5130 0864 0070. This property is described as a single-family residence with a two-car garage and no pool. The subject property is located at 2105 Ardenwood Drive, Spring Hill, Hernando County, Florida. The property consists of 2,625 square feet of adjusted building area with 2,240 square feet of heated living area on a 12,347-square-foot residential lot. The improvements were constructed in 2004. Based on an inspection of the property on September 23, 2025, the property appraiser has determined that the building improvements are of typical construction quality and in average condition. It appears that the subject of this petition has not sold within the 12-month period preceding the January 1 valuation date.

The property appraiser has confirmed the 2025 just value at $364,726, with an assessed value of $364,726 and a taxable value of $364,726. There have been no changes to the values since the Notice of Proposed Property Taxes (TRIM) was issued. The petitioner is requesting a revision to the 2025 just value, proposing a revision in just value to $345,341. This request is supported by sales comparison.

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence, see Florida Administrative Code 12D-9.025(1). Generally, relevant evidence is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. The evidence meets or exceeds a minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. Documentary evidence presented by the property appraiser during the hearing is described and labeled as follows:

- PAO-A (18 pages) - Cover page, case synopsis, subject property record card with building sketch and photograph, sales analysis grid, comparable location map, analysis of sales data, property record card for each sale, list of structure area adjustments

Documentary evidence presented by the petitioner during the hearing is described and labeled as follows:

- PET-1 (9 pages) - Petition, cover page, summary of evidence, sales adjustment grid, adjustment formulas, aerial photograph of subject, street map, location map showing subject and sales

The property appraiser has not raised any objections to the evidence presented by the petitioner during the hearing.

The Florida Legislature has enacted eight criteria that the property appraiser must consider when determining just value. In any administrative or judicial action where a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment, the property appraiser's estimate of just value is presumed correct if it is proven that the assessment was made in compliance with the eight criteria outlined in Section 193.011, Florida Statutes and in accordance with professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The only standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence, meaning the greater weight of evidence, or "more likely than not."

Florida courts have consistently held that the property appraiser is only required to consider the eight criteria, and that applying each factor is not mandatory. The courts have further found that if any one criterion does not reflect just value, it should be disregarded by the property appraiser. The special magistrate finds and summarizes the extent to which the property appraiser has considered each of these criteria in the following paragraphs.

(1) Present cash value of the property - The amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arms-length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In short, the price without transaction costs. The buyer typically pays more, and the seller typically receives less than the price indicated by the documentary stamps due to these transaction costs. In mass appraising, the property appraiser considers this criterion by applying or considering the comparable market sales using the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through comparable sales analysis similar to that found in a fee appraisal. The amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arms-length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In short, the price without transaction costs. The buyer typically pays more, and the seller typically receives less than the price indicated by the documentary stamps due to these transaction costs. In mass appraising, the property appraiser considers this criterion by applying or considering the comparable market sales using the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through

comparable sales analysis similar to that found in a fee appraisal. The property appraiser has presented sales evidence in support of the present cash value. Following are brief descriptions of the sales determined by the property appraiser to be most comparable to the subject and representative of value sourced by property record cards:

PA Sale 1 involves the property located at 1417 Herdon St. The residence contains 1,992 square feet of heated building area, was built in 1995, and sold in May 2024 for a sale price of $420,000.

PA Sale 2 involves the property located at 12280 Deep Creek Dr. The residence contains 1,856 square feet of heated building area, was built in 1984, and sold in September 2024 for a sale price of $415,000.

PA Sale 3 involves the property located at 1293 Corolla Ave. The residence contains 1,947 square feet of heated building area, was built in 1987, and sold in August 2024 for a sale price of $482,000.

In considering these sales, the property appraiser has compared them based on per adjusted square foot price. Three qualified sales judged to be most comparable to the subject have been presented in support of value. The sales were selected based on similar location, age, size and utility. The property appraiser's approach relies on feature value deductions and weighted "adjusted building area" calculations rather than paired-sales analysis or market-derived adjustments. Florida appraisal standards and case law (e.g., Valencia Center, Inc. v. Bystrom, 543 So. 2d 214 [Fla. 1989]) require that just value determinations be supported by market evidence showing how specific features or characteristics influence sale prices. Deducting fixed feature values from sale prices without verifying their market validity substitutes internal modeling for actual market behavior. While this may be useful for mass appraisal purposes, it does not provide the level of market support required in an individual value review before the Value Adjustment Board. A credible defense of just value in a hearing must demonstrate how specific comparable sales support the subject's assessed value through observable market adjustments. Reliance on internal modeling, without direct evidence of how the market reacts to property differences, fails to establish that the property appraiser's value represents the amount a willing buyer and seller would agree upon under normal conditions. Secondly, the "adjusted building area" metric has no direct market analogue. Buyers and appraisers typically compare residential properties based on heated living area (gross living area per ANSI or Fannie Mae standards). Introducing a proprietary or synthetic size measure distorts the relationship between price and size, undermining the comparability of sales. This means the model may show internal consistency but not external validity in the open market. It is the opinion of the special magistrate that this sales analysis does not follow with generally accepted appraisal practices.

(2) Highest & Best Use – This relates to the consideration of the fundamental appraisal concept of highest and best use or best use to which the property can be expected to be put in the immediate future. For improved properties, the highest and best use of the property as if vacant should be considered as well. The four steps establishing highest and best use are consideration of what is physically possible, legally permissible, financially feasible, and maximally productive. The highest and best use as vacant is identified through land use codes which, in part, are based on zoning. The highest and best use as improved is assumed to be the current use unless evidence shows otherwise. The property appraiser's office considers highest and best use by identifying and recording land size, zoning, building size, location and other characteristics. Once all coding is in place, comparable sales and rentals that have similar characteristics are used to value the property. The highest and best use of this property is for single-family residential use. This determination is undisputed by the petitioner and appears to have been appropriately considered by the property appraiser.

(3) Location of the property – The property appraiser assigns a neighborhood code to every property in the county. Sales of properties in the same or similar neighborhoods are typically used to determine locational adjustments. Often, site-specific location adjustments are made to reflect either an enhanced location (such as a waterfront site or in a golf course community) or an inferior location (such as adjacent to an industrial use or dumpsite). All of the comparable properties presented in support of value are located in the same neighborhood as the subject. The location of the property appears to have been appropriately considered in the determination of just value.

(4) Quantity or size of the property – The property appraiser must consider the quantity or size of the property by determining and recording the correct land size, building size, and extra features sizes and quantities. Land size is based on legal descriptions from recorded plats or metes and bounds. Building sizes and extra features are determined by inspection and measured by deputy property appraisers. There does not appear to be any discrepancy in heated building area between the parties; however, as discussed, making comparisons based on adjusted building areas after deducting extra features is inconsistent with market standards.

(5) The cost of the property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon - No separate analysis of cost has been presented during the hearing. The property appraiser indicates that typical residential homebuyers do not rely on development costs when valuing residential property. Cost calculations found on the property record card appear to be supportive of just value.

(6) Condition of the property – The property appraiser considers the condition of properties through periodic property inspections, no less than once every five years as required by Statute. Other events can trigger more frequent site inspections, including the sale of a property, issuance of a building permit, assessment appeal, or at the taxpayer's request. Condition is considered as a factor applied to the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System value calculation for value losses from all sources based upon an age/life depreciation method. Photographs of the subject property have been presented as evidence of condition. The property appraiser confirmed that a personal exterior inspection of this property has been made for the purpose of determining extra features and the condition of the property. It appears that the property appraiser has appropriately considered this condition.

(7) The income from the property - Residential properties are typically valued for ad valorem tax purposes using the sales comparison approach, as provided for under Section 193.011, Florida Statutes. Comparable sales are relied upon due to the limited availability of market data on residential rental income, operating expenses, and capitalization rates for properties similar to the subject. In the residential market, buyers and sellers generally do not consider income-generating potential when evaluating a property for purchase. The special magistrate finds that the property appraiser has given adequate consideration to this criterion in the analysis of the property.

(8) Cost of Sale Adjustment - This criterion deals with the net proceeds from the sale of a property as received by the seller after deduction of all of the usual and reasonable fees and costs and expenses of financing and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms of financing arrangements. A few examples of the applicability of this criterion include: • unconventional or atypical financing arrangements, such as seller financing at favorable terms, which inflated the price, relative to what would have been achieved with a cash or case-equivalent arrangement, • the inclusion of tangible personal property, which may serve to increase the price above pure real property consideration, • atypically motivated buyers, who may pay a premium relative to that paid by the general market, • atypical closing costs arrangements, such as a seller paying the buyer's closing costs in exchange for a higher sales price. Because these situations may not be discoverable by the mass appraiser relying on raw gross price data, a deduction from the raw gross price is made with the goal being to arrive at 100% of the market value of the real property by eliminating any possible impact of non-real property consideration. This mass appraisal method is found to be acceptable by the Florida Department of Revenue and the Florida Courts. Applicable law provides for uniform cost of sale deductions in just valuations without regard to whether (1) the subject property was sold, (2) mass appraisal or single property appraisal is used, (3) the appraisal approach used to value the property, (4) the petitioner is seeking an increase or decrease in just value, (5) appraised development or VAB review is involved. There is no legal authority for variation in the application of cost of sale deductions based on any of the preceding conditions. The professionally accepted appraisal practice is for Florida property appraisers to uniformly make cost of sale deductions of for all property within use code groups and then report these deductions on Form DR-493 to the Department of Revenue while, understandably, avoiding the impractical task of supporting these deductions in the absence of sufficiently reliable market data that demonstrates the typical, prevalent, and representative cost of sale deductions for each class of real property. In support of consideration of this criterion, the property appraiser has presented an analysis of the ratio between the aggregate sale price paid for all comparable properties compared with their aggregate just value assessments resulting in an average cost of sale adjustment of 31%. While this calculation may demonstrate a general relationship between assessed values and sale prices within the sample, it does not establish adequate support specific to the subject property for this assessment review.

It is implicit in mass appraisal that, even when properly specified and calibrated models are employed, some individual value conclusions may not meet standards of reasonableness, consistency, and accuracy. The purpose of this value review is to determine whether the just value reported on the current tax roll represents the just value of the property after consideration of the criteria set forth in Florida Statute §193.011 and generally accepted appraisal principles, including those applicable to mass appraisal. In reviewing the evidence presented by the property appraiser at this hearing, the special magistrate finds that the property appraiser did not appropriately consider the factors set forth in Florida Statute §193.011, specifically (1), (4) and (8); and therefore, the presumption of correctness has not been established.

By filing this petition, the petitioner alleges that the property appraiser has assessed the property in excess of just value. According to 12D-9.025(3)(a) of the Florida Administrative Code, the petitioner is responsible for presenting relevant and credible evidence in support of his or her belief that the property appraiser's determination is incorrect. To prevail in an assessment challenge, the taxpayer must prove more than a mere difference of opinion regarding an assessment. The following paragraphs describe how the petitioner has addressed each of the eight criteria of the Statute.

(1) Present cash value of the property - In support of a revision to just value, the petitioner has presented the following sales:

PET Sale 1 reflects the sale of the property located at 12300 Drake Ln. The residence contains 2,049 square feet of building area, was built in 2005, is situated on a site of 14,866 square feet, has no pool, sold in January 2024, and has a Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price of $368,750, or $179.97 per square foot. This adjusted sale price does not support a reduction in assessment.

PET Sale 2 reflects the sale of the property located at 13854 Coronado Dr. The residence contains 1,792 square feet of building area, was built in 1987, is situated on a site of 10,000 square feet, has no pool, sold in February 2024, and has a Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price of $400,650, or $223.58 per square foot. This adjusted sale price does not support a reduction in assessment.

PET Sale 3 reflects the sale of the property located at 2460 Coronet Ct. The residence contains 2,020 square feet of building area, was built in 2003, is situated on a site of 10,000 square feet, has no pool, sold in July 2024, and has a Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price of $333,000, or $164.85 per square foot. This adjusted sale price does not support a reduction in assessment.

PET Sale 4 reflects the sale of the property located at 3065 Coronet Ct. The residence contains 2,020 square feet of building area, was built in 2005, is situated on a site of 10,000 square feet, has no pool, sold in August 2024, and has a Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price of $350,450, or $173.49 per square foot. This adjusted sale price does not support a reduction in assessment.

PET Sale 5 reflects the sale of the property located at 3148 Lema Dr. The residence contains 2,048 square feet of building area, was built in 2003, is situated on a site of 10,000 square feet, has no pool, sold in June 2024, and has a Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price of $333,200, or $161.23 per square foot.

PET Sale 6 reflects the sale of the property located at 2468 Lema Dr. The residence contains 2,088 square feet of building area, was built in 2002, is situated on a site of 10,000 square feet, has no pool, sold in October 2024, and has a Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price of $289,000, or $138.41 per square foot.

The final adjusted sale prices range from $289,000 to $400,650, with a mean adjusted sale price of approximately $345,342. PET Sales 1, 2, 3, and 4 have Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price per square foot values greater than the per square foot Just Value. The petitioner compares these sales based on total price. The petitioner has presented sales that are claimed to be more similar to the subject than the sales relied upon by the property appraiser. Price adjustments were made to account for differences between the sales and the subject property including a 15% adjustment for cost of sale. The petitioner has presented no rebuttal as to the property appraiser's appraisal methods or chosen sales and has not identified a specific methodological error, factual inaccuracy, or inconsistency in the property appraiser's analysis. The petitioner's analysis is based on unsupported adjustments, many of which are calculated using the assessed values of the sales. The petitioner has not visited the subject or any of the sales and has not appropriately compared condition. The property appraiser's just value is within the range of adjusted sale prices presented by the petitioner and the per-square-foot just value is supported by one of the petitioner's adjusted per-square foot sale prices.

(2) Highest and Best Use - The petitioner does not dispute that the highest and best use of the subject property is single-family residential.

(3) Location of the property - The petitioner appears familiar with the location characteristics of the subject property and has not claimed the presence of any atypical or adverse location factors that would materially affect its use or value.

(4) Quantity or size of the property - The petitioner does not dispute the size or quantity of the land or improvements reported by the property appraiser during the hearing, nor was any allegation made that these factors were miscalculated or improperly considered in the valuation.

(5) The cost of the property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon - The petitioner has presented no analysis of land value or depreciated building costs. Cost is rarely used to value this market sector.

(6) Condition - The petitioner has not presented any credible evidence or asserted that the condition of the property differs from the description provided by the property appraiser during the hearing. Furthermore, no claim was made regarding any significant physical deficiencies that would affect the property's use or value.

(7) The income from the property - The petitioner has presented no analysis of income and expense at this hearing, however, as mentioned, this method is also rarely used to value residential properties for ad valorem tax purposes.

(8) Cost of Sale Adjustment - The petitioner has made specific deductions for cost of sale based on the DR-493 form submitted by the property appraiser to the Florida Department of Revenue in consideration of this criterion.

The petitioner has not specifically challenged the market evidence or the analysis conducted by the property appraiser in support of the just value of the subject property. Merely presenting an alternative analysis is not sufficient to warrant a change in assessment. Pursuant to Florida Statute §194.301(1) it is the petitioner's responsibility to demonstrate that the property appraiser's evidence and/or analysis are incorrect, and that the determined value does not represent the just value of the property by a preponderance of the evidence.

After careful consideration of all evidence presented at the hearing, the special magistrate finds that the property appraiser has not established the presumption of correctness. However, the hearing record does contain competent, substantial evidence of just value that complies with the eight criteria set forth in Florida Statute §193.011 and generally accepted appraisal principles. The unadjusted sale prices for the sales contained in the hearing record range from $300,000 to $482,000. These sales were identified by both the property appraiser and the petitioner as the most comparable to the subject property. However, because the petitioner's adjustments are not supported by market evidence, they are afforded little weight. Applying a fifteen percent cost-of-sale adjustment results in an indicated value range of $255,000 to $409,700. Because the subject's just value does not exceed this adjusted range, the evidence in the hearing record indicates that the assessment is not overstated. Accordingly, the special magistrate recommends no change in the just value established by the property appraiser.

Conclusions of Law

Pursuant to §194.301(1), Florida Statutes, in any administrative action in which a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment of value, the property appraiser's assessment is presumed correct if the property appraiser proves by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment was arrived at in compliance with §193.011, Florida Statutes, and professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The applicable standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence. Based upon the evidence presented and admitted at the hearing, the special magistrate concludes that the property appraiser did not establish the presumption of correctness. The evidence relied upon by the property appraiser did not sufficiently demonstrate that all applicable statutory criteria were properly considered in a manner consistent with generally accepted appraisal practices for an individual assessment review. Pursuant to §194.301(2)(b), Florida Statutes, when the presumption of correctness is not established, the value adjustment board or special magistrate is required to determine the assessment if there is competent, substantial evidence of just value in the hearing record which cumulatively satisfies the criteria set forth in §193.011, Florida Statutes, and professionally accepted appraisal practices. The special magistrate is not required to adopt the specific value advocated by either party and may establish or affirm a value supported by the competent, substantial evidence in the record. The special magistrate concludes that the hearing record contains competent, substantial evidence of just value. The market evidence presented and admitted at the hearing, when considered in its entirety and in light of the statutory valuation criteria, supports the conclusion that the just value determined by the property appraiser is supported by the evidence and is not shown to be excessive, insufficient, or otherwise incorrect by a preponderance of the evidence. Accordingly, pursuant to §194.301, Florida Statutes, and the applicable provisions of Rule Chapter 12D-9, Florida Administrative Code, the special magistrate recommends that the value adjustment board take no action to change the just value determined by the property appraiser.

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

Hernando County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff.11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☒ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition #	25-305	Parcel ID	R32 323 17 5150 0956 0070
Petitioner name The petitioner is: ☐ taxpayer of record ☒ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	RYAN, INC.	Property address	10394 LANSFIELD STREET SPRING HILL, FLORIDA

Decision Summary ☒ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just Value, required	$328,932	$328,932	$328,932
2. Assessed or classified use value, * if applicable	$328,932	$328,932	$328,932
3. Exempt value, * enter "0" if none	$0	$0	$0
4. Taxable value, * required	$328,932	$328,932	$328,932

*All values entered should be county taxable values, School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision

Findings of Fact

DUE TO SPACE LIMITATIONS, FINDINGS OF FACT ARE SET FORTH IN THE ATTACHED ADDENDA, WHICH IS MADE PART OF THIS RECOMMENDATION REPORT.

Conclusions of Law

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW ARE PROVIDED IN THE ATTACHED ADDENDA, INCORPORATED HEREIN BY REFERENCE.

☒ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	ROBERT C. HICKS Print Name	FEB 6, 2026 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____.
Address: Hernando County Gov't Center BOCC Chambers, Room 160, 20 North Main Street, Brooksville, Florida 34601.
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered.
To find the information, please call (352) 754-4970, or visit our website at vab@hernandoclerk.org.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print Name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date mailed to parties

Addenda

Findings Of Fact

Petitioner Natasha Elliott with Ryan, Inc. appeared telephonically on behalf of AMERIPROP SFR PROPERTY OWNER LLC on January 27, 2026 to provide testimonial and documentary evidence pertaining to the 2025 property assessment for real property located in Hernando County, Florida. The Hernando County Property Appraiser's Office was represented at the hearing by Deputy Appraisers Doug Mack, CFE, Residential Supervisor and Brandon Jimenez, CFE. An opening statement regarding the hearing process and rules of procedure was read and all parties were placed under oath. This petition is one of 22 presented by the petitioner on this hearing date. The specific case numbers are 25-297 through 25-318, inclusive. Any relevant testimony presented during these individual hearings will be incorporated by reference to all hearings to avoid redundancy and expedite the hearing process.

The subject of this petition is listed on the Hernando County tax roll as Parcel ID R32 323 17 5150 0956 0070. This property is described as a single-family residence with a two-car garage and no pool. The subject property is located at 10394 Lansfield Street, Spring Hill, Hernando County, Florida. The property consists of 2,338 square feet of adjusted building area with 1,994 square feet of heated living area on a 10,000-square-foot residential lot. The improvements were constructed in 2008. Based on an inspection of the property on May 5, 2023, the property appraiser has determined that the building improvements are of typical construction quality and in average condition. It appears that the subject of this petition has not sold within the 12-month period preceding the January 1 valuation date.

The property appraiser has confirmed the 2025 just value at $328,932, with an assessed value of $328,932 and a taxable value of $328,932. There have been no changes to the values since the Notice of Proposed Property Taxes (TRIM) was issued. The petitioner is requesting a revision to the 2025 just value, proposing a revision in just value to $293,750. This request is supported by sales comparison.

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence, see Florida Administrative Code 12D-9.025(1). Generally, relevant evidence is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. The evidence meets or exceeds a minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. Documentary evidence presented by the property appraiser during the hearing is described and labeled as follows:

- PAO-A (17 pages) - Cover page, case synopsis, subject property record card with building sketch and photograph, sales analysis grid, comparable location map, analysis of sales data, property record card for each sale, list of structure area adjustments

Documentary evidence presented by the petitioner during the hearing is described and labeled as follows:

- PET-1 (8 pages) - Petition, cover page, summary of evidence, sales adjustment grid, adjustment formulas, aerial photograph of subject, street map, location map showing subject and sales

The property appraiser has not raised any objections to the evidence presented by the petitioner during the hearing.

The Florida Legislature has enacted eight criteria that the property appraiser must consider when determining just value. In any administrative or judicial action where a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment, the property appraiser's estimate of just value is presumed correct if it is proven that the assessment was made in compliance with the eight criteria outlined in Section 193.011, Florida Statutes and in accordance with professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The only standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence, meaning the greater weight of evidence, or "more likely than not."

Florida courts have consistently held that the property appraiser is only required to consider the eight criteria, and that applying each factor is not mandatory. The courts have further found that if any one criterion does not reflect just value, it should be disregarded by the property appraiser. The special magistrate finds and summarizes the extent to which the property appraiser has considered each of these criteria in the following paragraphs.

(1) Present cash value of the property - The amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arms-length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In short, the price without transaction costs. The buyer typically pays more, and the seller typically receives less than the price indicated by the documentary stamps due to these transaction costs. In mass appraising, the property appraiser considers this criterion by applying or considering the comparable market sales using the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through comparable sales analysis similar to that found in a fee appraisal. The amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arms-length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In short, the price without transaction costs. The buyer typically pays more, and the seller typically receives less than the price indicated by the documentary stamps due to these transaction costs. In mass appraising, the property appraiser considers this criterion by applying or considering the comparable market sales using the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through

comparable sales analysis similar to that found in a fee appraisal. The property appraiser has presented sales evidence in support of the present cash value. Following are brief descriptions of the sales determined by the property appraiser to be most comparable to the subject and representative of value sourced by property record cards:

PA Sale 1 involves the single-family residence located at 11015 Captain Dr. The dwelling contains 1,909 square feet of heated building area, was built in 1989, and sold in December 2024 for a sale price of $405,000.

PA Sale 2 involves the single-family residence located at 2280 Restmere Ln. The dwelling contains 1,731 square feet of heated building area, was built in 2004, and sold in May 2024 for a sale price of $395,800.

PA Sale 3 involves the single-family residence located at 5236 Harbinger Rd. The dwelling contains 1,918 square feet of heated building area, was built in 1987, and sold in October 2024 for a sale price of $346,500.

In considering these sales, the property appraiser has compared them based on per adjusted square foot price. Three qualified sales judged to be most comparable to the subject have been presented in support of value. The sales were selected based on similar location, age, size and utility. The property appraiser's approach relies on feature value deductions and weighted "adjusted building area" calculations rather than paired-sales analysis or market-derived adjustments. Florida appraisal standards and case law (e.g., Valencia Center, Inc. v. Bystrom, 543 So. 2d 214 [Fla. 1989]) require that just value determinations be supported by market evidence showing how specific features or characteristics influence sale prices. Deducting fixed feature values from sale prices without verifying their market validity substitutes internal modeling for actual market behavior. While this may be useful for mass appraisal purposes, it does not provide the level of market support required in an individual value review before the Value Adjustment Board. A credible defense of just value in a hearing must demonstrate how specific comparable sales support the subject's assessed value through observable market adjustments. Reliance on internal modeling, without direct evidence of how the market reacts to property differences, fails to establish that the property appraiser's value represents the amount a willing buyer and seller would agree upon under normal conditions. Secondly, the "adjusted building area" metric has no direct market analogue. Buyers and appraisers typically compare residential properties based on heated living area (gross living area per ANSI or Fannie Mae standards). Introducing a proprietary or synthetic size measure distorts the relationship between price and size, undermining the comparability of sales. This means the model may show internal consistency but not external validity in the open market. It is the opinion of the special magistrate that this sales analysis does not follow with generally accepted appraisal practices.

(2) Highest & Best Use – This relates to the consideration of the fundamental appraisal concept of highest and best use or best use to which the property can be expected to be put in the immediate future. For improved properties, the highest and best use of the property as if vacant should be considered as well. The four steps establishing highest and best use are consideration of what is physically possible, legally permissible, financially feasible, and maximally productive. The highest and best use as vacant is identified through land use codes which, in part, are based on zoning. The highest and best use as improved is assumed to be the current use unless evidence shows otherwise. The property appraiser's office considers highest and best use by identifying and recording land size, zoning, building size, location and other characteristics. Once all coding is in place, comparable sales and rentals that have similar characteristics are used to value the property. The highest and best use of this property is for single-family residential use. This determination is undisputed by the petitioner and appears to have been appropriately considered by the property appraiser.

(3) Location of the property – The property appraiser assigns a neighborhood code to every property in the county. Sales of properties in the same or similar neighborhoods are typically used to determine locational adjustments. Often, site-specific location adjustments are made to reflect either an enhanced location (such as a waterfront site or in a golf course community) or an inferior location (such as adjacent to an industrial use or dumpsite). All of the comparable properties presented in support of value are located in the same neighborhood as the subject. The location of the property appears to have been appropriately considered in the determination of just value.

(4) Quantity or size of the property – The property appraiser must consider the quantity or size of the property by determining and recording the correct land size, building size, and extra features sizes and quantities. Land size is based on legal descriptions from recorded plats or metes and bounds. Building sizes and extra features are determined by inspection and measured by deputy property appraisers. There does not appear to be any discrepancy in heated building area between the parties; however, as discussed, making comparisons based on adjusted building areas after deducting extra features is inconsistent with market standards.

(5) The cost of the property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon - No separate analysis of cost has been presented during the hearing. The property appraiser indicates that typical residential homebuyers do not rely on development costs when valuing residential property. Cost calculations found on the property record card appear to be supportive of just value.

(6) Condition of the property – The property appraiser considers the condition of properties through periodic property inspections, no less than once every five years as required by Statute. Other events can trigger more frequent site inspections, including the sale of a property, issuance of a building permit, assessment appeal, or at the taxpayer's request. Condition is considered as a factor applied to the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System value calculation for value losses from all sources based upon an age/life depreciation method. Photographs of the subject property have been presented as evidence of condition. The property appraiser confirmed that a personal exterior inspection of this property has been made for the purpose of determining extra features and the condition of the property. It appears that the property appraiser has appropriately considered this condition.

(7) The income from the property - Residential properties are typically valued for ad valorem tax purposes using the sales comparison approach, as provided for under Section 193.011, Florida Statutes. Comparable sales are relied upon due to the limited availability of market data on residential rental income, operating expenses, and capitalization rates for properties similar to the subject. In the residential market, buyers and sellers generally do not consider income-generating potential when evaluating a property for purchase. The special magistrate finds that the property appraiser has given adequate consideration to this criterion in the analysis of the property.

(8) Cost of Sale Adjustment - This criterion deals with the net proceeds from the sale of a property as received by the seller after deduction of all of the usual and reasonable fees and costs and expenses of financing and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms of financing arrangements. A few examples of the applicability of this criterion include: • unconventional or atypical financing arrangements, such as seller financing at favorable terms, which inflated the price, relative to what would have been achieved with a cash or case-equivalent arrangement, • the inclusion of tangible personal property, which may serve to increase the price above pure real property consideration, • atypically motivated buyers, who may pay a premium relative to that paid by the general market, • atypical closing costs arrangements, such as a seller paying the buyer's closing costs in exchange for a higher sales price. Because these situations may not be discoverable by the mass appraiser relying on raw gross price data, a deduction from the raw gross price is made with the goal being to arrive at 100% of the market value of the real property by eliminating any possible impact of non-real property consideration. This mass appraisal method is found to be acceptable by the Florida Department of Revenue and the Florida Courts. Applicable law provides for uniform cost of sale deductions in just valuations without regard to whether (1) the subject property was sold, (2) mass appraisal or single property appraisal is used, (3) the appraisal approach used to value the property, (4) the petitioner is seeking an increase or decrease in just value, (5) appraised development or VAB review is involved. There is no legal authority for variation in the application of cost of sale deductions based on any of the preceding conditions. The professionally accepted appraisal practice is for Florida property appraisers to uniformly make cost of sale deductions of for all property within use code groups and then report these deductions on Form DR-493 to the Department of Revenue while, understandably, avoiding the impractical task of supporting these deductions in the absence of sufficiently reliable market data that demonstrates the typical, prevalent, and representative cost of sale deductions for each class of real property. In support of consideration of this criterion, the property appraiser has presented an analysis of the ratio between the aggregate sale price paid for all comparable properties compared with their aggregate just value assessments resulting in an average cost of sale adjustment of 29%. While this calculation may demonstrate a general relationship between assessed values and sale prices within the sample, it does not establish adequate support specific to the subject property for this assessment review.

It is implicit in mass appraisal that, even when properly specified and calibrated models are employed, some individual value conclusions may not meet standards of reasonableness, consistency, and accuracy. The purpose of this value review is to determine whether the just value reported on the current tax roll represents the just value of the property after consideration of the criteria set forth in Florida Statute §193.011 and generally accepted appraisal principles, including those applicable to mass appraisal. In reviewing the evidence presented by the property appraiser at this hearing, the special magistrate finds that the property appraiser did not appropriately consider the factors set forth in Florida Statute §193.011, specifically (1), (4) and (8); and therefore, the presumption of correctness has not been established.

By filing this petition, the petitioner alleges that the property appraiser has assessed the property in excess of just value. According to 12D-9.025(3)(a) of the Florida Administrative Code, the petitioner is responsible for presenting relevant and credible evidence in support of his or her belief that the property appraiser's determination is incorrect. To prevail in an assessment challenge, the taxpayer must prove more than a mere difference of opinion regarding an assessment. The following paragraphs describe how the petitioner has addressed each of the eight criteria of the Statute.

(1) Present cash value of the property - In support of a revision to just value, the petitioner has presented the following sales:

PET Sale 1 involves the property located at 10303 Fordham St. The residence contains 1,994 square feet of building area, was built in 2005, is situated on a site of 10,000 square feet, has no pool, sold in April 2024, and has a Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price of $269,500, or $154.18 per square foot.

PET Sale 2 involves the property located at 10375 Musa Rd. The residence contains 1,644 square feet of building area, was built in 2002, is situated on a site of 12,313 square feet, has no pool, sold in June 2024, and has a Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price of $320,250, or $194.80 per square foot. This adjusted sale price does not support a reduction in assessment.

PET Sale 3 involves the property located at 11147 Mercedes St. The residence contains 2,035 square feet of building area, was built in 2005, is situated on a site of 10,464 square feet, has no pool, sold in July 2024, and has a Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price of $291,500, or $143.24 per square foot.

The final adjusted sale prices range from $269,500 to $320,250, with a mean adjusted sale price of approximately $293,750. PET Sale 2 has a Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price per square foot greater than the per square foot Just Value. The petitioner compares these sales based on total price. The petitioner has presented sales that are claimed to be more similar to the subject than the sales relied upon by the property appraiser. Price adjustments were made to account for differences between the sales and the subject property including a 15% adjustment for cost of sale. The petitioner has presented no rebuttal as to the property appraiser's appraisal methods or chosen sales and has not identified a specific methodological error, factual inaccuracy, or inconsistency in the property appraiser's analysis. The petitioner's analysis is based on unsupported adjustments, many of which are calculated using the assessed values of the sales. The petitioner has not visited the subject or any of the sales and has not appropriately compared condition. The per-square-foot just value is supported by one of the petitioner's adjusted per-square foot sale prices.

(2) Highest and Best Use - The petitioner does not dispute that the highest and best use of the subject property is single-family residential.

(3) Location of the property - The petitioner appears familiar with the location characteristics of the subject property and has not claimed the presence of any atypical or adverse location factors that would materially affect its use or value.

(4) Quantity or size of the property - The petitioner does not dispute the size or quantity of the land or improvements reported by the property appraiser during the hearing, nor was any allegation made that these factors were miscalculated or improperly considered in the valuation.

(5) The cost of the property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon - The petitioner has presented no analysis of land value or depreciated building costs. Cost is rarely used to value this market sector.

(6) Condition - The petitioner has not presented any credible evidence or asserted that the condition of the property differs from the description provided by the property appraiser during the hearing. Furthermore, no claim was made regarding any significant physical deficiencies that would affect the property's use or value.

(7) The income from the property - The petitioner has presented no analysis of income and expense at this hearing, however, as mentioned, this method is also rarely used to value residential properties for ad valorem tax purposes.

(8) Cost of Sale Adjustment - The petitioner has made specific deductions for cost of sale based on the DR-493 form submitted by the property appraiser to the Florida Department of Revenue in consideration of this criterion.

The petitioner has not specifically challenged the market evidence or the analysis conducted by the property appraiser in support of the just value of the subject property. Merely presenting an alternative analysis is not sufficient to warrant a change in assessment. Pursuant to Florida Statute §194.301(1) it is the petitioner’s responsibility to demonstrate that the property appraiser’s evidence and/or analysis are incorrect, and that the determined value does not represent the just value of the property by a preponderance of the evidence.

After careful consideration of all evidence presented at the hearing, the special magistrate finds that the property appraiser has not established the presumption of correctness. However, the hearing record does contain competent, substantial evidence of just value that complies with the eight criteria set forth in Florida Statute §193.011 and generally accepted appraisal principles. The unadjusted sale prices for the sales contained in the hearing record range from $300,000 to $405,000. These sales were identified by both the property appraiser and the petitioner as the most comparable to the subject property. However, because the petitioner’s adjustments are not supported by market evidence, they are afforded little weight. Applying a fifteen percent cost-of-sale adjustment results in an indicated value range of $255,000 to $344,250. Because the subject's just value does not exceed this adjusted range, the evidence in the hearing record indicates that the assessment is not overstated. Accordingly, the special magistrate recommends no change in the just value established by the property appraiser.

Conclusions of Law

Pursuant to §194.301(1), Florida Statutes, in any administrative action in which a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment of value, the property appraiser's assessment is presumed correct if the property appraiser proves by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment was arrived at in compliance with §193.011, Florida Statutes, and professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The applicable standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence. Based upon the evidence presented and admitted at the hearing, the special magistrate concludes that the property appraiser did not establish the presumption of correctness. The evidence relied upon by the property appraiser did not sufficiently demonstrate that all applicable statutory criteria were properly considered in a manner consistent with generally accepted appraisal practices for an individual assessment review. Pursuant to §194.301(2)(b), Florida Statutes, when the presumption of correctness is not established, the value adjustment board or special magistrate is required to determine the assessment if there is competent, substantial evidence of just value in the hearing record which cumulatively satisfies the criteria set forth in §193.011, Florida Statutes, and professionally accepted appraisal practices. The special magistrate is not required to adopt the specific value advocated by either party and may establish or affirm a value supported by the competent, substantial evidence in the record. The special magistrate concludes that the hearing record contains competent, substantial evidence of just value. The market evidence presented and admitted at the hearing, when considered in its entirety and in light of the statutory valuation criteria, supports the conclusion that the just value determined by the property appraiser is supported by the evidence and is not shown to be excessive, insufficient, or otherwise incorrect by a preponderance of the evidence. Accordingly, pursuant to §194.301, Florida Statutes, and the applicable provisions of Rule Chapter 12D-9, Florida Administrative Code, the special magistrate recommends that the value adjustment board take no action to change the just value determined by the property appraiser.

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

Hernando County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff.11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☒ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition #	25-306	Parcel ID	R32 323 17 5160 1052 0030
Petitioner name The petitioner is: ☐ taxpayer of record ☒ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	RYAN, INC.	Property address	4266 CANDLER AVENUE SPRING HILL, FLORIDA

Decision Summary ☐ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☒ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just Value, required	$391,187	$391,187	$344,250
2. Assessed or classified use value, * if applicable	$391,187	$391,187	$344,250
3. Exempt value, * enter "0" if none	$0	$0	$0
4. Taxable value, * required	$391,187	$391,187	$344,250

*All values entered should be county taxable values, School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision

Findings of Fact

DUE TO SPACE LIMITATIONS, FINDINGS OF FACT ARE SET FORTH IN THE ATTACHED ADDENDA, WHICH IS MADE PART OF THIS RECOMMENDATION REPORT.

Conclusions of Law

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW ARE PROVIDED IN THE ATTACHED ADDENDA, INCORPORATED HEREIN BY REFERENCE.

☒ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	ROBERT C. HICKS Print Name	FEB 27, 2026 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____.
Address: Hernando County Gov't Center BOCC Chambers, Room 160, 20 North Main Street, Brooksville, Florida 34601.
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered.
To find the information, please call (352) 754-4970, or visit our website at vab@hernandoclerk.org.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print Name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date mailed to parties

Addenda

Findings Of Fact

Petitioner Natasha Elliott with Ryan, Inc. appeared telephonically on behalf of PAGAYA SMARTRESI F1 FUND PROPERTY OWNER IV LLC on January 27, 2026 to provide testimonial and documentary evidence pertaining to the 2025 property assessment for real property located in Hernando County, Florida. The Hernando County Property Appraiser's Office was represented at the hearing by Deputy Appraisers Doug Mack, CFE, Residential Supervisor and Brandon Jimenez, CFE. An opening statement regarding the hearing process and rules of procedure was read and all parties were placed under oath. This petition is one of 22 presented by the petitioner on this hearing date. The specific case numbers are 25-297 through 25-318, inclusive. Any relevant testimony presented during these individual hearings will be incorporated by reference to all hearings to avoid redundancy and expedite the hearing process.

The subject of this petition is listed on the Hernando County tax roll as Parcel ID R32 323 17 5160 1052 0030. This property is described as a single-family residence with a two-car garage and no pool. The subject property is located at 4266 Candler Avenue, Spring Hill, Hernando County, Florida. The property consists of 2,535 square feet of adjusted building area with 2,190 square feet of heated living area on a 10,539-square-foot residential lot. The improvements were constructed in 1989. Based on an inspection of the property on September 24, 2025, the property appraiser has determined that the building improvements are of typical construction quality and in average condition. It appears that the subject of this petition has not sold within the 12-month period preceding the January 1 valuation date.

The property appraiser has confirmed the 2025 just value at $391,187, with an assessed value of $391,187 and a taxable value of $391,187. There have been no changes to the values since the Notice of Proposed Property Taxes (TRIM) was issued. The petitioner is requesting a revision to the 2025 just value, proposing a revision in just value to $343,723. This request is supported by sales comparison.

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence, see Florida Administrative Code 12D-9.025(1). Generally, relevant evidence is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. The evidence meets or exceeds a minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. Documentary evidence presented by the property appraiser during the hearing is described and labeled as follows:

- PAO-A (18 pages) - Cover page, case synopsis, subject property record card with building sketch and photograph, sales analysis grid, comparable location map, analysis of sales data, property record card for each sale, list of structure area adjustments

Documentary evidence presented by the petitioner during the hearing is described and labeled as follows:

- PET-1 (8 pages) - Petition, cover page, summary of evidence, sales adjustment grid, adjustment formulas, aerial photograph of subject, street map, location map showing subject and sales

The property appraiser has not raised any objections to the evidence presented by the petitioner during the hearing.

The Florida Legislature has enacted eight criteria that the property appraiser must consider when determining just value. In any administrative or judicial action where a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment, the property appraiser's estimate of just value is presumed correct if it is proven that the assessment was made in compliance with the eight criteria outlined in Section 193.011, Florida Statutes and in accordance with professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The only standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence, meaning the greater weight of evidence, or "more likely than not."

Florida courts have consistently held that the property appraiser is only required to consider the eight criteria, and that applying each factor is not mandatory. The courts have further found that if any one criterion does not reflect just value, it should be disregarded by the property appraiser. The special magistrate finds and summarizes the extent to which the property appraiser has considered each of these criteria in the following paragraphs.

(1) Present cash value of the property - The amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arms-length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In short, the price without transaction costs. The buyer typically pays more, and the seller typically receives less than the price indicated by the documentary stamps due to these transaction costs. In mass appraising, the property appraiser considers this criterion by applying or considering the comparable market sales using the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through comparable sales analysis similar to that found in a fee appraisal. The amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arms-length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In short, the price without transaction costs. The buyer typically pays more, and the seller typically receives less than the price indicated by the documentary stamps due to these transaction costs. In mass appraising, the property appraiser considers this criterion by applying or considering the comparable market sales using the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through

comparable sales analysis similar to that found in a fee appraisal. The property appraiser has presented sales evidence in support of the present cash value. Following are brief descriptions of the sales determined by the property appraiser to be most comparable to the subject and representative of value sourced by property record cards:

PA Sale 1 is located at 11015 Captain Drive and contains 1,909 square feet of heated building area. The residence was constructed in 1989. The property sold in December 2024 for a sale price of $405,000.

PA Sale 2 is located at 2280 Restmere Lane and contains 1,731 square feet of heated building area. The residence was constructed in 2004. The property sold in May 2024 for a sale price of $395,800.

PA Sale 3 is located at 5236 Harbinger Road and contains 1,918 square feet of heated building area. The residence was constructed in 1987. The property sold in October 2024 for a sale price of $346,500.

In considering these sales, the property appraiser has compared them based on per adjusted square foot price. Three qualified sales judged to be most comparable to the subject have been presented in support of value. The sales were selected based on similar location, age, size and utility. The property appraiser's approach relies on feature value deductions and weighted "adjusted building area" calculations rather than paired-sales analysis or market-derived adjustments. Florida appraisal standards and case law (e.g., Valencia Center, Inc. v. Bystrom, 543 So. 2d 214 [Fla. 1989]) require that just value determinations be supported by market evidence showing how specific features or characteristics influence sale prices. Deducting fixed feature values from sale prices without verifying their market validity substitutes internal modeling for actual market behavior. While this may be useful for mass appraisal purposes, it does not provide the level of market support required in an individual value review before the Value Adjustment Board. A credible defense of just value in a hearing must demonstrate how specific comparable sales support the subject's assessed value through observable market adjustments. Reliance on internal modeling, without direct evidence of how the market reacts to property differences, fails to establish that the property appraiser's value represents the amount a willing buyer and seller would agree upon under normal conditions. Secondly, the "adjusted building area" metric has no direct market analogue. Buyers and appraisers typically compare residential properties based on heated living area (gross living area per ANSI or Fannie Mae standards). Introducing a proprietary or synthetic size measure distorts the relationship between price and size, undermining the comparability of sales. This means the model may show internal consistency but not external validity in the open market. It is the opinion of the special magistrate that this sales analysis does not follow with generally accepted appraisal practices.

(2) Highest & Best Use – This relates to the consideration of the fundamental appraisal concept of highest and best use or best use to which the property can be expected to be put in the immediate future. For improved properties, the highest and best use of the property as if vacant should be considered as well. The four steps establishing highest and best use are consideration of what is physically possible, legally permissible, financially feasible, and maximally productive. The highest and best use as vacant is identified through land use codes which, in part, are based on zoning. The highest and best use as improved is assumed to be the current use unless evidence shows otherwise. The property appraiser's office considers highest and best use by identifying and recording land size, zoning, building size, location and other characteristics. Once all coding is in place, comparable sales and rentals that have similar characteristics are used to value the property. The highest and best use of this property is for single-family residential use. This determination is undisputed by the petitioner and appears to have been appropriately considered by the property appraiser.

(3) Location of the property – The property appraiser assigns a neighborhood code to every property in the county. Sales of properties in the same or similar neighborhoods are typically used to determine locational adjustments. Often, site-specific location adjustments are made to reflect either an enhanced location (such as a waterfront site or in a golf course community) or an inferior location (such as adjacent to an industrial use or dumpsite). All of the comparable properties presented in support of value are located in the same neighborhood as the subject. The location of the property appears to have been appropriately considered in the determination of just value.

(4) Quantity or size of the property – The property appraiser must consider the quantity or size of the property by determining and recording the correct land size, building size, and extra features sizes and quantities. Land size is based on legal descriptions from recorded plats or metes and bounds. Building sizes and extra features are determined by inspection and measured by deputy property appraisers. From the evidence presented there do not appear to be any notable discrepancies in size or quantity beyond what is previously been discussed. There does not appear to be any discrepancy in heated building area between the parties; however, as discussed, making comparisons based on adjusted building areas after deducting extra features is inconsistent with market standards.

(5) The cost of the property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon - No separate analysis of cost has been presented during the hearing. The property appraiser indicates that typical residential homebuyers do not rely on development costs when valuing residential property. Cost calculations found on the property record card appear to be supportive of just value.

(6) Condition of the property – The property appraiser considers the condition of properties through periodic property inspections, no less than once every five years as required by Statute. Other events can trigger more frequent site inspections, including the sale of a property, issuance of a building permit, assessment appeal, or at the taxpayer's request. Condition is considered as a factor applied to the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System value calculation for value losses from all sources based upon an age/life depreciation method. Photographs of the subject property have been presented as evidence of condition. The property appraiser confirmed that a personal exterior inspection of this property has been made for the purpose of determining extra features and the condition of the property. It appears that the property appraiser has

appropriately considered this condition.

(7) The income from the property - Residential properties are typically valued for ad valorem tax purposes using the sales comparison approach, as provided for under Section 193.011, Florida Statutes. Comparable sales are relied upon due to the limited availability of market data on residential rental income, operating expenses, and capitalization rates for properties similar to the subject. In the residential market, buyers and sellers generally do not consider income-generating potential when evaluating a property for purchase. The special magistrate finds that the property appraiser has given adequate consideration to this criterion in the analysis of the property.

(8) Cost of Sale Adjustment - This criterion deals with the net proceeds from the sale of a property as received by the seller after deduction of all of the usual and reasonable fees and costs and expenses of financing and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms of financing arrangements. A few examples of the applicability of this criterion include: • unconventional or atypical financing arrangements, such as seller financing at favorable terms, which inflated the price, relative to what would have been achieved with a cash or case-equivalent arrangement, • the inclusion of tangible personal property, which may serve to increase the price above pure real property consideration, • atypically motivated buyers, who may pay a premium relative to that paid by the general market, • atypical closing costs arrangements, such as a seller paying the buyer's closing costs in exchange for a higher sales price. Because these situations may not be discoverable by the mass appraiser relying on raw gross price data, a deduction from the raw gross price is made with the goal being to arrive at 100% of the market value of the real property by eliminating any possible impact of non-real property consideration. This mass appraisal method is found to be acceptable by the Florida Department of Revenue and the Florida Courts. Applicable law provides for uniform cost of sale deductions in just valuations without regard to whether (1) the subject property was sold, (2) mass appraisal or single property appraisal is used, (3) the appraisal approach used to value the property, (4) the petitioner is seeking an increase or decrease in just value, (5) appraised development or VAB review is involved. There is no legal authority for variation in the application of cost of sale deductions based on any of the preceding conditions. The professionally accepted appraisal practice is for Florida property appraisers to uniformly make cost of sale deductions of for all property within use code groups and then report these deductions on Form DR-493 to the Department of Revenue while, understandably, avoiding the impractical task of supporting these deductions in the absence of sufficiently reliable market data that demonstrates the typical, prevalent, and representative cost of sale deductions for each class of real property. In support of consideration of this criterion, the property appraiser has presented an analysis of the ratio between the aggregate sale price paid for all comparable properties compared with their aggregate just value assessments resulting in an average cost of sale adjustment of 29%. While this calculation may demonstrate a general relationship between assessed values and sale prices within the sample, it does not establish adequate support specific to the subject property for this assessment review.

It is implicit in mass appraisal that, even when properly specified and calibrated models are employed, some individual value conclusions may not meet standards of reasonableness, consistency, and accuracy. The purpose of this value review is to determine whether the just value reported on the current tax roll represents the just value of the property after consideration of the criteria set forth in Florida Statute §193.011 and generally accepted appraisal principles, including those applicable to mass appraisal. In reviewing the evidence presented by the property appraiser at this hearing, the special magistrate finds that the property appraiser did not appropriately consider the factors set forth in Florida Statute §193.011, specifically (1), (4) and (8); and therefore, the presumption of correctness has not been established.

By filing this petition, the petitioner alleges that the property appraiser has assessed the property in excess of just value. According to 12D-9.025(3)(a) of the Florida Administrative Code, the petitioner is responsible for presenting relevant and credible evidence in support of his or her belief that the property appraiser's determination is incorrect. To prevail in an assessment challenge, the taxpayer must prove more than a mere difference of opinion regarding an assessment. The following paragraphs describe how the petitioner has addressed each of the eight criteria of the Statute.

(1) Present cash value of the property - In support of a revision to just value, the petitioner has presented the following sales:

PET Sale 1 is located at 4360 Talco Avenue and contains 1,976 square feet of building area, was constructed in 1987, and has a land size of 11,137 square feet. The property does not have a pool. The sale occurred in November 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $221,800, which equates to $112.25 per square foot.

PET Sale 2 is located at 12020 Cavern Road and contains 1,812 square feet of building area, was constructed in 2006, and has a land size of 10,000 square feet. The property does not have a pool. The sale occurred in December 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $326,825, which equates to $180.37 per square foot.

PET Sale 3 is located at 4297 Everett Avenue and contains 1,753 square feet of building area, was constructed in 1993, and has a land size of 10,155 square feet. The property does not have a pool. The sale occurred in October 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $377,000, which equates to $215.06 per square foot.

PET Sale 4 is located at 11393 Sagamore Street and contains 1,778 square feet of building area, was constructed in 1995, and has a land size of 13,637 square feet. The property does not have a pool. The sale occurred in August 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $343,723, which equates to $156.95 per square foot.

PET Sale 5 is located at 11313 Palomar Street and contains 1,926 square feet of building area, was constructed in 1991, and has a land size of 16,226 square feet. The property does not have a pool. The sale occurred in August 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $404,000, which equates to $205.20 per square foot. This adjusted sale price does not support a reduction in assessment.

PET Sale 6 is located at 3485 Chadwick Avenue and contains 1,776 square feet of building area, was constructed in 1990, and has a land size of 10,389 square feet. The property does not have a pool. The sale occurred in May 2025. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $355,565, which equates to $200.21 per square foot.

The final adjusted sale prices range from $221,800 to $404,000, with a mean adjusted sale price of approximately $338,152. Sales 2, 3, 4, 5, and 6 have Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price per square foot values that exceed the per square foot just value. The petitioner compares these sales based on total price. The petitioner has presented sales that are claimed to be more similar to the subject than the sales relied upon by the property appraiser. Price adjustments were made to account for differences between the sales and the subject property including a 15% adjustment for cost of sale. The petitioner has presented no rebuttal as to the property appraiser's appraisal methods or chosen sales and has not identified a specific methodological error, factual inaccuracy, or inconsistency in the property appraiser's analysis. The petitioner's analysis is based on unsupported adjustments, many of which are calculated using the assessed values of the sales. The petitioner has not visited the subject or any of the sales and has not appropriately compared condition. The property appraiser's just value falls within the range of adjusted sale prices presented by the petitioner and the per-square-foot just value is supported by one or more of the petitioner's adjusted per-square foot sale prices.

(2) Highest and Best Use - The petitioner does not dispute that the highest and best use of the subject property is single-family residential.

(3) Location of the property - The petitioner appears familiar with the location characteristics of the subject property and has not claimed the presence of any atypical or adverse location factors that would materially affect its use or value.

(4) Quantity or size of the property - The petitioner does not dispute the size or quantity of the land or improvements reported by the property appraiser during the hearing, nor was any allegation made that these factors were miscalculated or improperly considered in the valuation.

(5) The cost of the property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon - The petitioner has presented no analysis of land value or depreciated building costs. Cost is rarely used to value this market sector.

(6) Condition - The petitioner has not presented any credible evidence or asserted that the condition of the property differs from the description provided by the property appraiser during the hearing. Furthermore, no claim was made regarding any significant physical deficiencies that would affect the property's use or value.

(7) The income from the property - The petitioner has presented no analysis of income and expense at this hearing, however, as mentioned, this method is also rarely used to value residential properties for ad valorem tax purposes.

(8) Cost of Sale Adjustment - The petitioner has made specific deductions for cost of sale based on the DR-493 form submitted by the property appraiser to the Florida Department of Revenue in consideration of this criterion.

The petitioner has not specifically challenged the market evidence or the analysis conducted by the property appraiser in support of the just value of the subject property. Merely presenting an alternative analysis is not sufficient to warrant a change in assessment. Pursuant to Florida Statute §194.301(1) it is the petitioner's responsibility to demonstrate that the property appraiser's evidence and/or analysis are incorrect, and that the determined value does not represent the just value of the property by a preponderance of the evidence.

After careful consideration of all evidence presented at the hearing, the special magistrate finds that the property appraiser has not established the presumption of correctness. However, the hearing record does contain competent, substantial evidence of just value that complies with the eight criteria set forth in Florida Statute §193.011 and generally accepted appraisal principles. The unadjusted sale prices for the sales contained in the hearing record range from $218,000 to $405,000. These sales were identified by both the property appraiser and the petitioner as the most comparable to the subject property. However, because the petitioner's adjustments are not supported by market evidence, they are afforded little weight. Applying a fifteen percent cost-of-sale adjustment results in an indicated value range of $185,300 to $344,250. Because the subject's just value exceeds this adjusted range, the evidence in the hearing record indicates that the assessment is overstated. Accordingly, the special magistrate recommends that the just value be revised to $344,250.

Conclusions of Law

Pursuant to §194.301(1), Florida Statutes, in an administrative action in which a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment, the property appraiser's assessment is presumed correct if the property appraiser proves by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment was arrived at in compliance with §193.011, Florida Statutes, and professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The burden of proof rests initially with the property appraiser to establish this presumption of correctness. Based upon the competent, substantial evidence presented at the hearing, the special magistrate concludes that the property appraiser did not establish the presumption of correctness. Specifically, the sales analysis relied upon by the property appraiser did not demonstrate compliance with generally accepted appraisal practices as applied in an individual assessment review, particularly with respect to the consideration of present cash value, the comparison of property size using market-recognized metrics, and the application of cost-of-sale considerations under §193.011(1), (4), and (8), Florida Statutes. Pursuant to §194.301(2), Florida Statutes, when the presumption of correctness is not established, the value adjustment board or special magistrate is required to determine the assessment if there is competent, substantial evidence of just value in the record that cumulatively meets the criteria of §193.011, Florida Statutes, and professionally accepted appraisal practices. If such evidence exists, the special magistrate is authorized to establish a revised just value based upon that evidence and is not restricted to the specific value advocated by either party. The special magistrate concludes that the hearing record does contain competent, substantial evidence of just value. The evidence presented demonstrates a supported range of market values derived from comparable sales, adjusted for reasonable and customary costs of sale, consistent with §193.011(8), Florida Statutes, and professionally accepted appraisal principles. This evidence establishes that the subject property's assessed just value exceeds the indicated market-supported range and therefore does not represent just value as of January 1, 2025. Accordingly, pursuant to §194.301(2)(b), Florida Statutes, and Rule 12D-9.027, Florida Administrative Code, the special magistrate concludes that the assessment should be revised. Based upon the weight of the evidence, the special magistrate recommends that the 2025 just value of the subject property be revised to $344,250, which is supported by the competent, substantial evidence in the hearing record and complies with the statutory requirements governing just valuation.

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

Hernando County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff.11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☒ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition #	25-307	Parcel ID	R32 323 17 5200 1321 0070
Petitioner name The petitioner is: ☐ taxpayer of record ☒ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	RYAN, INC.	Property address	13184 BRECHNER STREET SPRING HILL, FLORIDA

Decision Summary ☒ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just Value, required	$274,788	$274,788	$274,788
2. Assessed or classified use value, * if applicable	$274,788	$274,788	$274,788
3. Exempt value, * enter "0" if none	$0	$0	$0
4. Taxable value, * required	$274,788	$274,788	$274,788

*All values entered should be county taxable values, School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision

Findings of Fact

DUE TO SPACE LIMITATIONS, FINDINGS OF FACT ARE SET FORTH IN THE ATTACHED ADDENDA, WHICH IS MADE PART OF THIS RECOMMENDATION REPORT.

Conclusions of Law

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW ARE PROVIDED IN THE ATTACHED ADDENDA, INCORPORATED HEREIN BY REFERENCE.

☒ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	ROBERT C. HICKS Print Name	FEB 6, 2026 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____.
Address: Hernando County Gov't Center BOCC Chambers, Room 160, 20 North Main Street, Brooksville, Florida 34601.
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered.
To find the information, please call (352) 754-4970, or visit our website at vab@hernandoclerk.org.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print Name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date mailed to parties

Addenda

Findings Of Fact

Petitioner Natasha Elliott with Ryan, Inc. appeared telephonically on behalf of AMERIPROP SFR PROPERTY OWNER LLC on January 27, 2026 to provide testimonial and documentary evidence pertaining to the 2025 property assessment for real property located in Hernando County, Florida. The Hernando County Property Appraiser's Office was represented at the hearing by Deputy Appraisers Doug Mack, CFE, Residential Supervisor and Brandon Jimenez, CFE. An opening statement regarding the hearing process and rules of procedure was read and all parties were placed under oath. This petition is one of 22 presented by the petitioner on this hearing date. The specific case numbers are 25-297 through 25-318, inclusive. Any relevant testimony presented during these individual hearings will be incorporated by reference to all hearings to avoid redundancy and expedite the hearing process.

The subject of this petition is listed on the Hernando County tax roll as Parcel ID R32 323 17 5200 1321 0070. This property is described as a single-family residence with a two-car garage and no pool. The subject property is located at 13184 Brechner Street, Spring Hill, Hernando County, Florida. The property consists of 2,010 square feet of adjusted building area with 1,655 square feet of heated building area on a 34,902-square-foot residential lot. The improvements were constructed in 2003. Based on an inspection of the property on February 9, 2023, the property appraiser has determined that the building improvements are of typical construction quality and in average condition. It appears that the subject of this petition has not sold within the 12-month period preceding the January 1 valuation date.

The property appraiser has confirmed the 2025 just value at $274,788, with an assessed value of $274,788 and a taxable value of $274,788. There have been no changes to the values since the Notice of Proposed Property Taxes (TRIM) was issued. The petitioner is requesting a revision to the 2025 just value, proposing a revision in just value to $249,625. This request is supported by sales comparison.

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence, see Florida Administrative Code 12D-9.025(1). Generally, relevant evidence is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. The evidence meets or exceeds a minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. Documentary evidence presented by the property appraiser during the hearing is described and labeled as follows:

- PAO-A (16 pages) - Cover page, case synopsis, subject property record card with building sketch and photograph, sales analysis grid, comparable location map, analysis of sales data, property record card for each sale, list of structure area adjustments

Documentary evidence presented by the petitioner during the hearing is described and labeled as follows:

- PET-1 (9 pages) - Petition, cover page, summary of evidence, sales adjustment grid, adjustment formulas, aerial photograph of subject, street map, location map showing subject and sales

The property appraiser has not raised any objections to the evidence presented by the petitioner during the hearing.

The Florida Legislature has enacted eight criteria that the property appraiser must consider when determining just value. In any administrative or judicial action where a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment, the property appraiser's estimate of just value is presumed correct if it is proven that the assessment was made in compliance with the eight criteria outlined in Section 193.011, Florida Statutes and in accordance with professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The only standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence, meaning the greater weight of evidence, or "more likely than not."

Florida courts have consistently held that the property appraiser is only required to consider the eight criteria, and that applying each factor is not mandatory. The courts have further found that if any one criterion does not reflect just value, it should be disregarded by the property appraiser. The special magistrate finds and summarizes the extent to which the property appraiser has considered each of these criteria in the following paragraphs.

(1) Present cash value of the property - The amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arms-length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In short, the price without transaction costs. The buyer typically pays more, and the seller typically receives less than the price indicated by the documentary stamps due to these transaction costs. In mass appraising, the property appraiser considers this criterion by applying or considering the comparable market sales using the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through comparable sales analysis similar to that found in a fee appraisal. The amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arms-length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In short, the price without transaction costs. The buyer typically pays more, and the seller typically receives less than the price indicated by the documentary stamps due to these transaction costs. In mass appraising, the property appraiser considers this criterion by applying or considering the comparable market sales using the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through

comparable sales analysis similar to that found in a fee appraisal. The property appraiser has presented sales evidence in support of the present cash value. Following are brief descriptions of the sales determined by the property appraiser to be most comparable to the subject and representative of value sourced by property record cards:

PA Sale 1 involves the single-family residence located at 12377 Seagate St. The dwelling contains 1,608 square feet of heated building area, was built in 1986, and sold in October 2024 for a sale price of $325,000.

PA Sale 2 involves the single-family residence located at 2241 Lake Forest Ave. The dwelling contains 1,702 square feet of heated building area, was built in 1998, and sold in September 2024 for a sale price of $350,000.

PA Sale 3 involves the single-family residence located at 5355 Harbinger Rd. The dwelling contains 1,597 square feet of heated building area, was built in 1995, and sold in December 2024 for a sale price of $355,000.

In considering these sales, the property appraiser has compared them based on per adjusted square foot price. Three qualified sales judged to be most comparable to the subject have been presented in support of value. The sales were selected based on similar location, age, size and utility. The property appraiser's approach relies on feature value deductions and weighted "adjusted building area" calculations rather than paired-sales analysis or market-derived adjustments. Florida appraisal standards and case law (e.g., Valencia Center, Inc. v. Bystrom, 543 So. 2d 214 [Fla. 1989]) require that just value determinations be supported by market evidence showing how specific features or characteristics influence sale prices. Deducting fixed feature values from sale prices without verifying their market validity substitutes internal modeling for actual market behavior. While this may be useful for mass appraisal purposes, it does not provide the level of market support required in an individual value review before the Value Adjustment Board. A credible defense of just value in a hearing must demonstrate how specific comparable sales support the subject's assessed value through observable market adjustments. Reliance on internal modeling, without direct evidence of how the market reacts to property differences, fails to establish that the property appraiser's value represents the amount a willing buyer and seller would agree upon under normal conditions. Secondly, the "adjusted building area" metric has no direct market analogue. Buyers and appraisers typically compare residential properties based on heated living area (gross living area per ANSI or Fannie Mae standards). Introducing a proprietary or synthetic size measure distorts the relationship between price and size, undermining the comparability of sales. This means the model may show internal consistency but not external validity in the open market. It is the opinion of the special magistrate that this sales analysis does not follow with generally accepted appraisal practices.

(2) Highest & Best Use – This relates to the consideration of the fundamental appraisal concept of highest and best use or best use to which the property can be expected to be put in the immediate future. For improved properties, the highest and best use of the property as if vacant should be considered as well. The four steps establishing highest and best use are consideration of what is physically possible, legally permissible, financially feasible, and maximally productive. The highest and best use as vacant is identified through land use codes which, in part, are based on zoning. The highest and best use as improved is assumed to be the current use unless evidence shows otherwise. The property appraiser's office considers highest and best use by identifying and recording land size, zoning, building size, location and other characteristics. Once all coding is in place, comparable sales and rentals that have similar characteristics are used to value the property. The highest and best use of this property is for single-family residential use. This determination is undisputed by the petitioner and appears to have been appropriately considered by the property appraiser.

(3) Location of the property – The property appraiser assigns a neighborhood code to every property in the county. Sales of properties in the same or similar neighborhoods are typically used to determine locational adjustments. Often, site-specific location adjustments are made to reflect either an enhanced location (such as a waterfront site or in a golf course community) or an inferior location (such as adjacent to an industrial use or dumpsite). All of the comparable properties presented in support of value are located in the same neighborhood as the subject. The location of the property appears to have been appropriately considered in the determination of just value.

(4) Quantity or size of the property – The property appraiser must consider the quantity or size of the property by determining and recording the correct land size, building size, and extra features sizes and quantities. Land size is based on legal descriptions from recorded plats or metes and bounds. Building sizes and extra features are determined by inspection and measured by deputy property appraisers. From the evidence presented there do not appear to be any notable discrepancies in size or quantity beyond what is previously been discussed. There does not appear to be any discrepancy in heated building area between the parties; however, as discussed, making comparisons based on adjusted building areas after deducting extra features is inconsistent with market standards.

(5) The cost of the property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon - No separate analysis of cost has been presented during the hearing. The property appraiser indicates that typical residential homebuyers do not rely on development costs when valuing residential property. Cost calculations found on the property record card appear to be supportive of just value.

(6) Condition of the property – The property appraiser considers the condition of properties through periodic property inspections, no less than once every five years as required by Statute. Other events can trigger more frequent site inspections, including the sale of a property, issuance of a building permit, assessment appeal, or at the taxpayer's request. Condition is considered as a factor applied to the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System value calculation for value losses from all sources based upon an age/life depreciation method. Photographs of the subject property have been presented as evidence of condition. The property appraiser confirmed that a personal exterior inspection of this property has been made for the purpose of determining extra features and the condition of the property. It appears that the property appraiser has

appropriately considered this condition.

(7) The income from the property - Residential properties are typically valued for ad valorem tax purposes using the sales comparison approach, as provided for under Section 193.011, Florida Statutes. Comparable sales are relied upon due to the limited availability of market data on residential rental income, operating expenses, and capitalization rates for properties similar to the subject. In the residential market, buyers and sellers generally do not consider income-generating potential when evaluating a property for purchase. The special magistrate finds that the property appraiser has given adequate consideration to this criterion in the analysis of the property.

(8) Cost of Sale Adjustment - This criterion deals with the net proceeds from the sale of a property as received by the seller after deduction of all of the usual and reasonable fees and costs and expenses of financing and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms of financing arrangements. A few examples of the applicability of this criterion include: • unconventional or atypical financing arrangements, such as seller financing at favorable terms, which inflated the price, relative to what would have been achieved with a cash or case-equivalent arrangement, • the inclusion of tangible personal property, which may serve to increase the price above pure real property consideration, • atypically motivated buyers, who may pay a premium relative to that paid by the general market, • atypical closing costs arrangements, such as a seller paying the buyer's closing costs in exchange for a higher sales price. Because these situations may not be discoverable by the mass appraiser relying on raw gross price data, a deduction from the raw gross price is made with the goal being to arrive at 100% of the market value of the real property by eliminating any possible impact of non-real property consideration. This mass appraisal method is found to be acceptable by the Florida Department of Revenue and the Florida Courts. Applicable law provides for uniform cost of sale deductions in just valuations without regard to whether (1) the subject property was sold, (2) mass appraisal or single property appraisal is used, (3) the appraisal approach used to value the property, (4) the petitioner is seeking an increase or decrease in just value, (5) appraised development or VAB review is involved. There is no legal authority for variation in the application of cost of sale deductions based on any of the preceding conditions. The professionally accepted appraisal practice is for Florida property appraisers to uniformly make cost of sale deductions of for all property within use code groups and then report these deductions on Form DR-493 to the Department of Revenue while, understandably, avoiding the impractical task of supporting these deductions in the absence of sufficiently reliable market data that demonstrates the typical, prevalent, and representative cost of sale deductions for each class of real property. In support of consideration of this criterion, the property appraiser has presented an analysis of the ratio between the aggregate sale price paid for all comparable properties compared with their aggregate just value assessments resulting in an average cost of sale adjustment of 23%. While this calculation may demonstrate a general relationship between assessed values and sale prices within the sample, it does not establish adequate support specific to the subject property for this assessment review.

It is implicit in mass appraisal that, even when properly specified and calibrated models are employed, some individual value conclusions may not meet standards of reasonableness, consistency, and accuracy. The purpose of this value review is to determine whether the just value reported on the current tax roll represents the just value of the property after consideration of the criteria set forth in Florida Statute §193.011 and generally accepted appraisal principles, including those applicable to mass appraisal. In reviewing the evidence presented by the property appraiser at this hearing, the special magistrate finds that the property appraiser did not appropriately consider the factors set forth in Florida Statute §193.011, specifically (1), (4) and (8); and therefore, the presumption of correctness has not been established.

By filing this petition, the petitioner alleges that the property appraiser has assessed the property in excess of just value. According to 12D-9.025(3)(a) of the Florida Administrative Code, the petitioner is responsible for presenting relevant and credible evidence in support of his or her belief that the property appraiser's determination is incorrect. To prevail in an assessment challenge, the taxpayer must prove more than a mere difference of opinion regarding an assessment. The following paragraphs describe how the petitioner has addressed each of the eight criteria of the Statute.

(1) Present cash value of the property - In support of a revision to just value, the petitioner has presented the following sales:

PET Sale 1: 13170 Santee St reflects a building size of 1,724 SF with a 1988 year built, on a 17,470 SF site with no pool. The sale date is February 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $275,750, or $159.95 per SF. This adjusted sale price does not support a reduction in assessment.

PET Sale 2: 13242 Pendleton St reflects a building size of 1,581 SF with a 1989 year built, on a 16,779 SF site with no pool. The sale date is November 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $245,250, or $155.12 per SF.

PET Sale 3: 6119 Belkton Ave reflects a building size of 1,614 SF with a 2003 year built, on a 16,178 SF site with no pool. The sale date is November 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $221,500, or $137.24 per SF.

PET Sale 4: 12209 Tallwood St reflects a building size of 1,702 SF with a 1992 year built, on a 15,809 SF site with no pool. The sale date is March 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $256,000, or $150.41 per SF.

The final adjusted sale prices range from $221,500 to $275,750, with a mean of $249,625. The petitioner compares these sales based on total price. The petitioner has presented sales that are claimed to be more similar to the subject than the sales relied upon by the property appraiser. Price adjustments were made to account for differences between the sales and the subject property including a 15% adjustment for cost of sale. The petitioner has presented no rebuttal as to the property appraiser's appraisal methods or chosen sales and has not identified a specific methodological error, factual inaccuracy, or inconsistency in the property appraiser's analysis. The petitioner's analysis is based on unsupported adjustments, many of which are calculated using the assessed values of the sales. The petitioner has not visited the subject or any of the sales and has not appropriately compared condition. The property appraiser's just value falls within the range of adjusted sale prices presented by the petitioner.

(2) Highest and Best Use - The petitioner does not dispute that the highest and best use of the subject property is single-family residential.

(3) Location of the property - The petitioner appears familiar with the location characteristics of the subject property and has not claimed the presence of any atypical or adverse location factors that would materially affect its use or value.

(4) Quantity or size of the property - The petitioner does not dispute the size or quantity of the land or improvements reported by the property appraiser during the hearing, nor was any allegation made that these factors were miscalculated or improperly considered in the valuation.

(5) The cost of the property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon - The petitioner has presented no analysis of land value or depreciated building costs. Cost is rarely used to value this market sector.

(6) Condition - The petitioner has not presented any credible evidence or asserted that the condition of the property differs from the description provided by the property appraiser during the hearing. Furthermore, no claim was made regarding any significant physical deficiencies that would affect the property's use or value.

(7) The income from the property - The petitioner has presented no analysis of income and expense at this hearing, however, as mentioned, this method is also rarely used to value residential properties for ad valorem tax purposes.

(8) Cost of Sale Adjustment - The petitioner has made specific deductions for cost of sale based on the DR-493 form submitted by the property appraiser to the Florida Department of Revenue in consideration of this criterion.

The petitioner has not specifically challenged the market evidence or the analysis conducted by the property appraiser in support of the just value of the subject property. Merely presenting an alternative analysis is not sufficient to warrant a change in assessment. Pursuant to Florida Statute §194.301(1) it is the petitioner's responsibility to demonstrate that the property appraiser's evidence and/or analysis are incorrect, and that the determined value does not represent the just value of the property by a preponderance of the evidence.

After careful consideration of all evidence presented at the hearing, the special magistrate finds that the property appraiser has not established the presumption of correctness. However, the hearing record does contain competent, substantial evidence of just value that complies with the eight criteria set forth in Florida Statute §193.011 and generally accepted appraisal principles. The unadjusted sale prices for the sales contained in the hearing record range from $300,000 to $355,000. These sales were identified by both the property appraiser and the petitioner as the most comparable to the subject property. However, because the petitioner's adjustments are not supported by market evidence, they are afforded little weight. Applying a fifteen percent cost-of-sale adjustment results in an indicated value range of $255,000 to $301,750. Because the subject's just value does not exceed this adjusted range, the evidence in the hearing record indicates that the assessment is not overstated. Accordingly, the special magistrate recommends no change in the just value established by the property appraiser..

Conclusions of Law

Pursuant to §194.301(1), Florida Statutes, in any administrative action in which a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment of value, the property appraiser's assessment is presumed correct if the property appraiser proves by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment was arrived at in compliance with §193.011, Florida Statutes, and professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The applicable standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence. Based upon the evidence presented and admitted at the hearing, the special magistrate concludes that the property appraiser did not establish the presumption of correctness. The evidence relied upon by the property appraiser did not sufficiently demonstrate that all applicable statutory criteria were properly considered in a manner consistent with generally accepted appraisal practices for an individual assessment review. Pursuant to §194.301(2)(b), Florida Statutes, when the presumption of correctness is not established, the value adjustment board or special magistrate is required to determine the assessment if there is competent, substantial evidence of just value in the hearing record which cumulatively satisfies the criteria set forth in §193.011, Florida Statutes, and professionally accepted appraisal practices. The special magistrate is not required to adopt the specific value advocated by either party and may establish or affirm a value supported by the competent, substantial evidence in the record. The special magistrate concludes that the hearing record contains competent, substantial evidence of just value. The market evidence presented and admitted at the hearing, when considered in its entirety and in light of the statutory valuation criteria, supports the conclusion that the just value determined by the property appraiser is supported by the evidence and is not shown to be excessive, insufficient, or otherwise incorrect by a preponderance of the evidence. Accordingly, pursuant to §194.301, Florida Statutes, and the applicable provisions of Rule Chapter 12D-9, Florida Administrative Code, the special magistrate recommends that the value adjustment board take no action to change the just value determined by the property appraiser.

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

Hernando County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff.11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☒ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition #	25-308	Parcel ID	R02 123 21 1316 0000 0930
Petitioner name The petitioner is: ☐ taxpayer of record ☒ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	RYAN, INC.	Property address	34438 CEDARFIELD DRIVE BROOKSVILLE, FLORIDA

Decision Summary ☒ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just Value, required	$287,088	$287,088	$287,088
2. Assessed or classified use value, * if applicable	$287,088	$287,088	$287,088
3. Exempt value, * enter "0" if none	$0	$0	$0
4. Taxable value, * required	$287,088	$287,088	$287,088

*All values entered should be county taxable values, School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision

Findings of Fact

DUE TO SPACE LIMITATIONS, FINDINGS OF FACT ARE SET FORTH IN THE ATTACHED ADDENDA, WHICH IS MADE PART OF THIS RECOMMENDATION REPORT.

Conclusions of Law

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW ARE PROVIDED IN THE ATTACHED ADDENDA, INCORPORATED HEREIN BY REFERENCE.

☒ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	ROBERT C. HICKS Print Name	FEB 6, 2026 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____.
Address: Hernando County Gov't Center BOCC Chambers, Room 160, 20 North Main Street, Brooksville, Florida 34601.
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered.
To find the information, please call (352) 754-4970, or visit our website at vab@hernandoclerk.org.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print Name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date mailed to parties

Addenda

Findings Of Fact

Petitioner Natasha Elliott with Ryan, Inc. appeared telephonically on behalf of YAMASA CO LTD on January 27, 2026 to provide testimonial and documentary evidence pertaining to the 2025 property assessment for real property located in Hernando County, Florida. The Hernando County Property Appraiser's Office was represented at the hearing by Deputy Appraisers Doug Mack, CFE, Residential Supervisor and Brandon Jimenez, CFE. An opening statement regarding the hearing process and rules of procedure was read and all parties were placed under oath. This petition is one of 22 presented by the petitioner on this hearing date. The specific case numbers are 25-297 through 25-318, inclusive. Any relevant testimony presented during these individual hearings will be incorporated by reference to all hearings to avoid redundancy and expedite the hearing process.

The subject of this petition is listed on the Hernando County tax roll as Parcel ID R02 123 21 1316 0000 0930. This property is described as a single-family residence with a two-car garage and no pool. The subject property is located at 34438 Cedarfield Drive, Brooksville, Hernando County, Florida. The property consists of 2,592 square feet of adjusted building area with 1,941 square feet of heated building area on a 10,000-square-foot residential lot. The improvements were constructed in 1986. Based on an inspection of the property on February 27, 2023, the property appraiser has determined that the building improvements are of typical construction quality and in average condition. It appears that the subject of this petition has not sold within the 12-month period preceding the January 1 valuation date.

The property appraiser has confirmed the 2025 just value at $287,088, with an assessed value of $287,088 and a taxable value of $287,088. There have been no changes to the values since the Notice of Proposed Property Taxes (TRIM) was issued. The petitioner is requesting a revision to the 2025 just value, proposing a revision in just value to $265,132. This request is supported by sales comparison.

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence, see Florida Administrative Code 12D-9.025(1). Generally, relevant evidence is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. The evidence meets or exceeds a minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. Documentary evidence presented by the property appraiser during the hearing is described and labeled as follows:

- PAO-A (17 pages) - Cover page, case synopsis, subject property record card with building sketch and photograph, sales analysis grid, comparable location map, analysis of sales data, property record card for each sale, list of structure area adjustments

Documentary evidence presented by the petitioner during the hearing is described and labeled as follows:

- PET-1 (9 pages) - Petition, cover page, summary of evidence, sales adjustment grid, adjustment formulas, aerial photograph of subject, street map, location map showing subject and sales

The property appraiser has not raised any objections to the evidence presented by the petitioner during the hearing.

The Florida Legislature has enacted eight criteria that the property appraiser must consider when determining just value. In any administrative or judicial action where a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment, the property appraiser's estimate of just value is presumed correct if it is proven that the assessment was made in compliance with the eight criteria outlined in Section 193.011, Florida Statutes and in accordance with professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The only standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence, meaning the greater weight of evidence, or "more likely than not."

Florida courts have consistently held that the property appraiser is only required to consider the eight criteria, and that applying each factor is not mandatory. The courts have further found that if any one criterion does not reflect just value, it should be disregarded by the property appraiser. The special magistrate finds and summarizes the extent to which the property appraiser has considered each of these criteria in the following paragraphs.

(1) Present cash value of the property - The amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arms-length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In short, the price without transaction costs. The buyer typically pays more, and the seller typically receives less than the price indicated by the documentary stamps due to these transaction costs. In mass appraising, the property appraiser considers this criterion by applying or considering the comparable market sales using the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through comparable sales analysis similar to that found in a fee appraisal. The amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arms-length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In short, the price without transaction costs. The buyer typically pays more, and the seller typically receives less than the price indicated by the documentary stamps due to these transaction costs. In mass appraising, the property appraiser considers this criterion by applying or considering the comparable market sales using the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through

comparable sales analysis similar to that found in a fee appraisal. The property appraiser has presented sales evidence in support of the present cash value. Following are brief descriptions of the sales determined by the property appraiser to be most comparable to the subject and representative of value sourced by property record cards:

PA Sale 1: 31241 Satinleaf Run reflects a heated building area of 2,391 square feet with a 2004 year built. The sale date is October 2024. The sale price is $375,000.

PA Sale 2: 30517 Satinleaf Run reflects a heated building area of 1,839 square feet with a 2017 year built. The sale date is January 2024. The sale price is $400,000.

PA Sale 3: 6135 Fairway Dr reflects a heated building area of 1,510 square feet with a 1982 year built. The sale date is June 2024. The sale price is $345,000.

In considering these sales, the property appraiser has compared them based on per adjusted square foot price. Three qualified sales judged to be most comparable to the subject have been presented in support of value. The sales were selected based on similar location, age, size and utility. The property appraiser's approach relies on feature value deductions and weighted "adjusted building area" calculations rather than paired-sales analysis or market-derived adjustments. Florida appraisal standards and case law (e.g., Valencia Center, Inc. v. Bystrom, 543 So. 2d 214 [Fla. 1989]) require that just value determinations be supported by market evidence showing how specific features or characteristics influence sale prices. Deducting fixed feature values from sale prices without verifying their market validity substitutes internal modeling for actual market behavior. While this may be useful for mass appraisal purposes, it does not provide the level of market support required in an individual value review before the Value Adjustment Board. A credible defense of just value in a hearing must demonstrate how specific comparable sales support the subject's assessed value through observable market adjustments. Reliance on internal modeling, without direct evidence of how the market reacts to property differences, fails to establish that the property appraiser's value represents the amount a willing buyer and seller would agree upon under normal conditions. Secondly, the "adjusted building area" metric has no direct market analogue. Buyers and appraisers typically compare residential properties based on heated living area (gross living area per ANSI or Fannie Mae standards). Introducing a proprietary or synthetic size measure distorts the relationship between price and size, undermining the comparability of sales. This means the model may show internal consistency but not external validity in the open market. It is the opinion of the special magistrate that this sales analysis does not follow with generally accepted appraisal practices.

(2) Highest & Best Use – This relates to the consideration of the fundamental appraisal concept of highest and best use or best use to which the property can be expected to be put in the immediate future. For improved properties, the highest and best use of the property as if vacant should be considered as well. The four steps establishing highest and best use are consideration of what is physically possible, legally permissible, financially feasible, and maximally productive. The highest and best use as vacant is identified through land use codes which, in part, are based on zoning. The highest and best use as improved is assumed to be the current use unless evidence shows otherwise. The property appraiser's office considers highest and best use by identifying and recording land size, zoning, building size, location and other characteristics. Once all coding is in place, comparable sales and rentals that have similar characteristics are used to value the property. The highest and best use of this property is for single-family residential use. This determination is undisputed by the petitioner and appears to have been appropriately considered by the property appraiser.

(3) Location of the property – The property appraiser assigns a neighborhood code to every property in the county. Sales of properties in the same or similar neighborhoods are typically used to determine locational adjustments. Often, site-specific location adjustments are made to reflect either an enhanced location (such as a waterfront site or in a golf course community) or an inferior location (such as adjacent to an industrial use or dumpsite). All of the comparable properties presented in support of value are located in the same neighborhood as the subject. The location of the property appears to have been appropriately considered in the determination of just value.

(4) Quantity or size of the property – The property appraiser must consider the quantity or size of the property by determining and recording the correct land size, building size, and extra features sizes and quantities. Land size is based on legal descriptions from recorded plats or metes and bounds. Building sizes and extra features are determined by inspection and measured by deputy property appraisers. From the evidence presented there do not appear to be any notable discrepancies in size or quantity beyond what is previously been discussed. There does not appear to be any discrepancy in heated building area between the parties; however, as discussed, making comparisons based on adjusted building areas after deducting extra features is inconsistent with market standards.

(5) The cost of the property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon - No separate analysis of cost has been presented during the hearing. The property appraiser indicates that typical residential homebuyers do not rely on development costs when valuing residential property. Cost calculations found on the property record card appear to be supportive of just value.

(6) Condition of the property – The property appraiser considers the condition of properties through periodic property inspections, no less than once every five years as required by Statute. Other events can trigger more frequent site inspections, including the sale of a property, issuance of a building permit, assessment appeal, or at the taxpayer's request. Condition is considered as a factor applied to the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System value calculation for value losses from all sources based upon an age/life depreciation method. Photographs of the subject property have been presented as evidence of condition. The property appraiser confirmed that a personal exterior inspection of this property has been made for the purpose of determining extra features and the condition of the property. It appears that the property appraiser has

appropriately considered this condition.

(7) The income from the property - Residential properties are typically valued for ad valorem tax purposes using the sales comparison approach, as provided for under Section 193.011, Florida Statutes. Comparable sales are relied upon due to the limited availability of market data on residential rental income, operating expenses, and capitalization rates for properties similar to the subject. In the residential market, buyers and sellers generally do not consider income-generating potential when evaluating a property for purchase. The special magistrate finds that the property appraiser has given adequate consideration to this criterion in the analysis of the property.

(8) Cost of Sale Adjustment - This criterion deals with the net proceeds from the sale of a property as received by the seller after deduction of all of the usual and reasonable fees and costs and expenses of financing and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms of financing arrangements. A few examples of the applicability of this criterion include: • unconventional or atypical financing arrangements, such as seller financing at favorable terms, which inflated the price, relative to what would have been achieved with a cash or case-equivalent arrangement, • the inclusion of tangible personal property, which may serve to increase the price above pure real property consideration, • atypically motivated buyers, who may pay a premium relative to that paid by the general market, • atypical closing costs arrangements, such as a seller paying the buyer's closing costs in exchange for a higher sales price. Because these situations may not be discoverable by the mass appraiser relying on raw gross price data, a deduction from the raw gross price is made with the goal being to arrive at 100% of the market value of the real property by eliminating any possible impact of non-real property consideration. This mass appraisal method is found to be acceptable by the Florida Department of Revenue and the Florida Courts. Applicable law provides for uniform cost of sale deductions in just valuations without regard to whether (1) the subject property was sold, (2) mass appraisal or single property appraisal is used, (3) the appraisal approach used to value the property, (4) the petitioner is seeking an increase or decrease in just value, (5) appraised development or VAB review is involved. There is no legal authority for variation in the application of cost of sale deductions based on any of the preceding conditions. The professionally accepted appraisal practice is for Florida property appraisers to uniformly make cost of sale deductions of for all property within use code groups and then report these deductions on Form DR-493 to the Department of Revenue while, understandably, avoiding the impractical task of supporting these deductions in the absence of sufficiently reliable market data that demonstrates the typical, prevalent, and representative cost of sale deductions for each class of real property. In support of consideration of this criterion, the property appraiser has presented an analysis of the ratio between the aggregate sale price paid for all comparable properties compared with their aggregate just value assessments resulting in an average cost of sale adjustment of 23%. While this calculation may demonstrate a general relationship between assessed values and sale prices within the sample, it does not establish adequate support specific to the subject property for this assessment review.

It is implicit in mass appraisal that, even when properly specified and calibrated models are employed, some individual value conclusions may not meet standards of reasonableness, consistency, and accuracy. The purpose of this value review is to determine whether the just value reported on the current tax roll represents the just value of the property after consideration of the criteria set forth in Florida Statute §193.011 and generally accepted appraisal principles, including those applicable to mass appraisal. In reviewing the evidence presented by the property appraiser at this hearing, the special magistrate finds that the property appraiser did not appropriately consider the factors set forth in Florida Statute §193.011, specifically (1), (4) and (8); and therefore, the presumption of correctness has not been established.

By filing this petition, the petitioner alleges that the property appraiser has assessed the property in excess of just value. According to 12D-9.025(3)(a) of the Florida Administrative Code, the petitioner is responsible for presenting relevant and credible evidence in support of his or her belief that the property appraiser's determination is incorrect. To prevail in an assessment challenge, the taxpayer must prove more than a mere difference of opinion regarding an assessment. The following paragraphs describe how the petitioner has addressed each of the eight criteria of the Statute.

(1) Present cash value of the property - In support of a revision to just value, the petitioner has presented the following sales:

PET Sale 1: 34454 Cedarfield Dr reflects a building size of 1,941 square feet with a 1985 year built, on a 11,382 square foot site with no pool. The sale date is June 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $260,150, or $121.11 per square foot.

PET Sale 2: 34379 Whispering Oaks Blvd reflects a building size of 2,199 square feet with a 1984 year built, on a 9,123 square foot site with no pool. The sale date is April 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $257,000, or $116.87 per square foot.

PET Sale 3: 35027 Smoketree Ln reflects a building size of 1,983 square feet with a 1988 year built, on a 10,102 square foot site with no pool. The sale date is June 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $295,650, or $149.09 per square foot. This adjusted sale price does not support a reduction in assessment.

PET Sale 4: 34526 Cedarfield Dr reflects a building size of 1,817 square feet with a 1987 year built, on a 8,931 square foot site with no pool. The sale date is April 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $263,095, or $144.80 per square foot.

PET Sale 5: 35053 Smoketree Ln reflects a building size of 1,970 square feet with a 1987 year built, on a 9,602 square foot site with no pool. The sale date is January 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $243,950, or $123.83 per square foot.

PET Sale 6: 6079 Fairway Dr reflects a building size of 2,001 square feet with a 1984 year built, on a 12,740 square foot site with no pool. The sale date is January 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $270,950, or $135.41 per square foot.

The final adjusted sale prices range from $243,950 to $295,650, with a mean of $265,133. PET Sale 3 has a Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price per square foot greater than the PSF Just Value. The petitioner compares these sales based on total price. The petitioner has presented sales that are claimed to be more similar to the subject than the sales relied upon by the property appraiser. Price adjustments were made to account for differences between the sales and the subject property including a 15% adjustment for cost of sale. The petitioner has presented no rebuttal as to the property appraiser's appraisal methods or chosen sales and has not identified a specific methodological error, factual inaccuracy, or inconsistency in the property appraiser's analysis. The petitioner's analysis is based on unsupported adjustments, many of which are calculated using the assessed values of the sales. The petitioner has not visited the subject or any of the sales and has not appropriately compared condition. The property appraiser's just value is within the range of adjusted sale prices presented by the petitioner and the per-square-foot just value is supported by one or more of the petitioner's adjusted per-square foot sale prices.

(2) Highest and Best Use - The petitioner does not dispute that the highest and best use of the subject property is single-family residential.

(3) Location of the property - The petitioner appears familiar with the location characteristics of the subject property and has not claimed the presence of any atypical or adverse location factors that would materially affect its use or value.

(4) Quantity or size of the property - The petitioner does not dispute the size or quantity of the land or improvements reported by the property appraiser during the hearing, nor was any allegation made that these factors were miscalculated or improperly considered in the valuation.

(5) The cost of the property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon - The petitioner has presented no analysis of land value or depreciated building costs. Cost is rarely used to value this market sector.

(6) Condition - The petitioner has not presented any credible evidence or asserted that the condition of the property differs from the description provided by the property appraiser during the hearing. Furthermore, no claim was made regarding any significant physical deficiencies that would affect the property's use or value.

(7) The income from the property - The petitioner has presented no analysis of income and expense at this hearing, however, as mentioned, this method is also rarely used to value residential properties for ad valorem tax purposes.

(8) Cost of Sale Adjustment - The petitioner has made specific deductions for cost of sale based on the DR-493 form submitted by the property appraiser to the Florida Department of Revenue in consideration of this criterion.

The petitioner has not specifically challenged the market evidence or the analysis conducted by the property appraiser in support of the just value of the subject property. Merely presenting an alternative analysis is not sufficient to warrant a change in assessment. Pursuant to Florida Statute §194.301(1) it is the petitioner's responsibility to demonstrate that the property appraiser's evidence and/or analysis are incorrect, and that the determined value does not represent the just value of the property by a preponderance of the evidence.

After careful consideration of all evidence presented at the hearing, the special magistrate finds that the property appraiser has not established the presumption of correctness. However, the hearing record does contain competent, substantial evidence of just value that complies with the eight criteria set forth in Florida Statute §193.011 and generally accepted appraisal principles. The unadjusted sale prices for the sales contained in the hearing record range from $277,000 to $400,000. These sales were identified by both the property appraiser and the petitioner as the most comparable to the subject property. However, because the petitioner's adjustments are not supported by market evidence, they are afforded little weight. Applying a fifteen percent cost-of-sale adjustment results in an indicated value range of $235,450 to $340,000. Because the subject's just value does not exceed this adjusted range, the evidence in the hearing record indicates that the assessment is not overstated. Accordingly, the special magistrate recommends no change in the just value established by the property appraiser.

Conclusions of Law

Pursuant to §194.301(1), Florida Statutes, in any administrative action in which a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment of value, the property appraiser's assessment is presumed correct if the property appraiser proves by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment was arrived at in compliance with §193.011, Florida Statutes, and professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The applicable standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence. Based upon the evidence presented and admitted at the hearing, the special magistrate concludes that the property appraiser did not establish the presumption of correctness. The evidence relied upon by the property appraiser did not sufficiently demonstrate that all applicable statutory criteria were properly considered in a manner consistent with generally accepted appraisal practices for an individual assessment review. Pursuant to §194.301(2)(b), Florida Statutes, when the presumption of correctness is not established, the value adjustment board or special magistrate is required to determine the assessment if there is competent, substantial evidence of just value in the hearing record which cumulatively satisfies the criteria set forth in §193.011, Florida Statutes, and professionally accepted appraisal practices. The special magistrate is not required to adopt the specific value advocated by either party and may establish or affirm a value supported by the competent, substantial evidence in the record. The special magistrate concludes that the hearing record contains competent, substantial evidence of just value. The market evidence presented and admitted at the hearing, when considered in its entirety and in light of the statutory valuation criteria, supports the conclusion that the just value determined by the property appraiser is supported by the evidence and is not shown to be excessive, insufficient, or otherwise incorrect by a preponderance of the evidence. Accordingly, pursuant to §194.301, Florida Statutes, and the applicable provisions of Rule Chapter 12D-9, Florida Administrative Code, the special magistrate recommends that the value adjustment board take no action to change the just value determined by the property appraiser.

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

Hernando County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff.11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☒ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition #	25-309	Parcel ID	R32 323 17 5160 1061 0090
Petitioner name The petitioner is: ☐ taxpayer of record ☒ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	RYAN, INC.	Property address	12252 RONALD STREET SPRING HILL, FLORIDA

Decision Summary ☒ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just Value, required	$257,266	$257,266	$257,266
2. Assessed or classified use value, * if applicable	$226,690	$226,690	$226,690
3. Exempt value, * enter "0" if none	$0	$0	$0
4. Taxable value, * required	$226,690	$226,690	$226,690

*All values entered should be county taxable values, School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision

Findings of Fact

DUE TO SPACE LIMITATIONS, FINDINGS OF FACT ARE SET FORTH IN THE ATTACHED ADDENDA, WHICH IS MADE PART OF THIS RECOMMENDATION REPORT.

Conclusions of Law

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW ARE PROVIDED IN THE ATTACHED ADDENDA, INCORPORATED HEREIN BY REFERENCE.

☒ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	ROBERT C. HICKS Print Name	FEB 6, 2026 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____.
Address: Hernando County Gov't Center BOCC Chambers, Room 160, 20 North Main Street, Brooksville, Florida 34601.
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered.
To find the information, please call (352) 754-4970, or visit our website at vab@hernandoclerk.org.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print Name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date mailed to parties

Addenda

Findings Of Fact

Petitioner Natasha Elliott with Ryan, Inc. appeared telephonically on behalf of PROGRESS RESIDENTIAL BORROWER 7 LLC on January 27, 2026 to provide testimonial and documentary evidence pertaining to the 2025 property assessment for real property located in Hernando County, Florida. The Hernando County Property Appraiser's Office was represented at the hearing by Deputy Appraisers Doug Mack, CFE, Residential Supervisor and Brandon Jimenez, CFE. An opening statement regarding the hearing process and rules of procedure was read and all parties were placed under oath. This petition is one of 22 presented by the petitioner on this hearing date. The specific case numbers are 25-297 through 25-318, inclusive. Any relevant testimony presented during these individual hearings will be incorporated by reference to all hearings to avoid redundancy and expedite the hearing process.

The subject of this petition is listed on the Hernando County tax roll as Parcel ID R32 323 17 5160 1061 0090. This property is described as a single-family residence with a two-car garage and no pool. The subject property is located at 12252 Ronald Street, Spring Hill, Hernando County, Florida. The property consists of 2,016 square feet of adjusted building area with 1,750 square feet of heated building area on a 10,000-square-foot residential lot. The improvements were constructed in 2004. Based on an inspection of the property on September 24, 2025, the property appraiser has determined that the building improvements are of typical construction quality and in average condition. It appears that the subject of this petition has not sold within the 12-month period preceding the January 1 valuation date.

The property appraiser has confirmed the 2025 just value at $257,266, with an assessed value of $226,690 and a taxable value of $226,690. There have been no changes to the values since the Notice of Proposed Property Taxes (TRIM) was issued. The petitioner is requesting a revision to the 2025 just value, proposing a revision in just value to $239,943. This request is supported by sales comparison.

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence, see Florida Administrative Code 12D-9.025(1). Generally, relevant evidence is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. The evidence meets or exceeds a minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. Documentary evidence presented by the property appraiser during the hearing is described and labeled as follows:

- PAO-A (17 pages) - Cover page, case synopsis, subject property record card with building sketch and photograph, sales analysis grid, comparable location map, analysis of sales data, property record card for each sale, list of structure area adjustments

Documentary evidence presented by the petitioner during the hearing is described and labeled as follows:

- PET-1 (9 pages) - Petition, cover page, summary of evidence, sales adjustment grid, adjustment formulas, aerial photograph of subject, street map, location map showing subject and sales

The property appraiser has not raised any objections to the evidence presented by the petitioner during the hearing.

The Florida Legislature has enacted eight criteria that the property appraiser must consider when determining just value. In any administrative or judicial action where a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment, the property appraiser's estimate of just value is presumed correct if it is proven that the assessment was made in compliance with the eight criteria outlined in Section 193.011, Florida Statutes and in accordance with professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The only standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence, meaning the greater weight of evidence, or "more likely than not."

Florida courts have consistently held that the property appraiser is only required to consider the eight criteria, and that applying each factor is not mandatory. The courts have further found that if any one criterion does not reflect just value, it should be disregarded by the property appraiser. The special magistrate finds and summarizes the extent to which the property appraiser has considered each of these criteria in the following paragraphs.

(1) Present cash value of the property - The amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arms-length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In short, the price without transaction costs. The buyer typically pays more, and the seller typically receives less than the price indicated by the documentary stamps due to these transaction costs. In mass appraising, the property appraiser considers this criterion by applying or considering the comparable market sales using the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through comparable sales analysis similar to that found in a fee appraisal. The amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arms-length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In short, the price without transaction costs. The buyer typically pays more, and the seller typically receives less than the price indicated by the documentary stamps due to these transaction costs. In mass appraising, the property appraiser considers this criterion by applying or considering the comparable market sales using the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through

comparable sales analysis similar to that found in a fee appraisal. The property appraiser has presented sales evidence in support of the present cash value. Following are brief descriptions of the sales determined by the property appraiser to be most comparable to the subject and representative of value sourced by property record cards:

PA Sale 1: 11393 Sagamore St reflects a heated building area of 1,778 square feet with a 1995 year built. The sale date is August 2024. The sale price is $369,000.

PA Sale 2: 4024 Dristol Ave reflects a heated building area of 1,854 square feet with a 1995 year built. The sale date is January 2024. The sale price is $305,000.

PA Sale 3: 3219 Landover Blvd reflects a heated building area of 1,871 square feet with a 2004 year built. The sale date is December 2024. The sale price is $334,100.

In considering these sales, the property appraiser has compared them based on per adjusted square foot price. Three qualified sales judged to be most comparable to the subject have been presented in support of value. The sales were selected based on similar location, age, size and utility. The property appraiser's approach relies on feature value deductions and weighted "adjusted building area" calculations rather than paired-sales analysis or market-derived adjustments. Florida appraisal standards and case law (e.g., Valencia Center, Inc. v. Bystrom, 543 So. 2d 214 [Fla. 1989]) require that just value determinations be supported by market evidence showing how specific features or characteristics influence sale prices. Deducting fixed feature values from sale prices without verifying their market validity substitutes internal modeling for actual market behavior. While this may be useful for mass appraisal purposes, it does not provide the level of market support required in an individual value review before the Value Adjustment Board. A credible defense of just value in a hearing must demonstrate how specific comparable sales support the subject's assessed value through observable market adjustments. Reliance on internal modeling, without direct evidence of how the market reacts to property differences, fails to establish that the property appraiser's value represents the amount a willing buyer and seller would agree upon under normal conditions. Secondly, the "adjusted building area" metric has no direct market analogue. Buyers and appraisers typically compare residential properties based on heated living area (gross living area per ANSI or Fannie Mae standards). Introducing a proprietary or synthetic size measure distorts the relationship between price and size, undermining the comparability of sales. This means the model may show internal consistency but not external validity in the open market. It is the opinion of the special magistrate that this sales analysis does not follow with generally accepted appraisal practices.

(2) Highest & Best Use – This relates to the consideration of the fundamental appraisal concept of highest and best use or best use to which the property can be expected to be put in the immediate future. For improved properties, the highest and best use of the property as if vacant should be considered as well. The four steps establishing highest and best use are consideration of what is physically possible, legally permissible, financially feasible, and maximally productive. The highest and best use as vacant is identified through land use codes which, in part, are based on zoning. The highest and best use as improved is assumed to be the current use unless evidence shows otherwise. The property appraiser's office considers highest and best use by identifying and recording land size, zoning, building size, location and other characteristics. Once all coding is in place, comparable sales and rentals that have similar characteristics are used to value the property. The highest and best use of this property is for single-family residential use. This determination is undisputed by the petitioner and appears to have been appropriately considered by the property appraiser.

(3) Location of the property – The property appraiser assigns a neighborhood code to every property in the county. Sales of properties in the same or similar neighborhoods are typically used to determine locational adjustments. Often, site-specific location adjustments are made to reflect either an enhanced location (such as a waterfront site or in a golf course community) or an inferior location (such as adjacent to an industrial use or dumpsite). All of the comparable properties presented in support of value are located in the same neighborhood as the subject. The location of the property appears to have been appropriately considered in the determination of just value.

(4) Quantity or size of the property – The property appraiser must consider the quantity or size of the property by determining and recording the correct land size, building size, and extra features sizes and quantities. Land size is based on legal descriptions from recorded plats or metes and bounds. Building sizes and extra features are determined by inspection and measured by deputy property appraisers. From the evidence presented there do not appear to be any notable discrepancies in size or quantity beyond what is previously been discussed. There does not appear to be any discrepancy in heated building area between the parties; however, as discussed, making comparisons based on adjusted building areas after deducting extra features is inconsistent with market standards.

(5) The cost of the property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon - No separate analysis of cost has been presented during the hearing. The property appraiser indicates that typical residential homebuyers do not rely on development costs when valuing residential property. Cost calculations found on the property record card appear to be supportive of just value.

(6) Condition of the property – The property appraiser considers the condition of properties through periodic property inspections, no less than once every five years as required by Statute. Other events can trigger more frequent site inspections, including the sale of a property, issuance of a building permit, assessment appeal, or at the taxpayer's request. Condition is considered as a factor applied to the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System value calculation for value losses from all sources based upon an age/life depreciation method. Photographs of the subject property have been presented as evidence of condition. The property appraiser confirmed that a personal exterior inspection of this property has been made for the purpose of determining extra features and the condition of the property. It appears that the property appraiser has

appropriately considered this condition.

(7) The income from the property - Residential properties are typically valued for ad valorem tax purposes using the sales comparison approach, as provided for under Section 193.011, Florida Statutes. Comparable sales are relied upon due to the limited availability of market data on residential rental income, operating expenses, and capitalization rates for properties similar to the subject. In the residential market, buyers and sellers generally do not consider income-generating potential when evaluating a property for purchase. The special magistrate finds that the property appraiser has given adequate consideration to this criterion in the analysis of the property.

(8) Cost of Sale Adjustment - This criterion deals with the net proceeds from the sale of a property as received by the seller after deduction of all of the usual and reasonable fees and costs and expenses of financing and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms of financing arrangements. A few examples of the applicability of this criterion include: • unconventional or atypical financing arrangements, such as seller financing at favorable terms, which inflated the price, relative to what would have been achieved with a cash or case-equivalent arrangement, • the inclusion of tangible personal property, which may serve to increase the price above pure real property consideration, • atypically motivated buyers, who may pay a premium relative to that paid by the general market, • atypical closing costs arrangements, such as a seller paying the buyer's closing costs in exchange for a higher sales price. Because these situations may not be discoverable by the mass appraiser relying on raw gross price data, a deduction from the raw gross price is made with the goal being to arrive at 100% of the market value of the real property by eliminating any possible impact of non-real property consideration. This mass appraisal method is found to be acceptable by the Florida Department of Revenue and the Florida Courts. Applicable law provides for uniform cost of sale deductions in just valuations without regard to whether (1) the subject property was sold, (2) mass appraisal or single property appraisal is used, (3) the appraisal approach used to value the property, (4) the petitioner is seeking an increase or decrease in just value, (5) appraised development or VAB review is involved. There is no legal authority for variation in the application of cost of sale deductions based on any of the preceding conditions. The professionally accepted appraisal practice is for Florida property appraisers to uniformly make cost of sale deductions of for all property within use code groups and then report these deductions on Form DR-493 to the Department of Revenue while, understandably, avoiding the impractical task of supporting these deductions in the absence of sufficiently reliable market data that demonstrates the typical, prevalent, and representative cost of sale deductions for each class of real property. In support of consideration of this criterion, the property appraiser has presented an analysis of the ratio between the aggregate sale price paid for all comparable properties compared with their aggregate just value assessments resulting in an average cost of sale adjustment of 17%. While this calculation may demonstrate a general relationship between assessed values and sale prices within the sample, it does not establish adequate support specific to the subject property for this assessment review.

It is implicit in mass appraisal that, even when properly specified and calibrated models are employed, some individual value conclusions may not meet standards of reasonableness, consistency, and accuracy. The purpose of this value review is to determine whether the just value reported on the current tax roll represents the just value of the property after consideration of the criteria set forth in Florida Statute §193.011 and generally accepted appraisal principles, including those applicable to mass appraisal. In reviewing the evidence presented by the property appraiser at this hearing, the special magistrate finds that the property appraiser did not appropriately consider the factors set forth in Florida Statute §193.011, specifically (1), (4) and (8); and therefore, the presumption of correctness has not been established.

By filing this petition, the petitioner alleges that the property appraiser has assessed the property in excess of just value. According to 12D-9.025(3)(a) of the Florida Administrative Code, the petitioner is responsible for presenting relevant and credible evidence in support of his or her belief that the property appraiser's determination is incorrect. To prevail in an assessment challenge, the taxpayer must prove more than a mere difference of opinion regarding an assessment. The following paragraphs describe how the petitioner has addressed each of the eight criteria of the Statute.

(1) Present cash value of the property - In support of a revision to just value, the petitioner has presented the following sales:

PET Sale 1: 12234 Villa Rd reflects a building size of 1,730 square feet with a 2003 year built, on a 10,000 square foot site with no pool. The sale date is April 2025. The sale occurred beyond a reasonable period past January 1 to be relevant for the 2025 valuation. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $129,795, or $75.03 per square foot. The property appraiser stated that this sale is a disqualified liquidation sale.

PET Sale 2: 12229 Legend St reflects a building size of 1,538 square feet with a 2005 year built, on a 10,000 square foot site with no pool. The sale date is July 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $275,750, or $175.29 per square foot. This adjusted sale price does not support a reduction in assessment.

PET Sale 3: 4195 Courts Ct reflects a building size of 1,438 square feet with a 2001 year built, on a 10,000 square foot site with no pool. The sale date is March 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $307,500, or $213.84 per square foot. This adjusted sale price does not support a reduction in assessment.

PET Sale 4: 4351 Castle Ave reflects a building size of 1,618 square feet with a 1991 year built, on a 14,076 square foot site with no pool. The sale date is January 2025. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $246,725, or $152.49 per square foot.

The final adjusted sale prices range from $129,795 to $307,500, with a mean of $239,943. PET Sale 2 3, and 4 have Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price per square foot greater than the PSF Just Value. The petitioner compares these sales based on total price. The petitioner has presented sales that are claimed to be more similar to the subject than the sales relied upon by the property appraiser. Price adjustments were made to account for differences between the sales and the subject property including a 15% adjustment for cost of sale. The petitioner has presented no rebuttal as to the property appraiser's appraisal methods or chosen sales and has not identified a specific methodological error, factual inaccuracy, or inconsistency in the property appraiser's analysis. The petitioner's analysis is based on unsupported adjustments, many of which are calculated using the assessed values of the sales. The petitioner has not visited the subject or any of the sales and has not appropriately compared condition. The property appraiser's just value is within the range of adjusted sale prices presented by the petitioner and the per-square-foot just value is supported by one or more of the petitioner's adjusted per-square foot sale prices. The petitioner has included a liquidation outlier sale in their mean value request.

(2) Highest and Best Use - The petitioner does not dispute that the highest and best use of the subject property is single-family residential.

(3) Location of the property - The petitioner appears familiar with the location characteristics of the subject property and has not claimed the presence of any atypical or adverse location factors that would materially affect its use or value.

(4) Quantity or size of the property - The petitioner does not dispute the size or quantity of the land or improvements reported by the property appraiser during the hearing, nor was any allegation made that these factors were miscalculated or improperly considered in the valuation.

(5) The cost of the property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon - The petitioner has presented no analysis of land value or depreciated building costs. Cost is rarely used to value this market sector.

(6) Condition - The petitioner has not presented any credible evidence or asserted that the condition of the property differs from the description provided by the property appraiser during the hearing. Furthermore, no claim was made regarding any significant physical deficiencies that would affect the property's use or value.

(7) The income from the property - The petitioner has presented no analysis of income and expense at this hearing, however, as mentioned, this method is also rarely used to value residential properties for ad valorem tax purposes.

(8) Cost of Sale Adjustment - The petitioner has made specific deductions for cost of sale based on the DR-493 form submitted by the property appraiser to the Florida Department of Revenue in consideration of this criterion.

The petitioner has not specifically challenged the market evidence or the analysis conducted by the property appraiser in support of the just value of the subject property. Merely presenting an alternative analysis is not sufficient to warrant a change in assessment. Pursuant to Florida Statute §194.301(1) it is the petitioner's responsibility to demonstrate that the property appraiser's evidence and/or analysis are incorrect, and that the determined value does not represent the just value of the property by a preponderance of the evidence.

After careful consideration of all evidence presented at the hearing, the special magistrate finds that the property appraiser has not established the presumption of correctness. However, the hearing record does contain competent, substantial evidence of just value that complies with the eight criteria set forth in Florida Statute §193.011 and generally accepted appraisal principles. The unadjusted sale prices for the sales contained in the hearing record range from $238,500 to $369,000, excluding the liquidation sale outlier. These sales were identified by both the property appraiser and the petitioner as the most comparable to the subject property. However, because the petitioner's adjustments are not supported by market evidence, they are afforded little weight. Applying a fifteen percent cost-of-sale adjustment results in an indicated value range of $202,725 to $313,650. Because the subject's just value does not exceed this adjusted range, the evidence in the hearing record indicates that the assessment is not overstated. Accordingly, the special magistrate recommends no change in the just value established by the property appraiser.

Conclusions of Law

Pursuant to §194.301(1), Florida Statutes, in any administrative action in which a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment of value, the property appraiser's assessment is presumed correct if the property appraiser proves by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment was arrived at in compliance with §193.011, Florida Statutes, and professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The applicable standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence. Based upon the evidence presented and admitted at the hearing, the special magistrate concludes that the property appraiser did not establish the presumption of correctness. The evidence relied upon by the property appraiser did not sufficiently demonstrate that all applicable statutory criteria were properly considered in a manner consistent with generally accepted appraisal practices for an individual assessment review. Pursuant to §194.301(2)(b), Florida Statutes, when the presumption of correctness is not established, the value adjustment board or special magistrate is required to determine the assessment if there is competent, substantial evidence of just value in the hearing record which cumulatively satisfies the criteria set forth in §193.011, Florida Statutes, and professionally accepted appraisal practices. The special magistrate is not required to adopt the specific value advocated by either party and may establish or affirm a value supported by the competent, substantial evidence in the record. The special magistrate concludes that the hearing record contains competent, substantial evidence of just value. The market evidence presented and admitted at the hearing, when considered in its entirety and in light of the statutory valuation criteria, supports the conclusion that the just value determined by the property appraiser is supported by the evidence and is not shown to be excessive, insufficient, or otherwise incorrect by a preponderance of the evidence. Accordingly, pursuant to §194.301, Florida Statutes, and the applicable provisions of Rule Chapter 12D-9, Florida Administrative Code, the special magistrate recommends that the value adjustment board take no action to change the just value determined by the property appraiser.

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

Hernando County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff.11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☒ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition #	25-310	Parcel ID	R32 323 17 5182 1833 0310
Petitioner name The petitioner is: ☐ taxpayer of record ☒ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	RYAN, INC.	Property address	5342 WOODRIDGE LANE SPRING HILL, FLORIDA

Decision Summary ☐ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☒ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just Value, required	$327,976	$327,976	$320,875
2. Assessed or classified use value, * if applicable	$327,976	$327,976	$320,875
3. Exempt value, * enter "0" if none	$0	$0	$0
4. Taxable value, * required	$327,976	$327,976	$320,875

*All values entered should be county taxable values, School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision

Findings of Fact

DUE TO SPACE LIMITATIONS, FINDINGS OF FACT ARE SET FORTH IN THE ATTACHED ADDENDA, WHICH IS MADE PART OF THIS RECOMMENDATION REPORT.

Conclusions of Law

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW ARE PROVIDED IN THE ATTACHED ADDENDA, INCORPORATED HEREIN BY REFERENCE.

☒ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	ROBERT C. HICKS Print Name	FEB 6, 2026 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____.
Address: Hernando County Gov't Center BOCC Chambers, Room 160, 20 North Main Street, Brooksville, Florida 34601.
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered.
To find the information, please call (352) 754-4970, or visit our website at vab@hernandoclerk.org.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print Name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date mailed to parties

Addenda

Findings Of Fact

Petitioner Natasha Elliott with Ryan, Inc. appeared telephonically on behalf of PROGRESS RESIDENTIAL BORROWER 16 LLC on January 27, 2026 to provide testimonial and documentary evidence pertaining to the 2025 property assessment for real property located in Hernando County, Florida. The Hernando County Property Appraiser's Office was represented at the hearing by Deputy Appraisers Doug Mack, CFE, Residential Supervisor and Brandon Jimenez, CFE. An opening statement regarding the hearing process and rules of procedure was read and all parties were placed under oath. This petition is one of 22 presented by the petitioner on this hearing date. The specific case numbers are 25-297 through 25-318, inclusive. Any relevant testimony presented during these individual hearings will be incorporated by reference to all hearings to avoid redundancy and expedite the hearing process.

The subject of this petition is listed on the Hernando County tax roll as Parcel ID R32 323 17 5182 1833 0310. This property is described as a single-family residence with a two-car garage and no pool. The subject property is located at 5342 Woodridge Lane, Spring Hill, Hernando County, Florida. The property consists of 2,472 square feet of adjusted building area with 2,222 square feet of heated living area on a 11,458-square-foot residential lot. The improvements were constructed in 2005. Based on an inspection of the property on September 24, 2025, the property appraiser has determined that the building improvements are of typical construction quality and in average condition. It appears that the subject of this petition has not sold within the 12-month period preceding the January 1 valuation date.

The property appraiser has confirmed the 2025 just value at $327,976, with an assessed value of $327,976 and a taxable value of $327,976. There have been no changes to the values since the Notice of Proposed Property Taxes (TRIM) was issued. The petitioner is requesting a revision to the 2025 just value, proposing a revision in just value to $316,431. This request is supported by sales comparison.

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence, see Florida Administrative Code 12D-9.025(1). Generally, relevant evidence is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. The evidence meets or exceeds a minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. Documentary evidence presented by the property appraiser during the hearing is described and labeled as follows:

- PAO-A (16 pages) - Cover page, case synopsis, subject property record card with building sketch and photograph, sales analysis grid, comparable location map, analysis of sales data, property record card for each sale, list of structure area adjustments

Documentary evidence presented by the petitioner during the hearing is described and labeled as follows:

- PET-1 (9 pages) - Petition, cover page, summary of evidence, sales adjustment grid, adjustment formulas, aerial photograph of subject, street map, location map showing subject and sales

The property appraiser has not raised any objections to the evidence presented by the petitioner during the hearing.

The Florida Legislature has enacted eight criteria that the property appraiser must consider when determining just value. In any administrative or judicial action where a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment, the property appraiser's estimate of just value is presumed correct if it is proven that the assessment was made in compliance with the eight criteria outlined in Section 193.011, Florida Statutes and in accordance with professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The only standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence, meaning the greater weight of evidence, or "more likely than not."

Florida courts have consistently held that the property appraiser is only required to consider the eight criteria, and that applying each factor is not mandatory. The courts have further found that if any one criterion does not reflect just value, it should be disregarded by the property appraiser. The special magistrate finds and summarizes the extent to which the property appraiser has considered each of these criteria in the following paragraphs.

(1) Present cash value of the property - The amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arms-length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In short, the price without transaction costs. The buyer typically pays more, and the seller typically receives less than the price indicated by the documentary stamps due to these transaction costs. In mass appraising, the property appraiser considers this criterion by applying or considering the comparable market sales using the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through comparable sales analysis similar to that found in a fee appraisal. The amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arms-length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In short, the price without transaction costs. The buyer typically pays more, and the seller typically receives less than the price indicated by the documentary stamps due to these transaction costs. In mass appraising, the property appraiser considers this criterion by applying or considering the comparable market sales using the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through

comparable sales analysis similar to that found in a fee appraisal. The property appraiser has presented sales evidence in support of the present cash value. Following are brief descriptions of the sales determined by the property appraiser to be most comparable to the subject and representative of value sourced by property record cards:

PA Sale 1 is located at 3219 Landover Boulevard and contains 1,871 square feet of heated building area. The residence was constructed in 2004. The property sold in December 2024 for a sale price of $334,100.

PA Sale 2 is located at 5089 Tanner Road and contains 1,891 square feet of heated building area. The residence was constructed in 2017. The property sold in October 2024 for a sale price of $377,500.

PA Sale 3 is located at 5236 Harbinger Road and contains 1,918 square feet of heated building area. The residence was constructed in 1987. The property sold in October 2024 for a sale price of $346,500.

In considering these sales, the property appraiser has compared them based on per adjusted square foot price. Three qualified sales judged to be most comparable to the subject have been presented in support of value. The sales were selected based on similar location, age, size and utility. The property appraiser's approach relies on feature value deductions and weighted "adjusted building area" calculations rather than paired-sales analysis or market-derived adjustments. Florida appraisal standards and case law (e.g., Valencia Center, Inc. v. Bystrom, 543 So. 2d 214 [Fla. 1989]) require that just value determinations be supported by market evidence showing how specific features or characteristics influence sale prices. Deducting fixed feature values from sale prices without verifying their market validity substitutes internal modeling for actual market behavior. While this may be useful for mass appraisal purposes, it does not provide the level of market support required in an individual value review before the Value Adjustment Board. A credible defense of just value in a hearing must demonstrate how specific comparable sales support the subject's assessed value through observable market adjustments. Reliance on internal modeling, without direct evidence of how the market reacts to property differences, fails to establish that the property appraiser's value represents the amount a willing buyer and seller would agree upon under normal conditions. Secondly, the "adjusted building area" metric has no direct market analogue. Buyers and appraisers typically compare residential properties based on heated living area (gross living area per ANSI or Fannie Mae standards). Introducing a proprietary or synthetic size measure distorts the relationship between price and size, undermining the comparability of sales. This means the model may show internal consistency but not external validity in the open market. It is the opinion of the special magistrate that this sales analysis does not follow with generally accepted appraisal practices.

(2) Highest & Best Use – This relates to the consideration of the fundamental appraisal concept of highest and best use or best use to which the property can be expected to be put in the immediate future. For improved properties, the highest and best use of the property as if vacant should be considered as well. The four steps establishing highest and best use are consideration of what is physically possible, legally permissible, financially feasible, and maximally productive. The highest and best use as vacant is identified through land use codes which, in part, are based on zoning. The highest and best use as improved is assumed to be the current use unless evidence shows otherwise. The property appraiser's office considers highest and best use by identifying and recording land size, zoning, building size, location and other characteristics. Once all coding is in place, comparable sales and rentals that have similar characteristics are used to value the property. The highest and best use of this property is for single-family residential use. This determination is undisputed by the petitioner and appears to have been appropriately considered by the property appraiser.

(3) Location of the property – The property appraiser assigns a neighborhood code to every property in the county. Sales of properties in the same or similar neighborhoods are typically used to determine locational adjustments. Often, site-specific location adjustments are made to reflect either an enhanced location (such as a waterfront site or in a golf course community) or an inferior location (such as adjacent to an industrial use or dumpsite). All of the comparable properties presented in support of value are located in the same neighborhood as the subject. The location of the property appears to have been appropriately considered in the determination of just value.

(4) Quantity or size of the property – The property appraiser must consider the quantity or size of the property by determining and recording the correct land size, building size, and extra features sizes and quantities. Land size is based on legal descriptions from recorded plats or metes and bounds. Building sizes and extra features are determined by inspection and measured by deputy property appraisers. From the evidence presented there do not appear to be any notable discrepancies in size or quantity beyond what is previously been discussed. There does not appear to be any discrepancy in heated building area between the parties; however, as discussed, making comparisons based on adjusted building areas after deducting extra features is inconsistent with market standards.

(5) The cost of the property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon - No separate analysis of cost has been presented during the hearing. The property appraiser indicates that typical residential homebuyers do not rely on development costs when valuing residential property. Cost calculations found on the property record card appear to be supportive of just value.

(6) Condition of the property – The property appraiser considers the condition of properties through periodic property inspections, no less than once every five years as required by Statute. Other events can trigger more frequent site inspections, including the sale of a property, issuance of a building permit, assessment appeal, or at the taxpayer's request. Condition is considered as a factor applied to the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System value calculation for value losses from all sources based upon an age/life depreciation method. Photographs of the subject property have been presented as evidence of condition. The property appraiser confirmed that a personal exterior inspection of this property has been made for the purpose of determining extra features and the condition of the property. It appears that the property appraiser has

appropriately considered this condition.

(7) The income from the property - Residential properties are typically valued for ad valorem tax purposes using the sales comparison approach, as provided for under Section 193.011, Florida Statutes. Comparable sales are relied upon due to the limited availability of market data on residential rental income, operating expenses, and capitalization rates for properties similar to the subject. In the residential market, buyers and sellers generally do not consider income-generating potential when evaluating a property for purchase. The special magistrate finds that the property appraiser has given adequate consideration to this criterion in the analysis of the property.

(8) Cost of Sale Adjustment - This criterion deals with the net proceeds from the sale of a property as received by the seller after deduction of all of the usual and reasonable fees and costs and expenses of financing and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms of financing arrangements. A few examples of the applicability of this criterion include: • unconventional or atypical financing arrangements, such as seller financing at favorable terms, which inflated the price, relative to what would have been achieved with a cash or case-equivalent arrangement, • the inclusion of tangible personal property, which may serve to increase the price above pure real property consideration, • atypically motivated buyers, who may pay a premium relative to that paid by the general market, • atypical closing costs arrangements, such as a seller paying the buyer's closing costs in exchange for a higher sales price. Because these situations may not be discoverable by the mass appraiser relying on raw gross price data, a deduction from the raw gross price is made with the goal being to arrive at 100% of the market value of the real property by eliminating any possible impact of non-real property consideration. This mass appraisal method is found to be acceptable by the Florida Department of Revenue and the Florida Courts. Applicable law provides for uniform cost of sale deductions in just valuations without regard to whether (1) the subject property was sold, (2) mass appraisal or single property appraisal is used, (3) the appraisal approach used to value the property, (4) the petitioner is seeking an increase or decrease in just value, (5) appraised development or VAB review is involved. There is no legal authority for variation in the application of cost of sale deductions based on any of the preceding conditions. The professionally accepted appraisal practice is for Florida property appraisers to uniformly make cost of sale deductions of for all property within use code groups and then report these deductions on Form DR-493 to the Department of Revenue while, understandably, avoiding the impractical task of supporting these deductions in the absence of sufficiently reliable market data that demonstrates the typical, prevalent, and representative cost of sale deductions for each class of real property. In support of consideration of this criterion, the property appraiser has presented an analysis of the ratio between the aggregate sale price paid for all comparable properties compared with their aggregate just value assessments resulting in an average cost of sale adjustment of 25%. While this calculation may demonstrate a general relationship between assessed values and sale prices within the sample, it does not establish adequate support specific to the subject property for this assessment review.

It is implicit in mass appraisal that, even when properly specified and calibrated models are employed, some individual value conclusions may not meet standards of reasonableness, consistency, and accuracy. The purpose of this value review is to determine whether the just value reported on the current tax roll represents the just value of the property after consideration of the criteria set forth in Florida Statute §193.011 and generally accepted appraisal principles, including those applicable to mass appraisal. In reviewing the evidence presented by the property appraiser at this hearing, the special magistrate finds that the property appraiser did not appropriately consider the factors set forth in Florida Statute §193.011, specifically (1), (4) and (8); and therefore, the presumption of correctness has not been established.

By filing this petition, the petitioner alleges that the property appraiser has assessed the property in excess of just value. According to 12D-9.025(3)(a) of the Florida Administrative Code, the petitioner is responsible for presenting relevant and credible evidence in support of his or her belief that the property appraiser's determination is incorrect. To prevail in an assessment challenge, the taxpayer must prove more than a mere difference of opinion regarding an assessment. The following paragraphs describe how the petitioner has addressed each of the eight criteria of the Statute.

(1) Present cash value of the property - In support of a revision to just value, the petitioner has presented the following sales:

PET Sale 1 is located at 13008 Killian Street with a building size of 2,047 square feet, constructed in 2003, situated on a land area of 8,000 square feet. The property does not have a pool. The sale occurred in July 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $302,650, which equates to $147.85 per square foot.

PET Sale 2 is located at 5089 Tanner Road with a building size of 1,891 square feet, constructed in 2017, situated on a land area of 8,560 square feet. The property does not have a pool. The sale occurred in October 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $362,875, which equates to $191.90 per square foot. This adjusted sale price does not support a reduction in assessment.

PET Sale 3 is located at 12315 Corrine Avenue with a building size of 1,788 square feet, constructed in 2004, situated on a land area of 9,366 square feet. The property does not have a pool. The sale occurred in February 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $301,800, which equates to $168.79 per square foot.

PET Sale 4 is located at 12374 Corrine Avenue with a building size of 1,849 square feet, constructed in 2005, situated on a land area of 9,194 square feet. The property does not have a pool. The sale occurred in July 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $298,400, which equates to $161.38 per square foot.

The final adjusted sale prices range from $298,400 to $362,875, with a mean adjusted sale price of approximately $316,431. All four sales have Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price per square foot values that exceed the per square foot just value. The petitioner compares these sales based on total price. The petitioner has presented sales that are claimed to be more similar to the subject than the sales relied upon by the property appraiser. Price adjustments were made to account for differences between the sales and the subject property including a 15% adjustment for cost of sale. The petitioner has presented no rebuttal as to the property appraiser's appraisal methods or chosen sales and has not identified a specific methodological error, factual inaccuracy, or inconsistency in the property appraiser's analysis. The petitioner's analysis is based on unsupported adjustments, many of which are calculated using the assessed values of the sales. The petitioner has not visited the subject or any of the sales and has not appropriately compared condition. The property appraiser's just value falls within the range of adjusted sale prices presented by the petitioner and the per-square-foot just value is supported by all of the petitioner's adjusted per-square foot sale prices.

(2) Highest and Best Use - The petitioner does not dispute that the highest and best use of the subject property is single-family residential.

(3) Location of the property - The petitioner appears familiar with the location characteristics of the subject property and has not claimed the presence of any atypical or adverse location factors that would materially affect its use or value.

(4) Quantity or size of the property - The petitioner does not dispute the size or quantity of the land or improvements reported by the property appraiser during the hearing, nor was any allegation made that these factors were miscalculated or improperly considered in the valuation.

(5) The cost of the property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon - The petitioner has presented no analysis of land value or depreciated building costs. Cost is rarely used to value this market sector.

(6) Condition - The petitioner has not presented any credible evidence or asserted that the condition of the property differs from the description provided by the property appraiser during the hearing. Furthermore, no claim was made regarding any significant physical deficiencies that would affect the property's use or value.

(7) The income from the property - The petitioner has presented no analysis of income and expense at this hearing, however, as mentioned, this method is also rarely used to value residential properties for ad valorem tax purposes.

(8) Cost of Sale Adjustment - The petitioner has made specific deductions for cost of sale based on the DR-493 form submitted by the property appraiser to the Florida Department of Revenue in consideration of this criterion.

The petitioner has not specifically challenged the market evidence or the analysis conducted by the property appraiser in support of the just value of the subject property. Merely presenting an alternative analysis is not sufficient to warrant a change in assessment. Pursuant to Florida Statute §194.301(1) it is the petitioner's responsibility to demonstrate that the property appraiser's evidence and/or analysis are incorrect, and that the determined value does not represent the just value of the property by a preponderance of the evidence.

After careful consideration of all evidence presented at the hearing, the special magistrate finds that the property appraiser has not established the presumption of correctness. However, the hearing record does contain competent, substantial evidence of just value that complies with the eight criteria set forth in Florida Statute §193.011 and generally accepted appraisal principles. The unadjusted sale prices for the sales contained in the hearing record range from $284,000 to $377,500. These sales were identified by both the property appraiser and the petitioner as the most comparable to the subject property. However, because the petitioner's adjustments are not supported by market evidence, they are afforded little weight. Applying a fifteen percent cost-of-sale adjustment results in an indicated value range of $241,400 to $320,875. Because the subject's just value exceeds this adjusted range, the evidence in the hearing record indicates that the assessment is overstated. Accordingly, the special magistrate recommends that the just value be revised to $320,875.

Conclusions of Law

Pursuant to §194.301(1), Florida Statutes, in an administrative action in which a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment, the property appraiser's assessment is presumed correct if the property appraiser proves by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment was arrived at in compliance with §193.011, Florida Statutes, and professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The burden of proof rests initially with the property appraiser to establish this presumption of correctness. Based upon the competent, substantial evidence presented at the hearing, the special magistrate concludes that the property appraiser did not establish the presumption of correctness. Specifically, the sales analysis relied upon by the property appraiser did not demonstrate compliance with generally accepted appraisal practices as applied in an individual assessment review, particularly with respect to the consideration of present cash value, the comparison of property size using market-recognized metrics, and the application of cost-of-sale considerations under §193.011(1), (4), and (8), Florida Statutes. Pursuant to §194.301(2), Florida Statutes, when the presumption of correctness is not established, the value adjustment board or special magistrate is required to determine the assessment if there is competent, substantial evidence of just value in the record that cumulatively meets the criteria of §193.011, Florida Statutes, and professionally accepted appraisal practices. If such evidence exists, the special magistrate is authorized to establish a revised just value based upon that evidence and is not restricted to the specific value advocated by either party. The special magistrate concludes that the hearing record does contain competent, substantial evidence of just value. The evidence presented demonstrates a supported range of market values derived from comparable sales, adjusted for reasonable and customary costs of sale, consistent with §193.011(8), Florida Statutes, and professionally accepted appraisal principles. This evidence establishes that the subject property's assessed just value exceeds the indicated market-supported range and therefore does not represent just value as of January 1, 2025. Accordingly, pursuant to §194.301(2)(b), Florida Statutes, and Rule 12D-9.027, Florida Administrative Code, the special magistrate concludes that the assessment should be revised. Based upon the weight of the evidence, the special magistrate recommends that the 2025 just value of the subject property be revised to $320,875, which is supported by the competent, substantial evidence in the hearing record and complies with the statutory requirements governing just valuation.

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

Hernando County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff.11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☒ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition #	25-311	Parcel ID	R32 323 17 5182 1837 0170
Petitioner name The petitioner is: ☐ taxpayer of record ☒ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	RYAN, INC.	Property address	5238 WOODRIDGE LANE SPRING HILL, FLORIDA

Decision Summary ☒ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just Value, required	$251,084	$251,084	$251,084
2. Assessed or classified use value, * if applicable	$235,236	$235,236	$235,236
3. Exempt value, * enter "0" if none	$0	$0	$0
4. Taxable value, * required	$235,236	$235,236	$235,236

*All values entered should be county taxable values, School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision

Findings of Fact

DUE TO SPACE LIMITATIONS, FINDINGS OF FACT ARE SET FORTH IN THE ATTACHED ADDENDA, WHICH IS MADE PART OF THIS RECOMMENDATION REPORT.

Conclusions of Law

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW ARE PROVIDED IN THE ATTACHED ADDENDA, INCORPORATED HEREIN BY REFERENCE.

☒ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	ROBERT C. HICKS Print Name	FEB 6, 2026 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____.
Address: Hernando County Gov't Center BOCC Chambers, Room 160, 20 North Main Street, Brooksville, Florida 34601.
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered.
To find the information, please call (352) 754-4970, or visit our website at vab@hernandoclerk.org.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print Name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date mailed to parties

Addenda

Findings Of Fact

Petitioner Natasha Elliott with Ryan, Inc. appeared telephonically on behalf of PROGRESS RESIDENTIAL BORROWER 7 LLC on January 27, 2026 to provide testimonial and documentary evidence pertaining to the 2025 property assessment for real property located in Hernando County, Florida. The Hernando County Property Appraiser's Office was represented at the hearing by Deputy Appraisers Doug Mack, CFE, Residential Supervisor and Brandon Jimenez, CFE. An opening statement regarding the hearing process and rules of procedure was read and all parties were placed under oath. This petition is one of 22 presented by the petitioner on this hearing date. The specific case numbers are 25-297 through 25-318, inclusive. Any relevant testimony presented during these individual hearings will be incorporated by reference to all hearings to avoid redundancy and expedite the hearing process.

The subject of this petition is listed on the Hernando County tax roll as Parcel ID R32 323 17 5182 1837 0170. This property is described as a single-family residence with a two-car garage and no pool. The subject property is located at 5238 Woodridge Lane, Spring Hill, Hernando County, Florida. The property consists of 2,133 square feet of adjusted building area with 1,913 square feet of heated building area on an 8,295-square-foot residential lot. The improvements were constructed in 2005. Based on an inspection of the property on September 24, 2025, the property appraiser has determined that the building improvements are of typical construction quality and in average condition. It appears that the subject of this petition has not sold within the 12-month period preceding the January 1 valuation date.

The property appraiser has confirmed the 2025 just value at $251,084, with an assessed value of $235,236 and a taxable value of $235,236. There have been no changes to the values since the Notice of Proposed Property Taxes (TRIM) was issued. The petitioner is requesting a revision to the 2025 just value, proposing a revision in just value to $244,306. This request is supported by sales comparison.

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence, see Florida Administrative Code 12D-9.025(1). Generally, relevant evidence is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. The evidence meets or exceeds a minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. Documentary evidence presented by the property appraiser during the hearing is described and labeled as follows:

- PAO-A (16 pages) - Cover page, case synopsis, subject property record card with building sketch and photograph, sales analysis grid, comparable location map, analysis of sales data, property record card for each sale, list of structure area adjustments

Documentary evidence presented by the petitioner during the hearing is described and labeled as follows:

- PET-1 (9 pages) - Petition, cover page, summary of evidence, sales adjustment grid, adjustment formulas, aerial photograph of subject, street map, location map showing subject and sales

The property appraiser has not raised any objections to the evidence presented by the petitioner during the hearing.

The Florida Legislature has enacted eight criteria that the property appraiser must consider when determining just value. In any administrative or judicial action where a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment, the property appraiser's estimate of just value is presumed correct if it is proven that the assessment was made in compliance with the eight criteria outlined in Section 193.011, Florida Statutes and in accordance with professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The only standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence, meaning the greater weight of evidence, or "more likely than not."

Florida courts have consistently held that the property appraiser is only required to consider the eight criteria, and that applying each factor is not mandatory. The courts have further found that if any one criterion does not reflect just value, it should be disregarded by the property appraiser. The special magistrate finds and summarizes the extent to which the property appraiser has considered each of these criteria in the following paragraphs.

(1) Present cash value of the property - The amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arms-length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In short, the price without transaction costs. The buyer typically pays more, and the seller typically receives less than the price indicated by the documentary stamps due to these transaction costs. In mass appraising, the property appraiser considers this criterion by applying or considering the comparable market sales using the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through comparable sales analysis similar to that found in a fee appraisal. The amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arms-length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In short, the price without transaction costs. The buyer typically pays more, and the seller typically receives less than the price indicated by the documentary stamps due to these transaction costs. In mass appraising, the property appraiser considers this criterion by applying or considering the comparable market sales using the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through

comparable sales analysis similar to that found in a fee appraisal. The property appraiser has presented sales evidence in support of the present cash value. Following are brief descriptions of the sales determined by the property appraiser to be most comparable to the subject and representative of value sourced by property record cards:

PA Sale 1: 12374 Corrine Ave reflects a heated building area of 1,849 square feet with a 2005 year built. The sale date is January 2024. The sale price is $284,000.

PA Sale 2: 5455 Abagail Dr reflects a heated building area of 1,896 square feet with a 2006 year built. The sale date is March 2024. The sale price is $320,000.

PA Sale 3: This sale involves a confidential property with no disclosure of location, maps, or photographs. Due to the absence of identifying information, the sale cannot be verified or meaningfully analyzed and is not considered reliable market evidence for purposes of a tax appeal hearing.

In considering these sales, the property appraiser has compared them based on per adjusted square foot price. Three qualified sales judged to be most comparable to the subject have been presented in support of value. The sales were selected based on similar location, age, size and utility. The property appraiser's approach relies on feature value deductions and weighted "adjusted building area" calculations rather than paired-sales analysis or market-derived adjustments. Florida appraisal standards and case law (e.g., Valencia Center, Inc. v. Bystrom, 543 So. 2d 214 [Fla. 1989]) require that just value determinations be supported by market evidence showing how specific features or characteristics influence sale prices. Deducting fixed feature values from sale prices without verifying their market validity substitutes internal modeling for actual market behavior. While this may be useful for mass appraisal purposes, it does not provide the level of market support required in an individual value review before the Value Adjustment Board. A credible defense of just value in a hearing must demonstrate how specific comparable sales support the subject's assessed value through observable market adjustments. Reliance on internal modeling, without direct evidence of how the market reacts to property differences, fails to establish that the property appraiser's value represents the amount a willing buyer and seller would agree upon under normal conditions. Secondly, the "adjusted building area" metric has no direct market analogue. Buyers and appraisers typically compare residential properties based on heated living area (gross living area per ANSI or Fannie Mae standards). Introducing a proprietary or synthetic size measure distorts the relationship between price and size, undermining the comparability of sales. This means the model may show internal consistency but not external validity in the open market. It is the opinion of the special magistrate that this sales analysis does not follow with generally accepted appraisal practices.

(2) Highest & Best Use – This relates to the consideration of the fundamental appraisal concept of highest and best use or best use to which the property can be expected to be put in the immediate future. For improved properties, the highest and best use of the property as if vacant should be considered as well. The four steps establishing highest and best use are consideration of what is physically possible, legally permissible, financially feasible, and maximally productive. The highest and best use as vacant is identified through land use codes which, in part, are based on zoning. The highest and best use as improved is assumed to be the current use unless evidence shows otherwise. The property appraiser's office considers highest and best use by identifying and recording land size, zoning, building size, location and other characteristics. Once all coding is in place, comparable sales and rentals that have similar characteristics are used to value the property. The highest and best use of this property is for single-family residential use. This determination is undisputed by the petitioner and appears to have been appropriately considered by the property appraiser.

(3) Location of the property – The property appraiser assigns a neighborhood code to every property in the county. Sales of properties in the same or similar neighborhoods are typically used to determine locational adjustments. Often, site-specific location adjustments are made to reflect either an enhanced location (such as a waterfront site or in a golf course community) or an inferior location (such as adjacent to an industrial use or dumpsite). All of the comparable properties presented in support of value are located in the same neighborhood as the subject. The location of the property appears to have been appropriately considered in the determination of just value.

(4) Quantity or size of the property – The property appraiser must consider the quantity or size of the property by determining and recording the correct land size, building size, and extra features sizes and quantities. Land size is based on legal descriptions from recorded plats or metes and bounds. Building sizes and extra features are determined by inspection and measured by deputy property appraisers. From the evidence presented there do not appear to be any notable discrepancies in size or quantity beyond what is previously been discussed. There does not appear to be any discrepancy in heated building area between the parties; however, as discussed, making comparisons based on adjusted building areas after deducting extra features is inconsistent with market standards.

(5) The cost of the property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon - No separate analysis of cost has been presented during the hearing. The property appraiser indicates that typical residential homebuyers do not rely on development costs when valuing residential property. Cost calculations found on the property record card appear to be supportive of just value.

(6) Condition of the property – The property appraiser considers the condition of properties through periodic property inspections, no less than once every five years as required by Statute. Other events can trigger more frequent site inspections, including the sale of a property, issuance of a building permit, assessment appeal, or at the taxpayer's request. Condition is considered as a factor applied to the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System value calculation for value losses from all sources based upon an age/life depreciation method. Photographs of the subject property have been presented as evidence of condition. The property appraiser confirmed that a personal exterior inspection of this property has been made for the purpose of determining extra features and the condition of the property. It appears that the property appraiser has appropriately considered this condition.

(7) The income from the property - Residential properties are typically valued for ad valorem tax purposes using the sales comparison approach, as provided for under Section 193.011, Florida Statutes. Comparable sales are relied upon due to the limited availability of market data on residential rental income, operating expenses, and capitalization rates for properties similar to the subject. In the residential market, buyers and sellers generally do not consider income-generating potential when evaluating a property for purchase. The special magistrate finds that the property appraiser has given adequate consideration to this criterion in the analysis of the property.

(8) Cost of Sale Adjustment - This criterion deals with the net proceeds from the sale of a property as received by the seller after deduction of all of the usual and reasonable fees and costs and expenses of financing and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms of financing arrangements. A few examples of the applicability of this criterion include: • unconventional or atypical financing arrangements, such as seller financing at favorable terms, which inflated the price, relative to what would have been achieved with a cash or case-equivalent arrangement, • the inclusion of tangible personal property, which may serve to increase the price above pure real property consideration, • atypically motivated buyers, who may pay a premium relative to that paid by the general market, • atypical closing costs arrangements, such as a seller paying the buyer's closing costs in exchange for a higher sales price. Because these situations may not be discoverable by the mass appraiser relying on raw gross price data, a deduction from the raw gross price is made with the goal being to arrive at 100% of the market value of the real property by eliminating any possible impact of non-real property consideration. This mass appraisal method is found to be acceptable by the Florida Department of Revenue and the Florida Courts. Applicable law provides for uniform cost of sale deductions in just valuations without regard to whether (1) the subject property was sold, (2) mass appraisal or single property appraisal is used, (3) the appraisal approach used to value the property, (4) the petitioner is seeking an increase or decrease in just value, (5) appraised development or VAB review is involved. There is no legal authority for variation in the application of cost of sale deductions based on any of the preceding conditions. The professionally accepted appraisal practice is for Florida property appraisers to uniformly make cost of sale deductions of for all property within use code groups and then report these deductions on Form DR-493 to the Department of Revenue while, understandably, avoiding the impractical task of supporting these deductions in the absence of sufficiently reliable market data that demonstrates the typical, prevalent, and representative cost of sale deductions for each class of real property. In support of consideration of this criterion, the property appraiser has presented an analysis of the ratio between the aggregate sale price paid for all comparable properties compared with their aggregate just value assessments resulting in an average cost of sale adjustment of 9%. While this calculation may demonstrate a general relationship between assessed values and sale prices within the sample, it does not establish adequate support specific to the subject property for this assessment review.

It is implicit in mass appraisal that, even when properly specified and calibrated models are employed, some individual value conclusions may not meet standards of reasonableness, consistency, and accuracy. The purpose of this value review is to determine whether the just value reported on the current tax roll represents the just value of the property after consideration of the criteria set forth in Florida Statute §193.011 and generally accepted appraisal principles, including those applicable to mass appraisal. In reviewing the evidence presented by the property appraiser at this hearing, the special magistrate finds that the property appraiser did not appropriately consider the factors set forth in Florida Statute §193.011, specifically (1), (4) and (8); and therefore, the presumption of correctness has not been established.

By filing this petition, the petitioner alleges that the property appraiser has assessed the property in excess of just value. According to 12D-9.025(3)(a) of the Florida Administrative Code, the petitioner is responsible for presenting relevant and credible evidence in support of his or her belief that the property appraiser's determination is incorrect. To prevail in an assessment challenge, the taxpayer must prove more than a mere difference of opinion regarding an assessment. The following paragraphs describe how the petitioner has addressed each of the eight criteria of the Statute.

(1) Present cash value of the property - In support of a revision to just value, the petitioner has presented the following sales:

PET Sale 1: 13053 Spencer Ct reflects a building size of 1,555 square feet with a 2005 year built, on an 11,526 square foot site with no pool. The sale date is May 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $241,025, or $155.00 per square foot.

PET Sale 2: 12374 Corrine Ave reflects a building size of 1,849 square feet with a 2005 year built, on a 9,194 square foot site with no pool. The sale date is July 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $243,400, or $131.64 per square foot.

PET Sale 3: 13317 Mandalay Pl reflects a building size of 2,022 square feet with a 2007 year built, on a 7,379 square foot site with no pool. The sale date is August 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $246,250, or $121.79 per square foot.

PET Sale 4: 4344 Birchfield Loop reflects a building size of 2,012 square feet with a 2006 year built, on a 7,624 square foot site with no pool. The sale date is August 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $245,500, or $122.02 per square foot.

PET Sale 5: 13026 Lawrence St reflects a building size of 1,598 square feet with a 1989 year built, on an 11,734 square foot site with no pool. The sale date is September 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $245,500, or $153.32 per square foot. This adjusted sale price does not support a reduction in assessment.

PET Sale 6: 12144 Landfair St reflects a building size of 2,108 square feet with a 2003 year built, on a 10,000 square foot site with no pool. The sale date is August 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $244,665, or $116.06 per square foot.

The final adjusted sale prices range from $241,025 to $246,250, with a mean of $244,391. PET Sale 1, 2, and 5 have a Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price per square foot greater than the PSF Just Value. The petitioner compares these sales based on total price. The petitioner has presented sales that are claimed to be more similar to the subject than the sales relied upon by the property appraiser. Price adjustments were made to account for differences between the sales and the subject property including a 15% adjustment for cost of sale. The petitioner has presented no rebuttal as to the property appraiser's appraisal methods or chosen sales and has not identified a specific methodological error, factual inaccuracy, or inconsistency in the property appraiser's analysis. The petitioner's analysis is based on unsupported adjustments, many of which are calculated using the assessed values of the sales. The petitioner has not visited the subject or any of the sales and has not appropriately compared condition. The per-square-foot just value is supported by one or more of the petitioner's adjusted per-square foot sale prices.

(2) Highest and Best Use - The petitioner does not dispute that the highest and best use of the subject property is single-family residential.

(3) Location of the property - The petitioner appears familiar with the location characteristics of the subject property and has not claimed the presence of any atypical or adverse location factors that would materially affect its use or value.

(4) Quantity or size of the property - The petitioner does not dispute the size or quantity of the land or improvements reported by the property appraiser during the hearing, nor was any allegation made that these factors were miscalculated or improperly considered in the valuation.

(5) The cost of the property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon - The petitioner has presented no analysis of land value or depreciated building costs. Cost is rarely used to value this market sector.

(6) Condition - The petitioner has not presented any credible evidence or asserted that the condition of the property differs from the description provided by the property appraiser during the hearing. Furthermore, no claim was made regarding any significant physical deficiencies that would affect the property's use or value.

(7) The income from the property - The petitioner has presented no analysis of income and expense at this hearing, however, as mentioned, this method is also rarely used to value residential properties for ad valorem tax purposes.

(8) Cost of Sale Adjustment - The petitioner has made specific deductions for cost of sale based on the DR-493 form submitted by the property appraiser to the Florida Department of Revenue in consideration of this criterion.

The petitioner has not specifically challenged the market evidence or the analysis conducted by the property appraiser in support of the just value of the subject property. Merely presenting an alternative analysis is not sufficient to warrant a change in assessment. Pursuant to Florida Statute §194.301(1) it is the petitioner's responsibility to demonstrate that the property appraiser's evidence and/or analysis are incorrect, and that the determined value does not represent the just value of the property by a preponderance of the evidence.

After careful consideration of all evidence presented at the hearing, the special magistrate finds that the property appraiser has not established the presumption of correctness. However, the hearing record does contain competent, substantial evidence of just value that complies with the eight criteria set forth in Florida Statute §193.011 and generally accepted appraisal principles. The unadjusted sale prices for the sales contained in the hearing record range from $226,500 to $320,000. These sales were identified by both the property appraiser and the petitioner as the most comparable to the subject property. However, because the petitioner's adjustments are not supported by market evidence, they are afforded little weight. Applying a fifteen percent cost-of-sale adjustment results in an indicated value range of $192,525 to $272,000. Because the subject's just value does not exceed this adjusted range, the evidence in the hearing record indicates that the assessment is not overstated. Accordingly, the special magistrate recommends no change in the just value established by the property appraiser.

Conclusions of Law

Pursuant to §194.301(1), Florida Statutes, in any administrative action in which a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment of value, the property appraiser's assessment is presumed correct if the property appraiser proves by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment was arrived at in compliance with §193.011, Florida Statutes, and professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The applicable standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence. Based upon the evidence presented and admitted at the hearing, the special magistrate concludes that the property appraiser did not establish the presumption of correctness. The evidence relied upon by the property appraiser did not sufficiently demonstrate that all applicable statutory criteria were properly considered in a manner consistent with generally accepted appraisal practices for an individual assessment review. Pursuant to §194.301(2)(b), Florida Statutes, when the presumption of correctness is not established, the value adjustment board or special magistrate is required to determine the assessment if there is competent, substantial evidence of just value in the hearing record which cumulatively satisfies the criteria set forth in §193.011, Florida Statutes, and professionally accepted appraisal practices. The special magistrate is not required to adopt the specific value advocated by either party and may establish or affirm a value supported by the competent, substantial evidence in the record. The special magistrate concludes that the hearing record contains competent, substantial evidence of just value. The market evidence presented and admitted at the hearing, when considered in its entirety and in light of the statutory valuation criteria, supports the conclusion that the just value determined by the property appraiser is supported by the evidence and is not shown to be excessive, insufficient, or otherwise incorrect by a preponderance of the evidence. Accordingly, pursuant to §194.301, Florida Statutes, and the applicable provisions of Rule Chapter 12D-9, Florida Administrative Code, the special magistrate recommends that the value adjustment board take no action to change the just value determined by the property appraiser.

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

Hernando County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff.11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☒ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition #	25-312	Parcel ID	R32 323 17 5200 1260 0090
Petitioner name The petitioner is: ☐ taxpayer of record ☒ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	RYAN, INC.	Property address	13114 SCOTTVILLE STREET SPRING HILL, FLORIDA

Decision Summary ☒ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just Value, required	$301,873	$301,873	$301,873
2. Assessed or classified use value, * if applicable	$301,873	$301,873	$301,873
3. Exempt value, * enter "0" if none	$0	$0	$0
4. Taxable value, * required	$301,873	$301,873	$301,873

*All values entered should be county taxable values, School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision

Findings of Fact

DUE TO SPACE LIMITATIONS, FINDINGS OF FACT ARE SET FORTH IN THE ATTACHED ADDENDA, WHICH IS MADE PART OF THIS RECOMMENDATION REPORT.

Conclusions of Law

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW ARE PROVIDED IN THE ATTACHED ADDENDA, INCORPORATED HEREIN BY REFERENCE.

☒ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	Print Name	Date
Robert C. Hicks	ROBERT C. HICKS	FEB 6, 2026
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____.
Address: Hernando County Gov't Center BOCC Chambers, Room 160, 20 North Main Street, Brooksville, Florida 34601.
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered.
To find the information, please call (352) 754-4970, or visit our website at vab@hernandoclerk.org.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print Name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date mailed to parties

Addenda

Findings Of Fact

Petitioner Natasha Elliott with Ryan, Inc. appeared telephonically on behalf of PROGRESS RESIDENTIAL BORROWER 23 LLC on January 27, 2026 to provide testimonial and documentary evidence pertaining to the 2025 property assessment for real property located in Hernando County, Florida. The Hernando County Property Appraiser's Office was represented at the hearing by Deputy Appraisers Doug Mack, CFE, Residential Supervisor and Brandon Jimenez, CFE. An opening statement regarding the hearing process and rules of procedure was read and all parties were placed under oath. This petition is one of 22 presented by the petitioner on this hearing date. The specific case numbers are 25-297 through 25-318, inclusive. Any relevant testimony presented during these individual hearings will be incorporated by reference to all hearings to avoid redundancy and expedite the hearing process.

The subject of this petition is listed on the Hernando County tax roll as Parcel ID R32 323 17 5200 1260 0090. This property is described as a single-family residence with a two-car garage and no pool. The subject property is located at 13114 Scottville Street, Spring Hill, Hernando County, Florida. The property consists of 2,136 square feet of adjusted building area with 1,831 square feet of heated living area on a 24,922-square-foot residential lot. The improvements were constructed in 2005. Based on an inspection of the property on September 24, 2025, the property appraiser has determined that the building improvements are of typical construction quality and in average condition. It appears that the subject of this petition has not sold within the 12-month period preceding the January 1 valuation date.

The property appraiser has confirmed the 2025 just value at $301,873, with an assessed value of $301,873 and a taxable value of $301,873. There have been no changes to the values since the Notice of Proposed Property Taxes (TRIM) was issued. The petitioner is requesting a revision to the 2025 just value, proposing a revision in just value to $286,591. This request is supported by sales comparison.

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence, see Florida Administrative Code 12D-9.025(1). Generally, relevant evidence is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. The evidence meets or exceeds a minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. Documentary evidence presented by the property appraiser during the hearing is described and labeled as follows:

- PAO-A (16 pages) - Cover page, case synopsis, subject property record card with building sketch and photograph, sales analysis grid, comparable location map, analysis of sales data, property record card for each sale, list of structure area adjustments

Documentary evidence presented by the petitioner during the hearing is described and labeled as follows:

- PET-1 (9 pages) - Petition, cover page, summary of evidence, sales adjustment grid, adjustment formulas, aerial photograph of subject, street map, location map showing subject and sales

The property appraiser has not raised any objections to the evidence presented by the petitioner during the hearing.

The Florida Legislature has enacted eight criteria that the property appraiser must consider when determining just value. In any administrative or judicial action where a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment, the property appraiser's estimate of just value is presumed correct if it is proven that the assessment was made in compliance with the eight criteria outlined in Section 193.011, Florida Statutes and in accordance with professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The only standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence, meaning the greater weight of evidence, or "more likely than not."

Florida courts have consistently held that the property appraiser is only required to consider the eight criteria, and that applying each factor is not mandatory. The courts have further found that if any one criterion does not reflect just value, it should be disregarded by the property appraiser. The special magistrate finds and summarizes the extent to which the property appraiser has considered each of these criteria in the following paragraphs.

(1) Present cash value of the property - The amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arms-length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In short, the price without transaction costs. The buyer typically pays more, and the seller typically receives less than the price indicated by the documentary stamps due to these transaction costs. In mass appraising, the property appraiser considers this criterion by applying or considering the comparable market sales using the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through comparable sales analysis similar to that found in a fee appraisal. The amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arms-length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In short, the price without transaction costs. The buyer typically pays more, and the seller typically receives less than the price indicated by the documentary stamps due to these transaction costs. In mass appraising, the property appraiser considers this criterion by applying or considering the comparable market sales using the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through

comparable sales analysis similar to that found in a fee appraisal. The property appraiser has presented sales evidence in support of the present cash value. Following are brief descriptions of the sales determined by the property appraiser to be most comparable to the subject and representative of value sourced by property record cards:

PA Sale 1 is located at 12209 Tallwood Street and contains 1,702 square feet of heated building area (base). The residence was constructed in 1992. The property sold in March 2024 for a sale price of $340,000.

PA Sale 2 is located at 13059 Siam Drive and contains 2,027 square feet of heated building area (base). The residence was constructed in 2002. The property sold in September 2024 for a sale price of $330,000.

PA Sale 3 is located at 12144 Landfair Street and contains 2,108 square feet of heated building area (base). The residence was constructed in 2003. The property sold in August 2024 for a sale price of $314,900.

In considering these sales, the property appraiser has compared them based on per adjusted square foot price. Three qualified sales judged to be most comparable to the subject have been presented in support of value. The sales were selected based on similar location, age, size and utility. The property appraiser's approach relies on feature value deductions and weighted "adjusted building area" calculations rather than paired-sales analysis or market-derived adjustments. Florida appraisal standards and case law (e.g., Valencia Center, Inc. v. Bystrom, 543 So. 2d 214 [Fla. 1989]) require that just value determinations be supported by market evidence showing how specific features or characteristics influence sale prices. Deducting fixed feature values from sale prices without verifying their market validity substitutes internal modeling for actual market behavior. While this may be useful for mass appraisal purposes, it does not provide the level of market support required in an individual value review before the Value Adjustment Board. A credible defense of just value in a hearing must demonstrate how specific comparable sales support the subject's assessed value through observable market adjustments. Reliance on internal modeling, without direct evidence of how the market reacts to property differences, fails to establish that the property appraiser's value represents the amount a willing buyer and seller would agree upon under normal conditions. Secondly, the "adjusted building area" metric has no direct market analogue. Buyers and appraisers typically compare residential properties based on heated living area (gross living area per ANSI or Fannie Mae standards). Introducing a proprietary or synthetic size measure distorts the relationship between price and size, undermining the comparability of sales. This means the model may show internal consistency but not external validity in the open market. It is the opinion of the special magistrate that this sales analysis does not follow with generally accepted appraisal practices.

(2) Highest & Best Use – This relates to the consideration of the fundamental appraisal concept of highest and best use or best use to which the property can be expected to be put in the immediate future. For improved properties, the highest and best use of the property as if vacant should be considered as well. The four steps establishing highest and best use are consideration of what is physically possible, legally permissible, financially feasible, and maximally productive. The highest and best use as vacant is identified through land use codes which, in part, are based on zoning. The highest and best use as improved is assumed to be the current use unless evidence shows otherwise. The property appraiser's office considers highest and best use by identifying and recording land size, zoning, building size, location and other characteristics. Once all coding is in place, comparable sales and rentals that have similar characteristics are used to value the property. The highest and best use of this property is for single-family residential use. This determination is undisputed by the petitioner and appears to have been appropriately considered by the property appraiser.

(3) Location of the property – The property appraiser assigns a neighborhood code to every property in the county. Sales of properties in the same or similar neighborhoods are typically used to determine locational adjustments. Often, site-specific location adjustments are made to reflect either an enhanced location (such as a waterfront site or in a golf course community) or an inferior location (such as adjacent to an industrial use or dumpsite). All of the comparable properties presented in support of value are located in the same neighborhood as the subject. The location of the property appears to have been appropriately considered in the determination of just value.

(4) Quantity or size of the property – The property appraiser must consider the quantity or size of the property by determining and recording the correct land size, building size, and extra features sizes and quantities. Land size is based on legal descriptions from recorded plats or metes and bounds. Building sizes and extra features are determined by inspection and measured by deputy property appraisers. From the evidence presented there do not appear to be any notable discrepancies in size or quantity beyond what is previously been discussed. There does not appear to be any discrepancy in heated building area between the parties; however, as discussed, making comparisons based on adjusted building areas after deducting extra features is inconsistent with market standards.

(5) The cost of the property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon - No separate analysis of cost has been presented during the hearing. The property appraiser indicates that typical residential homebuyers do not rely on development costs when valuing residential property. Cost calculations found on the property record card appear to be supportive of just value.

(6) Condition of the property – The property appraiser considers the condition of properties through periodic property inspections, no less than once every five years as required by Statute. Other events can trigger more frequent site inspections, including the sale of a property, issuance of a building permit, assessment appeal, or at the taxpayer's request. Condition is considered as a factor applied to the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System value calculation for value losses from all sources based upon an age/life depreciation method. Photographs of the subject property have been presented as evidence of condition. The property appraiser confirmed that a personal exterior inspection of this property has been made for the purpose of determining extra features and the condition of the property. It appears that the property appraiser has

appropriately considered this condition.

(7) The income from the property - Residential properties are typically valued for ad valorem tax purposes using the sales comparison approach, as provided for under Section 193.011, Florida Statutes. Comparable sales are relied upon due to the limited availability of market data on residential rental income, operating expenses, and capitalization rates for properties similar to the subject. In the residential market, buyers and sellers generally do not consider income-generating potential when evaluating a property for purchase. The special magistrate finds that the property appraiser has given adequate consideration to this criterion in the analysis of the property.

(8) Cost of Sale Adjustment - This criterion deals with the net proceeds from the sale of a property as received by the seller after deduction of all of the usual and reasonable fees and costs and expenses of financing and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms of financing arrangements. A few examples of the applicability of this criterion include: • unconventional or atypical financing arrangements, such as seller financing at favorable terms, which inflated the price, relative to what would have been achieved with a cash or case-equivalent arrangement, • the inclusion of tangible personal property, which may serve to increase the price above pure real property consideration, • atypically motivated buyers, who may pay a premium relative to that paid by the general market, • atypical closing costs arrangements, such as a seller paying the buyer's closing costs in exchange for a higher sales price. Because these situations may not be discoverable by the mass appraiser relying on raw gross price data, a deduction from the raw gross price is made with the goal being to arrive at 100% of the market value of the real property by eliminating any possible impact of non-real property consideration. This mass appraisal method is found to be acceptable by the Florida Department of Revenue and the Florida Courts. Applicable law provides for uniform cost of sale deductions in just valuations without regard to whether (1) the subject property was sold, (2) mass appraisal or single property appraisal is used, (3) the appraisal approach used to value the property, (4) the petitioner is seeking an increase or decrease in just value, (5) appraised development or VAB review is involved. There is no legal authority for variation in the application of cost of sale deductions based on any of the preceding conditions. The professionally accepted appraisal practice is for Florida property appraisers to uniformly make cost of sale deductions of for all property within use code groups and then report these deductions on Form DR-493 to the Department of Revenue while, understandably, avoiding the impractical task of supporting these deductions in the absence of sufficiently reliable market data that demonstrates the typical, prevalent, and representative cost of sale deductions for each class of real property. In support of consideration of this criterion, the property appraiser has presented an analysis of the ratio between the aggregate sale price paid for all comparable properties compared with their aggregate just value assessments resulting in an average cost of sale adjustment of 9%. While this calculation may demonstrate a general relationship between assessed values and sale prices within the sample, it does not establish adequate support specific to the subject property for this assessment review.

It is implicit in mass appraisal that, even when properly specified and calibrated models are employed, some individual value conclusions may not meet standards of reasonableness, consistency, and accuracy. The purpose of this value review is to determine whether the just value reported on the current tax roll represents the just value of the property after consideration of the criteria set forth in Florida Statute §193.011 and generally accepted appraisal principles, including those applicable to mass appraisal. In reviewing the evidence presented by the property appraiser at this hearing, the special magistrate finds that the property appraiser did not appropriately consider the factors set forth in Florida Statute §193.011, specifically (1), (4) and (8); and therefore, the presumption of correctness has not been established.

By filing this petition, the petitioner alleges that the property appraiser has assessed the property in excess of just value. According to 12D-9.025(3)(a) of the Florida Administrative Code, the petitioner is responsible for presenting relevant and credible evidence in support of his or her belief that the property appraiser's determination is incorrect. To prevail in an assessment challenge, the taxpayer must prove more than a mere difference of opinion regarding an assessment. The following paragraphs describe how the petitioner has addressed each of the eight criteria of the Statute.

(1) Present cash value of the property - In support of a revision to just value, the petitioner has presented the following sales:

PET Sale 1 consists of the property located at 13170 Santee Street with a building size of 1,724 square feet, constructed in 1988, and situated on a land area of 17,470 square feet. The property does not have a pool. The sale occurred in February 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $310,750, which equates to $180.25 per square foot. This adjusted sale price does not support a reduction in assessment.

PET Sale 2 consists of the property located at 6119 Belkton Avenue with a building size of 1,614 square feet, constructed in 2003, and situated on a land area of 16,178 square feet. The property does not have a pool. The sale occurred in November 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $269,000, which equates to $166.67 per square foot.

PET Sale 3 consists of the property located at 12285 Shafton Road with a building size of 1,838 square feet, constructed in 2005, and situated on a land area of 13,219 square feet. The property does not have a pool. The sale occurred in August 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $298,150, which equates to $162.21 per square foot.

PET Sale 4 consists of the property located at 12209 Tallwood Street with a building size of 1,702 square feet, constructed in 1992, and situated on a land area of 16,779 square feet. The property does not have a pool. The sale occurred in March 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $288,000, which equates to $169.21 per square foot.

PET Sale 5 consists of the property located at 12154 Rockford Street with a building size of 1,708 square feet, constructed in 2002, and situated on a land area of 10,922 square feet. The property does not have a pool. The sale occurred in July 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $254,400, which equates to $148.95 per square foot.

PET Sale 6 consists of the property located at 13242 Pendleton Street with a building size of 1,581 square feet, constructed in 1989, and situated on a land area of 16,779 square feet. The property does not have a pool. The sale occurred in November 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $299,250, which equates to $189.28 per square foot.

The final adjusted sale prices range from $254,400 to $310,750, with a mean adjusted sale price of approximately $286,592. Sales 1, 2, 4 and 6 have Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price per square foot values that exceed the per square foot just value. The petitioner compares these sales based on total price. The petitioner has presented sales that are claimed to be more similar to the subject than the sales relied upon by the property appraiser. Price adjustments were made to account for differences between the sales and the subject property including a 15% adjustment for cost of sale. The petitioner has presented no rebuttal as to the property appraiser's appraisal methods or chosen sales and has not identified a specific methodological error, factual inaccuracy, or inconsistency in the property appraiser's analysis. The petitioner's analysis is based on unsupported adjustments, many of which are calculated using the assessed values of the sales. The petitioner has not visited the subject or any of the sales and has not appropriately compared condition. The property appraiser's just value falls within the range of adjusted sale prices presented by the petitioner and the per-square-foot just value is supported by most of the petitioner's adjusted per-square foot sale prices.

(2) Highest and Best Use - The petitioner does not dispute that the highest and best use of the subject property is single-family residential.

(3) Location of the property - The petitioner appears familiar with the location characteristics of the subject property and has not claimed the presence of any atypical or adverse location factors that would materially affect its use or value.

(4) Quantity or size of the property - The petitioner does not dispute the size or quantity of the land or improvements reported by the property appraiser during the hearing, nor was any allegation made that these factors were miscalculated or improperly considered in the valuation.

(5) The cost of the property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon - The petitioner has presented no analysis of land value or depreciated building costs. Cost is rarely used to value this market sector.

(6) Condition - The petitioner has not presented any credible evidence or asserted that the condition of the property differs from the description provided by the property appraiser during the hearing. Furthermore, no claim was made regarding any significant physical deficiencies that would affect the property's use or value.

(7) The income from the property - The petitioner has presented no analysis of income and expense at this hearing, however, as mentioned, this method is also rarely used to value residential properties for ad valorem tax purposes.

(8) Cost of Sale Adjustment - The petitioner has made specific deductions for cost of sale based on the DR-493 form submitted by the property appraiser to the Florida Department of Revenue in consideration of this criterion.

The petitioner has not specifically challenged the market evidence or the analysis conducted by the property appraiser in support of the just value of the subject property. Merely presenting an alternative analysis is not sufficient to warrant a change in assessment. Pursuant to Florida Statute §194.301(1) it is the petitioner's responsibility to demonstrate that the property appraiser's evidence and/or analysis are incorrect, and that the determined value does not represent the just value of the property by a preponderance of the evidence.

After careful consideration of all evidence presented at the hearing, the special magistrate finds that the property appraiser has not established the presumption of correctness. However, the hearing record does contain competent, substantial evidence of just value that complies with the eight criteria set forth in Florida Statute §193.011 and generally accepted appraisal principles. The unadjusted sale prices for the sales contained in the hearing record range from $300,000 to $389,000. These sales were identified by both the property appraiser and the petitioner as the most comparable to the subject property. However, because the petitioner's adjustments are not supported by market evidence, they are afforded little weight. Applying a fifteen percent cost-of-sale adjustment results in an indicated value range of $255,000 to $330,650. Because the subject's just value does not exceed this adjusted range, the evidence in the hearing record indicates that the assessment is not overstated. Accordingly, the special magistrate recommends no change in the just value established by the property appraiser.

Conclusions of Law

Pursuant to §194.301(1), Florida Statutes, in any administrative action in which a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment of value, the property appraiser's assessment is presumed correct if the property appraiser proves by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment was arrived at in compliance with §193.011, Florida Statutes, and professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The applicable standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence. Based upon the evidence presented and admitted at the hearing, the special magistrate concludes that the property appraiser did not establish the presumption of correctness. The evidence relied upon by the property appraiser did not sufficiently demonstrate that all applicable statutory criteria were properly considered in a manner consistent with generally accepted appraisal practices for an individual assessment review. Pursuant to §194.301(2)(b), Florida Statutes, when the presumption of correctness is not established, the value adjustment board or special magistrate is required to determine the assessment if there is competent, substantial evidence of just value in the hearing record which cumulatively satisfies the criteria set forth in §193.011, Florida Statutes, and professionally accepted appraisal practices. The special magistrate is not required to adopt the specific value advocated by either party and may establish or affirm a value supported by the competent, substantial evidence in the record. The special magistrate concludes that the hearing record contains competent, substantial evidence of just value. The market evidence presented and admitted at the hearing, when considered in its entirety and in light of the statutory valuation criteria, supports the conclusion that the just value determined by the property appraiser is supported by the evidence and is not shown to be excessive, insufficient, or otherwise incorrect by a preponderance of the evidence. Accordingly, pursuant to §194.301, Florida Statutes, and the applicable provisions of Rule Chapter 12D-9, Florida Administrative Code, the special magistrate recommends that the value adjustment board take no action to change the just value determined by the property appraiser.

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

Hernando County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff.11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☒ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition #	25-313	Parcel ID	R32 323 17 5250 1737 0260
Petitioner name	RYAN, INC.	Property address	3347 BAYSHORE COURT SPRING HILL, FLORIDA
The petitioner is:	☐ taxpayer of record ☒ taxpayer's representative
☐ other, explain:

Decision Summary ☒ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just Value, required	$420,388	$420,388	$420,388
2. Assessed or classified use value, * if applicable	$393,718	$393,718	$393,718
3. Exempt value, * enter "0" if none	$0	$0	$0
4. Taxable value, * required	$393,718	$393,718	$393,718

*All values entered should be county taxable values, School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision

Findings of Fact

DUE TO SPACE LIMITATIONS, FINDINGS OF FACT ARE SET FORTH IN THE ATTACHED ADDENDA, WHICH IS MADE PART OF THIS RECOMMENDATION REPORT.

Conclusions of Law

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW ARE PROVIDED IN THE ATTACHED ADDENDA, INCORPORATED HEREIN BY REFERENCE.

☒ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	ROBERT C. HICKS Print Name	FEB 6, 2026 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____.
Address: Hernando County Gov't Center BOCC Chambers, Room 160, 20 North Main Street, Brooksville, Florida 34601.
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered.
To find the information, please call (352) 754-4970, or visit our website at vab@hernandoclerk.org.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print Name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date mailed to parties

Addenda

Findings Of Fact

Petitioner Natasha Elliott with Ryan, Inc. appeared telephonically on behalf of PROGRESS RESIDENTIAL BORROWER 20 LLC on January 27, 2026 to provide testimonial and documentary evidence pertaining to the 2025 property assessment for real property located in Hernando County, Florida. The Hernando County Property Appraiser's Office was represented at the hearing by Deputy Appraisers Doug Mack, CFE, Residential Supervisor and Brandon Jimenez, CFE. An opening statement regarding the hearing process and rules of procedure was read and all parties were placed under oath. This petition is one of 22 presented by the petitioner on this hearing date. The specific case numbers are 25-297 through 25-318, inclusive. Any relevant testimony presented during these individual hearings will be incorporated by reference to all hearings to avoid redundancy and expedite the hearing process.

The subject of this petition is listed on the Hernando County tax roll as Parcel ID R32 323 17 5250 1737 0260. This property is described as a single-family residence with a three-car garage and no pool. The subject property is located at 3347 Bayshore Court, Spring Hill, Hernando County, Florida. The property consists of 2,721 square feet of adjusted building area with 2,203 square feet of heated building area on a 16,035-square-foot residential lot. The improvements were constructed in 2005. Based on an inspection of the property on April 21, 2023, the property appraiser has determined that the building improvements are of typical construction quality and in average condition. It appears that the subject of this petition has not sold within the 12-month period preceding the January 1 valuation date.

The property appraiser has confirmed the 2025 just value at $420,388, with an assessed value of $393,718 and a taxable value of $393,718. There have been no changes to the values since the Notice of Proposed Property Taxes (TRIM) was issued. The petitioner is requesting a revision to the 2025 just value, proposing a revision in just value to $365,291. This request is supported by sales comparison.

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence, see Florida Administrative Code 12D-9.025(1). Generally, relevant evidence is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. The evidence meets or exceeds a minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. Documentary evidence presented by the property appraiser during the hearing is described and labeled as follows:

- PAO-A (17 pages) - Cover page, case synopsis, subject property record card with building sketch and photograph, sales analysis grid, comparable location map, analysis of sales data, property record card for each sale, list of structure area adjustments

Documentary evidence presented by the petitioner during the hearing is described and labeled as follows:

- PET-1 (9 pages) - Petition, cover page, summary of evidence, sales adjustment grid, adjustment formulas, aerial photograph of subject, street map, location map showing subject and sales

The property appraiser has not raised any objections to the evidence presented by the petitioner during the hearing.

The Florida Legislature has enacted eight criteria that the property appraiser must consider when determining just value. In any administrative or judicial action where a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment, the property appraiser's estimate of just value is presumed correct if it is proven that the assessment was made in compliance with the eight criteria outlined in Section 193.011, Florida Statutes and in accordance with professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The only standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence, meaning the greater weight of evidence, or "more likely than not."

Florida courts have consistently held that the property appraiser is only required to consider the eight criteria, and that applying each factor is not mandatory. The courts have further found that if any one criterion does not reflect just value, it should be disregarded by the property appraiser. The special magistrate finds and summarizes the extent to which the property appraiser has considered each of these criteria in the following paragraphs.

(1) Present cash value of the property - The amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arms-length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In short, the price without transaction costs. The buyer typically pays more, and the seller typically receives less than the price indicated by the documentary stamps due to these transaction costs. In mass appraising, the property appraiser considers this criterion by applying or considering the comparable market sales using the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through comparable sales analysis similar to that found in a fee appraisal. The amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arms-length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In short, the price without transaction costs. The buyer typically pays more, and the seller typically receives less than the price indicated by the documentary stamps due to these transaction costs. In mass appraising, the property appraiser considers this criterion by applying or considering the comparable market sales using the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through

comparable sales analysis similar to that found in a fee appraisal. The property appraiser has presented sales evidence in support of the present cash value. Following are brief descriptions of the sales determined by the property appraiser to be most comparable to the subject and representative of value sourced by property record cards:

PA Sale 1: 2490 Dustin Cir reflects a heated building area of 1,986 square feet with a 2005 year built. The sale date is August 2024. The sale price is $415,000.

PA Sale 2: 5304 Lydia Ct reflects a heated building area of 2,163 square feet with a 2004 year built. The sale date is October 2024. The sale price is $500,000.

PA Sale 3: 2131 Arbuckle Rd reflects a heated building area of 2,032 square feet with a 1989 year built. The sale date is July 2024. The sale price is $670,614.

In considering these sales, the property appraiser has compared them based on per adjusted square foot price. Three qualified sales judged to be most comparable to the subject have been presented in support of value. The sales were selected based on similar location, age, size and utility. The property appraiser's approach relies on feature value deductions and weighted "adjusted building area" calculations rather than paired-sales analysis or market-derived adjustments. Florida appraisal standards and case law (e.g., Valencia Center, Inc. v. Bystrom, 543 So. 2d 214 [Fla. 1989]) require that just value determinations be supported by market evidence showing how specific features or characteristics influence sale prices. Deducting fixed feature values from sale prices without verifying their market validity substitutes internal modeling for actual market behavior. While this may be useful for mass appraisal purposes, it does not provide the level of market support required in an individual value review before the Value Adjustment Board. A credible defense of just value in a hearing must demonstrate how specific comparable sales support the subject's assessed value through observable market adjustments. Reliance on internal modeling, without direct evidence of how the market reacts to property differences, fails to establish that the property appraiser's value represents the amount a willing buyer and seller would agree upon under normal conditions. Secondly, the "adjusted building area" metric has no direct market analogue. Buyers and appraisers typically compare residential properties based on heated living area (gross living area per ANSI or Fannie Mae standards). Introducing a proprietary or synthetic size measure distorts the relationship between price and size, undermining the comparability of sales. This means the model may show internal consistency but not external validity in the open market. It is the opinion of the special magistrate that this sales analysis does not follow with generally accepted appraisal practices.

(2) Highest & Best Use – This relates to the consideration of the fundamental appraisal concept of highest and best use or best use to which the property can be expected to be put in the immediate future. For improved properties, the highest and best use of the property as if vacant should be considered as well. The four steps establishing highest and best use are consideration of what is physically possible, legally permissible, financially feasible, and maximally productive. The highest and best use as vacant is identified through land use codes which, in part, are based on zoning. The highest and best use as improved is assumed to be the current use unless evidence shows otherwise. The property appraiser's office considers highest and best use by identifying and recording land size, zoning, building size, location and other characteristics. Once all coding is in place, comparable sales and rentals that have similar characteristics are used to value the property. The highest and best use of this property is for single-family residential use. This determination is undisputed by the petitioner and appears to have been appropriately considered by the property appraiser.

(3) Location of the property – The property appraiser assigns a neighborhood code to every property in the county. Sales of properties in the same or similar neighborhoods are typically used to determine locational adjustments. Often, site-specific location adjustments are made to reflect either an enhanced location (such as a waterfront site or in a golf course community) or an inferior location (such as adjacent to an industrial use or dumpsite). All of the comparable properties presented in support of value are located in the same neighborhood as the subject. The location of the property appears to have been appropriately considered in the determination of just value.

(4) Quantity or size of the property – The property appraiser must consider the quantity or size of the property by determining and recording the correct land size, building size, and extra features sizes and quantities. Land size is based on legal descriptions from recorded plats or metes and bounds. Building sizes and extra features are determined by inspection and measured by deputy property appraisers. From the evidence presented there do not appear to be any notable discrepancies in size or quantity beyond what is previously been discussed. There does not appear to be any discrepancy in heated building area between the parties; however, as discussed, making comparisons based on adjusted building areas after deducting extra features is inconsistent with market standards.

(5) The cost of the property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon - No separate analysis of cost has been presented during the hearing. The property appraiser indicates that typical residential homebuyers do not rely on development costs when valuing residential property. Cost calculations found on the property record card appear to be supportive of just value.

(6) Condition of the property – The property appraiser considers the condition of properties through periodic property inspections, no less than once every five years as required by Statute. Other events can trigger more frequent site inspections, including the sale of a property, issuance of a building permit, assessment appeal, or at the taxpayer's request. Condition is considered as a factor applied to the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System value calculation for value losses from all sources based upon an age/life depreciation method. Photographs of the subject property have been presented as evidence of condition. The property appraiser confirmed that a personal exterior inspection of this property has been made for the purpose of determining extra features and the condition of the property. It appears that the property appraiser has

appropriately considered this condition.

(7) The income from the property - Residential properties are typically valued for ad valorem tax purposes using the sales comparison approach, as provided for under Section 193.011, Florida Statutes. Comparable sales are relied upon due to the limited availability of market data on residential rental income, operating expenses, and capitalization rates for properties similar to the subject. In the residential market, buyers and sellers generally do not consider income-generating potential when evaluating a property for purchase. The special magistrate finds that the property appraiser has given adequate consideration to this criterion in the analysis of the property.

(8) Cost of Sale Adjustment - This criterion deals with the net proceeds from the sale of a property as received by the seller after deduction of all of the usual and reasonable fees and costs and expenses of financing and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms of financing arrangements. A few examples of the applicability of this criterion include: • unconventional or atypical financing arrangements, such as seller financing at favorable terms, which inflated the price, relative to what would have been achieved with a cash or case-equivalent arrangement, • the inclusion of tangible personal property, which may serve to increase the price above pure real property consideration, • atypically motivated buyers, who may pay a premium relative to that paid by the general market, • atypical closing costs arrangements, such as a seller paying the buyer's closing costs in exchange for a higher sales price. Because these situations may not be discoverable by the mass appraiser relying on raw gross price data, a deduction from the raw gross price is made with the goal being to arrive at 100% of the market value of the real property by eliminating any possible impact of non-real property consideration. This mass appraisal method is found to be acceptable by the Florida Department of Revenue and the Florida Courts. Applicable law provides for uniform cost of sale deductions in just valuations without regard to whether (1) the subject property was sold, (2) mass appraisal or single property appraisal is used, (3) the appraisal approach used to value the property, (4) the petitioner is seeking an increase or decrease in just value, (5) appraised development or VAB review is involved. There is no legal authority for variation in the application of cost of sale deductions based on any of the preceding conditions. The professionally accepted appraisal practice is for Florida property appraisers to uniformly make cost of sale deductions of for all property within use code groups and then report these deductions on Form DR-493 to the Department of Revenue while, understandably, avoiding the impractical task of supporting these deductions in the absence of sufficiently reliable market data that demonstrates the typical, prevalent, and representative cost of sale deductions for each class of real property. In support of consideration of this criterion, the property appraiser has presented an analysis of the ratio between the aggregate sale price paid for all comparable properties compared with their aggregate just value assessments resulting in an average cost of sale adjustment of 32%. While this calculation may demonstrate a general relationship between assessed values and sale prices within the sample, it does not establish adequate support specific to the subject property for this assessment review.

It is implicit in mass appraisal that, even when properly specified and calibrated models are employed, some individual value conclusions may not meet standards of reasonableness, consistency, and accuracy. The purpose of this value review is to determine whether the just value reported on the current tax roll represents the just value of the property after consideration of the criteria set forth in Florida Statute §193.011 and generally accepted appraisal principles, including those applicable to mass appraisal. In reviewing the evidence presented by the property appraiser at this hearing, the special magistrate finds that the property appraiser did not appropriately consider the factors set forth in Florida Statute §193.011, specifically (1), (4) and (8); and therefore, the presumption of correctness has not been established.

By filing this petition, the petitioner alleges that the property appraiser has assessed the property in excess of just value. According to 12D-9.025(3)(a) of the Florida Administrative Code, the petitioner is responsible for presenting relevant and credible evidence in support of his or her belief that the property appraiser's determination is incorrect. To prevail in an assessment challenge, the taxpayer must prove more than a mere difference of opinion regarding an assessment. The following paragraphs describe how the petitioner has addressed each of the eight criteria of the Statute.

(1) Present cash value of the property - In support of a revision to just value, the petitioner has presented the following sales:

PET Sale 1: 3037 Bayshore Dr reflects a building size of 2,109 square feet with a 1987 year built, on a 15,000 square foot site with no pool. The sale date is 2024-09. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $334,575, or $158.64 per square foot.

PET Sale 2: 2629 Waterfall Dr reflects a building size of 1,854 square feet with a 1997 year built, on a 15,163 square foot site with no pool. The sale date is 2025-01. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $396,050, or $213.62 per square foot.

PET Sale 3: 2467 Sunrise Ct reflects a building size of 1,783 square feet with a 1992 year built, on a 22,444 square foot site with no pool. The sale date is 2024-03. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $317,750, or $178.21 per square foot. During rebuttal the property appraiser described this as a lower quality home.

PET Sale 4: 9283 Angora St reflects a building size of 2,183 square feet with a 1987 year built, on a 22,653 square foot site with no pool. The sale date is 2024-07. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $407,000, or $186.44 per square foot.

PET Sale 5: 9215 Angora St reflects a building size of 2,269 square feet with a 1987 year built, on a 21,961 square foot site with no pool. The sale date is 2024-01. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $339,250, or $149.52 per square foot.

PET Sale 6: 2307 Honeydew Dr reflects a building size of 2,140 square feet with a 2002 year built, on a 21,684 square foot site with no pool. The sale date is 2025-01. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $397,125, or $185.57 per square foot.

The final adjusted sale prices range from $317,750 to $407,000, with a mean of $365,292. PET Sale 2 has a Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price per square foot greater than the PSF Just Value. The petitioner compares these sales based on total price. The petitioner has presented sales that are claimed to be more similar to the subject than the sales relied upon by the property appraiser. Price adjustments were made to account for differences between the sales and the subject property including a 15% adjustment for cost of sale. The petitioner has presented no rebuttal as to the property appraiser's appraisal methods or chosen sales and has not identified a specific methodological error, factual inaccuracy, or inconsistency in the property appraiser's analysis. The petitioner's analysis is based on unsupported adjustments, many of which are calculated using the assessed values of the sales. The petitioner has not visited the subject or any of the sales and has not appropriately compared condition. The per-square-foot just value is supported by one or more of the petitioner's adjusted per-square foot sale prices.

(2) Highest and Best Use - The petitioner does not dispute that the highest and best use of the subject property is single-family residential.

(3) Location of the property - The petitioner appears familiar with the location characteristics of the subject property and has not claimed the presence of any atypical or adverse location factors that would materially affect its use or value.

(4) Quantity or size of the property - The petitioner does not dispute the size or quantity of the land or improvements reported by the property appraiser during the hearing, nor was any allegation made that these factors were miscalculated or improperly considered in the valuation.

(5) The cost of the property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon - The petitioner has presented no analysis of land value or depreciated building costs. Cost is rarely used to value this market sector.

(6) Condition - The petitioner has not presented any credible evidence or asserted that the condition of the property differs from the description provided by the property appraiser during the hearing. Furthermore, no claim was made regarding any significant physical deficiencies that would affect the property's use or value.

(7) The income from the property - The petitioner has presented no analysis of income and expense at this hearing, however, as mentioned, this method is also rarely used to value residential properties for ad valorem tax purposes.

(8) Cost of Sale Adjustment - The petitioner has made specific deductions for cost of sale based on the DR-493 form submitted by the property appraiser to the Florida Department of Revenue in consideration of this criterion.

The petitioner has not specifically challenged the market evidence or the analysis conducted by the property appraiser in support of the just value of the subject property. Merely presenting an alternative analysis is not sufficient to warrant a change in assessment. Pursuant to Florida Statute §194.301(1) it is the petitioner's responsibility to demonstrate that the property appraiser's evidence and/or analysis are incorrect, and that the determined value does not represent the just value of the property by a preponderance of the evidence.

After careful consideration of all evidence presented at the hearing, the special magistrate finds that the property appraiser has not established the presumption of correctness. However, the hearing record does contain competent, substantial evidence of just value that complies with the eight criteria set forth in Florida Statute §193.011 and generally accepted appraisal principles. The unadjusted sale prices for the sales contained in the hearing record range from $245,000 to $670,614. These sales were identified by both the property appraiser and the petitioner as the most comparable to the subject property. However, because the petitioner's adjustments are not supported by market evidence, they are afforded little weight. Applying a fifteen percent cost-of-sale adjustment results in an indicated value range of $208,250 to $570,022. Because the subject's just value does not exceed this adjusted range, the evidence in the hearing record indicates that the assessment is not overstated. Accordingly, the special magistrate recommends no change in the just value established by the property appraiser.

Conclusions of Law

Pursuant to §194.301(1), Florida Statutes, in any administrative action in which a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment of value, the property appraiser's assessment is presumed correct if the property appraiser proves by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment was arrived at in compliance with §193.011, Florida Statutes, and professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The applicable standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence. Based upon the evidence presented and admitted at the hearing, the special magistrate concludes that the property appraiser did not establish the presumption of correctness. The evidence relied upon by the property appraiser did not sufficiently demonstrate that all applicable statutory criteria were properly considered in a manner consistent with generally accepted appraisal practices for an individual assessment review. Pursuant to §194.301(2)(b), Florida Statutes, when the presumption of correctness is not established, the value adjustment board or special magistrate is required to determine the assessment if there is competent, substantial evidence of just value in the hearing record which cumulatively satisfies the criteria set forth in §193.011, Florida Statutes, and professionally accepted appraisal practices. The special magistrate is not required to adopt the specific value advocated by either party and may establish or affirm a value supported by the competent, substantial evidence in the record. The special magistrate concludes that the hearing record contains competent, substantial evidence of just value. The market evidence presented and admitted at the hearing, when considered in its entirety and in light of the statutory valuation criteria, supports the conclusion that the just value determined by the property appraiser is supported by the evidence and is not shown to be excessive, insufficient, or otherwise incorrect by a preponderance of the evidence. Accordingly, pursuant to §194.301, Florida Statutes, and the applicable provisions of Rule Chapter 12D-9, Florida Administrative Code, the special magistrate recommends that the value adjustment board take no action to change the just value determined by the property appraiser.

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

Hernando County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff.11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☒ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition #	25-314	Parcel ID	R32 323 17 5260 1758 0200
Petitioner name The petitioner is: ☐ taxpayer of record ☒ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	RYAN, INC.	Property address	8343 NATOMA STREET SPRING HILL, FLORIDA

Decision Summary ☒ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just Value, required	$288,624	$288,624	$288,624
2. Assessed or classified use value, * if applicable	$252,068	$252,068	$252,068
3. Exempt value, * enter "0" if none	$0	$0	$0
4. Taxable value, * required	$252,068	$252,068	$252,068

*All values entered should be county taxable values, School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision

Findings of Fact

DUE TO SPACE LIMITATIONS, FINDINGS OF FACT ARE SET FORTH IN THE ATTACHED ADDENDA, WHICH IS MADE PART OF THIS RECOMMENDATION REPORT.

Conclusions of Law

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW ARE PROVIDED IN THE ATTACHED ADDENDA, INCORPORATED HEREIN BY REFERENCE.

☒ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	ROBERT C. HICKS Print Name	FEB 6, 2026 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____.
Address: Hernando County Gov't Center BOCC Chambers, Room 160, 20 North Main Street, Brooksville, Florida 34601.
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered.
To find the information, please call (352) 754-4970, or visit our website at vab@hernandoclerk.org.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print Name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date mailed to parties

Addenda

Findings Of Fact

Petitioner Natasha Elliott with Ryan, Inc. appeared telephonically on behalf of TRUE NORTH PROPERTY OWNER B LLC on January 27, 2026 to provide testimonial and documentary evidence pertaining to the 2025 property assessment for real property located in Hernando County, Florida. The Hernando County Property Appraiser's Office was represented at the hearing by Deputy Appraisers Doug Mack, CFE, Residential Supervisor and Brandon Jimenez, CFE. An opening statement regarding the hearing process and rules of procedure was read and all parties were placed under oath. This petition is one of 22 presented by the petitioner on this hearing date. The specific case numbers are 25-297 through 25-318, inclusive. Any relevant testimony presented during these individual hearings will be incorporated by reference to all hearings to avoid redundancy and expedite the hearing process.

The subject of this petition is listed on the Hernando County tax roll as Parcel ID R32 323 17 5260 1758 0200. This property is described as a single-family residence with a two-car garage and no pool. The subject property is located at 8343 Natoma Street, Spring Hill, Hernando County, Florida. The property consists of 2,155 square feet of adjusted building area with 1,822 square feet of heated building area on a 13,900-square-foot residential lot. The improvements were constructed in 2006. Based on an inspection of the property on September 25, 2025, the property appraiser has determined that the building improvements are of typical construction quality and in average condition. It appears that the subject of this petition has not sold within the 12-month period preceding the January 1 valuation date.

The property appraiser has confirmed the 2025 just value at $288,624, with an assessed value of $252,068 and a taxable value of $252,068. There have been no changes to the values since the Notice of Proposed Property Taxes (TRIM) was issued. The petitioner is requesting a revision to the 2025 just value, proposing a revision in just value to $287,777. This request is supported by sales comparison.

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence, see Florida Administrative Code 12D-9.025(1). Generally, relevant evidence is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. The evidence meets or exceeds a minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. Documentary evidence presented by the property appraiser during the hearing is described and labeled as follows:

- PAO-A (17 pages) - Cover page, case synopsis, subject property record card with building sketch and photograph, sales analysis grid, comparable location map, analysis of sales data, property record card for each sale, list of structure area adjustments

Documentary evidence presented by the petitioner during the hearing is described and labeled as follows:

- PET-1 (9 pages) - Petition, cover page, summary of evidence, sales adjustment grid, adjustment formulas, aerial photograph of subject, street map, location map showing subject and sales

The property appraiser has not raised any objections to the evidence presented by the petitioner during the hearing.

The Florida Legislature has enacted eight criteria that the property appraiser must consider when determining just value. In any administrative or judicial action where a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment, the property appraiser's estimate of just value is presumed correct if it is proven that the assessment was made in compliance with the eight criteria outlined in Section 193.011, Florida Statutes and in accordance with professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The only standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence, meaning the greater weight of evidence, or "more likely than not."

Florida courts have consistently held that the property appraiser is only required to consider the eight criteria, and that applying each factor is not mandatory. The courts have further found that if any one criterion does not reflect just value, it should be disregarded by the property appraiser. The special magistrate finds and summarizes the extent to which the property appraiser has considered each of these criteria in the following paragraphs.

(1) Present cash value of the property - The amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arms-length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In short, the price without transaction costs. The buyer typically pays more, and the seller typically receives less than the price indicated by the documentary stamps due to these transaction costs. In mass appraising, the property appraiser considers this criterion by applying or considering the comparable market sales using the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through comparable sales analysis similar to that found in a fee appraisal. The amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arms-length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In short, the price without transaction costs. The buyer typically pays more, and the seller typically receives less than the price indicated by the documentary stamps due to these transaction costs. In mass appraising, the property appraiser considers this criterion by applying or considering the comparable market sales using the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through

comparable sales analysis similar to that found in a fee appraisal. The property appraiser has presented sales evidence in support of the present cash value. Following are brief descriptions of the sales determined by the property appraiser to be most comparable to the subject and representative of value sourced by property record cards:

PA Sale 1: 5298 Mosquero Rd reflects a heated building area of 1,552 square feet with a 2006 year built. The sale date is March 2024. The sale price is $340,000.

PA Sale 2: 14127 Redwood St reflects a heated building area of 1,958 square feet with a 2005 year built. The sale date is June 2024. The sale price is $355,000.

PA Sale 3: 2649 Waterfall Dr reflects a heated building area of 1,639 square feet with a 1999 year built. The sale date is November 2024. The sale price is $377,000.

In considering these sales, the property appraiser has compared them based on per adjusted square foot price. Three qualified sales judged to be most comparable to the subject have been presented in support of value. The sales were selected based on similar location, age, size and utility. The property appraiser's approach relies on feature value deductions and weighted "adjusted building area" calculations rather than paired-sales analysis or market-derived adjustments. Florida appraisal standards and case law (e.g., Valencia Center, Inc. v. Bystrom, 543 So. 2d 214 [Fla. 1989]) require that just value determinations be supported by market evidence showing how specific features or characteristics influence sale prices. Deducting fixed feature values from sale prices without verifying their market validity substitutes internal modeling for actual market behavior. While this may be useful for mass appraisal purposes, it does not provide the level of market support required in an individual value review before the Value Adjustment Board. A credible defense of just value in a hearing must demonstrate how specific comparable sales support the subject's assessed value through observable market adjustments. Reliance on internal modeling, without direct evidence of how the market reacts to property differences, fails to establish that the property appraiser's value represents the amount a willing buyer and seller would agree upon under normal conditions. Secondly, the "adjusted building area" metric has no direct market analogue. Buyers and appraisers typically compare residential properties based on heated living area (gross living area per ANSI or Fannie Mae standards). Introducing a proprietary or synthetic size measure distorts the relationship between price and size, undermining the comparability of sales. This means the model may show internal consistency but not external validity in the open market. It is the opinion of the special magistrate that this sales analysis does not follow with generally accepted appraisal practices.

(2) Highest & Best Use – This relates to the consideration of the fundamental appraisal concept of highest and best use or best use to which the property can be expected to be put in the immediate future. For improved properties, the highest and best use of the property as if vacant should be considered as well. The four steps establishing highest and best use are consideration of what is physically possible, legally permissible, financially feasible, and maximally productive. The highest and best use as vacant is identified through land use codes which, in part, are based on zoning. The highest and best use as improved is assumed to be the current use unless evidence shows otherwise. The property appraiser's office considers highest and best use by identifying and recording land size, zoning, building size, location and other characteristics. Once all coding is in place, comparable sales and rentals that have similar characteristics are used to value the property. The highest and best use of this property is for single-family residential use. This determination is undisputed by the petitioner and appears to have been appropriately considered by the property appraiser.

(3) Location of the property – The property appraiser assigns a neighborhood code to every property in the county. Sales of properties in the same or similar neighborhoods are typically used to determine locational adjustments. Often, site-specific location adjustments are made to reflect either an enhanced location (such as a waterfront site or in a golf course community) or an inferior location (such as adjacent to an industrial use or dumpsite). All of the comparable properties presented in support of value are located in the same neighborhood as the subject. The location of the property appears to have been appropriately considered in the determination of just value.

(4) Quantity or size of the property – The property appraiser must consider the quantity or size of the property by determining and recording the correct land size, building size, and extra features sizes and quantities. Land size is based on legal descriptions from recorded plats or metes and bounds. Building sizes and extra features are determined by inspection and measured by deputy property appraisers. From the evidence presented there do not appear to be any notable discrepancies in size or quantity beyond what is previously been discussed. There does not appear to be any discrepancy in heated building area between the parties; however, as discussed, making comparisons based on adjusted building areas after deducting extra features is inconsistent with market standards.

(5) The cost of the property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon - No separate analysis of cost has been presented during the hearing. The property appraiser indicates that typical residential homebuyers do not rely on development costs when valuing residential property. Cost calculations found on the property record card appear to be supportive of just value.

(6) Condition of the property – The property appraiser considers the condition of properties through periodic property inspections, no less than once every five years as required by Statute. Other events can trigger more frequent site inspections, including the sale of a property, issuance of a building permit, assessment appeal, or at the taxpayer's request. Condition is considered as a factor applied to the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System value calculation for value losses from all sources based upon an age/life depreciation method. Photographs of the subject property have been presented as evidence of condition. The property appraiser confirmed that a personal exterior inspection of this property has been made for the purpose of determining extra features and the condition of the property. It appears that the property appraiser has

appropriately considered this condition.

(7) The income from the property - Residential properties are typically valued for ad valorem tax purposes using the sales comparison approach, as provided for under Section 193.011, Florida Statutes. Comparable sales are relied upon due to the limited availability of market data on residential rental income, operating expenses, and capitalization rates for properties similar to the subject. In the residential market, buyers and sellers generally do not consider income-generating potential when evaluating a property for purchase. The special magistrate finds that the property appraiser has given adequate consideration to this criterion in the analysis of the property.

(8) Cost of Sale Adjustment - This criterion deals with the net proceeds from the sale of a property as received by the seller after deduction of all of the usual and reasonable fees and costs and expenses of financing and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms of financing arrangements. A few examples of the applicability of this criterion include: • unconventional or atypical financing arrangements, such as seller financing at favorable terms, which inflated the price, relative to what would have been achieved with a cash or case-equivalent arrangement, • the inclusion of tangible personal property, which may serve to increase the price above pure real property consideration, • atypically motivated buyers, who may pay a premium relative to that paid by the general market, • atypical closing costs arrangements, such as a seller paying the buyer's closing costs in exchange for a higher sales price. Because these situations may not be discoverable by the mass appraiser relying on raw gross price data, a deduction from the raw gross price is made with the goal being to arrive at 100% of the market value of the real property by eliminating any possible impact of non-real property consideration. This mass appraisal method is found to be acceptable by the Florida Department of Revenue and the Florida Courts. Applicable law provides for uniform cost of sale deductions in just valuations without regard to whether (1) the subject property was sold, (2) mass appraisal or single property appraisal is used, (3) the appraisal approach used to value the property, (4) the petitioner is seeking an increase or decrease in just value, (5) appraised development or VAB review is involved. There is no legal authority for variation in the application of cost of sale deductions based on any of the preceding conditions. The professionally accepted appraisal practice is for Florida property appraisers to uniformly make cost of sale deductions of for all property within use code groups and then report these deductions on Form DR-493 to the Department of Revenue while, understandably, avoiding the impractical task of supporting these deductions in the absence of sufficiently reliable market data that demonstrates the typical, prevalent, and representative cost of sale deductions for each class of real property. In support of consideration of this criterion, the property appraiser has presented an analysis of the ratio between the aggregate sale price paid for all comparable properties compared with their aggregate just value assessments resulting in an average cost of sale adjustment of 12%. While this calculation may demonstrate a general relationship between assessed values and sale prices within the sample, it does not establish adequate support specific to the subject property for this assessment review.

It is implicit in mass appraisal that, even when properly specified and calibrated models are employed, some individual value conclusions may not meet standards of reasonableness, consistency, and accuracy. The purpose of this value review is to determine whether the just value reported on the current tax roll represents the just value of the property after consideration of the criteria set forth in Florida Statute §193.011 and generally accepted appraisal principles, including those applicable to mass appraisal. In reviewing the evidence presented by the property appraiser at this hearing, the special magistrate finds that the property appraiser did not appropriately consider the factors set forth in Florida Statute §193.011, specifically (1), (4) and (8); and therefore, the presumption of correctness has not been established.

By filing this petition, the petitioner alleges that the property appraiser has assessed the property in excess of just value. According to 12D-9.025(3)(a) of the Florida Administrative Code, the petitioner is responsible for presenting relevant and credible evidence in support of his or her belief that the property appraiser's determination is incorrect. To prevail in an assessment challenge, the taxpayer must prove more than a mere difference of opinion regarding an assessment. The following paragraphs describe how the petitioner has addressed each of the eight criteria of the Statute.

(1) Present cash value of the property - In support of a revision to just value, the petitioner has presented the following sales:

PET Sale 1: 8438 Day St reflects a building size of 1,460 square feet with a 1995 year built, on a 15,707 square foot site with no pool. The sale date is October 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $286,750, or $196.40 per square foot. This adjusted sale price does not support a reduction in assessment.

PET Sale 2: 4385 Bayridge Ct reflects a building size of 2,702 square feet with a 1987 year built, on a 15,000 square foot site with no pool. The sale date is January 2025. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $335,750, or $173.78 per square foot. This adjusted sale price does not support a reduction in assessment.

PET Sale 3: 8320 Nevada St reflects a building size of 1,933 square feet with a 2002 year built, on a 10,000 square foot site with no pool. The sale date is May 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $259,750, or $134.38 per square foot.

PET Sale 4: 4171 Bayridge Ct reflects a building size of 2,066 square feet with a 2006 year built, on a 10,000 square foot site with no pool. The sale date is July 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $284,415, or $181.04 per square foot. This adjusted sale price does not support a reduction in assessment.

PET Sale 5: 8467 Beach Rd reflects a building size of 1,571 square feet with a 2006 year built, on a 10,000 square foot site with no pool. The sale date is July 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $285,250, or $131.33 per square foot.

PET Sale 6: 5288 Mosquero Rd reflects a building size of 1,964 square feet with a 2005 year built, on a 17,306 square foot site with no pool. The sale date is January 2025. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $274,750, or $139.89 per square foot.

The final adjusted sale prices range from $259,750 to $335,750, with a mean of $287,778. PET Sale 1, PET Sale 2, and PET Sale 4 have Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price per square foot greater than the PSF Just Value. The petitioner compares these sales based on total price. The petitioner has presented sales that are claimed to be more similar to the subject than the sales relied upon by the property appraiser. Price adjustments were made to account for differences between the sales and the subject property including a 15% adjustment for cost of sale. The petitioner has presented no rebuttal as to the property appraiser's appraisal methods or chosen sales and has not identified a specific methodological error, factual inaccuracy, or inconsistency in the property appraiser's analysis. The petitioner's analysis is based on unsupported adjustments, many of which are calculated using the assessed values of the sales. The petitioner has not visited the subject or any of the sales and has not appropriately compared condition. The property appraiser's just value is within the range of adjusted sale prices presented by the petitioner and the per-square-foot just value is supported by one or more of the petitioner's adjusted per-square foot sale prices.

(2) Highest and Best Use - The petitioner does not dispute that the highest and best use of the subject property is single-family residential.

(3) Location of the property - The petitioner appears familiar with the location characteristics of the subject property and has not claimed the presence of any atypical or adverse location factors that would materially affect its use or value.

(4) Quantity or size of the property - The petitioner does not dispute the size or quantity of the land or improvements reported by the property appraiser during the hearing, nor was any allegation made that these factors were miscalculated or improperly considered in the valuation.

(5) The cost of the property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon - The petitioner has presented no analysis of land value or depreciated building costs. Cost is rarely used to value this market sector.

(6) Condition - The petitioner has not presented any credible evidence or asserted that the condition of the property differs from the description provided by the property appraiser during the hearing. Furthermore, no claim was made regarding any significant physical deficiencies that would affect the property's use or value.

(7) The income from the property - The petitioner has presented no analysis of income and expense at this hearing, however, as mentioned, this method is also rarely used to value residential properties for ad valorem tax purposes.

(8) Cost of Sale Adjustment - The petitioner has made specific deductions for cost of sale based on the DR-493 form submitted by the property appraiser to the Florida Department of Revenue in consideration of this criterion.

The petitioner has not specifically challenged the market evidence or the analysis conducted by the property appraiser in support of the just value of the subject property. Merely presenting an alternative analysis is not sufficient to warrant a change in assessment. Pursuant to Florida Statute §194.301(1) it is the petitioner's responsibility to demonstrate that the property appraiser's evidence and/or analysis are incorrect, and that the determined value does not represent the just value of the property by a preponderance of the evidence.

After careful consideration of all evidence presented at the hearing, the special magistrate finds that the property appraiser has not established the presumption of correctness. However, the hearing record does contain competent, substantial evidence of just value that complies with the eight criteria set forth in Florida Statute §193.011 and generally accepted appraisal principles. The unadjusted sale prices for the sales contained in the hearing record range from $275,000 to $425,000. These sales were identified by both the property appraiser and the petitioner as the most comparable to the subject property. However, because the petitioner's adjustments are not supported by market evidence, they are afforded little weight. Applying a fifteen percent cost-of-sale adjustment results in an indicated value range of $233,750 to $361,250. Because the subject's just value does not exceed this adjusted range, the evidence in the hearing record indicates that the assessment is not overstated. Accordingly, the special magistrate recommends no change in the just value established by the property appraiser.

Conclusions of Law

Pursuant to §194.301(1), Florida Statutes, in any administrative action in which a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment of value, the property appraiser's assessment is presumed correct if the property appraiser proves by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment was arrived at in compliance with §193.011, Florida Statutes, and professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The applicable standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence. Based upon the evidence presented and admitted at the hearing, the special magistrate concludes that the property appraiser did not establish the presumption of correctness. The evidence relied upon by the property appraiser did not sufficiently demonstrate that all applicable statutory criteria were properly considered in a manner consistent with generally accepted appraisal practices for an individual assessment review. Pursuant to §194.301(2)(b), Florida Statutes, when the presumption of correctness is not established, the value adjustment board or special magistrate is required to determine the assessment if there is competent, substantial evidence of just value in the hearing record which cumulatively satisfies the criteria set forth in §193.011, Florida Statutes, and professionally accepted appraisal practices. The special magistrate is not required to adopt the specific value advocated by either party and may establish or affirm a value supported by the competent, substantial evidence in the record. The special magistrate concludes that the hearing record contains competent, substantial evidence of just value. The market evidence presented and admitted at the hearing, when considered in its entirety and in light of the statutory valuation criteria, supports the conclusion that the just value determined by the property appraiser is supported by the evidence and is not shown to be excessive, insufficient, or otherwise incorrect by a preponderance of the evidence. Accordingly, pursuant to §194.301, Florida Statutes, and the applicable provisions of Rule Chapter 12D-9, Florida Administrative Code, the special magistrate recommends that the value adjustment board take no action to change the just value determined by the property appraiser.

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

Hernando County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff.11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☒ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition #	25-315	Parcel ID	R34 122 20 0441 0050 0200
Petitioner name The petitioner is: ☐ taxpayer of record ☒ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	RYAN, INC.	Property address	26493 ANTHONY AVENUE BROOKSVILLE, FLORIDA

Decision Summary ☐ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☒ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just Value, required	$219,732	$219,732	$210,375
2. Assessed or classified use value, * if applicable	$218,286	$218,286	$210,375
3. Exempt value, * enter "0" if none	$0	$0	$0
4. Taxable value, * required	$218,286	$218,286	$210,375

*All values entered should be county taxable values, School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision

Findings of Fact

DUE TO SPACE LIMITATIONS, FINDINGS OF FACT ARE SET FORTH IN THE ATTACHED ADDENDA, WHICH IS MADE PART OF THIS RECOMMENDATION REPORT.

Conclusions of Law

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW ARE PROVIDED IN THE ATTACHED ADDENDA, INCORPORATED HEREIN BY REFERENCE.

☒ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	ROBERT C. HICKS Print Name	FEB 25, 2026 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____.
Address: Hernando County Gov't Center BOCC Chambers, Room 160, 20 North Main Street, Brooksville, Florida 34601.
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered.
To find the information, please call (352) 754-4970, or visit our website at vab@hernandoclerk.org.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print Name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date mailed to parties

Addenda

Findings Of Fact

Petitioner Natasha Elliott with Ryan, Inc. appeared telephonically on behalf of PROGRESS RESIDENTIAL BORROWER 24 LLC on January 27, 2026 to provide testimonial and documentary evidence pertaining to the 2025 property assessment for real property located in Hernando County, Florida. The Hernando County Property Appraiser's Office was represented at the hearing by Deputy Appraisers Doug Mack, CFE, Residential Supervisor and Brandon Jimenez, CFE. An opening statement regarding the hearing process and rules of procedure was read and all parties were placed under oath. This petition is one of 22 presented by the petitioner on this hearing date. The specific case numbers are 25-297 through 25-318, inclusive. Any relevant testimony presented during these individual hearings will be incorporated by reference to all hearings to avoid redundancy and expedite the hearing process.

The subject of this petition is listed on the Hernando County tax roll as Parcel ID R34 122 20 0441 0050 0200. This property is described as a single-family residence with a one-car garage and no pool. The subject property is located at 26493 Anthony Avenue, Brooksville, Hernando County, Florida. The property consists of 1,187 square feet of adjusted building area with 1,044 square feet of heated living area on a 7,600-square-foot residential lot. The improvements were constructed in 2018. Based on an inspection of the property on September 22, 2025, the property appraiser has determined that the building improvements are of typical construction quality and in average condition. It appears that the subject of this petition has not sold within the 12-month period preceding the January 1 valuation date.

The property appraiser has confirmed the 2025 just value at $219,732, with an assessed value of $218,286 and a taxable value of $218,286. There have been no changes to the values since the Notice of Proposed Property Taxes (TRIM) was issued. The petitioner is requesting a revision to the 2025 just value, proposing a revision in just value to $185,908. This request is supported by sales comparison.

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence, see Florida Administrative Code 12D-9.025(1). Generally, relevant evidence is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. The evidence meets or exceeds a minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. Documentary evidence presented by the property appraiser during the hearing is described and labeled as follows:

- PAO-A (15 pages) - Cover page, case synopsis, subject property record card with building sketch and photograph, sales analysis grid, comparable location map, analysis of sales data, property record card for each sale, list of structure area adjustments

Documentary evidence presented by the petitioner during the hearing is described and labeled as follows:

- PET-1 (9 pages) - Petition, cover page, summary of evidence, sales adjustment grid, adjustment formulas, aerial photograph of subject, street map, location map showing subject and sales

The property appraiser has not raised any objections to the evidence presented by the petitioner during the hearing.

The Florida Legislature has enacted eight criteria that the property appraiser must consider when determining just value. In any administrative or judicial action where a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment, the property appraiser's estimate of just value is presumed correct if it is proven that the assessment was made in compliance with the eight criteria outlined in Section 193.011, Florida Statutes and in accordance with professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The only standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence, meaning the greater weight of evidence, or "more likely than not."

Florida courts have consistently held that the property appraiser is only required to consider the eight criteria, and that applying each factor is not mandatory. The courts have further found that if any one criterion does not reflect just value, it should be disregarded by the property appraiser. The special magistrate finds and summarizes the extent to which the property appraiser has considered each of these criteria in the following paragraphs.

(1) Present cash value of the property - The amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arms-length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In short, the price without transaction costs. The buyer typically pays more, and the seller typically receives less than the price indicated by the documentary stamps due to these transaction costs. In mass appraising, the property appraiser considers this criterion by applying or considering the comparable market sales using the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through comparable sales analysis similar to that found in a fee appraisal. The amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arms-length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In short, the price without transaction costs. The buyer typically pays more, and the seller typically receives less than the price indicated by the documentary stamps due to these transaction costs. In mass appraising, the property appraiser considers this criterion by applying or considering the comparable market sales using the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through

comparable sales analysis similar to that found in a fee appraisal. The property appraiser has presented sales evidence in support of the present cash value. Following are brief descriptions of the sales determined by the property appraiser to be most comparable to the subject and representative of value sourced by property record cards:

PA Sale 1 is located at 26477 Anthony Avenue and contains 1,044 square feet of heated building area (base). The residence was constructed in 2018. The property sold in August 2024 for a sale price of $247,500, which reflects a sale price of $237.05 per square foot.

PA Sale 2 is located at 26370 Mc Allister Street and contains 1,000 square feet of heated building area (base). The residence was constructed in 2019. The property sold in March 2024 for a sale price of $234,000, which reflects a sale price of $234.00 per square foot.

PA Sale 3 is located at 6421 Frank Court and contains 1,000 square feet of heated building area (base). The residence was constructed in 2018. The property sold in April 2024 for a sale price of $234,900, which reflects a sale price of $234.90 per square foot.

In considering these sales, the property appraiser has compared them based on per adjusted square foot price. Three qualified sales judged to be most comparable to the subject have been presented in support of value. The sales were selected based on similar location, age, size and utility. The property appraiser's approach relies on feature value deductions and weighted "adjusted building area" calculations rather than paired-sales analysis or market-derived adjustments. Florida appraisal standards and case law (e.g., Valencia Center, Inc. v. Bystrom, 543 So. 2d 214 [Fla. 1989]) require that just value determinations be supported by market evidence showing how specific features or characteristics influence sale prices. Deducting fixed feature values from sale prices without verifying their market validity substitutes internal modeling for actual market behavior. While this may be useful for mass appraisal purposes, it does not provide the level of market support required in an individual value review before the Value Adjustment Board. A credible defense of just value in a hearing must demonstrate how specific comparable sales support the subject's assessed value through observable market adjustments. Reliance on internal modeling, without direct evidence of how the market reacts to property differences, fails to establish that the property appraiser's value represents the amount a willing buyer and seller would agree upon under normal conditions. Secondly, the "adjusted building area" metric has no direct market analogue. Buyers and appraisers typically compare residential properties based on heated living area (gross living area per ANSI or Fannie Mae standards). Introducing a proprietary or synthetic size measure distorts the relationship between price and size, undermining the comparability of sales. This means the model may show internal consistency but not external validity in the open market. It is the opinion of the special magistrate that this sales analysis does not follow with generally accepted appraisal practices.

(2) Highest & Best Use – This relates to the consideration of the fundamental appraisal concept of highest and best use or best use to which the property can be expected to be put in the immediate future. For improved properties, the highest and best use of the property as if vacant should be considered as well. The four steps establishing highest and best use are consideration of what is physically possible, legally permissible, financially feasible, and maximally productive. The highest and best use as vacant is identified through land use codes which, in part, are based on zoning. The highest and best use as improved is assumed to be the current use unless evidence shows otherwise. The property appraiser's office considers highest and best use by identifying and recording land size, zoning, building size, location and other characteristics. Once all coding is in place, comparable sales and rentals that have similar characteristics are used to value the property. The highest and best use of this property is for single-family residential use. This determination is undisputed by the petitioner and appears to have been appropriately considered by the property appraiser.

(3) Location of the property – The property appraiser assigns a neighborhood code to every property in the county. Sales of properties in the same or similar neighborhoods are typically used to determine locational adjustments. Often, site-specific location adjustments are made to reflect either an enhanced location (such as a waterfront site or in a golf course community) or an inferior location (such as adjacent to an industrial use or dumpsite). All of the comparable properties presented in support of value are located in the same neighborhood as the subject. The location of the property appears to have been appropriately considered in the determination of just value.

(4) Quantity or size of the property – The property appraiser must consider the quantity or size of the property by determining and recording the correct land size, building size, and extra features sizes and quantities. Land size is based on legal descriptions from recorded plats or metes and bounds. Building sizes and extra features are determined by inspection and measured by deputy property appraisers. From the evidence presented there do not appear to be any notable discrepancies in size or quantity beyond what is previously been discussed. There does not appear to be any discrepancy in heated building area between the parties; however, as discussed, making comparisons based on adjusted building areas after deducting extra features is inconsistent with market standards.

(5) The cost of the property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon - No separate analysis of cost has been presented during the hearing. The property appraiser indicates that typical residential homebuyers do not rely on development costs when valuing residential property. Cost calculations found on the property record card appear to be supportive of just value.

(6) Condition of the property – The property appraiser considers the condition of properties through periodic property inspections, no less than once every five years as required by Statute. Other events can trigger more frequent site inspections, including the sale of a property, issuance of a building permit, assessment appeal, or at the taxpayer's request. Condition is considered as a factor applied to the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System value calculation for value losses from all sources based upon an age/life depreciation method. Photographs of the subject property have been presented as evidence of condition. The property appraiser confirmed that a personal exterior inspection of this property has been made for the purpose of determining extra features and the condition of the property. It appears that the property appraiser has

appropriately considered this condition.

(7) The income from the property - Residential properties are typically valued for ad valorem tax purposes using the sales comparison approach, as provided for under Section 193.011, Florida Statutes. Comparable sales are relied upon due to the limited availability of market data on residential rental income, operating expenses, and capitalization rates for properties similar to the subject. In the residential market, buyers and sellers generally do not consider income-generating potential when evaluating a property for purchase. The special magistrate finds that the property appraiser has given adequate consideration to this criterion in the analysis of the property.

(8) Cost of Sale Adjustment - This criterion deals with the net proceeds from the sale of a property as received by the seller after deduction of all of the usual and reasonable fees and costs and expenses of financing and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms of financing arrangements. A few examples of the applicability of this criterion include: • unconventional or atypical financing arrangements, such as seller financing at favorable terms, which inflated the price, relative to what would have been achieved with a cash or case-equivalent arrangement, • the inclusion of tangible personal property, which may serve to increase the price above pure real property consideration, • atypically motivated buyers, who may pay a premium relative to that paid by the general market, • atypical closing costs arrangements, such as a seller paying the buyer's closing costs in exchange for a higher sales price. Because these situations may not be discoverable by the mass appraiser relying on raw gross price data, a deduction from the raw gross price is made with the goal being to arrive at 100% of the market value of the real property by eliminating any possible impact of non-real property consideration. This mass appraisal method is found to be acceptable by the Florida Department of Revenue and the Florida Courts. Applicable law provides for uniform cost of sale deductions in just valuations without regard to whether (1) the subject property was sold, (2) mass appraisal or single property appraisal is used, (3) the appraisal approach used to value the property, (4) the petitioner is seeking an increase or decrease in just value, (5) appraised development or VAB review is involved. There is no legal authority for variation in the application of cost of sale deductions based on any of the preceding conditions. The professionally accepted appraisal practice is for Florida property appraisers to uniformly make cost of sale deductions of for all property within use code groups and then report these deductions on Form DR-493 to the Department of Revenue while, understandably, avoiding the impractical task of supporting these deductions in the absence of sufficiently reliable market data that demonstrates the typical, prevalent, and representative cost of sale deductions for each class of real property. In support of consideration of this criterion, the property appraiser has presented an analysis of the ratio between the aggregate sale price paid for all comparable properties compared with their aggregate just value assessments resulting in an average cost of sale adjustment of 16%. While this calculation may demonstrate a general relationship between assessed values and sale prices within the sample, it does not establish adequate support specific to the subject property for this assessment review.

It is implicit in mass appraisal that, even when properly specified and calibrated models are employed, some individual value conclusions may not meet standards of reasonableness, consistency, and accuracy. The purpose of this value review is to determine whether the just value reported on the current tax roll represents the just value of the property after consideration of the criteria set forth in Florida Statute §193.011 and generally accepted appraisal principles, including those applicable to mass appraisal. In reviewing the evidence presented by the property appraiser at this hearing, the special magistrate finds that the property appraiser did not appropriately consider the factors set forth in Florida Statute §193.011, specifically (1), (4) and (8); and therefore, the presumption of correctness has not been established.

By filing this petition, the petitioner alleges that the property appraiser has assessed the property in excess of just value. According to 12D-9.025(3)(a) of the Florida Administrative Code, the petitioner is responsible for presenting relevant and credible evidence in support of his or her belief that the property appraiser's determination is incorrect. To prevail in an assessment challenge, the taxpayer must prove more than a mere difference of opinion regarding an assessment. The following paragraphs describe how the petitioner has addressed each of the eight criteria of the Statute.

(1) Present cash value of the property - In support of a revision to just value, the petitioner has presented the following sales:

PET Sale 1 consists of the property located at 26477 Anthony Avenue with a building size of 1,044 square feet, constructed in 2018, and situated on a land area of 7,600 square feet. The property does not have a pool. The sale occurred in August 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $210,375, which equates to $201.51 per square foot.

PET Sale 2 consists of the property located at 6429 Frank Court with a building size of 1,000 square feet, constructed in 2019, and situated on a land area of 6,044 square feet. The property does not have a pool. The sale occurred in November 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $162,500, which equates to $162.50 per square foot.

PET Sale 3 consists of the property located at 6421 Frank Court with a building size of 1,000 square feet, constructed in 2018, and situated on a land area of 6,206 square feet. The property does not have a pool. The sale occurred in April 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $183,165, which equates to $183.17 per square foot.

PET Sale 4 consists of the property located at 26370 Mc Allister Street with a building size of 1,000 square feet, constructed in 2019, and situated on a land area of 6,270 square feet. The property does not have a pool. The sale occurred in March 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $182,400, which equates to $182.40 per square foot.

PET Sale 5 consists of the property located at 27241 Roper Road with a building size of 1,144 square feet, constructed in 1982, and situated on a land area of 10,986 square feet. The property does not have a pool. The sale occurred in October 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $191,100, which equates to $167.05 per square foot.

The final adjusted sale prices range from $162,500 to $210,375, with a mean adjusted sale price of $185,908. The petitioner compares these sales based on total price. The petitioner has presented sales that are claimed to be more similar to the subject than the sales relied upon by the property appraiser. Price adjustments were made to account for differences between the sales and the subject property including a 15% adjustment for cost of sale. The petitioner has presented no rebuttal as to the property appraiser's appraisal methods or chosen sales and has not identified a specific methodological error, factual inaccuracy, or inconsistency in the property appraiser's analysis. The petitioner's analysis is based on unsupported adjustments, many of which are calculated using the assessed values of the sales. The petitioner has not visited the subject or any of the sales and has not appropriately compared condition.

(2) Highest and Best Use - The petitioner does not dispute that the highest and best use of the subject property is single-family residential.

(3) Location of the property - The petitioner appears familiar with the location characteristics of the subject property and has not claimed the presence of any atypical or adverse location factors that would materially affect its use or value.

(4) Quantity or size of the property - The petitioner does not dispute the size or quantity of the land or improvements reported by the property appraiser during the hearing, nor was any allegation made that these factors were miscalculated or improperly considered in the valuation.

(5) The cost of the property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon - The petitioner has presented no analysis of land value or depreciated building costs. Cost is rarely used to value this market sector.

(6) Condition - The petitioner has not presented any credible evidence or asserted that the condition of the property differs from the description provided by the property appraiser during the hearing. Furthermore, no claim was made regarding any significant physical deficiencies that would affect the property's use or value.

(7) The income from the property - The petitioner has presented no analysis of income and expense at this hearing, however, as mentioned, this method is also rarely used to value residential properties for ad valorem tax purposes.

(8) Cost of Sale Adjustment - The petitioner has made specific deductions for cost of sale based on the DR-493 form submitted by the property appraiser to the Florida Department of Revenue in consideration of this criterion.

The petitioner has not specifically challenged the market evidence or the analysis conducted by the property appraiser in support of the just value of the subject property. Merely presenting an alternative analysis is not sufficient to warrant a change in assessment. Pursuant to Florida Statute §194.301(1) it is the petitioner's responsibility to demonstrate that the property appraiser's evidence and/or analysis are incorrect, and that the determined value does not represent the just value of the property by a preponderance of the evidence.

After careful consideration of all evidence presented at the hearing, the special magistrate finds that the property appraiser has not established the presumption of correctness. However, the hearing record does contain competent, substantial evidence of just value that complies with the eight criteria set forth in Florida Statute §193.011 and generally accepted appraisal principles. The unadjusted sale prices for the sales contained in the hearing record range from $210,000 to $247,500. These sales were identified by both the property appraiser and the petitioner as the most comparable to the subject property. However, because the petitioner's adjustments are not supported by market evidence, they are afforded little weight. Applying a fifteen percent cost-of-sale adjustment results in an indicated value range of $178,500 to $210,375. Because the subject's just value exceeds this adjusted range, the evidence in the hearing record indicates that the assessment is overstated. Accordingly, the special magistrate recommends that the just value be revised to $210,375.

Conclusions of Law

Pursuant to §194.301(1), Florida Statutes, in an administrative action in which a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment, the property appraiser's assessment is presumed correct if the property appraiser proves by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment was arrived at in compliance with §193.011, Florida Statutes, and professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The burden of proof rests initially with the property appraiser to establish this presumption of correctness. Based upon the competent, substantial evidence presented at the hearing, the special magistrate concludes that the property appraiser did not establish the presumption of correctness. Specifically, the sales analysis relied upon by the property appraiser did not demonstrate compliance with generally accepted appraisal practices as applied in an individual assessment review, particularly with respect to the consideration of present cash value, the comparison of property size using market-recognized metrics, and the application of cost-of-sale considerations under §193.011(1), (4), and (8), Florida Statutes. Pursuant to §194.301(2), Florida Statutes, when the presumption of correctness is not established, the value adjustment board or special magistrate is required to determine the assessment if there is competent, substantial evidence of just value in the record that cumulatively meets the criteria of §193.011, Florida Statutes, and professionally accepted appraisal practices. If such evidence exists, the special magistrate is authorized to establish a revised just value based upon that evidence and is not restricted to the specific value advocated by either party. The special magistrate concludes that the hearing record does contain competent, substantial evidence of just value. The evidence presented demonstrates a supported range of market values derived from comparable sales, adjusted for reasonable and customary costs of sale, consistent with §193.011(8), Florida Statutes, and professionally accepted appraisal principles. This evidence establishes that the subject property's assessed just value exceeds the indicated market-supported range and therefore does not represent just value as of January 1, 2025. Accordingly, pursuant to §194.301(2)(b), Florida Statutes, and Rule 12D-9.027, Florida Administrative Code, the special magistrate concludes that the assessment should be revised. Based upon the weight of the evidence, the special magistrate recommends that the 2025 just value of the subject property be revised to $210,375, which is supported by the competent, substantial evidence in the hearing record and complies with the statutory requirements governing just valuation.

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

Hernando County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff.11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☒ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition #	25-316	Parcel ID	R34 223 18 3749 0180 0470
Petitioner name The petitioner is: ☐ taxpayer of record ☒ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	RYAN, INC.	Property address	469 ROCKROSE COURT SPRING HILL, FLORIDA

Decision Summary ☒ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just Value, required	$277,778	$277,778	$277,778
2. Assessed or classified use value, * if applicable	$249,630	$249,630	$249,630
3. Exempt value, * enter "0" if none	$0	$0	$0
4. Taxable value, * required	$249,630	$249,630	$249,630

*All values entered should be county taxable values, School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision

Findings of Fact

DUE TO SPACE LIMITATIONS, FINDINGS OF FACT ARE SET FORTH IN THE ATTACHED ADDENDA, WHICH IS MADE PART OF THIS RECOMMENDATION REPORT.

Conclusions of Law

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW ARE PROVIDED IN THE ATTACHED ADDENDA, INCORPORATED HEREIN BY REFERENCE.

☒ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	ROBERT C. HICKS Print Name	FEB 6, 2026 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____.
Address: Hernando County Gov't Center BOCC Chambers, Room 160, 20 North Main Street, Brooksville, Florida 34601.
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered.
To find the information, please call (352) 754-4970, or visit our website at vab@hernandoclerk.org.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print Name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date mailed to parties

Addenda

Findings Of Fact

Petitioner Natasha Elliott with Ryan, Inc. appeared telephonically on behalf of PROGRESS RESIDENTIAL BORROWER 14 LLC on January 27, 2026 to provide testimonial and documentary evidence pertaining to the 2025 property assessment for real property located in Hernando County, Florida. The Hernando County Property Appraiser's Office was represented at the hearing by Deputy Appraisers Doug Mack, CFE, Residential Supervisor and Brandon Jimenez, CFE. An opening statement regarding the hearing process and rules of procedure was read and all parties were placed under oath. This petition is one of 22 presented by the petitioner on this hearing date. The specific case numbers are 25-297 through 25-318, inclusive. Any relevant testimony presented during these individual hearings will be incorporated by reference to all hearings to avoid redundancy and expedite the hearing process.

The subject of this petition is listed on the Hernando County tax roll as Parcel ID R34 223 18 3749 0180 0470. This property is described as a single-family residence with a two-car garage and no pool. The subject property is located at 469 Rockrose Court, Spring Hill, Hernando County, Florida. The property consists of 2,140 square feet of adjusted building area with 1,817 square feet of heated building area on a 5,666-square-foot residential lot. The improvements were constructed in 2007. Based on an inspection of the property on September 22, 2025, the property appraiser has determined that the building improvements are of typical construction quality and in average condition. It appears that the subject of this petition has not sold within the 12-month period preceding the January 1 valuation date.

The property appraiser has confirmed the 2025 just value at $277,778, with an assessed value of $249,630 and a taxable value of $249,630. There have been no changes to the values since the Notice of Proposed Property Taxes (TRIM) was issued. The petitioner is requesting a revision to the 2025 just value, proposing a revision in just value to $263,441. This request is supported by sales comparison.

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence, see Florida Administrative Code 12D-9.025(1). Generally, relevant evidence is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. The evidence meets or exceeds a minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. Documentary evidence presented by the property appraiser during the hearing is described and labeled as follows:

- PAO-A (16 pages) - Cover page, case synopsis, subject property record card with building sketch and photograph, sales analysis grid, comparable location map, analysis of sales data, property record card for each sale, list of structure area adjustments

Documentary evidence presented by the petitioner during the hearing is described and labeled as follows:

- PET-1 (9 pages) - Petition, cover page, summary of evidence, sales adjustment grid, adjustment formulas, aerial photograph of subject, street map, location map showing subject and sales

The property appraiser has not raised any objections to the evidence presented by the petitioner during the hearing.

The Florida Legislature has enacted eight criteria that the property appraiser must consider when determining just value. In any administrative or judicial action where a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment, the property appraiser's estimate of just value is presumed correct if it is proven that the assessment was made in compliance with the eight criteria outlined in Section 193.011, Florida Statutes and in accordance with professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The only standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence, meaning the greater weight of evidence, or "more likely than not."

Florida courts have consistently held that the property appraiser is only required to consider the eight criteria, and that applying each factor is not mandatory. The courts have further found that if any one criterion does not reflect just value, it should be disregarded by the property appraiser. The special magistrate finds and summarizes the extent to which the property appraiser has considered each of these criteria in the following paragraphs.

(1) Present cash value of the property - The amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arms-length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In short, the price without transaction costs. The buyer typically pays more, and the seller typically receives less than the price indicated by the documentary stamps due to these transaction costs. In mass appraising, the property appraiser considers this criterion by applying or considering the comparable market sales using the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through comparable sales analysis similar to that found in a fee appraisal. The amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arms-length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In short, the price without transaction costs. The buyer typically pays more, and the seller typically receives less than the price indicated by the documentary stamps due to these transaction costs. In mass appraising, the property appraiser considers this criterion by applying or considering the comparable market sales using the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through

comparable sales analysis similar to that found in a fee appraisal. The property appraiser has presented sales evidence in support of the present cash value. Following are brief descriptions of the sales determined by the property appraiser to be most comparable to the subject and representative of value sourced by property record cards:

PA Sale 1: 211 Fairmont Dr reflects a heated building area of 1,871 square feet with a 2006 year built. The sale date is September 2024. The sale price is $310,000.

PA Sale 2: 624 Winthrop Dr reflects a heated building area of 1,830 square feet with a 2006 year built. The sale date is February 2024. The sale price is $329,000.

PA Sale 3: 14223 Saltby Pl reflects a heated building area of 1,846 square feet with a 2014 year built. The sale date is February 2024. The sale price is $368,000.

In considering these sales, the property appraiser has compared them based on per adjusted square foot price. Three qualified sales judged to be most comparable to the subject have been presented in support of value. The sales were selected based on similar location, age, size and utility. The property appraiser's approach relies on feature value deductions and weighted "adjusted building area" calculations rather than paired-sales analysis or market-derived adjustments. Florida appraisal standards and case law (e.g., Valencia Center, Inc. v. Bystrom, 543 So. 2d 214 [Fla. 1989]) require that just value determinations be supported by market evidence showing how specific features or characteristics influence sale prices. Deducting fixed feature values from sale prices without verifying their market validity substitutes internal modeling for actual market behavior. While this may be useful for mass appraisal purposes, it does not provide the level of market support required in an individual value review before the Value Adjustment Board. A credible defense of just value in a hearing must demonstrate how specific comparable sales support the subject's assessed value through observable market adjustments. Reliance on internal modeling, without direct evidence of how the market reacts to property differences, fails to establish that the property appraiser's value represents the amount a willing buyer and seller would agree upon under normal conditions. Secondly, the "adjusted building area" metric has no direct market analogue. Buyers and appraisers typically compare residential properties based on heated living area (gross living area per ANSI or Fannie Mae standards). Introducing a proprietary or synthetic size measure distorts the relationship between price and size, undermining the comparability of sales. This means the model may show internal consistency but not external validity in the open market. It is the opinion of the special magistrate that this sales analysis does not follow with generally accepted appraisal practices.

(2) Highest & Best Use – This relates to the consideration of the fundamental appraisal concept of highest and best use or best use to which the property can be expected to be put in the immediate future. For improved properties, the highest and best use of the property as if vacant should be considered as well. The four steps establishing highest and best use are consideration of what is physically possible, legally permissible, financially feasible, and maximally productive. The highest and best use as vacant is identified through land use codes which, in part, are based on zoning. The highest and best use as improved is assumed to be the current use unless evidence shows otherwise. The property appraiser's office considers highest and best use by identifying and recording land size, zoning, building size, location and other characteristics. Once all coding is in place, comparable sales and rentals that have similar characteristics are used to value the property. The highest and best use of this property is for single-family residential use. This determination is undisputed by the petitioner and appears to have been appropriately considered by the property appraiser.

(3) Location of the property – The property appraiser assigns a neighborhood code to every property in the county. Sales of properties in the same or similar neighborhoods are typically used to determine locational adjustments. Often, site-specific location adjustments are made to reflect either an enhanced location (such as a waterfront site or in a golf course community) or an inferior location (such as adjacent to an industrial use or dumpsite). All of the comparable properties presented in support of value are located in the same neighborhood as the subject. The location of the property appears to have been appropriately considered in the determination of just value.

(4) Quantity or size of the property – The property appraiser must consider the quantity or size of the property by determining and recording the correct land size, building size, and extra features sizes and quantities. Land size is based on legal descriptions from recorded plats or metes and bounds. Building sizes and extra features are determined by inspection and measured by deputy property appraisers. From the evidence presented there do not appear to be any notable discrepancies in size or quantity beyond what is previously been discussed. There does not appear to be any discrepancy in heated building area between the parties; however, as discussed, making comparisons based on adjusted building areas after deducting extra features is inconsistent with market standards.

(5) The cost of the property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon - No separate analysis of cost has been presented during the hearing. The property appraiser indicates that typical residential homebuyers do not rely on development costs when valuing residential property. Cost calculations found on the property record card appear to be supportive of just value.

(6) Condition of the property – The property appraiser considers the condition of properties through periodic property inspections, no less than once every five years as required by Statute. Other events can trigger more frequent site inspections, including the sale of a property, issuance of a building permit, assessment appeal, or at the taxpayer's request. Condition is considered as a factor applied to the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System value calculation for value losses from all sources based upon an age/life depreciation method. Photographs of the subject property have been presented as evidence of condition. The property appraiser confirmed that a personal exterior inspection of this property has been made for the purpose of determining extra features and the condition of the property. It appears that the property appraiser has

appropriately considered this condition.

(7) The income from the property - Residential properties are typically valued for ad valorem tax purposes using the sales comparison approach, as provided for under Section 193.011, Florida Statutes. Comparable sales are relied upon due to the limited availability of market data on residential rental income, operating expenses, and capitalization rates for properties similar to the subject. In the residential market, buyers and sellers generally do not consider income-generating potential when evaluating a property for purchase. The special magistrate finds that the property appraiser has given adequate consideration to this criterion in the analysis of the property.

(8) Cost of Sale Adjustment - This criterion deals with the net proceeds from the sale of a property as received by the seller after deduction of all of the usual and reasonable fees and costs and expenses of financing and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms of financing arrangements. A few examples of the applicability of this criterion include: • unconventional or atypical financing arrangements, such as seller financing at favorable terms, which inflated the price, relative to what would have been achieved with a cash or case-equivalent arrangement, • the inclusion of tangible personal property, which may serve to increase the price above pure real property consideration, • atypically motivated buyers, who may pay a premium relative to that paid by the general market, • atypical closing costs arrangements, such as a seller paying the buyer's closing costs in exchange for a higher sales price. Because these situations may not be discoverable by the mass appraiser relying on raw gross price data, a deduction from the raw gross price is made with the goal being to arrive at 100% of the market value of the real property by eliminating any possible impact of non-real property consideration. This mass appraisal method is found to be acceptable by the Florida Department of Revenue and the Florida Courts. Applicable law provides for uniform cost of sale deductions in just valuations without regard to whether (1) the subject property was sold, (2) mass appraisal or single property appraisal is used, (3) the appraisal approach used to value the property, (4) the petitioner is seeking an increase or decrease in just value, (5) appraised development or VAB review is involved. There is no legal authority for variation in the application of cost of sale deductions based on any of the preceding conditions. The professionally accepted appraisal practice is for Florida property appraisers to uniformly make cost of sale deductions of for all property within use code groups and then report these deductions on Form DR-493 to the Department of Revenue while, understandably, avoiding the impractical task of supporting these deductions in the absence of sufficiently reliable market data that demonstrates the typical, prevalent, and representative cost of sale deductions for each class of real property. In support of consideration of this criterion, the property appraiser has presented an analysis of the ratio between the aggregate sale price paid for all comparable properties compared with their aggregate just value assessments resulting in an average cost of sale adjustment of 15%. While this calculation may demonstrate a general relationship between assessed values and sale prices within the sample, it does not establish adequate support specific to the subject property for this assessment review.

It is implicit in mass appraisal that, even when properly specified and calibrated models are employed, some individual value conclusions may not meet standards of reasonableness, consistency, and accuracy. The purpose of this value review is to determine whether the just value reported on the current tax roll represents the just value of the property after consideration of the criteria set forth in Florida Statute §193.011 and generally accepted appraisal principles, including those applicable to mass appraisal. In reviewing the evidence presented by the property appraiser at this hearing, the special magistrate finds that the property appraiser did not appropriately consider the factors set forth in Florida Statute §193.011, specifically (1), (4) and (8); and therefore, the presumption of correctness has not been established.

By filing this petition, the petitioner alleges that the property appraiser has assessed the property in excess of just value. According to 12D-9.025(3)(a) of the Florida Administrative Code, the petitioner is responsible for presenting relevant and credible evidence in support of his or her belief that the property appraiser's determination is incorrect. To prevail in an assessment challenge, the taxpayer must prove more than a mere difference of opinion regarding an assessment. The following paragraphs describe how the petitioner has addressed each of the eight criteria of the Statute.

(1) Present cash value of the property - In support of a revision to just value, the petitioner has presented the following sales:

PET Sale 1: 675 Winthrop Dr reflects a building size of 2,080 square feet with a 2007 year built, on a 5,500 square foot site with no pool. The sale date is January 2025. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $186,000, or $89.42 per square foot.

PET Sale 2: 698 Winthrop Dr reflects a building size of 1,529 square feet with a 2008 year built, on a 6,556 square foot site with no pool. The sale date is August 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $275,500, or $180.18 per square foot. This adjusted sale price does not support a reduction in assessment.

PET Sale 3: 624 Winthrop Dr reflects a building size of 1,830 square feet with a 2006 year built, on a 6,000 square foot site with no pool. The sale date is February 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $279,650, or $152.81 per square foot. This adjusted sale price does not support a reduction in assessment.

PET Sale 4: 453 Winthrop Dr reflects a building size of 2,006 square feet with a 2010 year built, on a 6,001 square foot site with no pool. The sale date is December 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $287,250, or $186.77 per square foot. This adjusted sale price does not support a reduction in assessment.

PET Sale 5: 416 Winthrop Dr reflects a building size of 2,006 square feet with a 2010 year built, on a 6,141 square foot site with no pool. The sale date is March 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $251,750, or $125.50 per square foot.

PET Sale 6: 408 Winthrop Dr reflects a building size of 1,538 square feet with a 2010 year built, on a 6,001 square foot site with no pool. The sale date is August 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $300,500, or $195.38 per square foot. This adjusted sale price does not support a reduction in assessment.

The final adjusted sale prices range from $186,000 to $300,500, with a mean of $263,442. PET Sales 2, 3, 4 and 6 have Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price per square foot greater than the PSF Just Value. The petitioner compares these sales based on total price. The petitioner has presented sales that are claimed to be more similar to the subject than the sales relied upon by the property appraiser. Price adjustments were made to account for differences between the sales and the subject property including a 15% adjustment for cost of sale. The petitioner has presented no rebuttal as to the property appraiser's appraisal methods or chosen sales and has not identified a specific methodological error, factual inaccuracy, or inconsistency in the property appraiser's analysis. The petitioner's analysis is based on unsupported adjustments, many of which are calculated using the assessed values of the sales. The petitioner has not visited the subject or any of the sales and has not appropriately compared condition. The property appraiser's just value is within the range of adjusted sale prices presented by the petitioner and the per-square-foot just value is supported by one or more of the petitioner's adjusted per-square foot sale prices.

(2) Highest and Best Use - The petitioner does not dispute that the highest and best use of the subject property is single-family residential.

(3) Location of the property - The petitioner appears familiar with the location characteristics of the subject property and has not claimed the presence of any atypical or adverse location factors that would materially affect its use or value.

(4) Quantity or size of the property - The petitioner does not dispute the size or quantity of the land or improvements reported by the property appraiser during the hearing, nor was any allegation made that these factors were miscalculated or improperly considered in the valuation.

(5) The cost of the property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon - The petitioner has presented no analysis of land value or depreciated building costs. Cost is rarely used to value this market sector.

(6) Condition - The petitioner has not presented any credible evidence or asserted that the condition of the property differs from the description provided by the property appraiser during the hearing. Furthermore, no claim was made regarding any significant physical deficiencies that would affect the property's use or value.

(7) The income from the property - The petitioner has presented no analysis of income and expense at this hearing, however, as mentioned, this method is also rarely used to value residential properties for ad valorem tax purposes.

(8) Cost of Sale Adjustment - The petitioner has made specific deductions for cost of sale based on the DR-493 form submitted by the property appraiser to the Florida Department of Revenue in consideration of this criterion.

The petitioner has not specifically challenged the market evidence or the analysis conducted by the property appraiser in support of the just value of the subject property. Merely presenting an alternative analysis is not sufficient to warrant a change in assessment. Pursuant to Florida Statute §194.301(1) it is the petitioner's responsibility to demonstrate that the property appraiser's evidence and/or analysis are incorrect, and that the determined value does not represent the just value of the property by a preponderance of the evidence.

After careful consideration of all evidence presented at the hearing, the special magistrate finds that the property appraiser has not established the presumption of correctness. However, the hearing record does contain competent, substantial evidence of just value that complies with the eight criteria set forth in Florida Statute §193.011 and generally accepted appraisal principles. The unadjusted sale prices for the sales contained in the hearing record range from $250,000 to $368,000. These sales were identified by both the property appraiser and the petitioner as the most comparable to the subject property. However, because the petitioner's adjustments are not supported by market evidence, they are afforded little weight. Applying a fifteen percent cost-of-sale adjustment results in an indicated value range of $212,500 to $312,800. Because the subject's just value does not exceed this adjusted range, the evidence in the hearing record indicates that the assessment is not overstated. Accordingly, the special magistrate recommends no change in the just value established by the property appraiser.

Conclusions of Law

Pursuant to §194.301(1), Florida Statutes, in any administrative action in which a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment of value, the property appraiser's assessment is presumed correct if the property appraiser proves by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment was arrived at in compliance with §193.011, Florida Statutes, and professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The applicable standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence. Based upon the evidence presented and admitted at the hearing, the special magistrate concludes that the property appraiser did not establish the presumption of correctness. The evidence relied upon by the property appraiser did not sufficiently demonstrate that all applicable statutory criteria were properly considered in a manner consistent with generally accepted appraisal practices for an individual assessment review. Pursuant to §194.301(2)(b), Florida Statutes, when the presumption of correctness is not established, the value adjustment board or special magistrate is required to determine the assessment if there is competent, substantial evidence of just value in the hearing record which cumulatively satisfies the criteria set forth in §193.011, Florida Statutes, and professionally accepted appraisal practices. The special magistrate is not required to adopt the specific value advocated by either party and may establish or affirm a value supported by the competent, substantial evidence in the record. The special magistrate concludes that the hearing record contains competent, substantial evidence of just value. The market evidence presented and admitted at the hearing, when considered in its entirety and in light of the statutory valuation criteria, supports the conclusion that the just value determined by the property appraiser is supported by the evidence and is not shown to be excessive, insufficient, or otherwise incorrect by a preponderance of the evidence. Accordingly, pursuant to §194.301, Florida Statutes, and the applicable provisions of Rule Chapter 12D-9, Florida Administrative Code, the special magistrate recommends that the value adjustment board take no action to change the just value determined by the property appraiser.

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

Hernando County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff.11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☒ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition #	25-317	Parcel ID	R34 223 18 3750 0010 0060
Petitioner name The petitioner is: ☐ taxpayer of record ☒ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	RYAN, INC.	Property address	14388 FINSBURY DRIVE SPRING HILL, FLORIDA

Decision Summary ☒ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just Value, required	$389,023	$389,023	$389,023
2. Assessed or classified use value, * if applicable	$344,161	$344,161	$344,161
3. Exempt value, * enter "0" if none	$0	$0	$0
4. Taxable value, * required	$344,161	$344,161	$344,161

*All values entered should be county taxable values, School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision

Findings of Fact

DUE TO SPACE LIMITATIONS, FINDINGS OF FACT ARE SET FORTH IN THE ATTACHED ADDENDA, WHICH IS MADE PART OF THIS RECOMMENDATION REPORT.

Conclusions of Law

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW ARE PROVIDED IN THE ATTACHED ADDENDA, INCORPORATED HEREIN BY REFERENCE.

☒ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	ROBERT C. HICKS Print Name	FEB 6, 2026 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____.
Address: Hernando County Gov't Center BOCC Chambers, Room 160, 20 North Main Street, Brooksville, Florida 34601.
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered.
To find the information, please call (352) 754-4970, or visit our website at vab@hernandoclerk.org.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print Name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date mailed to parties

Addenda

Findings Of Fact

Petitioner Natasha Elliott with Ryan, Inc. appeared telephonically on behalf of PROGRESS RESIDENTIAL BORROWER 6 LLC on January 27, 2026 to provide testimonial and documentary evidence pertaining to the 2025 property assessment for real property located in Hernando County, Florida. The Hernando County Property Appraiser's Office was represented at the hearing by Deputy Appraisers Doug Mack, CFE, Residential Supervisor and Brandon Jimenez, CFE. An opening statement regarding the hearing process and rules of procedure was read and all parties were placed under oath. This petition is one of 22 presented by the petitioner on this hearing date. The specific case numbers are 25-297 through 25-318, inclusive. Any relevant testimony presented during these individual hearings will be incorporated by reference to all hearings to avoid redundancy and expedite the hearing process.

The subject of this petition is listed on the Hernando County tax roll as Parcel ID R34 223 18 3750 0010 0060. This property is described as a two-story single-family residence with a two-car garage and no pool. The subject property is located at 14388 Finsbury Drive, Spring Hill, Hernando County, Florida. The property consists of 3,077 square feet of adjusted building area with 2,852 square feet of heated building area on a 5,500-square-foot residential lot. The improvements were constructed in 2007. Based on an inspection of the property on September 22, 2025, the property appraiser has determined that the building improvements are of typical construction quality and in average condition. It appears that the subject of this petition has not sold within the 12-month period preceding the January 1 valuation date.

The property appraiser has confirmed the 2025 just value at $389,023, with an assessed value of $344,161 and a taxable value of $344,161. There have been no changes to the values since the Notice of Proposed Property Taxes (TRIM) was issued. The petitioner is requesting a revision to the 2025 just value, proposing a revision in just value to $339,838. This request is supported by sales comparison.

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence, see Florida Administrative Code 12D-9.025(1). Generally, relevant evidence is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. The evidence meets or exceeds a minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. Documentary evidence presented by the property appraiser during the hearing is described and labeled as follows:

- PAO-A (15 pages) - Cover page, case synopsis, subject property record card with building sketch and photograph, sales analysis grid, comparable location map, analysis of sales data, property record card for each sale, list of structure area adjustments

Documentary evidence presented by the petitioner during the hearing is described and labeled as follows:

- PET-1 (9 pages) - Petition, cover page, summary of evidence, sales adjustment grid, adjustment formulas, aerial photograph of subject, street map, location map showing subject and sales

The property appraiser has not raised any objections to the evidence presented by the petitioner during the hearing.

The Florida Legislature has enacted eight criteria that the property appraiser must consider when determining just value. In any administrative or judicial action where a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment, the property appraiser's estimate of just value is presumed correct if it is proven that the assessment was made in compliance with the eight criteria outlined in Section 193.011, Florida Statutes and in accordance with professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The only standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence, meaning the greater weight of evidence, or "more likely than not."

Florida courts have consistently held that the property appraiser is only required to consider the eight criteria, and that applying each factor is not mandatory. The courts have further found that if any one criterion does not reflect just value, it should be disregarded by the property appraiser. The special magistrate finds and summarizes the extent to which the property appraiser has considered each of these criteria in the following paragraphs.

(1) Present cash value of the property - The amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arms-length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In short, the price without transaction costs. The buyer typically pays more, and the seller typically receives less than the price indicated by the documentary stamps due to these transaction costs. In mass appraising, the property appraiser considers this criterion by applying or considering the comparable market sales using the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through comparable sales analysis similar to that found in a fee appraisal. The amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arms-length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In short, the price without transaction costs. The buyer typically pays more, and the seller typically receives less than the price indicated by the documentary stamps due to these transaction costs. In mass appraising, the property appraiser considers this criterion by applying or considering the comparable market sales using the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through

comparable sales analysis similar to that found in a fee appraisal. The property appraiser has presented sales evidence in support of the present cash value. Following are brief descriptions of the sales determined by the property appraiser to be most comparable to the subject and representative of value sourced by property record cards:

PA Sale 1: 14223 Finsbury Dr reflects a heated building area of 2,747 square feet with a 2016 year built. The sale date is May 2024. The sale price is $394,300.

PA Sale 2: 13380 Barkingside Pl reflects a heated building area of 2,543 square feet with a 2014 year built. The sale date is December 2024. The sale price is $435,000.

PA Sale 3: 763 Old Windsor Way reflects a heated building area of 2,865 square feet with a 2021 year built. The sale date is June 2024. The sale price is $516,300.

In considering these sales, the property appraiser has compared them based on per adjusted square foot price. Three qualified sales judged to be most comparable to the subject have been presented in support of value. The sales were selected based on similar location, age, size and utility. The property appraiser's approach relies on feature value deductions and weighted "adjusted building area" calculations rather than paired-sales analysis or market-derived adjustments. Florida appraisal standards and case law (e.g., Valencia Center, Inc. v. Bystrom, 543 So. 2d 214 [Fla. 1989]) require that just value determinations be supported by market evidence showing how specific features or characteristics influence sale prices. Deducting fixed feature values from sale prices without verifying their market validity substitutes internal modeling for actual market behavior. While this may be useful for mass appraisal purposes, it does not provide the level of market support required in an individual value review before the Value Adjustment Board. A credible defense of just value in a hearing must demonstrate how specific comparable sales support the subject's assessed value through observable market adjustments. Reliance on internal modeling, without direct evidence of how the market reacts to property differences, fails to establish that the property appraiser's value represents the amount a willing buyer and seller would agree upon under normal conditions. Secondly, the "adjusted building area" metric has no direct market analogue. Buyers and appraisers typically compare residential properties based on heated living area (gross living area per ANSI or Fannie Mae standards). Introducing a proprietary or synthetic size measure distorts the relationship between price and size, undermining the comparability of sales. This means the model may show internal consistency but not external validity in the open market. It is the opinion of the special magistrate that this sales analysis does not follow with generally accepted appraisal practices.

(2) Highest & Best Use – This relates to the consideration of the fundamental appraisal concept of highest and best use or best use to which the property can be expected to be put in the immediate future. For improved properties, the highest and best use of the property as if vacant should be considered as well. The four steps establishing highest and best use are consideration of what is physically possible, legally permissible, financially feasible, and maximally productive. The highest and best use as vacant is identified through land use codes which, in part, are based on zoning. The highest and best use as improved is assumed to be the current use unless evidence shows otherwise. The property appraiser's office considers highest and best use by identifying and recording land size, zoning, building size, location and other characteristics. Once all coding is in place, comparable sales and rentals that have similar characteristics are used to value the property. The highest and best use of this property is for single-family residential use. This determination is undisputed by the petitioner and appears to have been appropriately considered by the property appraiser.

(3) Location of the property – The property appraiser assigns a neighborhood code to every property in the county. Sales of properties in the same or similar neighborhoods are typically used to determine locational adjustments. Often, site-specific location adjustments are made to reflect either an enhanced location (such as a waterfront site or in a golf course community) or an inferior location (such as adjacent to an industrial use or dumpsite). All of the comparable properties presented in support of value are located in the same neighborhood as the subject. The location of the property appears to have been appropriately considered in the determination of just value.

(4) Quantity or size of the property – The property appraiser must consider the quantity or size of the property by determining and recording the correct land size, building size, and extra features sizes and quantities. Land size is based on legal descriptions from recorded plats or metes and bounds. Building sizes and extra features are determined by inspection and measured by deputy property appraisers. From the evidence presented there do not appear to be any notable discrepancies in size or quantity beyond what is previously been discussed. There does not appear to be any discrepancy in heated building area between the parties; however, as discussed, making comparisons based on adjusted building areas after deducting extra features is inconsistent with market standards.

(5) The cost of the property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon - No separate analysis of cost has been presented during the hearing. The property appraiser indicates that typical residential homebuyers do not rely on development costs when valuing residential property. Cost calculations found on the property record card appear to be supportive of just value.

(6) Condition of the property – The property appraiser considers the condition of properties through periodic property inspections, no less than once every five years as required by Statute. Other events can trigger more frequent site inspections, including the sale of a property, issuance of a building permit, assessment appeal, or at the taxpayer's request. Condition is considered as a factor applied to the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System value calculation for value losses from all sources based upon an age/life depreciation method. Photographs of the subject property have been presented as evidence of condition. The property appraiser confirmed that a personal exterior inspection of this property has been made for the purpose of determining extra features and the condition of the property. It appears that the property appraiser has

appropriately considered this condition.

(7) The income from the property - Residential properties are typically valued for ad valorem tax purposes using the sales comparison approach, as provided for under Section 193.011, Florida Statutes. Comparable sales are relied upon due to the limited availability of market data on residential rental income, operating expenses, and capitalization rates for properties similar to the subject. In the residential market, buyers and sellers generally do not consider income-generating potential when evaluating a property for purchase. The special magistrate finds that the property appraiser has given adequate consideration to this criterion in the analysis of the property.

(8) Cost of Sale Adjustment - This criterion deals with the net proceeds from the sale of a property as received by the seller after deduction of all of the usual and reasonable fees and costs and expenses of financing and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms of financing arrangements. A few examples of the applicability of this criterion include: • unconventional or atypical financing arrangements, such as seller financing at favorable terms, which inflated the price, relative to what would have been achieved with a cash or case-equivalent arrangement, • the inclusion of tangible personal property, which may serve to increase the price above pure real property consideration, • atypically motivated buyers, who may pay a premium relative to that paid by the general market, • atypical closing costs arrangements, such as a seller paying the buyer's closing costs in exchange for a higher sales price. Because these situations may not be discoverable by the mass appraiser relying on raw gross price data, a deduction from the raw gross price is made with the goal being to arrive at 100% of the market value of the real property by eliminating any possible impact of non-real property consideration. This mass appraisal method is found to be acceptable by the Florida Department of Revenue and the Florida Courts. Applicable law provides for uniform cost of sale deductions in just valuations without regard to whether (1) the subject property was sold, (2) mass appraisal or single property appraisal is used, (3) the appraisal approach used to value the property, (4) the petitioner is seeking an increase or decrease in just value, (5) appraised development or VAB review is involved. There is no legal authority for variation in the application of cost of sale deductions based on any of the preceding conditions. The professionally accepted appraisal practice is for Florida property appraisers to uniformly make cost of sale deductions of for all property within use code groups and then report these deductions on Form DR-493 to the Department of Revenue while, understandably, avoiding the impractical task of supporting these deductions in the absence of sufficiently reliable market data that demonstrates the typical, prevalent, and representative cost of sale deductions for each class of real property. In support of consideration of this criterion, the property appraiser has presented an analysis of the ratio between the aggregate sale price paid for all comparable properties compared with their aggregate just value assessments resulting in an average cost of sale adjustment of 10%. While this calculation may demonstrate a general relationship between assessed values and sale prices within the sample, it does not establish adequate support specific to the subject property for this assessment review.

It is implicit in mass appraisal that, even when properly specified and calibrated models are employed, some individual value conclusions may not meet standards of reasonableness, consistency, and accuracy. The purpose of this value review is to determine whether the just value reported on the current tax roll represents the just value of the property after consideration of the criteria set forth in Florida Statute §193.011 and generally accepted appraisal principles, including those applicable to mass appraisal. In reviewing the evidence presented by the property appraiser at this hearing, the special magistrate finds that the property appraiser did not appropriately consider the factors set forth in Florida Statute §193.011, specifically (1), (4) and (8); and therefore, the presumption of correctness has not been established.

By filing this petition, the petitioner alleges that the property appraiser has assessed the property in excess of just value. According to 12D-9.025(3)(a) of the Florida Administrative Code, the petitioner is responsible for presenting relevant and credible evidence in support of his or her belief that the property appraiser's determination is incorrect. To prevail in an assessment challenge, the taxpayer must prove more than a mere difference of opinion regarding an assessment. The following paragraphs describe how the petitioner has addressed each of the eight criteria of the Statute.

(1) Present cash value of the property - In support of a revision to just value, the petitioner has presented the following sales:

PET Sale 1: 14223 Finsbury Dr reflects a building size of 3,496 square feet with a 2016 year built, on a 6,759 square foot site with no pool. The sale date is May 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $318,655, or $116.00 per square foot.

PET Sale 2: 14222 Finsbury Dr reflects a building size of 2,677 square feet with a 2016 year built, on a 6,759 square foot site with no pool. The sale date is April 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $325,500, or $121.55 per square foot.

PET Sale 3: 993 Nodding Shade Dr reflects a building size of 2,515 square feet with a 2006 year built, on a 5,600 square foot site with no pool. The sale date is September 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $360,625, or $143.39 per square foot. This adjusted sale price does not support a reduction in assessment.

PET Sale 4: 898 Nodding Shade Dr reflects a building size of 3,208 square feet with a 2006 year built, on a 6,480 square foot site with no pool. The sale date is March 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $353,000, or $140.36 per square foot. This adjusted sale price does not support a reduction in assessment.

PET Sale 5: 14321 Wake Robin Dr reflects a building size of 2,515 square feet with a 2006 year built, on a 5,929 square foot site with no pool. The sale date is April 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $330,500, or $131.41 per square foot.

PET Sale 6: 1000 Nodding Shade Dr reflects a building size of 2,665 square feet with a 2006 year built, on a 5,500 square foot site with no pool.

The sale date is May 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $350,750, or $131.61 per square foot. This adjusted sale price does not support a reduction in assessment.

The final adjusted sale prices range from $318,655 to $360,625, with a mean of $339,838. PET Sale 3, PET Sale 4, PET Sale 5 and PET Sale 6 have Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price per square foot greater than the PSF Just Value. The petitioner compares these sales based on total price. The petitioner has presented sales that are claimed to be more similar to the subject than the sales relied upon by the property appraiser. Price adjustments were made to account for differences between the sales and the subject property including a 15% adjustment for cost of sale. The petitioner has presented no rebuttal as to the property appraiser's appraisal methods or chosen sales and has not identified a specific methodological error, factual inaccuracy, or inconsistency in the property appraiser's analysis. The petitioner's analysis is based on unsupported adjustments, many of which are calculated using the assessed values of the sales. The petitioner has not visited the subject or any of the sales and has not appropriately compared condition. The property appraiser's just value is within the range of adjusted sale prices presented by the petitioner and the per-square-foot just value is supported by one or more of the petitioner's adjusted per-square foot sale prices.

(2) Highest and Best Use - The petitioner does not dispute that the highest and best use of the subject property is single-family residential.

(3) Location of the property - The petitioner appears familiar with the location characteristics of the subject property and has not claimed the presence of any atypical or adverse location factors that would materially affect its use or value.

(4) Quantity or size of the property - The petitioner does not dispute the size or quantity of the land or improvements reported by the property appraiser during the hearing, nor was any allegation made that these factors were miscalculated or improperly considered in the valuation.

(5) The cost of the property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon - The petitioner has presented no analysis of land value or depreciated building costs. Cost is rarely used to value this market sector.

(6) Condition - The petitioner has not presented any credible evidence or asserted that the condition of the property differs from the description provided by the property appraiser during the hearing. Furthermore, no claim was made regarding any significant physical deficiencies that would affect the property's use or value.

(7) The income from the property - The petitioner has presented no analysis of income and expense at this hearing, however, as mentioned, this method is also rarely used to value residential properties for ad valorem tax purposes.

(8) Cost of Sale Adjustment - The petitioner has made specific deductions for cost of sale based on the DR-493 form submitted by the property appraiser to the Florida Department of Revenue in consideration of this criterion.

The petitioner has not specifically challenged the market evidence or the analysis conducted by the property appraiser in support of the just value of the subject property. Merely presenting an alternative analysis is not sufficient to warrant a change in assessment. Pursuant to Florida Statute §194.301(1) it is the petitioner's responsibility to demonstrate that the property appraiser's evidence and/or analysis are incorrect, and that the determined value does not represent the just value of the property by a preponderance of the evidence.

After careful consideration of all evidence presented at the hearing, the special magistrate finds that the property appraiser has not established the presumption of correctness. However, the hearing record does contain competent, substantial evidence of just value that complies with the eight criteria set forth in Florida Statute §193.011 and generally accepted appraisal principles. The unadjusted sale prices for the sales contained in the hearing record range from $330,000 to $516,300. These sales were identified by both the property appraiser and the petitioner as the most comparable to the subject property. However, because the petitioner's adjustments are not supported by market evidence, they are afforded little weight. Applying a fifteen percent cost-of-sale adjustment results in an indicated value range of $280,500 to $438,855. Because the subject's just value does not exceed this adjusted range, the evidence in the hearing record indicates that the assessment is not overstated. Accordingly, the special magistrate recommends no change in the just value established by the property appraiser.

Conclusions of Law

Pursuant to §194.301(1), Florida Statutes, in any administrative action in which a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment of value, the property appraiser's assessment is presumed correct if the property appraiser proves by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment was arrived at in compliance with §193.011, Florida Statutes, and professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The applicable standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence. Based upon the evidence presented and admitted at the hearing, the special magistrate concludes that the property appraiser did not establish the presumption of correctness. The evidence relied upon by the property appraiser did not sufficiently demonstrate that all applicable statutory criteria were properly considered in a manner consistent with generally accepted appraisal practices for an individual assessment review. Pursuant to §194.301(2)(b), Florida Statutes, when the presumption of correctness is not established, the value adjustment board or special magistrate is required to determine the assessment if there is competent, substantial evidence of just value in the hearing record which cumulatively satisfies the criteria set forth in §193.011, Florida Statutes, and professionally accepted appraisal practices. The special magistrate is not required to adopt the specific value advocated by either party and may establish or affirm a value supported by the competent, substantial evidence in the record. The special magistrate concludes that the hearing record contains competent, substantial evidence of just value. The market evidence presented and admitted at the hearing, when considered in its entirety and in light of the statutory valuation criteria, supports the conclusion that the just value determined by the property appraiser is supported by the evidence and is not shown to be excessive, insufficient, or otherwise incorrect by a preponderance of the evidence. Accordingly, pursuant to §194.301, Florida Statutes, and the applicable provisions of Rule Chapter 12D-9, Florida Administrative Code, the special magistrate recommends that the value adjustment board take no action to change the just value determined by the property appraiser.

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

Hernando County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff.11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☒ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition #	25-318	Parcel ID	R34 223 18 3750 0040 0020
Petitioner name The petitioner is: ☐ taxpayer of record ☒ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	RYAN, INC.	Property address	14471 FINSBURY DRIVE SPRING HILL, FLORIDA

Decision Summary ☐ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☒ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just Value, required	$347,668	$347,668	$335,155
2. Assessed or classified use value, * if applicable	$297,878	$297,878	$297,878
3. Exempt value, * enter "0" if none	$0	$0	$0
4. Taxable value, * required	$297,878	$297,878	$297,878

*All values entered should be county taxable values, School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision

Findings of Fact

DUE TO SPACE LIMITATIONS, FINDINGS OF FACT ARE SET FORTH IN THE ATTACHED ADDENDA, WHICH IS MADE PART OF THIS RECOMMENDATION REPORT.

Conclusions of Law

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW ARE PROVIDED IN THE ATTACHED ADDENDA, INCORPORATED HEREIN BY REFERENCE.

☒ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Signature, special magistrate	ROBERT C. HICKS Print Name	FEB 6, 2026 Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____.
Address: Hernando County Gov't Center BOCC Chambers, Room 160, 20 North Main Street, Brooksville, Florida 34601.
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered.
To find the information, please call (352) 754-4970, or visit our website at vab@hernandoclerk.org.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print Name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print Name	Date mailed to parties

Addenda

Findings Of Fact

Petitioner Natasha Elliott with Ryan, Inc. appeared telephonically on behalf of PROGRESS RESIDENTIAL BORROWER 14 LLC on January 27, 2026 to provide testimonial and documentary evidence pertaining to the 2025 property assessment for real property located in Hernando County, Florida. The Hernando County Property Appraiser's Office was represented at the hearing by Deputy Appraisers Doug Mack, CFE, Residential Supervisor and Brandon Jimenez, CFE. An opening statement regarding the hearing process and rules of procedure was read and all parties were placed under oath. This petition is one of 22 presented by the petitioner on this hearing date. The specific case numbers are 25-297 through 25-318, inclusive. Any relevant testimony presented during these individual hearings will be incorporated by reference to all hearings to avoid redundancy and expedite the hearing process.

The subject of this petition is listed on the Hernando County tax roll as Parcel ID R34 223 18 3750 0040 0020. This property is described as a single-family residence with a two-car garage and no pool. The subject property is located at 14471 Finsbury Drive, Spring Hill, Hernando County, Florida. The property consists of 2,719 square feet of adjusted building area with 2,449 square feet of heated living area on a 5,500-square-foot residential lot. The improvements were constructed in 2015. Based on an inspection of the property on September 22, 2025, the property appraiser has determined that the building improvements are of typical construction quality and in average condition. It appears that the subject of this petition has not sold within the 12-month period preceding the January 1 valuation date.

The property appraiser has confirmed the 2025 just value at $347,668, with an assessed value of $297,878 and a taxable value of $297,878. There have been no changes to the values since the Notice of Proposed Property Taxes (TRIM) was issued. The petitioner is requesting a revision to the 2025 just value, proposing a revision in just value to $322,385. This request is supported by sales comparison.

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence, see Florida Administrative Code 12D-9.025(1). Generally, relevant evidence is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. The evidence meets or exceeds a minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. Documentary evidence presented by the property appraiser during the hearing is described and labeled as follows:

- PAO-A (15 pages) - Cover page, case synopsis, subject property record card with building sketch and photograph, sales analysis grid, comparable location map, analysis of sales data, property record card for each sale, list of structure area adjustments

Documentary evidence presented by the petitioner during the hearing is described and labeled as follows:

- PET-1 (10 pages) - Petition, cover page, summary of evidence, sales adjustment grid, adjustment formulas, aerial photograph of subject, street map, location map showing subject and sales

The property appraiser has not raised any objections to the evidence presented by the petitioner during the hearing.

The Florida Legislature has enacted eight criteria that the property appraiser must consider when determining just value. In any administrative or judicial action where a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment, the property appraiser's estimate of just value is presumed correct if it is proven that the assessment was made in compliance with the eight criteria outlined in Section 193.011, Florida Statutes and in accordance with professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The only standard of proof in this administrative review is a preponderance of the evidence, meaning the greater weight of evidence, or "more likely than not."

Florida courts have consistently held that the property appraiser is only required to consider the eight criteria, and that applying each factor is not mandatory. The courts have further found that if any one criterion does not reflect just value, it should be disregarded by the property appraiser. The special magistrate finds and summarizes the extent to which the property appraiser has considered each of these criteria in the following paragraphs.

(1) Present cash value of the property - The amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arms-length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In short, the price without transaction costs. The buyer typically pays more, and the seller typically receives less than the price indicated by the documentary stamps due to these transaction costs. In mass appraising, the property appraiser considers this criterion by applying or considering the comparable market sales using the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through comparable sales analysis similar to that found in a fee appraisal. The amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arms-length. This relates to the sales comparison approach and requires the property appraiser to consider the sale price exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of sale. In short, the price without transaction costs. The buyer typically pays more, and the seller typically receives less than the price indicated by the documentary stamps due to these transaction costs. In mass appraising, the property appraiser considers this criterion by applying or considering the comparable market sales using the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System. In an assessment review hearing, the property appraiser supports just value through

comparable sales analysis similar to that found in a fee appraisal. The property appraiser has presented sales evidence in support of the present cash value. Following are brief descriptions of the sales determined by the property appraiser to be most comparable to the subject and representative of value sourced by property record cards:

PA Sale 1 is located at 626 Argyll Drive and contains 2,264 square feet of heated building area (base). The residence was constructed in 2022. The property sold in October 2024 for a sale price of $353,000, which reflects a sale price of $155.92 per square foot.

PA Sale 2 is located at 435 Argyll Drive and contains 2,190 square feet of heated building area (base). The residence was constructed in 2022. The property sold in June 2024 for a sale price of $358,000, which reflects a sale price of $163.47 per square foot.

PA Sale 3 is located at 14248 Saltby Place and contains 2,186 square feet of heated building area (base). The residence was constructed in 2015. The property sold in May 2024 for a sale price of $380,000, which reflects a sale price of $173.83 per square foot.

In considering these sales, the property appraiser has compared them based on per adjusted square foot price. Three qualified sales judged to be most comparable to the subject have been presented in support of value. The sales were selected based on similar location, age, size and utility. The property appraiser's approach relies on feature value deductions and weighted "adjusted building area" calculations rather than paired-sales analysis or market-derived adjustments. Florida appraisal standards and case law (e.g., Valencia Center, Inc. v. Bystrom, 543 So. 2d 214 [Fla. 1989]) require that just value determinations be supported by market evidence showing how specific features or characteristics influence sale prices. Deducting fixed feature values from sale prices without verifying their market validity substitutes internal modeling for actual market behavior. While this may be useful for mass appraisal purposes, it does not provide the level of market support required in an individual value review before the Value Adjustment Board. A credible defense of just value in a hearing must demonstrate how specific comparable sales support the subject's assessed value through observable market adjustments. Reliance on internal modeling, without direct evidence of how the market reacts to property differences, fails to establish that the property appraiser's value represents the amount a willing buyer and seller would agree upon under normal conditions. Secondly, the "adjusted building area" metric has no direct market analogue. Buyers and appraisers typically compare residential properties based on heated living area (gross living area per ANSI or Fannie Mae standards). Introducing a proprietary or synthetic size measure distorts the relationship between price and size, undermining the comparability of sales. This means the model may show internal consistency but not external validity in the open market. It is the opinion of the special magistrate that this sales analysis does not follow with generally accepted appraisal practices.

(2) Highest & Best Use – This relates to the consideration of the fundamental appraisal concept of highest and best use or best use to which the property can be expected to be put in the immediate future. For improved properties, the highest and best use of the property as if vacant should be considered as well. The four steps establishing highest and best use are consideration of what is physically possible, legally permissible, financially feasible, and maximally productive. The highest and best use as vacant is identified through land use codes which, in part, are based on zoning. The highest and best use as improved is assumed to be the current use unless evidence shows otherwise. The property appraiser's office considers highest and best use by identifying and recording land size, zoning, building size, location and other characteristics. Once all coding is in place, comparable sales and rentals that have similar characteristics are used to value the property. The highest and best use of this property is for single-family residential use. This determination is undisputed by the petitioner and appears to have been appropriately considered by the property appraiser.

(3) Location of the property – The property appraiser assigns a neighborhood code to every property in the county. Sales of properties in the same or similar neighborhoods are typically used to determine locational adjustments. Often, site-specific location adjustments are made to reflect either an enhanced location (such as a waterfront site or in a golf course community) or an inferior location (such as adjacent to an industrial use or dumpsite). All of the comparable properties presented in support of value are located in the same neighborhood as the subject. The location of the property appears to have been appropriately considered in the determination of just value.

(4) Quantity or size of the property – The property appraiser must consider the quantity or size of the property by determining and recording the correct land size, building size, and extra features sizes and quantities. Land size is based on legal descriptions from recorded plats or metes and bounds. Building sizes and extra features are determined by inspection and measured by deputy property appraisers. From the evidence presented there do not appear to be any notable discrepancies in size or quantity beyond what is previously been discussed. There does not appear to be any discrepancy in heated building area between the parties; however, as discussed, making comparisons based on adjusted building areas after deducting extra features is inconsistent with market standards.

(5) The cost of the property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon - No separate analysis of cost has been presented during the hearing. The property appraiser indicates that typical residential homebuyers do not rely on development costs when valuing residential property. Cost calculations found on the property record card appear to be supportive of just value.

(6) Condition of the property – The property appraiser considers the condition of properties through periodic property inspections, no less than once every five years as required by Statute. Other events can trigger more frequent site inspections, including the sale of a property, issuance of a building permit, assessment appeal, or at the taxpayer's request. Condition is considered as a factor applied to the Computer Aided Mass Appraisal System value calculation for value losses from all sources based upon an age/life depreciation method. Photographs of the subject property have been presented as evidence of condition. The property appraiser confirmed that a personal exterior inspection of this property has been made for the purpose of determining extra features and the condition of the property. It appears that the property appraiser has

appropriately considered this condition.

(7) The income from the property - Residential properties are typically valued for ad valorem tax purposes using the sales comparison approach, as provided for under Section 193.011, Florida Statutes. Comparable sales are relied upon due to the limited availability of market data on residential rental income, operating expenses, and capitalization rates for properties similar to the subject. In the residential market, buyers and sellers generally do not consider income-generating potential when evaluating a property for purchase. The special magistrate finds that the property appraiser has given adequate consideration to this criterion in the analysis of the property.

(8) Cost of Sale Adjustment - This criterion deals with the net proceeds from the sale of a property as received by the seller after deduction of all of the usual and reasonable fees and costs and expenses of financing and allowance for unconventional or atypical terms of financing arrangements. A few examples of the applicability of this criterion include: • unconventional or atypical financing arrangements, such as seller financing at favorable terms, which inflated the price, relative to what would have been achieved with a cash or case-equivalent arrangement, • the inclusion of tangible personal property, which may serve to increase the price above pure real property consideration, • atypically motivated buyers, who may pay a premium relative to that paid by the general market, • atypical closing costs arrangements, such as a seller paying the buyer's closing costs in exchange for a higher sales price. Because these situations may not be discoverable by the mass appraiser relying on raw gross price data, a deduction from the raw gross price is made with the goal being to arrive at 100% of the market value of the real property by eliminating any possible impact of non-real property consideration. This mass appraisal method is found to be acceptable by the Florida Department of Revenue and the Florida Courts. Applicable law provides for uniform cost of sale deductions in just valuations without regard to whether (1) the subject property was sold, (2) mass appraisal or single property appraisal is used, (3) the appraisal approach used to value the property, (4) the petitioner is seeking an increase or decrease in just value, (5) appraised development or VAB review is involved. There is no legal authority for variation in the application of cost of sale deductions based on any of the preceding conditions. The professionally accepted appraisal practice is for Florida property appraisers to uniformly make cost of sale deductions of for all property within use code groups and then report these deductions on Form DR-493 to the Department of Revenue while, understandably, avoiding the impractical task of supporting these deductions in the absence of sufficiently reliable market data that demonstrates the typical, prevalent, and representative cost of sale deductions for each class of real property. In support of consideration of this criterion, the property appraiser has presented an analysis of the ratio between the aggregate sale price paid for all comparable properties compared with their aggregate just value assessments resulting in an average cost of sale adjustment of 12%. While this calculation may demonstrate a general relationship between assessed values and sale prices within the sample, it does not establish adequate support specific to the subject property for this assessment review.

It is implicit in mass appraisal that, even when properly specified and calibrated models are employed, some individual value conclusions may not meet standards of reasonableness, consistency, and accuracy. The purpose of this value review is to determine whether the just value reported on the current tax roll represents the just value of the property after consideration of the criteria set forth in Florida Statute §193.011 and generally accepted appraisal principles, including those applicable to mass appraisal. In reviewing the evidence presented by the property appraiser at this hearing, the special magistrate finds that the property appraiser did not appropriately consider the factors set forth in Florida Statute §193.011, specifically (1), (4) and (8); and therefore, the presumption of correctness has not been established.

By filing this petition, the petitioner alleges that the property appraiser has assessed the property in excess of just value. According to 12D-9.025(3)(a) of the Florida Administrative Code, the petitioner is responsible for presenting relevant and credible evidence in support of his or her belief that the property appraiser's determination is incorrect. To prevail in an assessment challenge, the taxpayer must prove more than a mere difference of opinion regarding an assessment. The following paragraphs describe how the petitioner has addressed each of the eight criteria of the Statute.

(1) Present cash value of the property - In support of a revision to just value, the petitioner has presented the following sales:

PET Sale 1 consists of the property located at 14248 Saltby Place with a building size of 2,186 square feet, constructed in 2015, and situated on a land area of 5,500 square feet. The property does not have a pool. The sale occurred in May 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $360,500, which equates to $164.91 per square foot. This adjusted sale price does not support a reduction in assessment.

PET Sale 2 consists of the property located at 14223 Finsbury Drive with a building size of 2,747 square feet, constructed in 2016, and situated on a land area of 6,759 square feet. The property does not have a pool. The sale occurred in April 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $305,655, which equates to $111.27 per square foot.

PET Sale 3 consists of the property located at 14222 Finsbury Drive with a building size of 2,677 square feet, constructed in 2016, and situated on a land area of 6,759 square feet. The property does not have a pool. The sale occurred in April 2024. The Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price is $301,000, which equates to $112.44 per square foot.

The final adjusted sale prices range from $301,000 to $360,500, with a mean adjusted sale price of approximately $322,385. Sales 1 has a Total Indicated/Adjusted Sale Price per square foot that exceeds the per square foot just value. The petitioner compares these sales based on total price. The petitioner has presented sales that are claimed to be more similar to the subject than the sales relied upon by the property appraiser. Price adjustments were made to account for differences between the sales and the subject property including a 15% adjustment for cost of sale. The petitioner has presented no rebuttal as to the property appraiser's appraisal methods or chosen sales and has not identified a specific methodological error, factual inaccuracy, or inconsistency in the property appraiser's analysis. The petitioner's analysis is based on unsupported adjustments, many of which are calculated using the assessed values of the sales. The petitioner has not visited the subject or any of the sales and has not appropriately compared condition. The property appraiser's just value falls within the range of adjusted sale prices presented by the petitioner and the per-square-foot just value is supported by one or more of the petitioner's adjusted per-square foot sale prices.

(2) Highest and Best Use - The petitioner does not dispute that the highest and best use of the subject property is single-family residential.

(3) Location of the property - The petitioner appears familiar with the location characteristics of the subject property and has not claimed the presence of any atypical or adverse location factors that would materially affect its use or value.

(4) Quantity or size of the property - The petitioner does not dispute the size or quantity of the land or improvements reported by the property appraiser during the hearing, nor was any allegation made that these factors were miscalculated or improperly considered in the valuation.

(5) The cost of the property and present replacement value of any improvements thereon - The petitioner has presented no analysis of land value or depreciated building costs. Cost is rarely used to value this market sector.

(6) Condition - The petitioner has not presented any credible evidence or asserted that the condition of the property differs from the description provided by the property appraiser during the hearing. Furthermore, no claim was made regarding any significant physical deficiencies that would affect the property's use or value.

(7) The income from the property - The petitioner has presented no analysis of income and expense at this hearing, however, as mentioned, this method is also rarely used to value residential properties for ad valorem tax purposes.

(8) Cost of Sale Adjustment - The petitioner has made specific deductions for cost of sale based on the DR-493 form submitted by the property appraiser to the Florida Department of Revenue in consideration of this criterion.

The petitioner has not specifically challenged the market evidence or the analysis conducted by the property appraiser in support of the just value of the subject property. Merely presenting an alternative analysis is not sufficient to warrant a change in assessment. Pursuant to Florida Statute §194.301(1) it is the petitioner's responsibility to demonstrate that the property appraiser's evidence and/or analysis are incorrect, and that the determined value does not represent the just value of the property by a preponderance of the evidence.

After careful consideration of all evidence presented at the hearing, the special magistrate finds that the property appraiser has not established the presumption of correctness. However, the hearing record does contain competent, substantial evidence of just value that complies with the eight criteria set forth in Florida Statute §193.011 and generally accepted appraisal principles. The unadjusted sale prices for the sales contained in the hearing record range from $353,000 to $394,300. These sales were identified by both the property appraiser and the petitioner as the most comparable to the subject property. However, because the petitioner's adjustments are not supported by market evidence, they are afforded little weight. Applying a fifteen percent cost-of-sale adjustment results in an indicated value range of $300,050 to $335,155. Because the subject's just value exceeds this adjusted range, the evidence in the hearing record indicates that the assessment is overstated. Accordingly, the special magistrate recommends that the just value be revised to $335,155.

Conclusions of Law

Pursuant to §194.301(1), Florida Statutes, in an administrative action in which a taxpayer challenges an ad valorem tax assessment, the property appraiser's assessment is presumed correct if the property appraiser proves by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment was arrived at in compliance with §193.011, Florida Statutes, and professionally accepted appraisal practices, including mass appraisal standards, if appropriate. The burden of proof rests initially with the property appraiser to establish this presumption of correctness. Based upon the competent, substantial evidence presented at the hearing, the special magistrate concludes that the property appraiser did not establish the presumption of correctness. Specifically, the sales analysis relied upon by the property appraiser did not demonstrate compliance with generally accepted appraisal practices as applied in an individual assessment review, particularly with respect to the consideration of present cash value, the comparison of property size using market-recognized metrics, and the application of cost-of-sale considerations under §193.011(1), (4), and (8), Florida Statutes. Pursuant to §194.301(2), Florida Statutes, when the presumption of correctness is not established, the value adjustment board or special magistrate is required to determine the assessment if there is competent, substantial evidence of just value in the record that cumulatively meets the criteria of §193.011, Florida Statutes, and professionally accepted appraisal practices. If such evidence exists, the special magistrate is authorized to establish a revised just value based upon that evidence and is not restricted to the specific value advocated by either party. The special magistrate concludes that the hearing record does contain competent, substantial evidence of just value. The evidence presented demonstrates a supported range of market values derived from comparable sales, adjusted for reasonable and customary costs of sale, consistent with §193.011(8), Florida Statutes, and professionally accepted appraisal principles. This evidence establishes that the subject property's assessed just value exceeds the indicated market-supported range and therefore does not represent just value as of January 1, 2025. Accordingly, pursuant to §194.301(2)(b), Florida Statutes, and Rule 12D-9.027, Florida Administrative Code, the special magistrate concludes that the assessment should be revised. Based upon the weight of the evidence, the special magistrate recommends that the 2025 just value of the subject property be revised to $335,155, which is supported by the competent, substantial evidence in the hearing record and complies with the statutory requirements governing just valuation.

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

HERNANDO County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-320	Parcel ID 01669073
Petitioner name RYAN LLC The petitioner is: ☐ taxpayer of record ☑ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain: _____	Property address 14385 Finsbury Dr., Spring Hill

Decision Summary ☐ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☑ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	414,544.00	414,544.00	413,680.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	411,026.00	411,026.00	411,026.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0.00	0.00	0.00
4. Taxable value,* required	411,026.00	411,026.00	411,026.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact

See attached.

Conclusions of Law

See attached.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

	Steven Nystrom	02/20/2026
Signature, special magistrate	Print name	Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

PETITION NO. 25-320

RECOMMENDATION OF SPECIAL MAGISTRATE
VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
HERNANDO COUNTY, FLORIDA

IN RE: THE PETITION OF: BTH RESIDENTIAL LLC
PARCEL KEY NO: 01669073

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

1 The Petitioner, NATASHA ELLIOTT of RYAN LLC for BTH RESIDENTIAL LLC did appear telephonically before the Special Magistrate to give testimony. The Property Appraiser was represented by DOUG MACK and BRANDON JIMENEZ. All parties present were put under sworn oath.

2 The Property Appraiser shows a just value of $414,544 ($137/SF heated, $126/SF adjusted), an assessed or capped value of $411,026, and a taxable value of $411,026.

3 The Petitioner estimated the just value to be $372,588.

4 Subject Property Type: The subject is a 3,022 heated base SF (3,280 SF adjusted) single family residence. It was constructed in 2007. The parcel is located at 14385 Finsbury Dr., Spring Hill.

5 The PAO evidence consists of verbal testimony, PRC, summary pages, CAMA cost legend, sales map, a statistical sales analysis report, PRC legend, and verbal testimony.

6 The Petitioners evidence consists of a petition, hearing notice, correspondence, sales analysis, sales map and verbal testimony.

7 In Hernando County, if the Petitioner is not present at the hearing, then the Petitioner must supply the evidence timely to the PAO and supply a copy of such evidence to the Clerk of Court also. If the Petitioner is present at the hearing, then they must just supply the information in a timely manner to the PAO for a proper evidence exchange. Per testimony, the evidence exchange complied with statutory time-frame requirements. No objections were made by any party present as it relates to data submittal noted above (unless specifically noted). All the evidence noted above is considered admissible (unless specifically noted as inadmissible).

8 Overall, there is sufficient, relevant, and credible information available, from which a reliable estimate of just, assessed, and taxable value can be estimated.

BASIC AND UNDERLYING FINDINGS OF FACT

9 The PAO relied primarily upon the sales comparison approach via a submitted sales analysis report. This implies a heavy weight on CAMA analysis at TRIM, as well as in this hearing. Consideration but no weight was placed on the cost approach, noted in the PRC. No detailed land or cost support was supplied. No weight was placed on the income approach to value. This is considered an appropriate mass appraisal methodology for this property type by the Special Magistrate.

10 The PAO performed their analysis utilizing adjusted SF in their sales analysis report. This methodology is generally considered less reliable than utilizing heated SF in the valuation industry but is often used in mass appraisal.

11 The PAO sales analysis report is a statistical study (a sampling of data used in the CAMA analysis). Market conditions were reported to increase by approximately 4% to 5% in 2024 for single-family homes on average.

12 The subject property did not transfer in the past 3 years.

13 The PAO supplied 3 improved sales on their statistical grid. The Special Magistrate will adjust upwards 4%/year for improving market conditions, slight adjustments for land value, age/condition, size/scale, and downwards 9% for COS. After adjustment, these sales indicated a range of $127/SF to $149/SF adjusted before extra features (median $136/SF adjusted). The PAO sales, including extra features, indicate a credible and reliable just value for the subject of ($135/SF adjusted) $442,800 and that the subject is not over assessed.

14 The PAO and Petitioner have 0 sales in common.

15 The Petitioner supplied 6 improved sale comparables. Sales 3, 4, 5, and 6 are in a different neighborhood, and/or are too dissimilar and were not weighted. This analysis does not note garages, extra feature values, amenities or the difference between gross, adjusted and heated SF. The sales will be adjusted at 4%/year for market conditions (the Petitioner used 0% adjustment), for age/condition, adjusted for land size/value if warranted, adjusted for differences in heated SF at $100/SF heated, and in this instance a 9% COS factor is warranted. After adjustment, these remaining sales indicated a range of $367,185 to $370,006 (median $368,595). The Petitioner sales indicate a credible and reliable just value for the subject of $370,000 and that the subject is over assessed.

16 Reviewing all the sales presented by both parties, the evidence credibly and reliably supports a just value of $413,680 for the subject and that the subject is over assessed.

17 The PAO considered cost of sales in their reconciliation process. Proper consideration of the 1st and 8th criteria for the subject property would be approximately 8-12% (cost of sales adjustment; estimated to be brokerage cost of 5-7%, personal property 1-2%, and financing costs of 2-3%, properly considered for the subject). The Special Magistrate will consider this when weighting the appropriateness of each parties' conclusions and the assessment level. Intangible value of approximately 0% is appropriate for the subject property (goodwill, assembled workforce, franchise, etc.).

18 The DOR utilize 15% cost of sales in their oversight function for all property in aggregate. The Magistrate has considered the specific subject property in relation to cost of sales factors as follows (certain scale and property types will vary significantly if cost of sales is to be performed according to statute).

19 Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., requires proper consideration of the "net proceeds of sale," regardless of whether an actual sale of the property has occurred. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001). However, the statute does not require the property appraiser to select the value generated by the application of Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., and apply it in a blanket fashion to all assessments. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001).

20 All property is to be assessed at 100% of just value Walter v. Schuler 176 So.2d 81 (Fla 1965). The terms "just value" "fair market value' and "full cash value" are legally synonymous. Id.

21 The 1st and 8th criteria were introduced by the legislature after this ruling, suggesting that the legislature wishes real estate to be taxed net of typical sales costs. This implies that "just value" is in fact equal to "market value net of typical sales costs". The Special Magistrate training material for the current year also consistently and strongly advises a deduction for 1st and 8th criteria.

22 The PAO testified to documentation that pertains to the DOR treatment of the eight criteria required under FS 193.011. The PAO testified to and has documented how each of the criteria was considered and addressed to the property at issue, as part of the development of the assessment. The PAO addressed the requirements of FS 193.011 as follows:

"Factors to consider in deriving just valuation*. – In arriving at just valuation as required under s. 4, Art. VII of the State Constitution, the property appraiser shall take into consideration the following factors:*

(1) The present cash value of the property, which is the amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arm's length;
The sale of similar properties is considered within the PAO CAMA system, as well as within their direct application of sales comparison analysis. An adjustment is made for cost of sales as noted under Criteria 8 in their CAMA analysis and in reconciliation as applicable.

(2) The highest and best use…,(shortened)
Land use and building codes were considered along with the character of any existing site improvements, as noted on the submitted subject property data. Comparable data was chosen based on this information.

(3) The location of said property;
The subject property is assigned a location code within the PAO database related to its specific location. Comparable data is chosen with as similar a location as is possible, while also considering the other relevant factors.

(4) The quantity or size of said property;
The size of building, site and site improvements are based on data contained with the PRC and all comparables are chosen with as similar size as possible, while also considering and weighing the other relevant factors.

(5) The cost of said property and the present replacement value of any improvements thereon;
The PAO uses cost data within their CAMA cost/market hybrid model. When applicable, a pure replacement cost new and depreciation factors are also estimated and utilized within a cost approach to value.

(6) The condition of said property;
The PAO considers condition through periodic site inspections, actual age, and information submitted to them by property owners. A % good or % depreciation factor is noted in their subject documentation and/or PRC card and utilized in the CAMA analysis.

(7) The income from said property; and
When applicable, the PAO prepares an income capitalization analysis based on market data contained in their files as well as general market statistics. Actual subject performance is also considered when that information is available.

(8) The net proceeds of the sale of the property, as received by the seller, after deduction of all of the usual and reasonable fees and costs of the sale, including the costs and expenses of financing, and allowance for unconventional or a typical terms of financing arrangements. When the net proceeds of the sale of any property are utilized, directly or indirectly, in the determination of just valuation of realty of the sold parcel or any other parcel under the provisions of this section, the property appraiser, for the purposes of such determination, shall exclude any portion of such net proceeds attributable to payments for household furnishings or other items of personal property."

The PAO considers cost of sales within their CAMA analysis and in reconciliation when performing discrete sales, income or cost analysis. Sales prices of comparable properties are adjusted downward (reportedly) within CAMA, typically at near 15%.

ULTIMATE FINDINGS OF FACT

Florida Statute section 194.301 elaborates the standards of review that the Special Magistrate must apply to any petition to the Value Adjustment Board. The statute states as follows:

> Pursuant to Section 194.301, the Property Appraiser's assessment shall be entitled to a Presumption of Correctness if the Property Appraiser shows, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the Property Appraiser considered each of the eight criteria set forth in Section 193.011, the Property Appraiser applied the correct appraisal methodology based upon the characteristics of the property, and the Property Appraiser did not use appraisal practices which are different than the appraisal practices generally applied by the Property Appraiser to comparable property in the same county.

1 In accordance with Rule 12D-10.003(5)(a), it is concluded that the PAO DID (marginally) establish a presumption of correctness by properly considering the eight criteria described in FS 193.011. Further, it is concluded that the methodology used by the PAO IS appropriate and DOES comply with professionally accepted appraisal practices for the subject property type. The Petitioner DID overcome the presumption of correctness.

2 The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment was based on an arbitrary appraisal practice different from like property in the same county.

3 The Petitioner HAS shown by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment is excessive. Thus, the assessed value DOES exceed 100% of the fair market value of the property.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence. See Rule 12D-9.025(1), Florida Administrative Code (FAC). Generally, “relevant evidence” is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. This description means the evidence meets or exceeds the minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. See Rule 12D-9.025(2)(b) FAC.

The Special Magistrate reviewed all evidence presented by all parties. In accordance with DOR guidelines, the Special Magistrate determined that the evidence and testimony was relevant and credible to the valuation at hand. Thus, the evidence as presented was admitted for consideration in relation to the appropriateness of the subject assessment.

The Special Magistrate determined that the testimonial and documentary evidence (combined) meet the test of “relevancy and credibility” and WAS sufficient to reach the “preponderance of the evidence” standard of proof required by Rule 12D-9.027(6) FAC. The Special Magistrate also determined that there IS competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with the criteria of FS 193.011 and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish the assessment.

The Special Magistrate finds that the Petitioner HAS satisfied the "preponderance of the evidence" standard under the facts as testified to that the appraiser's assessment is in excess of just value. After weighting all of the documentary and testimonial evidence it is concluded that the assessment IS NOT reasonable and within market parameters.

RECOMMENDATION

It is recommended by the Special Magistrate that the relief applied for in this petition be GRANTED in part with a reduction in the just value to $413,680.

_____
Special Magistrate
Steven L. Nystrom, MAI

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

HERNANDO County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-320	Parcel ID 01669073
Petitioner name RYAN LLC The petitioner is: ☐ taxpayer of record ☑ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain: _____	Property address 14385 Finsbury Dr., Spring Hill

Decision Summary ☐ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☑ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	414,544.00	414,544.00	413,680.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	411,026.00	411,026.00	411,026.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0.00	0.00	0.00
4. Taxable value,* required	411,026.00	411,026.00	411,026.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact

See attached.

Conclusions of Law

See attached.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

	Steven Nystrom	02/20/2026
Signature, special magistrate	Print name	Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

PETITION NO. 25-321

RECOMMENDATION OF SPECIAL MAGISTRATE
VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
HERNANDO COUNTY, FLORIDA

IN RE: THE PETITION OF: ALTO ASSET COMPANY 2 LLC
PARCEL KEY NO: 01286511

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

1 The Petitioner, NATASHA ELLIOTT of RYAN LLC for ALTO ASSET COMPANY 2 LLC did appear telephonically before the Special Magistrate to give testimony. The Property Appraiser was represented by DOUG MACK and BRANDON JIMENEZ. All parties present were put under sworn oath.

2 The Property Appraiser shows a just value of $331,000 ($158/SF heated, $134/SF adjusted), an assessed or capped value of $306,369, and a taxable value of $306,369.

3 The Petitioner estimated the just value to be $323,015.

4 Subject Property Type: The subject is a 2,100 heated base SF (2,462 SF adjusted) single family residence. It was constructed in 1999. The parcel is located at 7480 Aloe Dr., Spring Hill.

5 The PAO evidence consists of verbal testimony, PRC, summary pages, CAMA cost legend, sales map, a statistical sales analysis report, PRC legend, and verbal testimony.

6 The Petitioners evidence consists of a petition, hearing notice, correspondence, sales analysis, sales map and verbal testimony.

7 In Hernando County, if the Petitioner is not present at the hearing, then the Petitioner must supply the evidence timely to the PAO and supply a copy of such evidence to the Clerk of Court also. If the Petitioner is present at the hearing, then they must just supply the information in a timely manner to the PAO for a proper evidence exchange. Per testimony, the evidence exchange complied with statutory time-frame requirements. No objections were made by any party present as it relates to data submittal noted above (unless specifically noted). All the evidence noted above is considered admissible (unless specifically noted as inadmissible).

8 Overall, there is sufficient, relevant, and credible information available, from which a reliable estimate of just, assessed, and taxable value can be estimated.

BASIC AND UNDERLYING FINDINGS OF FACT

9 The PAO relied primarily upon the sales comparison approach via a submitted sales analysis report. This implies a heavy weight on CAMA analysis at TRIM, as well as in this hearing. Consideration but no weight was placed on the cost approach, noted in the PRC. No detailed land or cost support was supplied. No weight was placed on the income approach to value. This is considered an appropriate mass appraisal methodology for this property type by the Special Magistrate.

10 The PAO performed their analysis utilizing adjusted SF in their sales analysis report. This methodology is generally considered less reliable than utilizing heated SF in the valuation industry but is often used in mass appraisal.

11 The PAO sales analysis report is a statistical study (a sampling of data used in the CAMA analysis). Market conditions were reported to increase by approximately 4% to 5% in 2024 for single-family homes on average.

12 The subject property did not transfer in the past 3 years.

13 The PAO supplied 3 improved sales on their statistical grid. The Special Magistrate will adjust upwards 4%/year for improving market conditions, slight adjustments for land value, age/condition, size/scale, and downwards 10% for COS. After adjustment, these sales indicated a range of $125/SF to $130/SF adjusted before extra features (median $126/SF adjusted). The PAO sales, including extra features, indicate a credible and reliable just value for the subject of ($126/SF adjusted) $310,212 and that the subject is over assessed.

14 The PAO and Petitioner have 0 sales in common.

15 The Petitioner supplied 6 improved sale comparables. Sales 1, 3 and 5 are outliers and/or too dissimilar and were not weighted. This analysis does not note garages, extra feature values, amenities or the difference between gross, adjusted and heated SF. The sales will be adjusted at 4%/year for market conditions (the Petitioner used 0% adjustment), for age/condition, adjusted for land size/value if warranted, adjusted for differences in heated SF at $100/SF heated, and in this instance a 10% COS factor is warranted. After adjustment, these remaining sales indicated a range of $285,390 to $398,880 (median $300,240). The Petitioner sales indicate a credible and reliable just value for the subject of $323,000 and that the subject is over assessed.

16 Reviewing all the sales presented by both parties, the evidence credibly and reliably supports a just value of $315,000 for the subject and that the subject is over assessed.

17 The PAO considered cost of sales in their reconciliation process. Proper consideration of the 1st and 8th criteria for the subject property would be approximately 8-12% (cost of sales adjustment; estimated to be brokerage cost of 5-7%, personal property 1-2%, and financing costs of 2-3%, properly considered for the subject). The Special Magistrate will consider this when weighting the appropriateness of each parties' conclusions and the assessment level. Intangible value of approximately 0% is appropriate for the subject property (goodwill, assembled workforce, franchise, etc.).

18 The DOR utilize 15% cost of sales in their oversight function for all property in aggregate. The Magistrate has considered the specific subject property in relation to cost of sales factors as follows (certain scale and property types will vary significantly if cost of sales is to be performed according to statute).

19 Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., requires proper consideration of the "net proceeds of sale," regardless of whether an actual sale of the property has occurred. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001). However, the statute does not require the property appraiser to select the value generated by the application of Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., and apply it in a blanket fashion to all assessments. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001).

20 All property is to be assessed at 100% of just value Walter v. Schuler 176 So.2d 81 (Fla 1965). The terms "just value" "fair market value' and "full cash value" are legally synonymous. Id.

21 The 1st and 8th criteria were introduced by the legislature after this ruling, suggesting that the legislature wishes real estate to be taxed net of typical sales costs. This implies that "just value" is in fact equal to "market value net of typical sales costs". The Special Magistrate training material for the current year also consistently and strongly advises a deduction for 1st and 8th criteria.

22 The PAO testified to documentation that pertains to the DOR treatment of the eight criteria required under FS 193.011. The PAO testified to and has documented how each of the criteria was considered and addressed to the property at issue, as part of the development of the assessment. The PAO addressed the requirements of FS 193.011 as follows:

"Factors to consider in deriving just valuation*. – In arriving at just valuation as required under s. 4, Art. VII of the State Constitution, the property appraiser shall take into consideration the following factors:*

(1) The present cash value of the property, which is the amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arm's length;
The sale of similar properties is considered within the PAO CAMA system, as well as within their direct application of sales comparison analysis. An adjustment is made for cost of sales as noted under Criteria 8 in their CAMA analysis and in reconciliation as applicable.

(2) The highest and best use…,(shortened)
Land use and building codes were considered along with the character of any existing site improvements, as noted on the submitted subject property data. Comparable data was chosen based on this information.

(3) The location of said property;
The subject property is assigned a location code within the PAO database related to its specific location. Comparable data is chosen with as similar a location as is possible, while also considering the other relevant factors.

(4) The quantity or size of said property;
The size of building, site and site improvements are based on data contained with the PRC and all comparables are chosen with as similar size as possible, while also considering and weighing the other relevant factors.

(5) The cost of said property and the present replacement value of any improvements thereon;
The PAO uses cost data within their CAMA cost/market hybrid model. When applicable, a pure replacement cost new and depreciation factors are also estimated and utilized within a cost approach to value.

(6) The condition of said property;
The PAO considers condition through periodic site inspections, actual age, and information submitted to them by property owners. A % good or % depreciation factor is noted in their subject documentation and/or PRC card and utilized in the CAMA analysis.

(7) The income from said property; and
When applicable, the PAO prepares an income capitalization analysis based on market data contained in their files as well as general market statistics. Actual subject performance is also considered when that information is available.

(8) The net proceeds of the sale of the property, as received by the seller, after deduction of all of the usual and reasonable fees and costs of the sale, including the costs and expenses of financing, and allowance for unconventional or a typical terms of financing arrangements. When the net proceeds of the sale of any property are utilized, directly or indirectly, in the determination of just valuation of realty of the sold parcel or any other parcel under the provisions of this section, the property appraiser, for the purposes of such determination, shall exclude any portion of such net proceeds attributable to payments for household furnishings or other items of personal property."

The PAO considers cost of sales within their CAMA analysis and in reconciliation when performing discrete sales, income or cost analysis. Sales prices of comparable properties are adjusted downward (reportedly) within CAMA, typically at near 15%.

ULTIMATE FINDINGS OF FACT

Florida Statute section 194.301 elaborates the standards of review that the Special Magistrate must apply to any petition to the Value Adjustment Board. The statute states as follows:

> Pursuant to Section 194.301, the Property Appraiser's assessment shall be entitled to a Presumption of Correctness if the Property Appraiser shows, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the Property Appraiser considered each of the eight criteria set forth in Section 193.011, the Property Appraiser applied the correct appraisal methodology based upon the characteristics of the property, and the Property Appraiser did not use appraisal practices which are different than the appraisal practices generally applied by the Property Appraiser to comparable property in the same county.

1 In accordance with Rule 12D-10.003(5)(a), it is concluded that the PAO DID (marginally) establish a presumption of correctness by properly considering the eight criteria described in FS 193.011. Further, it is concluded that the methodology used by the PAO IS appropriate and DOES comply with professionally accepted appraisal practices for the subject property type. The Petitioner DID overcome the presumption of correctness.

2 The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment was based on an arbitrary appraisal practice different from like property in the same county.

3 The Petitioner HAS shown by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment is excessive. Thus, the assessed value DOES exceed 100% of the fair market value of the property.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence. See Rule 12D-9.025(1), Florida Administrative Code (FAC). Generally, “relevant evidence” is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. This description means the evidence meets or exceeds the minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. See Rule 12D-9.025(2)(b) FAC.

The Special Magistrate reviewed all evidence presented by all parties. In accordance with DOR guidelines, the Special Magistrate determined that the evidence and testimony was relevant and credible to the valuation at hand. Thus, the evidence as presented was admitted for consideration in relation to the appropriateness of the subject assessment.

The Special Magistrate determined that the testimonial and documentary evidence (combined) meet the test of “relevancy and credibility” and WAS sufficient to reach the “preponderance of the evidence” standard of proof required by Rule 12D-9.027(6) FAC. The Special Magistrate also determined that there IS competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with the criteria of FS 193.011 and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish the assessment.

The Special Magistrate finds that the Petitioner HAS satisfied the "preponderance of the evidence" standard under the facts as testified to that the appraiser's assessment is in excess of just value. After weighting all of the documentary and testimonial evidence it is concluded that the assessment IS NOT reasonable and within market parameters.

RECOMMENDATION

It is recommended by the Special Magistrate that the relief applied for in this petition be GRANTED with a reduction in the just value to $315,000.

_____
Special Magistrate
Steven L. Nystrom, MAI

FLORIDA

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

HERNANDO County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-320	Parcel ID 01669073
Petitioner name RYAN LLC The petitioner is: ☐ taxpayer of record ☑ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain: _____	Property address 14385 Finsbury Dr., Spring Hill

Decision Summary ☐ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☑ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	414,544.00	414,544.00	413,680.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	411,026.00	411,026.00	411,026.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0.00	0.00	0.00
4. Taxable value,* required	411,026.00	411,026.00	411,026.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact

See attached.

Conclusions of Law

See attached.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

	Steven Nystrom	02/20/2026
Signature, special magistrate	Print name	Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

PETITION NO. 25-322

RECOMMENDATION OF SPECIAL MAGISTRATE
VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
HERNANDO COUNTY, FLORIDA

IN RE: THE PETITION OF: ARMM ASSET COMPANY
PARCEL KEY NO: 00212479

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

1 The Petitioner, NATASHA ELLIOTT of RYAN LLC for ARMM ASSET COMPANY did appear telephonically before the Special Magistrate to give testimony. The Property Appraiser was represented by DOUG MACK and BRANDON JIMENEZ. All parties present were put under sworn oath.

2 The Property Appraiser shows a just value of $194,454 ($136/SF heated, $105/SF adjusted), an assessed or capped value of $194,454, and a taxable value of $194,454.

3 The Petitioner estimated the just value to be $149,582.

4 Subject Property Type: The subject is a 1,431 heated base SF (1,857 SF adjusted) single family residence. It was constructed in 1978. The parcel is located at 6216 Radford St., Spring Hill.

5 The PAO evidence consists of verbal testimony, PRC, summary pages, CAMA cost legend, sales map, a statistical sales analysis report, PRC legend, and verbal testimony.

6 The Petitioners evidence consists of a petition, hearing notice, correspondence, sales analysis, sales map and verbal testimony.

7 In Hernando County, if the Petitioner is not present at the hearing, then the Petitioner must supply the evidence timely to the PAO and supply a copy of such evidence to the Clerk of Court also. If the Petitioner is present at the hearing, then they must just supply the information in a timely manner to the PAO for a proper evidence exchange. Per testimony, the evidence exchange complied with statutory time-frame requirements. No objections were made by any party present as it relates to data submittal noted above (unless specifically noted). All the evidence noted above is considered admissible (unless specifically noted as inadmissible).

8 Overall, there is sufficient, relevant, and credible information available, from which a reliable estimate of just, assessed, and taxable value can be estimated.

BASIC AND UNDERLYING FINDINGS OF FACT

9 The PAO relied primarily upon the sales comparison approach via a submitted sales analysis report. This implies a heavy weight on CAMA analysis at TRIM, as well as in this hearing. Consideration but no weight was placed on the cost approach, noted in the PRC. No detailed land or cost support was supplied. No weight was placed on the income approach to value. This is considered an appropriate mass appraisal methodology for this property type by the Special Magistrate.

10 The PAO performed their analysis utilizing adjusted SF in their sales analysis report. This methodology is generally considered less reliable than utilizing heated SF in the valuation industry but is often used in mass appraisal.

11 The PAO sales analysis report is a statistical study (a sampling of data used in the CAMA analysis). Market conditions were reported to increase by approximately 4% to 5% in 2024 for single-family homes on average.

12 The subject property transferred in March of 2024 for $153,550 (qualified).

13 The PAO supplied 3 improved sales on their statistical grid. The Special Magistrate will adjust upwards 4%/year for improving market conditions, slight adjustments for land value, age/condition, size/scale, and downwards 11% for COS. After adjustment, these sales indicated a range of $119/SF to $145/SF adjusted before extra features (median $139/SF adjusted). The PAO sales, including extra features, indicate a credible and reliable just value for the subject of ($130/SF adjusted) $241,410 and that the subject is not over assessed.

14 The PAO and Petitioner have 0 sales in common.

15 The Petitioner supplied 6 improved sale comparables. Sales 1, 2 and 3 are outliers and/or too dissimilar and were not weighted. This analysis does not note garages, extra feature values, amenities or the difference between gross, adjusted and heated SF. The sales will be adjusted at 4%/year for market conditions (the Petitioner used 0% adjustment), for age/condition, adjusted for land size/value if warranted, adjusted for differences in heated SF at $100/SF heated, and in this instance a 11% COS factor is warranted. After adjustment, these remaining sales indicated a range of $226,861 to $256,107 (median $235,761). The Petitioner sales indicate a credible and reliable just value for the subject of $235,750 and that the subject is not over assessed.

16 Reviewing all the sales presented by both parties, the evidence credibly and reliably supports a just value of $237,500 for the subject and that the subject is not over assessed.

17 The PAO considered cost of sales in their reconciliation process. Proper consideration of the 1st and 8th criteria for the subject property would be approximately 8-12% (cost of sales adjustment; estimated to be brokerage cost of 5-7%, personal property 1-2%, and financing costs of 2-3%, properly considered for the subject). The Special Magistrate will consider this when weighting the appropriateness of each parties' conclusions and the assessment level. Intangible value of approximately 0% is appropriate for the subject property (goodwill, assembled workforce, franchise, etc.).

18 The DOR utilize 15% cost of sales in their oversight function for all property in aggregate. The Magistrate has considered the specific subject property in relation to cost of sales factors as follows (certain scale and property types will vary significantly if cost of sales is to be performed according to statute).

19 Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., requires proper consideration of the "net proceeds of sale," regardless of whether an actual sale of the property has occurred. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001). However, the statute does not require the property appraiser to select the value generated by the application of Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., and apply it in a blanket fashion to all assessments. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001).

20 All property is to be assessed at 100% of just value Walter v. Schuler 176 So.2d 81 (Fla 1965). The terms "just value" "fair market value' and "full cash value" are legally synonymous. Id.

21 The 1st and 8th criteria were introduced by the legislature after this ruling, suggesting that the legislature wishes real estate to be taxed net of typical sales costs. This implies that "just value" is in fact equal to "market value net of typical sales costs". The Special Magistrate training material for the current year also consistently and strongly advises a deduction for 1st and 8th criteria.

22 The PAO testified to documentation that pertains to the DOR treatment of the eight criteria required under FS 193.011. The PAO testified to and has documented how each of the criteria was considered and addressed to the property at issue, as part of the development of the assessment. The PAO addressed the requirements of FS 193.011 as follows:

"Factors to consider in deriving just valuation. – In arriving at just valuation as required under s. 4, Art. VII of the State Constitution, the property appraiser shall take into consideration the following factors:*

(1) The present cash value of the property, which is the amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arm's length;
The sale of similar properties is considered within the PAO CAMA system, as well as within their direct application of sales comparison analysis. An adjustment is made for cost of sales as noted under Criteria 8 in their CAMA analysis and in reconciliation as applicable.

(2) The highest and best use…,(shortened)
Land use and building codes were considered along with the character of any existing site improvements, as noted on the submitted subject property data. Comparable data was chosen based on this information.

(3) The location of said property;
The subject property is assigned a location code within the PAO database related to its specific location. Comparable data is chosen with as similar a location as is possible, while also considering the other relevant factors.

(4) The quantity or size of said property;
The size of building, site and site improvements are based on data contained with the PRC and all comparables are chosen with as similar size as possible, while also considering and weighing the other relevant factors.

(5) The cost of said property and the present replacement value of any improvements thereon;
The PAO uses cost data within their CAMA cost/market hybrid model. When applicable, a pure replacement cost new and depreciation factors are also estimated and utilized within a cost approach to value.

(6) The condition of said property;
The PAO considers condition through periodic site inspections, actual age, and information submitted to them by property owners. A % good or % depreciation factor is noted in their subject documentation and/or PRC card and utilized in the CAMA analysis.

(7) The income from said property; and
When applicable, the PAO prepares an income capitalization analysis based on market data contained in their files as well as general market statistics. Actual subject performance is also considered when that information is available.

(8) The net proceeds of the sale of the property, as received by the seller, after deduction of all of the usual and reasonable fees and costs of the sale, including the costs and expenses of financing, and allowance for unconventional or a typical terms of financing arrangements. When the net proceeds of the sale of any property are utilized, directly or indirectly, in the determination of just valuation of realty of the sold parcel or any other parcel under the provisions of this section, the property appraiser, for the purposes of such determination, shall exclude any portion of such net proceeds attributable to payments for household furnishings or other items of personal property."

The PAO considers cost of sales within their CAMA analysis and in reconciliation when performing discrete sales, income or cost analysis. Sales prices of comparable properties are adjusted downward (reportedly) within CAMA, typically at near 15%.

ULTIMATE FINDINGS OF FACT

Florida Statute section 194.301 elaborates the standards of review that the Special Magistrate must apply to any petition to the Value Adjustment Board. The statute states as follows:

> Pursuant to Section 194.301, the Property Appraiser's assessment shall be entitled to a Presumption of Correctness if the Property Appraiser shows, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the Property Appraiser considered each of the eight criteria set forth in Section 193.011, the Property Appraiser applied the correct appraisal methodology based upon the characteristics of the property, and the Property Appraiser did not use appraisal practices which are different than the appraisal practices generally applied by the Property Appraiser to comparable property in the same county.

1 In accordance with Rule 12D-10.003(5)(a), it is concluded that the PAO DID (marginally) establish a presumption of correctness by properly considering the eight criteria described in FS 193.011. Further, it is concluded that the methodology used by the PAO IS appropriate and DOES comply with professionally accepted appraisal practices for the subject property type. The Petitioner DID NOT overcome the presumption of correctness.

2 The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment was based on an arbitrary appraisal practice different from like property in the same county.

3 The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment is excessive. Thus, the assessed value DOES NOT exceed 100% of the fair market value of the property.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence. See Rule 12D-9.025(1), Florida Administrative Code (FAC). Generally, “relevant evidence” is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. This description means the evidence meets or exceeds the minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. See Rule 12D-9.025(2)(b) FAC.

The Special Magistrate reviewed all evidence presented by all parties. In accordance with DOR guidelines, the Special Magistrate determined that the evidence and testimony was relevant and credible to the valuation at hand. Thus, the evidence as presented was admitted for consideration in relation to the appropriateness of the subject assessment.

The Special Magistrate determined that the testimonial and documentary evidence (combined) meet the test of “relevancy and credibility” and WAS sufficient to reach the “preponderance of the evidence” standard of proof required by Rule 12D-9.027(6) FAC. The Special Magistrate also determined that there IS competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with the criteria of FS 193.011 and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish the assessment.

The Special Magistrate finds that the Petitioner HAS NOT satisfied the "preponderance of the evidence" standard under the facts as testified to that the appraiser's assessment is in excess of just value. After weighting all of the documentary and testimonial evidence it is concluded that the assessment IS reasonable and within market parameters.

RECOMMENDATION

It is recommended by the Special Magistrate that the relief applied for in this petition be denied.

_____
Special Magistrate
Steven L. Nystrom, MAI

FLORIDA
DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

HERNANDO County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-323	Parcel ID 00212479
Petitioner name RYAN LLC The petitioner is: ☐ taxpayer of record ☑ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain: _____	Property address 1491 Newhope Rd., Spring Hill

Decision Summary ☑ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☐ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	265,132.00	265,132.00	265,132.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	228,295.00	228,295.00	228,295.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0.00	0.00	0.00
4. Taxable value,* required	228,295.00	228,295.00	228,295.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact

See attached.

Conclusions of Law

See attached.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

Steven Nystrom (Digitally signed by Steven Nystrom Date: 2026.03.03 07:03:09 -05'00')	Steven Nystrom	03/03/2026
Signature, special magistrate	Print name	Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
If the line above is blank, the board does not yet know the date, time, and place when the recommended decision will be considered. To find the information, please call _____ or visit our website at _____.

☐ Final Decision of the Value Adjustment Board

Signature, chair, value adjustment board	Print name	Date of decision
Signature, VAB clerk or representative	Print name	Date mailed to parties

PETITION NO. 25-323

RECOMMENDATION OF SPECIAL MAGISTRATE
VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
HERNANDO COUNTY, FLORIDA

IN RE: THE PETITION OF: RH PARTNERS OWNERCO 2 LLC
PARCEL KEY NO: 00212479

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

1 The Petitioner, NATASHA ELLIOTT of RYAN LLC for RH PARTNERS OWNERCO 2 LLC did appear telephonically before the Special Magistrate to give testimony. The Property Appraiser was represented by DOUG MACK and BRANDON JIMENEZ. All parties present were put under sworn oath.

2 The Property Appraiser shows a just value of $265,132 ($151/SF heated, $120/SF adjusted), an assessed or capped value of $228,295, and a taxable value of $228,295.

3 The Petitioner estimated the just value to be $243,900.

4 Subject Property Type: The subject is a 1,755 heated base SF (2,190 SF adjusted) single family residence. It was constructed in 1986. The parcel is located at 1491 Newhope Rd., Spring Hill.

5 The PAO evidence consists of verbal testimony, PRC, summary pages, CAMA cost legend, sales map, a statistical sales analysis report, PRC legend, and verbal testimony.

6 The Petitioners evidence consists of a petition, hearing notice, correspondence, sales analysis, sales map and verbal testimony.

7 In Hernando County, if the Petitioner is not present at the hearing, then the Petitioner must supply the evidence timely to the PAO and supply a copy of such evidence to the Clerk of Court also. If the Petitioner is present at the hearing, then they must just supply the information in a timely manner to the PAO for a proper evidence exchange. Per testimony, the evidence exchange complied with statutory time-frame requirements. No objections were made by any party present as it relates to data submittal noted above (unless specifically noted). All the evidence noted above is considered admissible (unless specifically noted as inadmissible).

8 Overall, there is sufficient, relevant, and credible information available, from which a reliable estimate of just, assessed, and taxable value can be estimated.

BASIC AND UNDERLYING FINDINGS OF FACT

9 The PAO relied primarily upon the sales comparison approach via a submitted sales analysis report. This implies a heavy weight on CAMA analysis at TRIM, as well as in this hearing. Consideration but no weight was placed on the cost approach, noted in the PRC. No detailed land or cost support was supplied. No weight was placed on the income approach to value. This is considered an appropriate mass appraisal methodology for this property type by the Special Magistrate.

10 The PAO performed their analysis utilizing adjusted SF in their sales analysis report. This methodology is generally considered less reliable than utilizing heated SF in the valuation industry but is often used in mass appraisal.

11 The PAO sales analysis report is a statistical study (a sampling of data used in the CAMA analysis). Market conditions were reported to increase by approximately 4% to 5% in 2024 for single-family homes on average.

12 The subject property did not transfer in the 3 years prior to the lien date.

13 The PAO supplied 3 improved sales on their statistical grid. PAO Sale 3 was too dissimilar to be reliable (and was not weighted). The Special Magistrate will adjust upwards 4%/year for improving market conditions, slight adjustments for land value, age/condition, size/scale, and downwards 10% for COS. After adjustment, these sales indicated a range of $119/SF to $128/SF adjusted before extra features (median $124/SF adjusted). The PAO sales, including extra features, indicate a credible and reliable just value for the subject of ($124/SF adjusted) $271,560 and that the subject IS NOT over assessed.

14 The PAO and Petitioner have 1 sale in common. This sale(s) was analyzed herein among the PAO dataset, unless it is the only reliable Petitioner Sale.

15 The Petitioner supplied 3 improved sale comparables. Sales 2 was an outlier and/or too dissimilar and not weighted. This analysis does not note garages, extra feature values, amenities or the difference between gross, adjusted and heated SF. The sales will be adjusted at 4%/year for market conditions (the Petitioner used 0% adjustment), for age/condition, adjusted for land size/value if warranted, adjusted for differences in heated SF at $100/SF heated, and in this instance a 10% COS factor is warranted. After adjustment, these remaining sales indicated a range of $258,840 to $262,710 (median $260,775). The Petitioner sales indicate a credible and reliable just value for the subject of $260,775 and that the subject IS over assessed.

16 Reviewing all the sales presented by both parties, the evidence credibly and reliably supports a just value of $266,000 for the subject and that the subject IS NOT over assessed.

17 The PAO considered cost of sales in their reconciliation process. Proper consideration of the 1st and 8th criteria for the subject property would be approximately 8-12% (cost of sales adjustment; estimated to be brokerage cost of 5-7%, personal property 1-2%, and financing costs of 2-3%, properly considered for the subject). The Special Magistrate will consider this when weighting the appropriateness of each parties' conclusions and the assessment level. Intangible value of approximately 0% is appropriate for the subject property (goodwill, assembled workforce, franchise, etc.).

18 The DOR utilize 15% cost of sales in their oversight function for all property in aggregate. The Magistrate has considered the specific subject property in relation to cost of sales factors as follows (certain scale and property types will vary significantly if cost of sales is to be performed according to statute).

19 Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., requires proper consideration of the "net proceeds of sale," regardless of whether an actual sale of the property has occurred. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001). However, the statute does not require the property appraiser to select the value generated by the application of Subsection 193.011(8), F.S., and apply it in a blanket fashion to all assessments. See Turner v. Tokai Financial Services, Inc., 767 So.2d 494 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2000) review denied 780 So.2d 916 (Fla. 2001).

20 All property is to be assessed at 100% of just value Walter v. Schuler 176 So.2d 81 (Fla 1965). The terms "just value" "fair market value' and "full cash value" are legally synonymous. Id.

21 The 1st and 8th criteria were introduced by the legislature after this ruling, suggesting that the legislature wishes real estate to be taxed net of typical sales costs. This implies that "just value" is in fact equal to "market value net of typical sales costs". The Special Magistrate training material for the current year also consistently and strongly advises a deduction for 1st and 8th criteria.

22 The PAO testified to documentation that pertains to the DOR treatment of the eight criteria required under FS 193.011. The PAO testified to and has documented how each of the criteria was considered and addressed to the property at issue, as part of the development of the assessment. The PAO addressed the requirements of FS 193.011 as follows:

"Factors to consider in deriving just valuation*. – In arriving at just valuation as required under s. 4, Art. VII of the State Constitution, the property appraiser shall take into consideration the following factors:*

(1) The present cash value of the property, which is the amount a willing purchaser would pay a willing seller, exclusive of reasonable fees and costs of purchase, in cash or the immediate equivalent thereof in a transaction at arm's length;
The sale of similar properties is considered within the PAO CAMA system, as well as within their direct application of sales comparison analysis. An adjustment is made for cost of sales as noted under Criteria 8 in their CAMA analysis and in reconciliation as applicable.

(2) The highest and best use…,(shortened)
Land use and building codes were considered along with the character of any existing site improvements, as noted on the submitted subject property data. Comparable data was chosen based on this information.

(3) The location of said property;
The subject property is assigned a location code within the PAO database related to its specific location. Comparable data is chosen with as similar a location as is possible, while also considering the other relevant factors.

(4) The quantity or size of said property;
The size of building, site and site improvements are based on data contained with the PRC and all comparables are chosen with as similar size as possible, while also considering and weighing the other relevant factors.

(5) The cost of said property and the present replacement value of any improvements thereon;
The PAO uses cost data within their CAMA cost/market hybrid model. When applicable, a pure replacement cost new and depreciation factors are also estimated and utilized within a cost approach to value.

(6) The condition of said property;
The PAO considers condition through periodic site inspections, actual age, and information submitted to them by property owners. A % good or % depreciation factor is noted in their subject documentation and/or PRC card and utilized in the CAMA analysis.

(7) The income from said property; and
When applicable, the PAO prepares an income capitalization analysis based on market data contained in their files as well as general market statistics. Actual subject performance is also considered when that information is available.

(8) The net proceeds of the sale of the property, as received by the seller, after deduction of all of the usual and reasonable fees and costs of the sale, including the costs and expenses of financing, and allowance for unconventional or a typical terms of financing arrangements. When the net proceeds of the sale of any property are utilized, directly or indirectly, in the determination of just valuation of realty of the sold parcel or any other parcel under the provisions of this section, the property appraiser, for the purposes of such determination, shall exclude any portion of such net proceeds attributable to payments for household furnishings or other items of personal property."

The PAO considers cost of sales within their CAMA analysis and in reconciliation when performing discrete sales, income or cost analysis. Sales prices of comparable properties are adjusted downward (reportedly) within CAMA, typically at near 15%.

ULTIMATE FINDINGS OF FACT

Florida Statute section 194.301 elaborates the standards of review that the Special Magistrate must apply to any petition to the Value Adjustment Board. The statute states as follows:

> Pursuant to Section 194.301, the Property Appraiser's assessment shall be entitled to a Presumption of Correctness if the Property Appraiser shows, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the Property Appraiser considered each of the eight criteria set forth in Section 193.011, the Property Appraiser applied the correct appraisal methodology based upon the characteristics of the property, and the Property Appraiser did not use appraisal practices which are different than the appraisal practices generally applied by the Property Appraiser to comparable property in the same county.

1 In accordance with Rule 12D-10.003(5)(a), it is concluded that the PAO DID (marginally) establish a presumption of correctness by properly considering the eight criteria described in FS 193.011. Further, it is concluded that the methodology used by the PAO IS appropriate and DOES comply with professionally accepted appraisal practices for the subject property type. The Petitioner DID NOT overcome the presumption of correctness.

2 The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of evidence that the assessment was based on an arbitrary appraisal practice different from like property in the same county.

3 The Petitioner HAS NOT shown by a preponderance of the evidence that the assessment is excessive. Thus, the assessed value DOES NOT exceed 100% of the fair market value of the property.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Department of Revenue (DOR) has developed specific evidence rules for presenting relevant and credible evidence. See Rule 12D-9.025(1), Florida Administrative Code (FAC). Generally, “relevant evidence” is evidence that is reasonably related, directly or indirectly, to the statutory criteria that apply to the issue under review. This description means the evidence meets or exceeds the minimum level of relevance necessary to be admitted for consideration, although it does not necessarily mean that the evidence has sufficient relevance to legally justify a particular conclusion. See Rule 12D-9.025(2)(b) FAC.

The Special Magistrate reviewed all evidence presented by all parties. In accordance with DOR guidelines, the Special Magistrate determined that the evidence and testimony was relevant and credible to the valuation at hand. Thus, the evidence as presented was admitted for consideration in relation to the appropriateness of the subject assessment.

The Special Magistrate determined that the testimonial and documentary evidence (combined) meet the test of “relevancy and credibility” and WAS sufficient to reach the “preponderance of the evidence” standard of proof required by Rule 12D-9.027(6) FAC. The Special Magistrate also determined that there IS competent and substantial evidence of value on record in compliance with the criteria of FS 193.011 and professionally accepted appraisal practice to establish the assessment.

The Special Magistrate finds that the Petitioner HAS NOT satisfied the "preponderance of the evidence" standard under the facts as testified to that the appraiser's assessment is in excess of just value. After weighting all of the documentary and testimonial evidence it is concluded that the assessment IS reasonable and within market parameters.

RECOMMENDATION

It is recommended by the Special Magistrate that the relief applied for in this petition be denied.

_____
Special Magistrate
Steven L. Nystrom, MAI

DECISION OF THE VALUE ADJUSTMENT BOARD
VALUE PETITION

HERNANDO County

DR-485V
R. 11/23
Rule 12D-16.002 F.A.C.
Eff. 11/23

The actions below were taken on your petition.

☑ These actions are a recommendation only, not final ☐ These actions are a final decision of the VAB

If you are not satisfied after you are notified of the final decision of the VAB, you have the right to file a lawsuit in circuit court to further contest your assessment. (See sections 193.155(8)(l), 194.036, 194.171(2), 194.181, 196.151, and 197.2425, Florida Statutes.)

Petition # 25-320	Parcel ID 01669073
Petitioner name RYAN LLC The petitioner is: ☐ taxpayer of record ☑ taxpayer's representative ☐ other, explain:	Property address 14385 Finsbury Dr., Spring Hill

Decision Summary ☐ Denied your petition ☐ Granted your petition ☑ Granted your petition in part

Value Lines 1 and 4 must be completed	Value from TRIM Notice	Before Board Action Value presented by property appraiser Rule 12D-9.025(10), F.A.C.	After Board Action
1. Just value, required	414,544.00	414,544.00	413,680.00
2. Assessed or classified use value,* if applicable	411,026.00	411,026.00	411,026.00
3. Exempt value,* enter "0" if none	0.00	0.00	0.00
4. Taxable value,* required	411,026.00	411,026.00	411,026.00

*All values entered should be county taxable values. School and other taxing authority values may differ. (Section 196.031(7), F.S.)

Reasons for Decision Fill-in fields will expand, or add pages as needed.

Findings of Fact

See attached.

Conclusions of Law

See attached.

☑ Recommended Decision of Special Magistrate Finding and conclusions above are recommendations.

	Steven Nystrom	02/20/2026
Signature, special magistrate	Print name	Date
Signature, VAB clerk or special representative	Print name	Date

If this is a recommended decision, the board will consider the recommended decision on _____ at _____
Address _____
